We have but little improvement to notice in the general market since our last review. As usual at the commencement of the month there is more doing by the jobbing trade in supplying factors' orders and city dealers; but on the whole the movement has been of limited extent. Sugar has been in rather better request, but prices have ruled more in favor of buyers, and nothing of any moment has been reported in molasses. Western produce has continued quiet. There have been some receipts of wheat and corn. The former, in bulk, is still unsold, there being a difference of 10c per bushel between the views of foreign buyers and sellers. Other branches of Western produce continue dull, the demand being exclusively confined to the local trade.

Our accounts from the country are more discouraging. A cold spring and excessive rains have generally retarded the crops, while in many localities floods from high water will render replanting necessary. All anticipations of the advantage to be derived from early crops and a long picking season have been disappointed, and, notwithstanding increased acreage, the prospects of much, if any, increase over the present crop are becoming doubtful. Our Northern customers who have been guessing three millions, will have to reduce their figures.

The river remains the same, being one foot five inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the 30th ultimo:

Louisiana and Mississippi ....bales..	2980
Lake	8
Mobile	72
Texas	24
Total	3 32

On Saturday, under the upward course at New York and a corresponding advance in sterling here, the movement commenced with considerable spirit and continued animated throughout the day, showing increased activity toward the close. In fact, no inconsiderable part of the business was done after business hours, and the sales summed up 6,500 bales at prices ⅛ to ¼c. dearer for the medium qualities, good or dinary closing at 26¼ to 26¾c., and low middling at 27¼ to 27½c., the outside figures being, of course, for strict classification. On Monday buyers evinced a disposition to go on at Saturday's improvement, but in view of a further advance in gold at New York, and in sterling exchange here, equal to ⅛ to ¼c. per pound in cotton, factors were still more stringent in their pretensions, which checked the movement, and although orders could have been filled subsequently at Saturday's figures, it failed to impart any more spirit to the demand, and the business did not exceed 2,400 bales, while prices showed some irregularity, and a general leaning to outside figures, but without any quotable change. On Tuesday the market opened with discouraging dispatches from Liverpool, under the depressing influence of which buyers refused to go on, unless at concessions which factors would not admit. Later in the day, however, the latter evincing a disposition to meet the demand more freely, the former came forward and took, in all, 2,000 bales at about previous rates for the higher grades, but a falling off of ⅛ to ¼c. in the poorer qualities, a larger proportion of the business being for the North.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 10,900 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 757,528 bales, against 572,926 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 132,635 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 12,084 bales to France, and a decrease of 281,190 to Great Britain, and of 15,234 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary	25 to 25¼
Good ordinary	26¼ to 26½
Low middling	27 to 27½
Middling	25¾ to —
Strict middling	25¾ to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....	1959
Arrived past three days.....	3732
Arrived previously.....	785850—789582
	791541
Exported past three days.....	1233
Exported previously.....	700132—712463
Stock on hand and on shipboard....	70078

SUGAR.—Since our review of Saturday last there has been a better demand but prices are easy. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of only 232 hogsheads, part on private terms and the balance at 12¼c. for fully fair, 12½c. for prime and 13¼c. for choice.

CATTLE MARKET.

JEFFERSON CITY,
Tuesday Evening, May 4, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head	$55 to 65
Texas cattle, second qual, per head.	40 to 45
Texas cattle, third qual, per head	20 to 35
Hogs, per lb gross	7 to 10c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$5 to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head	2½ to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to 1½
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	6 to 10
Calves, per head	6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Veal's Plows and Scrapers	9 00	10 00
Cotton Scrubers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	16 00
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	22	23
East India	23½	24
Bale Rope Kentucky, ₩ lb	..	..
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	..	1 35
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50	..
Crackers	6 00	..
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fire	55 00	60 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow	..	..
Adamantine	17	22
Star	17	22
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl	..	..
Northern	13 00	..
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton	..	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	9 50	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel	..	5n
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14	17½
Havana	..	..
Java	..	..
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	..	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel	..	..
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	37	38
Sheathing	..	..
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow Metal	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	21½	23½
Tarred, American	..	21
Russia	50	..
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	3 50	4 00
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	..
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	12	15
Feathers, ₩ lb	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	1 80	..
Herrings	75	..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	..	28 00
No. 2	..	22 00
No. 3	..	17 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	5 50	..
Extra	5 62½	11 50
Fine	4 50	5 00
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	13	14
Currants, Zante	13½	14
Almonds, soft shell	25	..
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
Layer	..	3 00
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
Malaga ₩ box	..	..
Oranges, Isa ₩ 1000	..	..
Sicily ₩ box	..	..
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25	..
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 10	2 40
Canada	2 40	2 60
Oats	71	72
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	74	78
Beans, ₩ bbl	9 00	12 00
Hops, ₩ lb	12	15
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	32 00	34 00
Northern	..	..
Louisiana	..	..
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	8	12
Kip Skins	..	..
Dry country	17	18
Pelts ₩ piece	..	..
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00	..
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6½	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75	..
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00	..
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	40	65
Muscovado	..	..
Refinery, Reboiled	67½	80
Mess, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3	..
Black do	4	4½
Select, water rotted	6½	..
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	2 00	4 00
Pitch	2 50	3 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 35	3 50
No. 2	2 25	2 50
No. 3	..	..
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	45	48
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 50	1 55
Coal Oil	37	39
in cases	48	50
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	1 00	1 05
Tanners' ₩ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton	..	..
Cotton Seed	35 00	40 00
Meal	..	..
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	nonn	here
" Western	17 00	18 00
" North half bbl	15 00	16 00
Dried, ₩ lb	..	..
Tongues ₩ doz	..	..
Pork, Mess	32 25	32 50
Prime Mess	28 00	..
Hog, round, ₩ lb	..	13½
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	17½	17½
Do., canvassed	19	20½
Sides	17½	17½
Shoulders	13½	13½
Green Shoulders	..	13
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	19
In kegs	19½	21
Pair, in tierces	..	17
Butter, Northern	45	50
Western	25	43
Cheese, American	20	24
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	1 00	1 75
Onions	..	..
Green Apples	..	..
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	5½	6½
India	..	..
Carolina	10	10½
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	..	..
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo	..	..
from warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	..	..
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	10½	12
Southern	..	..
Castile	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	8½	13½
Havana, White	15½	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters	—	—
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	10	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refused	7	10
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	—	—
Balling	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	33	37½
Burry	14	18
Louisiana, Native	20	27
Texas, (@) Merino	26	29

SPECIAL NOTICES.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-third anniversary celebration of the New Orleans District Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held in Carondelet street church, at half-past three o'clock P. M., on Sunday, the 16th of May.

The schools will all meet on Saturday previous, May 15th, at three P. M., for rehearsal of pieces and songs.

The superintendents will please see that there be a large and punctual attendance of their respective schools.

W. H. FOSTER, President.

MAY 4, 1869.

NOTICE.

ATTAUGAVILLE, ALA., April 29, 1869.

The ministers and delegates to the district meeting to be held for the Weinmpka district will report at the store of H. L. Golson & Co., and any coming by the river will land at Vernon, and conveyance will be furnished to Autaugaville.

WM. A. EDWARDS, Pastor.

PENSACOLA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Pensacola district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Milton, Florida, June 3-6.

A full attendance is earnestly desired, and the official members are referred to the constitution in the printed minutes of our last session for an explanation of their duties.

Members, on arriving at Milton, will report at the Eagle hotel. Provision for all. Bishop Andrews will preside.

J. A. PARKER, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

New Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers	May 9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.	10
German churches: at Craps st	16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st	21
Jefferson City	23
Plaquemine	30
Felicity street	June 6
Thibodeaux	13
Carondelet street	27
Baton Rouge	July 18
Moreau street	25

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Union Springs Dist., Montgomery Conf.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Troy, at Bethel	Apr. 3, 4
Brundidge, at Williams'	10, 11
Pine Level, at Orion	17, 18
Union Springs	24, 25
Rocky Mount, at Athens	May 1, 2
Mt. Hilliard, at Mt. Hilliard	8, 9
Line Creek, at Line Creek	15 16
Fort Deposit, at Letohatchie	22, 23
Mount Idu, at Emmaus	27, 28
South Butler, at Ebenezer	29, 30
Greenville circuit, at Union	June 4, 5
Greenville station	6, 7
Sandy Ridge, at Spring Hill	9, 10
Millville, at Rogers' chapel	12, 13
Elba, at Ehu	19, 20

J. W. SHORES, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo circuit, Concord	Apr. 17, 18
Montevallo station	24, 25
Arbucoochee ct., Chulafinee	May 1, 2
Lineville circuit, Lineville	5, 6
Fredonia ct., Chapel Hill	8, 9
Lafayette circuit, Lafayette	11, 12
Dudeville circuit, Camp Hill	15, 16
Pinckneyville ct., Eumuckfaw	19, 20
Marble Val. ct., County Line	22, 23
Chandler Spring ct., Chandler Spring	29, 30

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Summerfield	Mar. 13, 14
Perryville	20, 21
Selma	27, 28
Randolph	Apr. 3, 4
Tuscaloosa	10, 11
Havana	17, 18
Forklund	24, 25
Greensboro and Newbern	May 1, 2
Brush Creek	8, 9
Marion	15, 16

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion	Apr. 10, 11
Macon station	17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill	May 1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville	8, 9
Cooksville, at Hebron	15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew	22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville	June 5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn	12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb	26, 27

S. H. COX, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist., La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carroll circuit	May 1, 2
Delhi and Floyd circuit, at Hurricane	8, 9
Sicily Island	15, 16
Waterproof	22, 23
Winsborough circuit	29, 30
Bastrop and Oak Ridge	June 5, 6
Lynd Grove circuit	12, 13

W. G. McGAUGHEY, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia	Apr. 17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville	24, 25
Calcasieu	May 1, 2
Bellevue	8, 9
Bayou Mallet	15, 16
Vermilionville	21, 22
Opelousas	29, 30
Grand Cheniere	June 5, 6
Washington	12, 13
Plaquemine Brulee	19, 20

J. D. ADAMS, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit	Apr. 17, 18
Monroe circuit	24, 25
Vernon circuit	May 1, 2
Farmersville circuit	15, 16
Homer circuit	22, 23
Haynesville circuit	29, 30
Bossier circuit	June 5, 6
Minden circuit	12, 13
Sparta circuit	19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit	26, 27

SAMUEL ARMSTRONG, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson	Mar. 30
Wilkinson	Apr. 1
Percy's Creek	May 15, 16
Woodville	17
Buffalo	18
Tunica	19
St. Helena	22, 23
Amite	25
Meadville	June 9
Liberty	12, 13

Address, Liberty, Mississippi.

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n.	Mar. 27, 28
Mobile, Franklin street	Apr. 3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street	10, 11
Whistler	17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne	24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa	May 1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion	8, 9
W. Pascagoula, at Ocean Spg's	15, 16
Cotinge Hill, at Allen's	June 5, 6
St. Stephen's, at St. Stephen's	12, 13

JAS. A. HEARD, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty five different styles, with the Patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE

ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 43 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES

Also, Guns and Pistols, and every thing in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Chartres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans. oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION. — TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

PAYMENTS—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability. july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months	$150 00
Fuel	15 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department	40 00
Music	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance Cit Hotel. de12 3m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired. A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN, Late STAINOER.

ELKIN & CO.,

169.....CANAL STREET.....169

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc.

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

71.....Camp street.....71

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes.

Wicks, Chimneys, Burners, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflammable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y N. 71 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—251 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—185 and 190 Delord street. oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-nine students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
de12 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23D OF SEPTEMBER, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON,
aep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The BEST INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to HYGIENE. LOCATION VERY HEALTHY.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address

nov11 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans. oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sept

Lake Providence Dist., La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carroll circuit	May 1, 2
Delhi and Floyd circuit, at Hurricane	8, 9
Sicily Island	15, 16
Waterproof	22, 23
Winsborough circuit	29, 30
Bastrop and Oak Ridge	June 5, 6
Lynd Grove circuit	12, 13

W. G. McGAUGHEY, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia	Apr. 17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville	24, 25
Calcasieu	May 1, 2
Bellevue	8, 9
Bayou Mallet	15, 16
Vermilionville	21, 22
Opelousas	29, 30
Grand Cheniere	June 5, 6
Washington	12, 13
Plaquemine Brulee	19, 20

J. D. ADAMS, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit	Apr. 17, 18
Monroe circuit	24, 25
Vernon circuit	May 1, 2
Farmersville circuit	15, 16
Homer circuit	22, 23
Haynesville circuit	29, 30
Bossier circuit	June 5, 6
Minden circuit	12, 13
Sparta circuit	19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit	26, 27

SAMUEL ARMSTRONG, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson	Mar. 30
Wilkinson	Apr. 1
Percy's Creek	May 15, 16
Woodville	17
Buffalo	18
Tunica	19
St. Helena	22, 23
Amite	25
Meadville	June 9
Liberty	12, 13

Address, Liberty, Mississippi.

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n.	Mar. 27, 28
Mobile, Franklin street	Apr. 3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street	10, 11
Whistler	17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne	24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa	May 1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion	8, 9
W. Pascagoula, at Ocean Spg's	15, 16
Cotinge Hill, at Allen's	June 5, 6
St. Stephen's, at St. Stephen's	12, 13

JAS. A. HEARD, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty five different styles, with the Patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE

ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 43 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, S

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 17.
WHOLE NUMBER ..... 731.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

PACIFIC RAILROAD.

PROMONTORY SUMMIT, May 10.—To the Associated Press: The last rail is laid; the last spike is driven; the Pacific Railroad is completed. The point of union is one thousand and eighty-six miles west of the Mississippi river, and six hundred and ninety miles east of San Francisco.

LELAND STANFORD.
T. C. DURANT.
SIDNEY DILLON.
JOHN DUFF.

We were present yesterday, together with a few other members of the city press, at the office of the Western and Union Telegraph Company, in this city, by invitation of Major Flannery, the superintendent, at the moment when the last spike was driven home on the Pacific Railroad.

The ceremony took place at a point one thousand and eighty-six miles west of the Mississippi river, and six hundred and ninety miles east of San Francisco, and about fourteen miles of Salt Lake City.

At about twenty minutes to two o'clock P. M., by our time, and when all was in readiness, the signal was given from the Omaha office to "look out," and shortly afterward eight ticks were heard in succession upon the instrument here, as was the case at every telegraph office in the land, all having been placed in connection by a previous understanding. Just after the ticks were heard, which kept time to the blows of the hammer as it fell upon the silver spike thousands of miles away, an interruption occurred along the line of the wires, and before the current was again in full force we were obliged to take our leave.

Before the signal to look out was given, it was quite interesting to listen to the conversations going on in telegraphy between New York and Chicago, and Chicago and Omaha, and vice versa.

Chicago at one time became impatient and inquired the cause of delay of Omaha, and the latter replied to keep quiet, as prayer was being offered.

And thus the grand event, cementing the Atlantic and the Pacific, was consummated.—Picayune.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—McClellan's visit to the President to-day had reference to the Stevens floating battery, of which McClellan is engineer in charge, for the defence of New York harbor.

The triple alliance dispatch telegraphed at noon, was a London special to the New York Tribune. Its promulgation here created intense excitement, but the course of bonds in London to-day, and other facts, lead to its general discredit.

LONDON, May 12.—The initiatory steps have been taken for an alliance offensive and defensive between England and France and Spain against the United States in view of the rejection of the Alabama treaty, the tone of Sumner's speech, the alleged filibustering tendency of Grant's administration, and its reported connivance at expeditions against Cuba.

LONDON, May 12.—The Morning Standard (Conservative organ) has a leading article on the Alabama question and the speech of Sumner. The writer reviews the relative positions of the United States and Great Britain, and asserts that the raids and other outrages perpetrated by American Fenians in Canada, during the past few years, more than counterbalance the depredations committed by the Alabama on American commerce, and that the government of Great Britain, in consenting to submit mutual international grievances to arbitration, did more than could be fairly demanded, and to yield further would be an act of cowardice and irreparable degradation.

ALABAMA.—OUTRAGES BY FEDERAL SOLDIERS.

Radical peace to the South is such as the wolf gives to the fold. Our boasted liberty and form of government to the contrary, we are now living under the hugest and most merciless despotism on the face of the earth. Acts are daily perpetrated by subalterns in every portion of the South, that the Czar of Russia would not do even in Poland, and so revolting in detail that King Theodore himself would hesitate in their commission. It is useless for us to go into the details of the outrage provoking these expressions. The tale is told in the heading, and it is the old, old story of wrong and oppression reiterated. It is useless to say, too, that no one believes the man so severely punished to have had the remotest connection with the stealing of the horses which the soldiers claim to have lost.

This is the same case that we partially reported last week. It was then stated that he was probably drowned, but it seems that the commander deceived the United States marshal, and reserved his victim for further torture. The facts are briefly these, as far as we can learn:

The soldiers, while camped at Martin Hale's, lost two horses. They suspected or pretended to suspect Mr. Roberts of the crime, although he lived seven miles distant, and was found quietly asleep at home when arrested. They at once arrested him, and next morning took him along with them on the march, and then his sufferings commenced. He either did not know, or would tell nothing of the horses, and they hung him, as the commander himself expressed to the United States marshal, "until he was black in the face." Farther on they again hung him, so citizens report, before reaching Gadsden. While in Gadsden the nerves of the poor man were so unstrung that he did not know for some time his most intimate friends. After leaving the town the United States marshal was sent for, and with the deputy sheriff and others went in pursuit. On overtaking the command, they were informed that the man had escaped at the last creek, which led to the supposition that he was there murdered. Afterward, near Walnut Grove, citizens report, he was again hung and whipped until his cries rang through out the camp. Farther on, citizens report, he was tied behind a wagon and compelled to follow on foot. These repeated confirmations of gross outrage continuing to come in every arrival, the Masonic fraternity at last made up a purse and started a lawyer (Mr. Scales) to head off the command and sue out a writ of habeas corpus. This lawyer is now in Huntsville laying the matter before Colonel Ritter there, who, says the Huntsville Advocate, will and ought to investigate it. Mr. Roberts has at last been released, or made his escape; and parties now in town, who staid night before last at the house of a neighbor of his, report that his mind is almost destroyed by the agony of his situation the past few days.—Gadsden Times.

WICKLIFFE AGAIN ACQUITTED.

The case of Wickliffe for issuing fraudulent warrants was submitted to the jury, after the day had been consumed by the elaborate arguments of the counsel on both sides and a lengthy charge from Judge Abell. At about half past nine o'clock the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Address to the People of Mississippi.

The following address is worthy of attention from our people, no less than those to whom it is addressed. The names signed to it, and the sound, strong sense it contains, must have their weight:

Evil, designing men are intent, by frauds and lies, to slander and enslave you. They make haste to misrepresent the most innocent act. We earnestly beseech you to observe great prudence both in words and in conduct, and to promote peace and good will in every neighborhood. All Mississippians—the home folks of every complexion—including all who, from other States, in good faith, have come to take part and lot with us in weal or woe, need help and to help each other against the adventurers who seek to divide and rule them.

Our whole State machinery has been subverted. Experienced officers have been expelled; and the military commander is now constrained to fill the vacancies with new and inexperienced men. The jury lists are to be revised, and jurors are to be selected regardless of race or color.

Let all officials who can qualify, retain and accept office and serve for the public good; and as new men unacquainted with the duties of jurors are now to sit on trials involving the lives, liberties and estates of the people, let every good citizen consider how important it is that experienced men be diligent to act and serve. Let every man summoned as a juror be careful without fail to attend and perform that duty, and aid the inexperienced in the discharge of the new trusts confided to them.

J. D. FREEMAN.	GEO. L. POTTER.
T. J. WARTON.	WM. YERGER.
E. BARKSDALE.	W. P. HARRIS.
DAVID SHELTON.	A. R. JOHNSTON.
J. W. ROBINSON.	L. MIMS.
S. G. NEWCOMEB.	J. L. POWER.
J. C. KITTRELL.	A. VIRDEN.
WM. H. ALLEN.	JOSHUA GREEN.
A. G. BROWN.

JACKSON, April 29, 1869.

OPELOUSAS RAILROAD.

A meeting of solid men was held at the St. Charles on Monday night last. M. Musson, Esq., was called to the chair. Mr. W. S Pike presented a plan for the relief of the road, which will raise one million of dollars. The following is the substance of it:

To every subscriber for forty shares of $25 ($1,000) of the preferred bond stock we will give one of the second mortgage bonds of the company of $1,000, payable in twenty years, and bearing interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually in coupons. The punctual payment of these coupons, as well as the coupons on the first mortgage bonds, shall be secured beyond any question by an irrevocable resolution of the board of directors and by a public notarial act, to be executed by the proper officers of the company, pledging from the gross receipts of the road a properly regulated monthly deposition in one of the standard banks of this city of a sum sufficient to meet all interest promptly as it matures; and the sums thus deposited shall be held by the bank specially for the payment of the coupons, and shall not be used for any other purpose whatever. The owner of the bond and forty shares of stock will receive eight per cent. interest on his investment. At maturity of his bond his $1,000 will be returned to him; and whenever the road is completed to the Texas line, I apprehend no one present will question that the stock itself will command its cost value; thus, as before stated, returning to each subscriber $2,000 for his $1,000, in addition to paying him semi-annually eight per cent. on his advance. No subscription is binding until the whole forty thousand shares are subscribed, and payments will be called for as needed, say about thirty five per cent. will be demanded immediately, to settle and retire the coupon debt; all subsequent payments will only be demanded in such monthly installments as may be required to pay for labor and materials as the work progresses. I take occasion here to remark that the company has no floating debt whatever, except the unpaid coupons of interest. All purchases for materials of every kind are now, and have been, for some time past, paid in cash, and all officers and employees are paid off monthly. The company has now on hand, in cash, over $40,000.

Fifty thousand dollars of stock was subscribed for at once, and the organization was completed for soliciting the citizens generally. We have great faith in the plan, and know of no enterprise in the railroad way that bears any comparison with this one for prospective profit. But an inconsiderable link remains to connect this line with eight hundred miles of tributary railroads. It will be the throat to Texas through which all travel to that country will pass.

THE Washington correspondent of the New York World gives the following:

"The chaplain of the Senate saluted the war cloud, and in one of the most flowery prayers ever addressed to a deliberative body desired that Mr. Grant and Queen Victoria, his cabinet and her ministry, might remain in good health; that Britain might concede what was just and America stand up for what was due her to the last degree, i. e. penny. Mr. Pile is reported to have asked his clerical colleague, Brother Newman, to pray for his confirmation. The latter doesn't see it. Every day an accurate estimate of coming events can be drawn from these prayers of the chaplain, who is just a little more up to snuff than any of his predecessors."

WE LEARN that a tow of eight barges of the famous Mount Carbon coal has arrived on the Teche the past week, and was disposed of to the go-ahead planters on that bayou. This, we believe, is the first tow ever sent by the Atchafalaya and into the Teche. Before it was done, doubts were expressed by many as to its practicability, but the result shows that where there is a will there is a way. The planters there comprehend the fact that while the cost of coal in making sugar is only half that of wood, the fact that two days' time only is required to get in the supply of fuel against sixty days for wood, makes the total economy much more than can be figured in the items of actual cost.—Picayune.

RETRENCH 'BROTHER PEARNE."

The Rev. L. Hawkins wrote in January last as follows to the Northwestern Christian Advocate:

"Brother Pearne has not yet been officially notified of his appointment, but will be soon, as a telegram has been received at police headquarters in this city that the appointment has been made. Nor has he expressed a determination to either accept or reject the appointment, but he will undoubtedly accept of it, as it is a position of large power and influence, and pays a salary of three times the amount the Missionary Society allows him for his services as presiding elder of the district."

Now, Brother Pearne is chief of police, with an immense salary, and at the same time continues missionary presiding elder of the district—deals in law through the week, and in the Gospel on Sunday. Besides, he is superintendent of public education for this county, and was one of the commissioners appointed under a law of the Tennessee Legislature to estimate and report the losses of loyalists inflicted by the United States army—both paying offices. Here certainly is room for "retrenchment of expenses." Let the Missionary Society withhold its supplies for other and better fields; and let the State of Tennessee, the county of Shelby, and the city of Memphis, pay the bills of "Brother Pearne," who, we think, is succeeding well as chief of police. Elsewhere the same state of things prevails, we dare say, and so the suggestion may be applies elsewhere. Let Cæsar in the South, who has been converted to Methodism by the loyalty of Methodists in the North, pay the piper—thus saving much money to send the Gospel to "the heathen in his blindness."—Memphis Christian Advocate.

BRAVE WORDS OF A BRAVE OLD MAN. In reply to a note from the citizens of Lynchburg, Virginia, tendering him a public dinner, General Early writes:

"I am constrained to decline the proposed entertainment. In doing so, I desire to express to you my most heartfelt thanks for the cordial greeting you have given me, individually and collectively, to assure you that neither in wandering abroad, nor on my return, have I seen any cause to abate in attachment to the land of my birth, or to waver in devotion to the principles which actuated us in our late struggle for all that was dear.

"It is the hour of defeat and adversity that really tries the hearts and souls of men, and those who shall have passed through all its temptation without an abandonment of honor or principle will be entitled in the end to be regarded as the true heroes of our cause.

"Very truly and respectfully yours, J. A. EARLY."

THE election of Mr. W. S. Pike to the presidency of the New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Rail road Company is at this moment very opportune. Mr. Pike's great financial abilities, and the thorough confidence which all our people have in his integrity and efficiency, will add greatly to the favor which is already so earnestly revived in favor of continuing the road through its present management, which is now showing such renewed energy.

We are glad to be able to add that the company, in gaining the financial services of Mr. Pike, is not to lose the practical, faithful, and almost omniscient and omnipresent labors of Captain Seger, who will probably return to his duties as vice president and superintendent, in which capacity he has no superior, as the fact that he never had an accident on the road, by which a life or limb was lost, or the company subjected to damage, is the best of all proof.—Picayune.

AN EXAMPLE.—When George Washington was President, he wrote to his kinsman, Bushrod Washington, as follows:

"However deserving you may be of the one you have suggested, your standing at the bar would not justify my nomination of you as attorney to the Federal District Court in preference to some of the oldest and most esteemed general court lawyers of your State, who are desirous of this appointment. My political conduct in nominations, even if I were uninfluenced by principle, must be exceedingly circumspect, and proof against just criticism; for the eyes of Argus are upon me, and no slip will be passed unnoticed that can be improved into a supposed partiality for friends or relations."

CHINA MISSION.

SHANGHAI, CHINA, March 20, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Time rolls on so swiftly that almost before we are aware of it another month has passed away. I am astonished sometimes to see that I do so little where there is so much to be done. I often ask myself this question at the close of the day, What have I done this day that is worth the doing, and what have I left undone? And really I feel at times that I have done nothing, and am unworthy of the many mercies God showers upon me and my family in a heathen land, and I am ready to say with the apostle, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" But thanks be to God, we are His creatures and redeemed by the precious blood of His only begotten Son. Even here, among the heathen who know not God, and surrounded too by our own countrymen, many of them scoffers, mocking God, trampling His word under their feet and wallowing in sin, God has cared for us and we have not been left without many tokens of His loving kindness and divine protection. Hundreds have fallen around us by the pestilences which are abroad in the land, and yet we are living monuments of God's exceeding great mercy. This thought should humble us in the sight of God; but, O, how slow we are to think of these things! Daily we are met on the street by the blind, the maimed and the poor, some of whom present a picture of distress beyond the power of language to express; many of whom crawl on their hands and knees, deprived of their feet, and exposing some fearful sore which will cause one to shudder when beholding it. Hundreds of beggars can be seen in an hour's walk in and near the city of Shanghai. Surely we have reason to be thankful to our God for His abundant goodness to us in a heathen land.

Each mail brings us cheering news from dear Christian friends who encourage us to be faithful, and who are making every effort to help us in our work. I have no doubt God hears the prayers of His people in our behalf, and it cheers our hearts to think that we have many thousands of God's people who daily offer up prayer for us, and for the work in which we are engaged. By the last mail I received another $20 from Sister Walker, of your city, for my school. Having transferred the school to Mrs. Lambuth, I have also transferred the money to her for the support of her girls' school in the city of Shanghai. Two young men in Shanghai are lending some assistance toward the support of the same school. There are now about ten scholars, and taught by a woman. Mrs. Lambuth will give a full account of it by and by.—Brother Montgomery has also sent another bill of about one hundred and ten Mexican dollars, from Mississippi Conference. Sister Speer, formerly of Mississippi, has nobly forwarded to me $40 in gold for the support of a native Christian woman Bible reader among the Chinese women. She writes me she has joined the China mission, and intends to work faithfully. Who else will join the China mission? Sister Speer cannot come, but she wishes to be a member of the mission, and as she cannot come herself, she has her representative, a Bible reader. That is the way to help us and to become identified with the mission work in a heathen land. Are there not others who have devoted themselves to the service of God? And can they not consent to invest in the bank which shall never fail? I know there are many. All they wish to know is how to do this to the glory of God, and they will do it. They could not do it better than to follow the example of Sister Speer. I have just received $20 from Felicity street church, with which I shall, in connection with Brother Allen, open a school at one of our out stations. Also $5 from some friend in New Orleans. Brother A. received the same amount. I shall acknowledge to the school that the amount has been received. I hope the Louisiana Conference can and will unite with the Mississippi Conference in my support, that I may be able to give myself wholly to the mission work. Surely we need to have some one whose time shall be entirely given up to the work. I will write again.

I am your brother in Christ,

J. W. LAMBUTH.

GOOD NEWS.

GALVESTON, May 9, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: You some time since published an account of the death of our beloved brother, Rev. J. W. McKenzie. I hope you will inform his numerous friends that he still lives, and, I trust, will yet be the means of doing much good. This piece I cut from our Texas Advocate;

REV. J. W. MCKENZIE.—A letter from Rev. J. H. McLean, of Paris station, dated the 15th of April, informs us that Brother McKenzie is not dead, though his health is still in a critical condition. We trust that the prayers of the church, in his behalf, will be heard, and a life so long valuable will long be spared to advance the interests of religion and education.

I am going to try the experiment of a speaking trumpet in our old church, and hope I shall succeed in getting one that will enable me to hear the Gospel once more.

Our church here is in a prosperous condition. Our meetings are solemn, and much feeling is manifested. This morning there were many who shed tears while the word was preached.

Almost every service there are some who unite with the church, principally young, and some middle-aged, and from the most intelligent portion of our citizens.

I wish you could come over and make us a visit. It might cause you to become a Texian.

Yours truly, D. AYRES.

["Become a Texian," indeed! We should like to know if living two years in and about Shelby county does not constitute one a Texian forever.—ED.]

BISHOP MARVIN.

His absence from the bishops' meeting will be marked and universally regretted. It has been determined by himself, upon high grounds of ministerial and official obligation. His personal feelings impelled him homeward, and any question of economy was settled by the generous offer of the church in this city to defray the expense of travel, but all has been subordinated to a sense of duty to make and keep appointments in his episcopal district, commencing about this time in a tour of the Oregon Conference. He has sought to substitute his personal presence by a written report concerning the state and wants of the church on the Pacific coast. In his private correspondence with friends here he represents himself as somewhat acclimated and his health improved. The California Advocate admonishes brethren not to preach the bishop too much. It is surely timely consideration. We are informed that since last August—the time of his arrival on the Pacific coast—his preaching has averaged fully, if not more than a sermon a day. We fear, however, the bishop needs admonition somewhat as well as the brethren. The mortal body is a weak instrument for a soul like his, strung to such high tension of earnestness.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

THE Alumni of the Wesleyan University, of Middletown, Connecticut, will bear in mind that a new edition of the Alumni Record is now being put into type by Orange Judd, Esq., 245 Broadway, New York; and any additions or corrections should be forwarded at once. Every alumnus will please send immediately his own present post office address, and that of every other alumnus known by him.

THE Atlantic cable is said to be growing more perfect in its insulation month by month.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1869.

SPENT AND MISSPENT.

Stay yet a little longer in the sky,
O golden color of the evening sun!
Let not the sweet day in its sweetness die,
While my day's work is only just begun.

Counting the happy chances strewn about
Thick as the leaves, and saying which was best,
The rosy lights of morning all went out,
And it was burning noon, and time to rest.

Then, leaning low upon a piece of shade,
Fringed round with violets and pansies sweet,
My heart and I, I said, will be delayed,
And plan our work while cools the sultry heat.

Deep in the hills, and out of silence vast,
A waterfall played up his silver tune—
My plans lost purpose, fell to dreams at last,
And held me late into the afternoon.

But when the idle pleasure ceased to please,
And I awoke, and not a plan was planned,
Just as a drowning man, at what he sees,
Catches for life, I caught the thing at hand.

And so life's little work-day hour has all
Been spent and misspent doing what I could,
And in regrets and efforts to recall,
The chance of having, being, what I would.

And so sometimes I cannot choose but cry,
Seeing my late sown flowers are hardly set—
O darkening color of the evening sky,
Spare me the day a little longer yet!

The Pulpit as Viewed from a Pew.

NUMBER TWO.

ATTALGAVILLE, ALABAMA,
April 15, 1869.

Reference has been made to the insufficiency of the returns as compensatory for the contributions bestowed in support of the church. Can we arrive at the cause of failure? We say failure, because results have not fulfilled the reasonable expectations of the church. Can we attribute it to those who minister at her altars? Far be it from our purpose to speak a word of unkindness of our ministry, or awaken in others a disposition to criticise in any way the relation which they sustain to the church. As a body, we recognize them as intelligent, humble, energetic, earnest men, commanding the confidence of the church and its friends. The majority are in the prime of life, and all are well suited to the calling in which they are engaged. We commend their sincerity of purpose and admire their perseverance under the embarrassments that too frequently gather around them. With this honest confession we are still constrained to inquire: Do they exert the influence for good which we have reason to expect? Concede all that may be claimed, and yet we are forced to estimate their pulpit ministrations as accomplishing very little toward the spread of scriptural holiness.

Through the instrumentality of the Sabbath school, of the religious press, of the individual and associated efforts of the church, of the restraints of public sentiment and of the law, a strong support is given to the development and growth of Christian principles—a support certainly not to be ignored in an enumeration of the agencies employed in the interests of Christianity. Subtract only so much of these influences as are not referable to ministerial agency and credit the ministry with the remainder, and how would the account stand?

It is the boast of our church—and a just one, too—that her economy is so adjusted as to meet the demands of all classes and sections of the country. We have no exalted standard of ministerial requirement. Through our itinerant system we attempt to adapt our preaching to the demands of the masses, and hitherto success has attended the effort. The one hundred preachers deliver at least one sermon each a week, to a probable average audience of one hundred hearers. Thus we have five thousand two hundred sermons a year to a weekly promiscuous congregation of ten thousand persons. In what age of the world or in what department of life has so little been reaped where so much has been—strewn? Man, it has been said, is naturally a religious being, and surely these ministers of God ought to have a powerful influence in giving direction to his worship. From the hours of early childhood, "even down to old age," the same persevering effort is brought to bear upon his will—the same story of the cross, with all its sympathies, has been repeated with a view to soften his heart and bring him to Christ. Yet what are the results?

Suppose we go into the political arena and select one hundred speakers, with attainments suited to the promulgation and enforcement of a political principle or platform. Send them forth to a weekly audience of ten thousand persons, and would they not succeed in engrafting in the public mind a more decided disposition to engage in the interests that appertain to its temporal welfare? Would they not rapidly build up a party, having for its basis of action the principles they enforce? Even were their platform founded in error, and opposition brought to bear upon it at every public discussion, still would not some progress be made toward its growth and stability?

Yet here are one hundred ministers, with a platform of Christian principles unchallenged by the audience before whom they go—ministers prepared by years of study for the mission they are to fill, protected from molestation by the laws of the land, without restraint, and in full sympathy with a popular religious sentiment that has required ages to accumulate—week after week seeking to add something to its growth, and the published exhibit of the church attests the success of the effort. Has man's nature changed so that he is insusceptible of religious impression? Has the Gospel lost its power to save? Neither. The Gospel is as full and as effectual as when John preached in the wilderness, or when Peter preached on the day of Pentecost, and man is the same sinful being, swayed by the same influences, and as ready to yield to the same overtures of mercy. The difficulty lies, we believe, in the character of our preaching. To its want of adaptation to the times are we disposed to attribute the unsatisfactory results; and in what this want consists we will next invite your attention.

A CHURCH STEWARD.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT, MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: Notwithstanding the coldness of the weather, and the unusual amount of rain which has fallen this winter, I have been able, through the mercy of God, to meet all my quarterly meetings, and found all the preachers at their posts, determined to "make full proof of the ministry" as an instrument in saving men from sin and eternal death.

The district having been newly manned at the last Annual Conference, nearly all of them had to move, which required time and incurred an additional expense; but they are pressing forward in the face of difficulties with manly courage and Christian zeal, willing rather to submit to what men call hardships than to embarrass the itinerant system of spreading the Gospel, which to the present time has been effectual in accomplishing more than any other plan of extending the kingdom of Christ.

The official members on the district have manifested considerable zeal in their Master's cause, and are impressed with the importance of an increase in the spirituality of the church, and are praying and laboring for its accomplishment; while the stewards seem more determined to provide for the temporal wants of the preachers, being satisfied that the only means of securing an efficient ministry is for the church to provide for his family, and leave him free to devote himself exclusively to his peculiar calling; and with one or two exceptions, I think, the circuits are doing their duty to the utmost of their ability.

Upon the whole, the quarterly conferences are laboring for the promotion of Christ's kingdom, and the peace and happiness of the entire church; and, I am pleased to say, not a single jar has occurred nor a single unkind word has been uttered in any of the quarterly conferences on the entire district, so far as I know.

It is said, "The itinerant system is a mutual concession of the ministry and laity—of the ministry to choose their own field of labor, and the laity to select their own pastors;" which, by the way, is rather a questionable dogma than an axiomatical truth, and seems to conflict somewhat with the old doctrine of a divine call to the ministry.

If men are "moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon themselves the office of a minister in the church of God," then they have no discretion as to whether they will or will not preach the Gospel. The sentence of condemnation is written by the hand of inspiration, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." If the great Head of the Church commits a dispensation of the Gospel to a portion of mankind without consulting their wishes, where does the church get its authority to say, "You shall or shall not deliver your message to us?" The question resolves itself into this, There is no right belonging to either the ministry or laity. He must preach and they must hear, or "perish for the lack of knowledge."

As Christ has nowhere in the New Testament given the church any specific form of government, the entire subject of ecclesiastical economy is left to the wisdom of the church, and the circumstances and civil institutions of the country into which the Gospel makes its way.

Eating all this, and admitting the proposition "that there is a mutual concession of privilege," yet there is no mutual sacrifice. The preacher must go at the decision of the bishop—it may be from one extreme of the Annual Conference to the other—taking his wife and little ones with him, and leaving old and tried friends behind. But the people sit quietly at home, knowing that they will have a minister sent to them, whether there is or is not a parsonage on the circuit.

In the present state of the country it is very difficult to obtain suitable boarding houses for the preachers and their families, and the church should take this subject in hand with a little more zeal than at any time heretofore.

Is the building of a good parsonage on every circuit a burden too great for the church to bear at this time? Is it a greater sacrifice than the preacher is required to make when he takes his family on a work without such provision for their comfort?

JOS. T. CURRY.

FIFTEEN GREAT MISTAKES.—It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly. It is a great mistake to measure the enjoyments of others by our own; to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; to look for judgment and experience in youth; to endeavor to mold all dispositions alike; not to yield in immaterial trifles; to look for perfection in a fallen world; not to aim at perfection in our own actions; to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied; not to alleviate all that needs alleviation, as far as in our power; not to make allowances for the infirmities of others; to consider everything impossible which we cannot perform; to believe only what our finite minds can grasp; to expect to be able to understand everything. The greatest of all mistakes is, to live only for time, when any moment may launch us into eternity.—San Francisco Spectator.

A SCOTCH preacher being sent to officiate one Sabbath at a country parish, was accommodated at night in the manse in a very diminutive closet, instead of the usual best bedroom appropriated to strangers. "Is this the bedroom?" he said, starting back in amazement. "Deed, ay, sir, this is the prophet's chamber." "It maun be for the minor prophets, then," was the reply.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

MRS. ELIZA C. WHITTINGTON, the daughter of Walter and Sabina Evans, was born in Jefferson county, Tennessee, January 26, 1826, and died April 17, 1869, near Crystal Springs, Mississippi.

Very early in life she connected herself with the Presbyterian Church.

Deprived of both her parents while young, she emigrated to south Alabama with her brother, where, in 1844, she became acquainted with and subsequently married (in 1845) Rev. B. B. Whittington, then a member of the Alabama Conference.

The following year, believing it to be in accordance with her new relation in life, and no violation of Christian propriety, she connected herself with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and professed conversion, the same year, at a camp meeting held in Washington (now Choctaw) county, Alabama. Thenceforward she belonged—not merely nominally, but indeed and in truth—to God and His cause, accounting no sacrifice too great if the interests of the church might be subserved.

She ever encouraged her husband to zeal and perseverance in his holy calling, under the most trying circumstances; and though during the last fourteen years of her life she was almost a constant sufferer, yet she never said to her husband when duty called, "Remain with me," although a sense of duty to her often compelled him to remain at home.

She was modest and retiring in her manners, and did not form attachments hastily; but when formed they were strong and lasting.

She was a diligent student of the word of God, constant and regular in her devotions, unless hindered by severe affliction. As a wife and mother she was affectionately tender, and labored constantly to promote the comfort and welfare of her husband and children. She had no enemies.

During her last sickness she said but little about dying, as it was not expected by herself, her friends or physician that the attack would prove fatal. It was always her desire to have her mind composed and her thoughts concentrated, but found it difficult to do so now.

The day she died her husband spoke of her long trust in God, to which she replied: "I still trust Him, though my sufferings cause my mind to wander." Requesting to be held up for relief, she fell asleep in death, in her husband's arms, without a groan or sigh.

She is gone where the pure in heart see God and enjoy His fullness forever.

She was the mother of six children, four of whom preceded her to the better land. The remnant live in full hope of a blessed reunion.

J. W. H.

COLONEL SMITH YOUNG.

The subject of this brief sketch was born in Greenville county, N. Carolina, December 15, 1791; died in Catahoula parish, Louisiana, February 3, 1869; married Miss Annie E. Harrison, of Raleigh, North Carolina, and of the five children two remain.

In 1815 he moved to Montgomery county, Tennessee, identifying himself at an early day with that county, and among the large circle of friends he left the savor of a good name. In 1852 the writer heard his name mentioned as an intelligent, urbane gentleman, a patron of all that was pure and ennobling. In 1856 he removed to Louisiana, and, if I mistake not, lost his wife and other members of his family by cholera.

Much is compressed in these data in common with all who live in this period; but his life, with its strongly marked eras, presents a scene of beauty, placid and serene, even to old age. With him the amenities of life were natural, and shed forth a grace and elegance peculiarly his own. His companionship was genial. His memory, being tenacious, was stored with rich incidents and recollections of ministers of the Gospel, his favorite companions, the early standard bearers in Tennessee—many of them still living—who always found welcome hospitality in his house. He received and treated them as messengers of heaven.—There was a freshness and vigor in his versatility, yet he did not possess the oppressive garrulity sometimes common with old age.

Colonel Young was not a member of the church. Strange, too, it may seem of one so well versed in the Scriptures, so orthodox, so warm in disposition, so religious in experience and feelings, so fond of pious association and conversation on the most vital points of experimental and practical religion. He was a man of constant prayer. Special Providence was a cherished doctrine. The rules of the church were observed in his family government. After his sight grew dim some member of the family read to him the Holy Book, and then he retired to his room to pray. This was his manner of life for years. The last interview I had with him, about three years before his death, he wished to take the Supper. The inference was clear that he recognized membership in the visible church as necessary to comply with the commandments. Its immunities would have administered to his declining days a solace and comfort. The sad havoc of war deprived his neighborhood of the frequent presence of the minister of religion.

As a gentleman he was dignified, polished, affable, and in every relation of life bore himself as one of nature's noblemen. He did much more to sustain religion by example, influence and money than many who professed more. It may be truly said, "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise," he thought "on these things."

We mourn his absence, and mingle our tears of condolence with those of the grief-stricken daughters, and pray that their venerated father's God may sustain them!

THOMAS B WHITE.

NEW ORLEANS, May 1, 1869.

Nashville Christian Advocate, Raleigh, North Carolina, and Clarksville, Tennessee, papers please copy.

CURE FOR CANCERS.—A piece of sticking-plaster is put over the cancer, with a circular piece cut out of the center a little larger than the cancer, so that the cancer and a small circular rim of healthy skin next to it are exposed. Then a plaster made of chloride of zinc, blood-root, and wheat flour is spread on a piece of muslin of the size of this circular opening, and applied to the cancer for twenty-four hours. On removing it the cancer will be found to be burnt into, and appears of the color and hardness of an old shoe sole, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled, as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed; the outside rim soon suppurates; the cancer soon comes out a hard lump; and the place heals up. The plaster kills the cancer, so that it sloughs out like dead flesh, and never grows again. This remedy, discovered by Dr. Fell, of London, has been used by him for six or eight years, and not a case has been known of the reappearance of the cancer, where this remedy has been applied. It has the sanction of eminent physicians and surgeons of London, but has not till recently been used in this country. If it is what is claimed for it, this terrible disease will be shorn of most of its terrors. The application is painful, but the pain is of comparatively short duration, which any one so afflicted would cheerfully endure.—Milwaukee Free Democrat.

LONDON TO LIVERPOOL IN FOUR HOURS. This is the new programme of the London and Northwestern Railway. In other words, you may now leave Liverpool at eight o'clock A. M., reach London, two hundred and twelve miles off, at noon—go a few rods off to a station of the Metropolitan, descend a flight of steps to the railway platform, find yourself in a few minutes whirling away under ground, and, before a quarter past twelve, be landed in the midst of the most populous and busiest part of London, within gunshot of the bank. You can have three hours in the city, take fifteen minutes for lunch, leave after half-past three, catch the four o'clock train and reach Liverpool again in time for dinner at a little past eight, not at all an unusual dinner hour in England.

BISHOP CUMMINS made the following strong appeal to Ohio churchmen to be up and doing. We sincerely trust his words may not have fallen on careless ears. The Protestant spirit of Ohio churchmen needs reviving. It has been too long asleep. It would have been a source of great thankfulness if Bishop Cummins could have delivered his eloquent address to a few Roman Catholics also. The time has come to devote some effort to their salvation. Evidently, the mere cursing of them does no good to them, and hardly any to other people:

Let Protestants beware of losing their privileges. By the memory of the martyrs, by the dust of a thousand saints, we conjure you to be staunch in support of the Reformation. The spirit of departed worthies, who have witnessed a good confession, and sealed it with their blood, bend down, we may think, from their lofty dwelling, and mark our earnestness in defending the faith for which they died. Oh, if they could hear our voice, should it not tell them that there are many yet left who are emulous of their zeal, and eager to tread in their footsteps; ready, if there comes a season big with calamity, to gird themselves for the defense of Protestantism, and to uphold, in the strength of the living God, a cause which they sustained by their arguments, and sealed with their blood? Yes, illustrious martyrs, you died not in vain! There was lighted at your massacre a fire which is yet unextinguished, and from father to son has the sacred flame been transmitted! And though, in the days of our security, this flame may have burned with a dimmed lustre, yet let the watchman sound the alarm, and many a mountain-top shall be red with the beacon's blaze. Repose ye in your deep slumbers, spirits of the martyred dead! We know something of the worth of a pure Gospel and a free Bible. We bind ourselves by the name of Him who liveth and abideth forever, to preserve unimpaired the privileges bequeathed to us, and to impart them, in their beauty and freshness, to our whole population.

Protestantism has long enjoyed a season of tranquility, and its enemies may have mistaken its quietness for deadness. "As well," to borrow the simile of an illustrious statesman, "might they have thought the ship finally dismantled, when they had seen her laid up in ordinary, sleeping on her shadow, with no signs of power. But let the news flash of the presence of an invader, and immediately would this mighty ship ruffle her swelling plumage, put forth all her beauty and bravery, awaken her dormant thunder, and walk the waters as though instinct with life."

Let it be ours to show that the spirit of Protestantism, if it has lain dormant, is not extinguished: but that there are yet millions of staunch and true hearts who hold the truth dearer than all else; who having received their fathers' charter, dyed in the blood of the holiest and the best, would rather dye it fresh, if necessary, in their own blood, than send it down torn and mutilated to their children.

PREACHERS AND CHILDREN.—The Methodist Recorder, London, states that among the Wesleyans of Great Britain the Sunday morning congregations consist to a very considerable extent of children. There are thousands of congregations, it remarks, every Sunday morning, throughout the length and breadth of the country, in which from fifty to five hundred children, between five and fifteen years of age, are to be found assembled. The question arises, whether it might not be highly useful if a direct reference was more frequently made in the prayer offered up by the minister, and also in the sermon, to this youthful part of his hearers. Here and there a preacher is to be found whose style is so lucid and simple as to bring the greater part of his discourse within the comprehension of children of ordinary intelligence. But this, it must be confessed, is a rare gift. Where, as in the average run of sermons, the discourse is beyond the comprehension of the child, it would be an immense advantage if a short paragraph were introduced with tact and judgment, especially for the children present.

"MY SON," said an old man, "beware of prejudices. They are like rats, and men's minds are like traps: prejudices get in easy, but it is doubtful if they ever get out.

"ALL THINGS FOR GOOD."

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."—Romans viii, 28.

All things, dear Lord! Is there no thread of woe
Too dark, too tangled for the bright design?
No drop of rain too heavy for the bow
Set in the cloud in covenant divine?

I know that all thy full designs are bright;
That darkest threads grow golden in thy hands—
That bending lines grow straight—the tangled right—
The bitter drops all sweet at thy command.

Command the sweetness! Make the crooked straight!
And turn these dusky tangled threads to gold!
Swifter, dear Lord! I cannot wait:
Faith hath grown weary—longing to behold.

I know the promise—but I crave the sight:
I yearn to see the beautiful design,
To hail the rosy tints of morning light,
And watch the straightening of the bended line.

Why these enigmas? Wherefore not receive Their bright solution? Then a voice drew near:
"Blessed are they who see not, yet believe!"
And One I knew approached and wiped my tear

With wounded hand, and sighed. Ah! then I fell Down on my knees, and held Him by the feet;
My Lord! my God! All, all is well!
With thee the dark is light, the bitter sweet!

—Littell's Living Age.

CHINESE CHARITIES.

That benevolent societies are found in a heathen land may appear strange to Western readers; but it is a fact that they exist in China in numbers and variety hardly exceeded in Christian lands. In comparing these institutions with those of the West, one is also struck with the similarity which exists in their nature and objects. We have here orphan asylums, institutions for the relief of the widows, as well as for the aged and infirm, public hospitals and free schools, together with other kindred institutions more peculiarly Chinese in their character. Moral tracts are also distributed to a great extent.

Orphan asylums are found in almost every city, and frequently in country villages. They are established by a wealthy individual, or several individuals associated together, and are sometimes supported by a permanent fund, or the proceeds of lands given for that purpose. Most children brought to these establishments are infants whose parents are too poor to support them. The great majority of them are girls. They are put in the charge of foster-mothers, who generally live at their own homes, and are required to present them for inspection at the asylum every half month, when they receive their regular stipend. When the children are about two years old they are brought back to the establishment, and several are put under the care of one nurse. When they have arrived at a suitable age, boys are put out as apprentices to learn trades, or sent to free schools; girls are sold to the poorer classes, according to the custom of the country, as wives. Children of both sexes, however, are not unfrequently adopted, and treated by their benefactors as their own. * * *

In Hang-chow, the provincial capital of Chekiang, I found, in connection with a variety of benevolent institutions, an asylum for old men, in which I became particularly interested, and which I frequently visited. It contained, in 1859, about five hundred inmates. The building was large, the beneficiaries were made very comfortable, and everything connected with the establishment was carried on with as much order and system as in a similar institution in our own country. In addition to an immense dining room, kitchen and sleeping apartments, conveniences were afforded in separate buildings for making different articles of handicraft, and the inmates were at liberty to spend as much time as they chose working at some trade, and to make such use as they pleased of whatever they might earn in this way. * *

Societies for affording pecuniary aid to widows are very common, and exist either independently or in connection with societies embracing several distinct objects conjointly. Immediately after the death of her husband, the widow receives a larger stipend than at any subsequent time, in order to assist her in providing for her young children. This allowance is gradually diminished; and as old age approaches, women of this class, if they have no children able to support them, are sometimes transferred to another establishment which provides for the wants of the aged and infirm. When a respectable and worthy widow is in want, and the limited number of beneficiaries in the public asylums is complete, private individuals frequently make contributions to afford relief in these particular cases. The peculiar interest felt in this class of women is due to the views of the Chinese respecting the disreputableness of the second marriages of widows. Among the poor, and in case of widows who have no children to depend upon in after-life, a second marriage is allowable, though the opposite course is spoken of in terms of the highest commendation as honorable and meritorious. The ground for this feeling seems to be respect for the memory of the deceased husband.

The gratuitous distribution of medicine is quite common in China. In the summer especially, certain remedies much prized by the people may be obtained free of charge from societies which include this among other objects for which they are instituted. There is a very common mode of practicing the healing art, professedly from benevolent motives, in which a selfish motive is too apparent. Notices may continually be seen placarded in public places calling the attention of the public to some distinguished personage of the Esculapian school who has learned his art at the capital, or from some foreigner, or from some distinguished native practitioner, or by communication with the genii, who is desirous of relieving those who are in a condition of suffering and distress, and will give them an opportunity to avail themselves of his knowledge and skill without charge, except for the cost of medicine.

A new enterprise, originated a few years since in the city of Suchow, has since been introduced into other places, which cannot but be regarded with peculiar interest. Its express object is "the suppression of immoral books." This enterprise has also gained the sanction and concurrence of the authorities, and has already done much toward checking the influence of this source of demoralization. The people are not only requested, but required to bring such books as have been prohibited to the headquarters of this society, where they receive an equivalent for them in money. Not only books, but the stereotyped blocks from which they are printed, are thus collected at a great expense, and all are together, at stated times, committed to the flames. Several of the celebrated standard novels of China, which in a moral point of view will bear favorable comparison with some of the current popular literature of our own country, have fallen under the ban of this society, and cannot now be obtained without great trouble and expense. Instances have occurred in which booksellers who have continued to sell immoral works in the face of these regulations, have become obnoxious to public authority, and incurred a great sacrifice of reputation and property. * * * *

There are in Chinese cities public asylums, sustained at the expense of government, containing a limited number of diseased and disabled poor, who receive a daily allowance insufficient for their support, and eke out the remainder of their living by begging. They are more successful than others, as they carry the evidence of their misfortune in their physical infirmities, and some of them amass considerable property. These also have their heads or leaders, some of whom are brokers and billshavers. They sometimes buy bad bills at a discount, and collect them by attacking the house of the delinquent debtor with an army of beggars, until he is glad to get rid of them by paying it.

The most popular of the benevolent institutions in Ningpo, and the one having by far the largest income, includes a variety of objects. It has a fund for providing coffins for the poor, a fund for carrying coffins which have been thrown carelessly aside to some suitable place for interment, and one for collecting and burying again human bones which are found exposed to view; also a fund for providing medicine in summer, and warm clothes in winter; a fund for the relief of widows; one for gathering old printed paper, and the only one in Ningpo for suppressing immoral books. This society has a large building, with as many secretaries and superintendents as are necessary for the orderly and efficient carrying on of its extensive operations.

It is also worthy of remark that most of the roads and fine arch bridges, as well as the public buildings of China, are constructed by voluntary donations. In connection with these public works it is very common to see stone tablets erected containing the names of the donors and the amounts of their subscriptions.

Tea is in many places provided for travelers, and offered gratuitously in resting-houses by the roadside. Poor scholars are furnished with money for traveling expenses in attending the literary examinations. Public Opinion.

THE revenue of the Atlantic cable is now $3,500 in coin per day.—Every reduction of the tariff so far has largely increased the receipts and profits.

I NEVER KNEW a man remarkable for heroic bravery whose very aspect was not lighted up by gentleness and humanity.

THE VILLAIN WAAD.

A wakeful spy and unscrupulous tool, one of the secret agents who had been employed by Cecil in watching Percy and Catesby, the Gunpowder Plotters, Waad was sent to the Tower in the hope that his evil genius might invent some method of connecting Raleigh with that plot.

Raleigh had, in truth, as much to do with the Gunpowder Plot as with the Arabella Plot, and it seemed likely enough that he would be tried again, if not sentenced again on some new charge. Only the fear of an acquittal stopped the game.

In the little garden lying under Raleigh's Walk stood that garden house in which Latimer had lived; a small house of lath and plaster, which was now used by the warden as a hen-roost. Raleigh had obtained from Sir George Harvey the use of this garden house as a still-room for his experiments. He was bent on following nature into her secret haunts. He wished to solve the great problem of converting salt water into fresh. He dreamt of cordials for preserving health, and even hoped to find an elixir of life. Some things he had already done in the way of cordials, the fame of which had taken wings.

One day the Countess de Beaumont, who had come down to the Tower with a bevy of ladies in her train, bowed to him as he was walking in his garden, and asked him if he would give her a little of his famous balsam of Guiana. He gallantly promised to prepare and send it. Waad, who could not bear to see great ladies bowing to his prisoner, wrote to Cecil, "Sir Walter Raleigh hath converted a little hen house in the garden into a still, where he doth spend his time all day in his distillations. If a brick wall were built it would be more safe and convenient." Nor was this interference with his chemical labors all that he had to bear from Waad. A few months later the lieutenant found a fresh cause of offence in the popular homage paid to the man whom he had been set to watch. "Raleigh," he wrote to Cecil, "doth show himself upon the wall in his garden to the view of the people who gaze upon him; which made me bold to restrain him again."

Slowly, very slowly, the man of action paled into the man of thought. Under Harvey's rule nothing more had been heard of his pride and melancholy. He rose at dawn, curled his dark hair and beard, made an early meal, wrote all the morning, walked in his garden, played a game of bowls with Sir George, and quaffed a horn of good English beer. Dining at the lieutenant's table, he chatted with the guests about Virginia and the Spanish main. As time went by, and no pardon came, he beat his mind to more serious work. A thousand things which had crossed him in his busier days, came back in his cell and occupied his thoughts. One of these subjects was the sufferings endured by men at sea from want of water fit for drink. Having caught the idea of a new method of purging the brine from water, he fell to work. Lighting his fires, and boiling his sea water, he struck upon a way of expelling salt; a precious discovery which he tested in his latest voyage, and found to act; but the secret of which was unhappily lost, with much that was still more precious, in Palace Yard. Two hundred years elapsed before men of science got the clue again, when Irving recovered the lost secret; but no doubt can exist as to Raleigh's claim. Wilson wrote down the words from Raleigh's lips: "He fell to tell me of his inventing the means to make salt water fresh or sweet, by furnaces of copper in the forecastle, and distilling of the salt water as it were by a bucket, putting in a pipe, and within a quarter of an hour it will run by a spigot, and the water as sweet as milk."

These studies, so precious to mankind, were interrupted by "that villain Waad," in the interest of his master Cecil, who was only too ready to propitiate his bountiful patron in Madrid. Cecil was building Hatfield house; and that princely house was being built and furnished with Spanish gold. If any excuse could be found for taking Raleigh's life, the student would be offered without scruple as a sacrifice to Philip the Third. If a pretext could not be found, it might be made.

When the Countess de Beaumont spoke to Raleigh in his garden, she had a gentleman in her train whom Raleigh knew by sight; Captain Whitelocke, a retainer of his old friend Northumberland. Whitelocke came down to the Tower for that balsam of Guiana which was to be made for the French countess. This was all that either Waad or Cecil knew; it was very little; yet it was nearly as good evidence as Coke had been able to adduce at Winchester, in proof of his complicity in the Arabella Plot. Northumberland was a kinsman of Percy, one of the plotters; Whitelocke was a servant of Northumberland; Raleigh was an acquaintance of Whitelocke. On these grounds Raleigh's name was entered on a suspected list; and commissioners were sent to examine him in the Bloody tower. Waad was one of these commissioners; and being the lieutenant also, he had rare opportunities of making his obstinate and contemptuous prisoner feel his claws. Nothing could be wrung from Raleigh. Waad recommended the king to handle him more roundly, so as to break his pride; and on the villain's suggestion, Raleigh was put under close restraint. He was turned out of his still-room, he was denied the use of his walk, and he was locked up in his cell at an early hour of the afternoon.

Lady Raleigh and her two boys were sent away from the Tower; and, in order to be near her husband, the poor lady was compelled to take lodgings on the hill outside, near Barking Church.

Under these new privations Raleigh's health gave way. Sleeping in a stone room, with little air, with no fire, the man of active life, whose feet had been on the quarter-deck, whose days on land had been spent in the saddle, broke down in a pitiable wreck of his former self. The winter being cold, his flesh became chilled and numb. One hand fell feebly to his side; the sinews of his arm shrank up. "Every second or third night," he wrote to Cecil, "I am in danger of either sudden death or of the loss of my limbs and senses, being sometimes two hours without feeling or motion of my hand and whole arm." Then he added, with some bitterness of heart, "I complain not; I know it is vain."

Peter Turner, a physician, who was allowed to see him, gave so bad an account of his condition that the very courtiers who were paid by Spain for keeping him, as it were, in chains, were startled into pity. His left side was described by the good doctor as quite numb; the fingers of his left hand were curled; his tongue was so hardened that he could not speak. The lodging in which he lay, said the physician, was too cold for any man to sleep in; and he recommended that Waad should be ordered to remove him into a warmer room. Turner suggested that he should be lodged in that little garden house in which Latimer had lain, and in which his own experiments had been made.

The men in office may have been moved by pity for an old friend; they have seen their advantage in offering to indulge a dying hero. They had many troubles on their hands just then, and may have thought the prisoner in the Bloody tower a useful factor in their game. The King of Spain was causing them some trouble, and the name of Arabella Stuart was again in every man's mouth; for this royal lady had chosen to marry without the king's consent, and her youthful husband, himself a pretender to James' crown, was a fugitive in Philip's Flemish court.

For some of these reasons the men in power relented so far to ward the prisoner that on Turner's formal request for a change being made, the council gave orders to Waad for his removal from the Bloody tower into the little garden house in which he kept his books and drugs.—Her Majesty's Tower, by W. H. Dixon.

THE DIAMOND.

BY MARY LORIMER.

The diamond is the most valuable of all the precious stones, for two reasons: its extreme hardness and its wonderful beauty.

It is so hard that it can be scratched, cut, or polished by no other substance than itself. All other gems can be cut by the diamond, but in its own case, as there is nothing harder to be found, it is truly "diamond cut diamond." The name, in both Greek and Latin, signifies "invincible hardness."—This quality of invincible hardness renders it invaluable in the matter of cutting and polishing all precious stones. Had this enchanting gem been undiscovered many others would have been of little value, since they owe their worth to the brilliancy that is given by this process. We must also have been deprived of opera glasses, spectacle glasses, and other optical instruments, as it is the diamond only that can divide into leaves the transparent rock crystals from Brazil, which, after being ground and polished with diamond dust, are made into these instruments.

The "point of a diamond" is employed to cut window and plate glass, and diamond powder is used for cutting, engraving, and polishing hard stones. The wheels of watches often revolve on pivots passing through diamonds; a delicate wire coated with diamond dust is used for sawing precious stones, and diamond etching points are of great importance to engravers, for the purpose of drawing lines on copper.

It is remarkable that it is the point of the natural or uncut diamond only that can be used in cutting gems, or plates of glass. The cut diamond will make a scratch, but the glass will not divide along the line, as it will when the uncut diamond is used.

Though diamonds are of the greatest antiquity, and were admired and valued in the earliest ages, the ancients were content with the form and polish given them by nature, as the art of cutting or polishing them was unknown until the fifteenth century, when it is said to have been invented by one Louis de Berquen, of Bruges.

Diamond cutting is now a most elaborate and remarkable art. The gems are cut in three forms, known as brilliant, rose, and table diamonds; the brilliant is a diamond cut into angles; the rose diamond is flat beneath and has the upper surface, which is dome-shaped, cut into twenty-four regular plaues or faces; the table diamond is flat upon the upper surface. Great skill in diamond cutting is possessed by the artisans of Holland, and in an account of some of the most celebrated establishments of this kind, mention is made of some diamonds which are cut into twenty-four perfectly even and regular faces, making the regular rose diamond, when not exceeding a pin's head in size; and some of the stones are so small that it takes hundreds of them to make a carat, or weight of four grains, yet these are cut and polished for various uses.

As a gem for ornamental purposes, the dazzling brilliancy of the diamond makes it highly prized. Its sparkle is like the sunbeam, and nothing can be more enchanting than the play of color and light, and the blazing splendor that flashes from its clear depths. The diamonds with which we are most familiar, and which are most prized by jewelers, are the snow white; these are colorless and transparent as a drop of water, yet in certain lights showing exquisite flashes of rose, green, or yellow. Pale blue diamonds are also rare and valued, and deep blue still more so, and clear yellow ones are beautiful and costly. There are also shades of pink and dark brown, and the diamond sometimes emits a light in the dark, especially after being exposed to the rays of the sun. Many romantic and wonderful stories have been told, and novels have been written about diamonds, and the adventures and escapes of those who have owned or stolen these precious gems, and the prices which have been paid for large or rare ones, are beyond belief.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars and two large ships of war were offered and refused for a diamond in Borneo, and the empress of Russia paid more than this for a diamond that had been one of the eyes of an Indian idol.

Large diamonds are rare, but there are some that are historical, and that we are about as well acquainted with as with other historical characters. To mention a few: One owned by an East Indian nabob, weighing two ounces; another possessed by the great mogul of Hindostan, weighing more than four ounces. The "Star of the South," and the "Mountain of Light" of modern days, the famous Koh-i-noor, which has been so whittled down by diamond cutters, and at its last re cutting lost eighty carats, or more than half an ounce of its weight, which is said to be caused by the different degrees of hardness in different parts of the stone.

My young friends will often read about the jewels of kings and queens—crown jewels, as they are called; crowns and diadems sparkling with these precious stones; the hilts of daggers and swords glittering with jewels; and necklaces, bracelets, and rings flashing in velvet cases.

Here is the description of a circlet, or bracelet of Queen Anne's: "Having in the midst eight fair diamonds, eight fair rubies, eight emeralds and eight sapphires; garnished with thirty two smaller diamonds, thirty two rubies, and sixty-four pearls, and on each border thirty-two diamonds and rubies."

The most remarkable thing, I think, about the diamond is, that sparkling, clear, and resplendent as it looks, the very type and essence of unalterable purity, it is made of the same material that the black and soiling charcoal is; the characteristic ingredient of all kinds of charcoal being carbon, and the diamond being carbon crystalized and in a state of absolute perfection, there seems to be no difference between a piece of black charcoal and a diamond of the purest water, except in the arrangement of the particles composing them. Many interesting experiments have been made to discover the true nature of the diamond. Lavoisier, a celebrated French chemist, inclosed diamonds in jars filled with atmospheric air, and, after causing them to disappear by the aid of burning glasses, examined the air in the vessels and found it to exhibit the same properties as the air which results from the combustion of charcoal. But a prettier experiment was made by Morveau, another French chemist. He inclosed a diamond in a cavity made in pure, soft iron, driving a stopper of pure iron into the cavity. The mass was then placed in a small crucible and this in a larger crucible, the space between being filled with pure sand. The whole was then exposed to intense heat, and on being examined after a suitable time, the diamond had disappeared utterly, and the iron in which it had been inclosed had been converted into steel. Steel being a compound of carbon and iron, and the diamond having departed, and there being no other source from which carbon could have reached the iron, the conclusion was unavoidable that the diamond was pure carbon. Numerous and most delicate experiments by Sir Humphrey Davy and other distinguished chemists all tend to the same conclusion, that the diamond and charcoal are identically of the same nature.

Diamonds are found in Brazil, Borneo and India, the mines of Brazil now furnishing more diamonds than those of India. The demand for these gems has greatly increased of late years, while the supply grows continually less, many of the once famed diamond mines being now utterly unproductive.—The Little Corporal.

HOUSEKEEPER'S DEPARTMENT.

GERMAN PUFFS.—Two and a half cups of milk, two and a half cups of flour, a little salt, beaten well together. Heat a muffin pan very hot, pour in this mixture and bake in a very hot oven.

TO WASH CALICO WITHOUT FADING. Infuse three gills of salt in four quarts of water; put the calico in while hot and leave it till cold, and in this way the colors are rendered permanent, and will not fade by subsequent washing.

TO REMOVE RUST FROM STEEL.—To take rust out of steel, rub well with sweet oil, and let the oil remain upon it for forty-eight hours. Then rub with leather, sprinkled with unslacked lime, finely powdered, until the rust disappears.

GREEN CORN CAKES.—Grate the corn; make a rich batter with cream, or according to directions given for batter cakes.—Use just enough of the batter to hold the corn together, and lay the cakes on the griddle as you would a common griddle cake; serve with butter.

PRESERVATION OF EGGS.—Eggs are preserved on a large scale, in Paris, by placing in wire baskets about a dozen at a time, and immersing them about a minute in boiling water. A thin layer of the egg coagulates on the inner surface of the shell, forming a film impermeable to air.

CUSTARD BLANC MANGE.—One quart of water or sweet milk, four tablespoonsful of corn starch, one tablespoonful of sugar, and a pinch of salt. Let the water boil, then add the corn starch and sugar, dissolved in a little cold water. When done, pour in a deep dish or cups, which have been wetted in cold water.

A CURE FOR EARACHE.—There is scarcely any ache to which children are subject so bad to bear and so difficult to cure as earache. But there is a remedy never known to fail. Take a bit of cotton batting, put upon it a pinch of black pepper, gather it up and tie it, dip it in sweet oil, and insert it in the ear. Put a flannel bandage over the head to keep it warm. It will give immediate relief.

CHOCOLATE CREAM.—Take one quart of milk or cream, three squares of chocolate, one ounce of gelatine and half a cup of sugar. Scrape the chocolate fine, stir it into the milk, dissolve the gelatine in a cup of milk. Beat up six eggs; mix all together; put it into a saucepan. Let it get very hot, but not to boil; stir it while heating. Strain it into a mold; set it to cool five or six hours. When cold, turn it into a dish. Whip up half a pint of cream and lay it round the dish.

NERO FIDDLING WHILE ROME IS BURNING.—The London Times, in an article on the ignorance and immorality prevailing among the lower classes in England, asks: "In the face of such facts, what can we think of all the metaphysical squabbles, the vestment squabbles, and the gratuitous innovations which are now distracting the clergy, and which they think, and are sometimes encouraged to think, the great question of the day? While they are compassing sea and land to make one proselyte to lighted candles, there are thousands of people around them ignorant of the very alphabet of morality and reason. While a gross pollution is spreading under the cognizance of their very senses, they must needs spend their own energies and waste the energies of others upon embroidered dresses and incense, and hymns to the Virgin Mary, and associations for promoting the unity of Christendom."

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 15, 1869.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying he Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

TO AGENTS.

We have been sending to some of our agents surplus copies of the ADVOCATE, and each week will continue to do so, for a while. Our church needs, must have, a sweeping revival of religion. One of the means to accomplish this is the diffusion of light. We have thousands of members who are asleep and do not go to church often enough to wake up. Once a month the preacher comes; that they expect, and feel no unusual sensation at the sight of him. Now throw in the ADVOCATE once a week, and see what effect that will have on the brother. It may wake him. At any rate it is worth the experiment. Give him a specimen copy, and follow him up. We can live without him, but he may die without us. There is no swifter way of stirring up a circuit and opening the channels of spiritual life than by circulating good books and good papers. Try the eyes of the people if you fail to take their ears.

THANKS.—To Mrs. P. for more strawberries. Just in time.

PERSONAL.

A letter from the Rev. Dr. Munsey, dated Mobile, May 10, informs us that he was called back to Baltimore; but that he intends to "go right ahead" with his work "after two or three weeks." This has changed the programme of his movements as published in the ADVOCATE a few weeks since.

HOLY fear is the doorkeeper of the soul. As a nobleman's porter stands at the door and keeps out the vagrants, so the fear of God stands and keeps all sinful temptations from entering.

THE river in front of the city is now nearly if not entirely at the highest water mark on record, and it behooves the mayor, the Common Council and city surveyor to see to it that every provision is made to promptly and efficiently stop the breaks or overflows which are liable to occur at any moment.—Picayune.

THE attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of the American Watch Company in another column.

This company makes nearly three-fourths of all the watches made in this country, and, from a wide acquaintance with the community, we are satisfied of the uniform testimony to their superior quality, and note the fact with pleasure that leading retail jewelers are everywhere recommending them for accuracy, beauty, cheapness and durability.

THE SOURCES OF VICE.

"What are we coming to?" is the question. The whole country is so flooded with vice that even the apologists of the present government are forced to cry out. An exception is to be found here and there among the writers of the religious papers of the North; but in the main they denounce the incarnate demon that everywhere lifts its head. Dr. Peck, a divine whose thoughts we may charitably suppose to be habitually more in heaven than on earth, exclaims: "We are just now closing the grandest epoch of our national life." One might almost envy the man who enjoys such an hallucination. And even with him it is presently corrected by the weighty reflection that "if the people be sufficiently corrupt and perverse, unless God interfere in some sovereign way, they can tear any government to pieces." We do not know what his ideas of corruption are; but it would seem to us the people are "sufficiently corrupt" now to fulfill any of the conditions of national ruin.

It is difficult, where the doctor lives, to detect the sources of vice, because it there springs equally from high and low places. In this end of the land no such difficulty exists. It is confined mostly to those who control the State, and those who are in control are confined to one party. The officers of the general government, the Legislature of the State, the judiciary and the executive are equally tainted. If there be individual exceptions to this sweeping charge—and we believe there are—the people suspect all. As to those revenue collectors, custom-house officers, and various agents who are here from Washington, they are "all under the cloud." These men have the one virtue of loyalty; and, it is admitted, have but the one. Whether any amount of immorality can be considered as a bar to office, where that one element exists, is doubtful; it has not as yet. On the contrary, if men had been selected for their vicious qualities and put in high position expressly to debase and ruin the morals of the people, we could not conceive of them as having any greater fitness or success.

The anxiety to put down the "rebellion" took such hold upon the Northern mind that it became and continues to be its monomania. Dr. Peck even now is incapable of looking at anything but this "grandest epoch of our national life" It is under this glorification, over a defeated rebellion, that all the villains are working securely. One hand is deep in the public treasury; but with the other they point enthusiastically to the stars and stripes that float over us! Amid such a burst of patriotic gratitude who would watch a thief? The war has now passed these four years; the profoundest peace has existed over the whole country, excepting when it has been disturbed by vagrant loyal politicians for their own ends; but at any time during these four years it has only been necessary to reproduce the alarms of the war to cover any amount of legislative or official dishonesty. And this one idea is likely to ruin the whole country. It has made the people insensible to the vast import of constitutional law; it has made them indifferent to the tremendous usurpations of the United States Senate; they can no longer tolerate that last hold of true liberty, an independent judiciary, because its decisions threaten to reverse many acts and enactments of the war period. Indeed in its intense desire to cripple, or may be to destroy, all the constitutional vitality of the States of the South, it has in effect destroyed its own. Unwilling to forgive, the people of the North are rapidly becoming the victims of their own intense hate. We suppose there must be a benign philosophy in the principle of mercy; there certainly is a fiendish fierceness in the opposite quality that burns to the lowest hell.

In this terrible head, then, of national wrath, these polluting streams of vice take their rise; running for a while in their secret channels, they presently break forth in all their blackness. We appeal to Dr. Peck, and to every honest Republican, if this be not the true solution of the present moral status. The war spleen has not sufficiently discharged its hot secretions. But it is not for humanity to have everything at once; if those who triumphed in the recent conflict cannot yet consent to forego some part of the "sweetness of revenge," they will have to part with other equally dear privileges. The outrage of all human right that is now being committed by the military commissions and commanders in Arkansas and northeast Texas will violently react upon the liberties of every citizen in New England and New York. What is suffered by one at the hands of injustice will sooner or later be tasted by all; what is permitted in one State will be attempted in all. If to humiliate and chagrin her people, the State of Louisiana is handed over to unprincipled adventurers and ignorant negroes, we see that in the Senate of the United States these same negroes and adventurers by just so much do practically humiliate the State of New York. Unprincipled agents cannot be allowed in the South without finding their way into important places at the North. We hold the people in power, whether of Pennsylvania or New England, however pious they be at home, responsible for the public gambling and the official fraud which at this hour seeks to destroy this city of New Orleans. It does not console us, however, to know that we are not drinking these dregs alone; for we greatly prefer life to revenge, and virtue is infinitely dearer to us than any nationality.

The following sentences from the Pittsburg United Presbyterian will show how deeply those who have put the cup to our lips are drinking of it themselves:

PUBLIC MORALS.

The state of morals at the present time seems to be very low, and, if anything, daily sinking to a lower depth. Notwithstanding all the forces that are at work to restrain and subdue it, vice in its manifold form has spread itself out till the land is full, and city and country alike are flooded with its deadly stream. Its poison, like the venom of the old serpent, is distilled everywhere, and there seems to be no refuge from its withering power and blighting influence.

It is felt in the halls of legislation, in the temple of justice, by the private citizen, by the public officer; no walk in life, no position in society is exempt from its corrupt and corrupting tendency; while everywhere its effect on public morality is debasing and ruining.

One would think the prophet must have had his eye on the present condition of public morals when he said, "The Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth blood."

This presents the ghastly portrait of a land steeped in vice and immorality, which can easily be recognized in our day. Its every feature is portrayed in frightful colors on the record of crime, while a still darker background is hidden from the public; for there is reason to believe that all that is written by the passing chronicler of events is but a tithe of that which the recording angel writes up from the secret places of iniquity. There is enough, however, revealed and published to cause fear and trembling among all lovers of virtue, morality and religion; and it loudly calls on every Christian philanthropist to buckle on his armor and prepare for the contest with the powers of evil, which are making such havoc among the morals of the land.

Vice is stronger to day than virtue, and its votaries are three to one in number, and far more intensely in earnest in their work. There is a unity and concentration of power, energy and skill among those who pander to vice and worship at its shrine that is rarely found among their opponents. The forces of the vicious and immoral are organized, ring within ring, working everywhere, and summoning to their aid some of the best talent of the country, together with untold sums of money with which to gather and wield an influence in every rank of society.

The land is full of organized gangs of incarnate fiends, who, under the lead of their master, the devil, are always going about seeking whom they may devour. Nor do they confine themselves to "swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing," but their most potent influence for evil is felt in their attempts to suppress "truth and mercy," and drive the "knowledge of God" from the land.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—THEIR ENEMIES.

The Board of the State schools, as constituted by the last Legislature, have made a demand upon the city School Board to surrender the public schools of the city to their control. This, we hope, will not be done. Our school directors have fought too many battles for the maintenance of right to now surrender upon a mere summons. This flood of mongrelism must be resisted at every step of its advance. Nothing will please the enemies of our public schools so much as seeing them in the hands of the mongrelites; because to mix white and black children would be to break up the system.

The editor of the Catholic organ of this city, speaking for himself, for the Catholic priests, and for the whole Catholic population of the city, says: "We are no friend of the common school system. We are its unrelenting opponent to every extremity and under every circumstance." This sentence we should have taken as the over-zealous outburst of the clergy only; but the editor corrects any such impression by the measured statement that "the lay element of the church concurs fully with the clerical on the subject of common schools, and it is an insult to its intelligence to intimate that it is not equally responsible for the views held." Here, then, is the broad, emphatic assertion that every Catholic in New Orleans is opposed to the public schools. The statement has not been denied by any Catholic.

Now, let the Presbyterian organ make the assertion that every member of the Presbyterian Church is an enemy to our public schools, and we should say the sooner the city gets rid of the Presbyterians in the management of its affairs the better. If Methodists are "unrelenting opponents" to the common schools, it is suicidal to elect them to the management of the city. Yet we see that several of the candidates for election to the position of Aldermen are of this class of avowed "opponents." We hope the people will leave them high and dry beyond the reach of popular favor, unless they disavow the sentiments which have been attributed to them. We again say, despite the organ, we do not believe that the whole Catholic laity of the city are opposed to its common schools; but, we doubt not, all the clergy are.

How sincerely the Catholic clergy will rejoice if our common schools are mongrelized the reader may imagine by weighing the following sentences of the Catholic Messenger of this city: "The fact is, that Catholics have always regarded common schools as nothing but an engine of opposition to the church—of propagandism for infidelity or Protestantism. They (the Protestants) have abandoned all hope from the meeting house, and fled to the school room for refuge. It is natural there should be a great outcry when they are on the point of being unearthed from this last ditch." So long as the Romish priests suppose that by destroying the public schools they may put an end to Protestantism, we cannot be surprised at the "unrelenting" intensity with which they push their plans for the destruction of our school system.—They are now at work, hard at work, to secure the election of pliable Aldermen, who shall give the coup de grace to Protestantism by surrendering our city schools to the mongrel directory of the State. We trust that this "last ditch" of the public schools may prove the political grave of all such cat's-paw candidates.

Passing by that singular strain of rhetorical speech that "unearths" from "a ditch," we do not wonder that Protestantism and public schools are considered identical by men who are at heart opposed to the enlightenment of the people, and who can see a death warrant of their hoary tyranny in every spelling book. Ever since the Monk of Erfurth unlocked the Scriptures and scattered them in the vernacular among the Catholics of continental Europe, and throughout the world, he has been to the Roman clergy the embodiment of disaster; and they have instinctively read their fate in every printed copy of the word of God. The common schools and the Holy Bible are the two stones of the mill that is slowly but surely grinding up the grist of the whole world.

Mobile Conference Sabbath School Convention.

This body will meet on Thursday, the 27th instant, at Mobile. For convenience we republish the programme for the occasion. It will afford a rich treat to the friends of this great cause. If little children, like little birds, came into the world with fixed instincts, knowing exactly what their parents know, no more nor less, humanity would be in a hopeless condition. But God mercifully starts the world afresh with the children; and if all of them could be taught the "truth as it is in Jesus," society would be renovated in a single generation; earth might be changed into heaven in less time than it originally took to turn Paradise into earth. As they are more like the kingdom of heaven already than the rest of the world, it is wise in our efforts for reforming earth to begin at that part of it. There are many workmen who act as if they had rather hew a tree than shape a twig; and there is no estimating how much has been wasted in this proud way of doing God's work. But we are all coming to our senses; partly by the provoking success of the enemy, and partly through the enlightening counsels of the Spirit's ray. We no longer stand unmoved while the wily adversary seizes and shapes the yielding, glowing nature of childhood's humanity; but the church insists upon the training of its own youth, and, also, of that vast multitude which the Saviour points to as His earliest and latest care—"MY LAMBS."

In this way of advancing the kingdom of Christ our natural affections greatly assist our spiritual motions. We can love a child for its own sake, as well as for the Saviour's. While it is hard to feel that melting charity which we should feel over the rugged nature of men, we can avail ourselves of all the charms of childhood, and yearn after the salvation of the young. How easy to see in each child a likeness, it may be to our own, and thus blend the fervor of parental with the purity of Christian love! We need all these helps to enable us to go out in anxious solicitude after the souls of men. And, on the other hand, nothing so fills us with indignation as to see children subjected to the cruelties of superstition, the blinding guides of Roman Catholicism, or the swifter evil of immoral association. Sin is never so hideous as when seen at work upon the guileless nature of little children. We may be sure that, willing as we are to fly to their rescue, the Holy Spirit is much more so.—"If ye, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children," how much more is our heavenly Father ready to save these tender ones "that cannot discern their right hand from their left."

PROGRAMME OF THE EXERCISES OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN MOBILE, COMMENCING ON THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1869.

Half past seven P. M.—1. Organization. 2. Opening address by Hon. J. W. Taylor. Subject, "The Aim and Objects of the Sunday School and its Instructions."

Friday, nine A. M.—3. First half hour to be spent in devotional exercises. Address by Dr. W. L. Lipscomb. Subject, "The Qualifications and Prerogatives of Superintendents, and the Qualifications Necessary for a Teacher." Discussions.

Half-past three.—4. Fifteen minutes spent in devotion. Address by P. G. Wood, Esq. Subject, "The Propriety and Utility of Uniform Lessons, and the Necessity of Meetings of Teachers to Prepare the Lessons." Discussions.

Half past seven.—5. Address by Dr. T. C Weir. Subject, "The Importance of Infant Class Instructions, and the Necessity and Best Method of Preparing to Teach." Discussions.

Saturday, nine A. M.—6 Devotions. Address by J. S. Moore. Subject, "The Claims of the Sunday School upon the Church, and the Importance of Adult Classes." Discussions.

Half past three.—7. Address by Rev. A. S. Andrews. Subject, "The great Hindrances of the Sunday School Cause" Discussions.

Half past seven.—8. Address by Rev. J. L Cottin. Subject, "Opening and Closing Exercises."

Speakers to whom subjects have been assigned will be allowed twenty minutes to present them. All other speeches will be limited to five minutes; but there will be no limit to the number of speeches except the length of the session.

J. HAMILTON,
For the Committee.

Sabbath School Convention at St. Louis.

A letter from J. L Dunnica, Esq., says: "It was a glorious time. I wish our people could see and hear what is going on here; it might stimulate them to be more efficient." We publish the style of the "programme," which he has kindly sent us. It may give us and our Mobile friends some valuable hints as to the conduct of a convention.

THURSDAY MORNING.

10.—Devotional exercises and song, page 127. 10 15.—Temporary organization. Permanent organization. Song, page 109. Reports from Sunday schools. Song, page 5. Miscellaneous business. Song, page 81. 12.—Adjournment.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

2.—Prayer for the convention. Song, page 126. 2.15.—Address, "Relation of the Pastor to the Sunday School." 2 25.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 67. 2 50.—Address, "Duties of Members of the Church in Respect to the Sunday School, and how to gain their Co-operation." 3.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 132. 3 30.—Address, "Importance of Weekly Teachers' Meetings." 3 40.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 72. 4.—Adjournment.

FRIDAY MORNING.

10.—Prayer for pastors and superintendents. Song, page 34. 10.15.—Address, "How Shall we Secure the Attendance of our Scholars upon the Public Services of the Church?" 10 25.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 15. 10.50.—"How to use the blackboard," with illustrations. 11.20.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 13. 11.40.—"Infant classes; how shall we make them interesting?" 11 50.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 9. 12.25.—Adjournment.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

2.—Prayer for teachers. Song, page 26. 2.15.—Address, "The Best Mode of Conducting Sabbath Schools." 2.25.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 94. 2.50.—Address, "How to be an Efficient Teacher." 3.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 89. 3.25.—Miscellaneous topics. 4.—Song and adjournment, page 127.

SATURDAY MORNING.

10.—Prayer for Sunday school scholars. Song, page 126. 10.15.—Address, "The Conversion and Salvation of Children the Aim of Sunday Schools." 10 25.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 131. 10 50.—Address, "Annual Conventions: Shall we have them?" 11.—Discussion by convention. Resolution and song, page 81. 11 25.—Miscellaneous business. 12.—Song and adjournment, page 127.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Grand Sunday school mass meeting.

OUR BISHOPS.

Bishop Andrew spent two or three days in Nashville, en route to St. Louis. He addressed the Sunday school of Elm street church, and preached a short sermon there, May 2; but was too feeble to fill an appointment made for him at McKendree at night. He was seventy-five years of age May 3.

Bishop Paine reached Nashville, quite indisposed, April 29. His health, however, improved, so that he was able to preach with much of his former energy, and to the great delight of a crowded audience in McKendree church on Sunday morning, May 2, and to assist at the large communion. His preaching was quite a treat to his old friends and others. The bishop is improving in health and vigor, though in his seventieth year.

Bishop Kavanaugh, says the St. Louis Christian Advocate, passed through this city April 14, en route to western Missouri, on an extensive tour of episcopal visitation. He is entirely recovered from the severe illness with which he was attacked at the close of the East Texas Conference. He represents the condition of the Conferences under his oversight to be quite encouraging. The Mississippi Colored Conference, over which he presided, has most cheering prospects. The sentiment is obtaining widely among the colored people that their old masters are their best friends, and that their mutual dependence—subsisting for labor on the one hand, and employment on the other—make it fit and advantageous that their relations should be identified with the native population and the old institutions of the country. There is, therefore, a growing disposition to suspect foreign interference, and decline Northern alliances, and generally to adjust themselves to the natural postures and relations of their providential condition.

Bishop Early writes that, on account of infirmity, he cannot attend the bishops' meeting. He deeply regrets the disappointment; and his numerous friends in the West are sorry that they will not feel the hearty grasp of his hand. But the Psalmist tells us what we may expect at fourscore, and Bishop Early has passed a lustrum beyond that utmost allotted time.

Bishop Wightman returned, April 24, to Charleston from Florida, where he preached three times at each of his district meetings, and was to leave April 27 for New York, where he was to preach, May 2, and then proceed to the bishops' meeting in St. Louis, now in session.

Bishop Marvin writes to Bishop McTyeire, Hopeton, California, April 13. He is working up to the full measure of his strength, and sometimes, we fear, beyond. He is really making full proof of his ministry on the Pacific coast. Of course he was not able to attend the bishops' meeting.

Bishop McTyeire attended the McMinnville district meeting, April 30—May 2, and reports an occasion of great interest and spiritual profit. He returned to Nashville in time to accompany Bishops Andrew and Paine, and Drs. Green and McFerrin, May 4, in their journey to St. Louis. They were to be joined at Louisville by Dr. and Bishop Pierce, and the book agent. We "tarry by the stuff."—Nashville Christian Advocate

It is a good thing to obey the law of God, but it is a better thing to love it.

OBITUARIES.

IN MEMORIAM.

At a meeting of the second quarterly conference for the Franklin and Pattersonville work, held at Pattersonville, April 24, 1869, Rev. J. A. Adams, presiding elder, in the chair, the following preamble and resolutions were presented by Rev. W. C. Huislip:

Inasmuch as the great Head of the Church, in His wisdom, has called away from us, since our last meeting, our brother, HIRAM ANDERSON, long an efficient steward, and an active member of this quarterly conference, and a brother greatly endeared to all by his many virtues; therefore,

Resolved, That we adopt and spread on the minutes of this conference the following resolutions as an expression of our esteem for his constant services as a steward in the church, and our love for him as a member of this body:

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Anderson the church has lost an efficient steward, a useful member, and an ardent supporter of all her benevolent enterprises.

Resolved, That his noble virtues, especially his zeal for the cause of God, his punctuality of attendance on worship, and his earnest support of the ministers, demand our grateful appreciation and remembrance.

Resolved, That we will cherish affectionately the memory of our departed Brother Anderson, and that our loss of his presence and aid in our deliberations and toils shall remind us to submit to the Divine will, and to ask for laborers to supply his place and that of others who have been called from our association.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be furnished by the secretary to the family of Brother Anderson, and also a copy to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Which, on motion, was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

A true copy from the records.

GEO. G. LENOR,
Recording Steward.

Died, of consumption, on the evening of the 13th of April, at his father's residence, JOHN W. MYERS, youngest son of George W. Myers, of Holmes county, Mississippi, aged thirty years.

In all the highest and purest attributes of humanity the deceased was an exemplar—in all the loftiest instincts of genuine manhood a noble representative. There was no meanness in his thought or action, for his nature was pure, generous and chivalrous. He was at once an advocate and a practitioner of all things belonging to the beautiful and good, and an unrelenting opponent of all that was ignoble and bad. There was a very atmosphere of goodness about him, that moved, as by magnetic power, all who knew him to love him and trust him. There was in his character a rare union of the tenderness and refinement which belong to woman, with a man's resolute will and inflexibility of purpose, which fascinated all who came near him, for it gave him a knightly scorn of everything like subterfuge or cowardice, even while his eyes would overflow with pity for human weakness, and his hand would be extended to raise his fallen brother.

His intellect was clear and strong, and of comprehensive grasp. Could he have been spared, there was not one of the higher walks allotted to man in which he might not have kept pace with the foremost. He was a student by nature and choice, and, considering his presence in the Confederate army during nearly the whole of the late war—in which none performed his part more faithfully—his mind was rarely stored with the lore of books.

The death of such a man, at such an age, is one of those inscrutable dispensations of Providence at which we can only bow in submission, with hearts heavy with grief. He suffered long before he succumbed to the terrible disease of which he was the victim; and remembering this, and that he has passed into the realm of the blessed, we cannot wish him back; but blinding tears will fall as we dwell on the loss we have sustained in the death of him who was the genial companion, the devoted friend, and the pure and enthusiastic man—whose unselfish nature and lofty spirit always lifted us, as we communed with him, above the paltry cares of this poor life, quickening our perceptions of the true, and strengthening our love of the good.

Our friend was not, until a few months before his death, admitted into membership in any organized church. At that time he was baptized in the Episcopal Church. A deep reverence for holy things seemed a part of his nature; but a sermon of Dr. Palmer, on Prayer, first awakened him to a true sense of his relations with and his duty to his Creator. That discourse was the blessed instrument of his conversion. Every word seemed engraven on his memory. Only a few days before he died he repeated long passages with most impressive fervor. He came to his Saviour with child-like faith, and to the last was sustained by an unfaltering trust in his divine Lord.

Through his protracted sufferings no word of murmur escaped him. He often said he doubted not they were tokens of mercy, sent to lead his thoughts from earthly things to the contemplation of the joys of heaven. His last words were words of love and tenderness to the sorrowing father and sisters weeping at his bedside; and then he sweetly fell asleep in the arms of his Saviour. God be praised, our loss is his gain!

R.

EUGENE, son of James S. and Olivia Montgomery, died at noon on the 2d of May, aged thirteen years and nine months.

Death seems to draw a veil over the faults of friends, or to render us indulgent toward them; but the character of this noble boy requires so little of concealment or indulgence that we can almost except him from the general rule. A mere child in years, he approximated manhood in his physical, mental and moral development. Genial, respectful, brave and self-helping, he was already the example for the little ones, the reliance of his mother, and his father's companion.

As the disease assumed a violent form he expressed great anxiety to recover, assigning as a reason the service he could render to his mother. When asked by friends if he did not desire life for himself, he replied: "Yes, I would like to live; but I want to get well for my mother's sake."

When all hope had fled from others, and he was evidently dying, he entreated his parents to be cheerful. His father said: "Son, how can I be cheerful when you are dying? Are you afraid to die?" He replied: "No; I shall soon be in heaven. My trust is in God. I am happy, and thankful that I die so easy." With caresses and words of tenderness to weeping friends, he gently fell asleep. Such exhibitions of calmness, resignation and faith are rarely witnessed.

PASTOR.

NATCHEZ, Miss., May 6, 1869.

SARAH ELIZABETH, daughter of Rev. M. G. and Martha B. Faust, was born October 16, 1860, and died April 28, 1869.

Her mother died when she was ten hours old, and she was taken by her grandmother—widow of Rev. John Faust, Sr.—and thoroughly educated "in our religion."

A short time before she died she called the family around her, gave them an affectionate exhortation to meet her in heaven, and died without fear.

E. A. W.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

PARDEE'S SABBATH SCHOOL INDEX.

By H. G. Pardee, A. M., with portrait on steel, and biographical sketch. An exceedingly valuable manual, embracing the practical experience of the author in his life-work. For pastors, superintendents and teachers. Price, $1 25. Mailed on receipt of price.

J. C. GARRIGUES, Publisher, my15 tfs 608 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The advertiser, having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, free of charge, with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a SURE CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, etc. The object of the advertiser in sending the prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable; and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

Parties wishing the prescription will please address

REV. EDWARD A. WILSON,
fe13 3mp Williamsburg, Kings Co., N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

That the American Watch is superior in accuracy as a time keeper, and in substantial value, to its imported rivals, is now generally conceded by the intelligent. It is so made as to render imperfection a physical impossibility.

The question now is, "Which is the best American Watch?" Then follows, "Which thoroughly good Watch is really the cheapest?" We answer:

The Waltham Watches have stood the test of time. Waltham is the original seat of American watch-making. The idea of making our own watches, and making each piece of machinery specially adapted thereto, so that a piece lost or broken may surely be replaced by a similar piece from any other watch of its class, or one ordered from the manufactory on purpose, originated here; and here it has been carried to perfection. Every year since the start has witnessed improvements in machinery, processes, and workmanship, until watches are now made at Waltham as cheaply and as excellently as anywhere on earth, as the vast and ever-widening demand for them abundantly proves.

The success of the American Watch has incited several attempts at rivalry, which we are nowise inclined to disparage. All of these are hopeful, and will doubtless improve with experience and the lapse of time. But buyers must feel greater confidence in the time keeping of a watch from this pioneer concern than in one manufactured by any of its young rivals. If any do not, we urge them to inquire of their friends who have bought and carried the American Watch. Every purchaser may have a guarantee, if he will, that this Watch shall give entire satisfaction.

So constant and signal have been the improvements in machinery at the Waltham manufactory that the Company have not only been enabled to make better and better Watches, but they now sell them for fewer dollars in greenbacks than they cost in gold before the war.—But they wish no one to buy their Watches because of their cheapness. They commend them as better time-keepers than any other which are or can be sold at prices so moderate. They ask purchasers not to be persuaded by importunate dealers, who may be governed by considerations of profit into buying watches of doubtful accuracy, when, by buying a Waltham they may be sure of getting a first rate time-keeper at a moderate price.

An illustrated description of the different styles of Watches now manufactured by the Company sent to any address on application.

No watches retailed by the Company.

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
my15 3mr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

CABINET ORGANS.

QUALITY BEST.—PRICES LOWEST.

1. That the quality of the MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS is the very best is not questioned by unprejudiced and well-informed persons.—These Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest premiums at Industrial Exhibitions—to the number of seventy five, including the First Class Medal at the Paris Exposition. They are recommended as the standard of excellence, the best, by several hundred of the most eminent musicians in America and Europe, whose testimony is printed, and will be sent to any one desiring it.

2. It is the fixed policy of the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company to sell their Organs always at the least remunerative profit. They are now very much the largest manufacturers of these instruments in the world. With increase of business they have been able to make a corresponding increase and improvement in machinery and facilities for manufacture, by means of which they are now producing yet more perfect work than ever before, and this at increased economy in cost. Accordingly they are now selling the best Organs they have ever made at prices which are as low, or even less than would be the cost of manufacture of inferior instruments without the advantage of such facilities.

Four-octave Organs, $50 each. Five-octave Organs, with Knee Swell, $100. Five-octave Double Reed Organs, with five stops, Tremulant and Knee Swell, $125. The same, six stops, with addition of one octave of Sub bass, connected with the Manuals, $150. The same, seven stops, with Sub-bass and Octave Coupler (each key commands four separate reeds, giving this style nearly twice the power of a Double Reed Organ, with much greater variety.) $175. Five-octave Double Reed Cabinet Organ, with five stops, Automatic Swell and Improved Vox Humana, the finest instrument of its size which can be made, $170. Many other styles at proportionate prices up to $1,000 each.

Lowest prices printed, invariable, and alike to all.

Circulars, with full particulars as to styles, prices, peculiarities of construction, etc., sent free to every applicant. Address the

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.,
154 Tremont street, Boston;
my15 4tr 596 Broadway, New York.

CONSTITUTION WATER IS A certain cure for Diabetes and all diseases of the Kidneys.

For sale by all Druggists. fe20 3mr

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS A year. Address FOX & CO., myl5 tfr Saco, Maine.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

OUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols.	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLeine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols.	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes.

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
my15 New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Bulls.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS. JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 William St., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

"A WORD TO HORSEMEN."

Dr. TOBIAS' celebrated VENETIAN HORSE LINIMENT has been tested by the first Horsemen in this country, and proved to be superior to any other. The late Hiram Woodruff, of "trotting fame," was never without a bottle in his stable. It is also used by Colonel Bush, of the Jerome Park Course, at Fordham, New York, who has over twenty running horses under his care, among which rank some of the finest stock in America. It is warranted to cure Lameness, Sprains, Scratches, Bruises, Galls, Cuts, Wind Galls, Colic, Sore Throat, Nail in the Foot, and Over-heating, when used according to the directions.

All who own or employ Horses are assured that this Liniment will do all, if not more, in curing the above named complaints. No Horse need die of Colic, if, when first taken, the Liniment is used according to the directions. Always have a bottle in your stable.

Price, in pint bottles, $1. The genuine is signed S. I. Tobias on the outside wrapper.

For sale by the Druggists, Saddlers and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. myl5 5tr

SONGS OF GLADNESS.—THE new Sunday School Music Book. By J. E. Gould, author of "Sacred Chorus Book," "Modern Harp," "Tyrolian Lyre," "Amphion," etc. Fifteen thousand sold in two weeks. Leading Sunday School music teachers and superintendents pronounce it unequaled by any similar work; 176 pages. Contains 242 tunes; 315 hymns. Retail, thirty-five cents; per hundred, $30; specimen books, twenty-five cents; copious specimen sheets gratis.

J. E. GOULD,
myl5 tfs 923 Chestnut st., Philada., Pa.
For sale everywhere.

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address

AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
myl5 tfs Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

A GENTEEL BUSINESS for either sex. No previous knowledge of the same or capital required. This is no advertising scheme, but comes from a reliable business firm. Thousands of dollars can be made by addressing T. W. EVANS & CO., myl5 tfs 41 S. Eighth st., Philadelphia.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
myl5 tfs 40 Park Row, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural, and other Newspapers. dec7 1y.

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold.
Surplus, - - 1,000,000, Gold.

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, } Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. ap10 3mr

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. myl5 tfs

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to

NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
myl 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 54 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON.
1e23 1y

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Late Chief Justice La

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE
sep15 1y New Orleans.

F. HATHORN, ALF. H. PIERSON,
Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs.

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FOR SAMPLE STOCKING.—Samples and circulars of Lamb's Family Knitting Machine, and Chicopee Sewing Machine. Address, enclosing red stamp,

JAMES D. ORNE,
General Agent.
my8 tfs 922 Chestnut st., Philada., Pa.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
mh13 9mr 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mr Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER, PLANT Syringe, Window Washer and Garden Engine for $5. Send stamp for circulars to

N. E. P. PUMP CO.,
my8 tfs Danvers, Mass.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO Co., New York. ap10 tfs

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

THE LITTLE SAILOR.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

Baby is a sailor boy,
Swing, cradle, swing;
Sailing is the sailor's joy,
Swing, cradle, swing.

Snowy sails and precious freight,
Swing, cradle, swing;
Baby's captain, mother's mate,
Swing, cradle, swing.

Never fear; the watch is set,
Swing, cradle, swing;
Stormy gales are never met,
Swing, cradle, swing.

Little eyelids downward creep,
Swing, cradle, swing;
Anchor in the cove of Sleep,
Swing, cradle, swing.

—Little Corporal.

BATTLE OF THE STARLINGS.

"When I was at a friend's house in Yorkshire," writes a gentleman well known to the scientific world, "last autumn, there were such immense numbers of these birds (starlings,) who sought sustenance by day on the neighboring marshes, and at night came to roost on his trees, that at length there was not room for their entire accommodation; the consequence of which was, that it became a matter of necessity that a separation of their numbers should take place—a part to new quarters, and the remainder to retain possession of their old haunts. If I might judge from the conflicting arguments which their confused chattering seemed to indicate, the contemplated arrangement was not at all relished by those who were doomed to separate from their companions. A separation, however, did take place, but the exiles would not leave the field undisputed. Birds, like aid-de-camps of an army, flew from one side to the other, unceasing voices gave note of dreadful preparations, and at last both sides took flight at the same moment. The whirring sound of their wings was perfectly deafening. When they had attained a great height in the air, the two forces clashed together with the greatest impetuosity. Immediately the sky was obscured with an appearance like the falling of snow descending gradually to the earth, and accompanied with a vast quantity of bodies of the starlings which had been speared through by hostile beaks. It was then growing rather dark; I could merely see the contending flocks far above me; so I returned home to my friend, to whom I described the curious scene I had witnessed. In the morning he accompanied me to the field of battle, where we picked up one thousand and eighty-seven of these birds, the majority of them dead, but some of them merely wounded, and a vast quantity of broken feathers."—Once a Month.

THE CHEERING WORD.—Little Charley was the dull boy of the school. All the rest either laughed at him or pitied him. Even the master sometimes taunted him with his deficiencies. He became sullen and indifferent, and took no pains to get on. One day a gentleman who was visiting the school looked over some boys who were making their first attempt to write. There was a general burst of amusement at poor Charley's efforts. He colored, but was silent.

"Never mind, my lad," said the gentleman, cheeringly; "don't be discouraged; just do your very best, and you'll be a writer some day. I recollect when I first began to write, being quite as awkward as you are, but I persevered, and now look here." He took a pen, and wrote his name on a piece of paper, in fine legible characters. "See what I can do now," he added.

Many years afterward that gentleman met Charley again. He had turned out one of the most celebrated men of his day, and expressed his firm conviction that he owed his success in life, under God's blessings, to the encouraging speech made by the school visitant.

HOW MEN DIE.—A number of years ago, in upper Hindostan, the Rev. John Ireland, a faithful minister of the Gospel, yielded up his spirit to the gracious God who gave it.

Surrounding the dying pastor's bed were members of the society of the station; some civilians, a few military men, together with some of the swarthy natives—servants devotedly attached to their self-denying master whom they were now to lose.

But ere Mr. Ireland's eyes closed forever on this world, to open in an eternity of bliss, he essayed to speak to those around him. His words were few; but long years after he had gone they were remembered by men who, at that time young and thoughtless, have since embraced Christ as the Saviour:

"I have preached many sermons to you, my friends; but before leaving you I should wish to say, If all is forgotten, let this be remembered: 'O I what a joy it is to die!'"

SCIENTIFIC.

WINDOW GLASS.

I read in your last number a description of "How Window Glass is Made," which, though I have read many similar before, seems to me now so awkward in process—not in description—that I cannot help entering my protest against the idea, though it seems to be a fact that there has been no essential improvements in glass making since the time the "Arabs camped, and burnt seaweed," etc.—you all know the story of its discovery. To take a lump of viscid tenacious material on the end of an iron tube, and blow it, and twirl it into such a shape that it is possible to make it flat, after a deal of further trouble, and this to be the only means of effecting this result now known, seems to me to be a disgrace to American inventive genius.

Why cannot a pot of melted vitreid substance like glass be drawn out into sheets, as well as a continuous sheet of paper from the tank full of pulp, or a continuous lead pipe from a crucible full of melted lead.—Guessing, a priori, I should say much easier, and better, and smoother, for the substance to be worked is of just the right nature to yield with ease and without danger to the manipulations of machinery, and be worked into all shapes, without breakage or chemical corrosion. "But," will say the glass workers, "it is the excessive temperature at which it must be worked that is the difficulty." My friends, if it took a machine as heavy as a Fondrinier paper machine, and all made of platinum, it seems to me it would pay if a sheet of glass could be run out like a sheet of paper, and I believe it can, and will be done some time. I have seen a glass thread spun at the rate of many thousand yards a minute, and it seems to me a sheet is only, theoretically, a multitude of threads.

When we open up the immense soda and potash fields of the Western desert, and when the pine forests and other timbers are exhausted, the question, of what shall we build houses, and construct a great many other things, now made of wood, will lie between glass, iron and paper.

Cheap soda, potash and fuel, and a glass (paper) machine to make it on, will decide the question in favor of this indestructible material, so far as it is applicable.

Who is there that has capital and spunk enough to try the experiment? A small apparatus to run out a sheet ten inches wide, made of platinum, and set in the furnace, running out a stream of window glass, through proper orifices and annealing ovens, I believe to be a possibility, and a not far distant accomplishment.—C. Boynton, in Scientific American.

ELECTRICAL IMPRESSIONS.—If a coin be laid on a pack of glass plates and electrified, it leaves its stamp behind. On removing it and breathing on the glass, an impression of it is perceptible. This effect might, and has been interpreted as arising from a film of greasy deposit, supposed to exist on the plate. If you trace a device on glass with your finger and then breathe upon it, the device will show itself. This is undoubtedly due to an oily film, but in the case of the electrified coin the impression has been proved to penetrate to certain depths below the surface and not to be removed by polishing, showing that a change in the particles of molecules of the glass itself has taken place. On carefully separating the glass plates of the pack, images of the coin can be developed on each of the surfaces, showing that the molecular change has been transmitted through the substance of the glass.

An impression made thus on a glass plate, by a powerful electric current, may be still further developed by exposing the surface to the fumes of hydrofluoric acid, which acts chemically on glass. A permanent etching of the device is made. These and a great many other like curious experiments have been made by Professor Grove, of London.

TEST FOR THE STRENGTH OF ALCOHOL.—Alcohol dissolves chloroform, so that when a mixture of alcohol and water is shaken up with chloroform the alcohol and chloroform unite, leaving the water separate. On this fact Basilo Rakowitsch, of the Imperial Russian Navy, has founded his invention. The instrument he uses is a graduated glass tube into which a measured quantity of chloroform is poured, and to this is added a given quantity of the liquid to be tested; these are well mixed together and then left to subside; the chloroform takes up the alcohol and leaves the water, which, being lighter than the chloroform, will float on the top; and the quantity of water that has been mixed with the spirit will be at once seen.—Scientific American.

RESTORING GLASS.—Glass panes, constantly exposed to the action of the sun and rain, are soon deteriorated, as the potash or soda they contain (glass being nothing but a silicate of either of those bases, combined with either lime or litharge) combines with the carbonic acid of the air. A whitish opaqueness is the consequence of this action; and in order to make the pane return to its pristine transparency it should first be rubbed with diluted hydrochloric acid and then cleaned with moistened whitening. By this means glass in an extreme state of decomposition may be completely restored.

A NEW METAL UTILIZED.—Aluminum bronze, which closely resembles gold, and which is composed of nine parts of copper with one of aluminum, is rapidly making its way in the arts. Mr. Dumas stated to a late meeting of the French Academy of Science, that this bronze was now successfully used in various kinds of mechanism, especially in saws driven by steam power, which saws, although much thinner, lasted a much longer time than those of steel. It has also been applied with great success to the construction of journals in machinery intended to be run at a high speed.

FARM AND GARDEN.

FOR SOUTHERN LOUISIANA.

MAY.—During the month of May not much can be done in the garden besides killing weeds and grass, and keeping the surface of the soil well hoed and mellow. After hoeing, scatter old manure on the surface around plants and between drills.

Late peas should be stuck, late beans pulled, and tomato vines tied up to stakes, or frames, fitted up to keep the long branches from the ground.

Materials are sometimes scarce for holding up tomato vines. A stake may be driven by each vine and the vine tied to it. Or a stake may be driven on each side of the row at the end, and eight feet from this to others, and so on to the other end of the row. These should be two feet apart and fourteen inches from the top of each to the ground. Lay on strips of cypress three feet long on the top of each pair of these stakes, and then lay nine feet pieces on each side of the tomatoes, the whole length of the row; and let the vine hang over them, or run a tarred twine the whole length, on each side, in place of the pieux. Rough brush thrown around tomatoes does very well to keep the vines and fruit from touching the ground.

Throw plenty of old manure close around cucumber and melon vines, and spade it in a foot deep and two feet all round. Scatter pigeon or chicken manure on the surface around vines. Keep the dirt stirred around cabbages, and worm them often. It is recommended to take a larger lower leaf from a cabbage and lay it on the top of the head, and in the morning the worms will be found under this leaf and may be destroyed.

Beans, English peas, beets, radishes, squashes, sweet corn, lettuce, roquette, cucumbers, melons of all kinds, tomatoes, peppers, lady peas, and cress may still be planted successfully on good, rich soil if the season proves favorable.

Gardeners should now be busy, and put in any kinds of seeds that will make vegetables for table use. A whole week's hard grumbling over the misfortunes of the past will not make a single mess of beans, not a melon or a cucumber; while the same time employed judiciously in the garden may supply half of the food needed for a good, large family for months. Nothing pays worse than grumbling, and nothing helps a table like the gardener's hoe.

VINES, FRUIT TREES AND SHRUBBERY.

All that can be done to fruit trees this month is to keep the surface of the ground bare for a good distance all around the tree, by scraping the grass and weeds with hoes; cut the water sprouts as they spring from round the body of the tree, rub off all useless sprouts and suckers that issue from the body of the tree or from large branches; scrape the bodies of trees that look unhealthy and wash them with strong lye and when the soil has become impoverished make holes from one to two feet deep, with a pointed bar of iron, all around within three feet of the tree, and pour in liquid manure. Chicken manure is good for fruit trees.

Grape vines on the side of a house should be tied up to nails with stout hemp strings, and the new shoots, when they become lengthy, should be tied up. When trained to stakes or arbors, the vines should be properly directed and long new shoots tied to the proper places. The arbors of Scuppernong vines need enlarging. The vine needs no pruning, and covers an immense space when it has age and is in a good soil.

Grape arbors should either have large posts a foot square, of heart cypress or live oak, and charred at the bottom, or the posts should be framed and braced, the tenon pitched and spiked, and the bottoms set on brick pillars or blocks. A good grape vine, on an arbor, lives from twenty-five to fifty years, and in some instances they have lived a hundred years. The arbor should be made to last accordingly, for it is difficult to repair or renew a grape arbor covered with matted vines.—Planters' Banner.

THE SECKEL PEAR.—This is a well known variety, and one that stands, in point of quality, before any other pear in the world. It is an American variety, the history of which is quite interesting, as given by Downing. It originated near Philadelphia, and seems to have been a chance seedling, as are many of our very best American pears. The tree is a slow grower, with short jointed, dark colored wood, and small, rounded leaves. It is quite compact and regular in form, healthy and long lived. The fruit is from small to medium size, quite regular in form, nearly obovate; color dull yellow, with russet, and generally with a bright red cheek on exposed specimens; calyx small, nearly closed, in a shallow basin; stem short, slightly curved, rather slender, set in a slight depression; the flesh yellowish white, very juicy, with a rich, peculiar flavor and aroma, unlike any other pear. It is, if possible, too rich—almost cloying. The time of ripening is last of September to last of October. The tree is a long time coming to maturity, but lives to good age, and yields its rich fruit in abundance, which always commands a high price. It is very doubtful if a pear of better quality can be produced. It seldom does well as a dwarf, and should not be planted as such.

THE HEN AND DUCK AS EGG PRODUCERS.—A paper has been received by the Paris Academy of Science, from M. Comaille, on the comparative value of the hen and duck as egg producers. His observations were limited to three hens and three ducks, all fine animals hatched at the same time in the month of February. During the following autumn the ducks laid two hundred and twenty-five eggs; they recommenced laying in February, and continued to do so until the middle of August. The totals of each at the end of that time were: The hens, two hundred and fifty-seven eggs; the ducks, six hundred and seventeen. M. Comaillo next examined the nutritive value of each kind of egg, and found them nearly equal in that respect.

A WRINKLE ABOUT THE AGE OF HORSES.—After the horse is nine years old, a wrinkle comes on the eyelid at the upper corner of the lower lid, and every year after he has a well defined wrinkle to each year over nine. If, for instance, a horse has three wrinkles, he is twelve; if four, he is thirteen. Add the number of wrinkles to nine, and you will always get it. As a good many people have horses over nine, it is easily tried. If true, the horse dentist must give up his trade.

THERE are four ways of getting rid of stumps. Let them rot. Draw them out, and make fence of them. Bore a two inch auger hole, and fill it, as often as empty, with sulphuric acid. Bore a similar hole, and fill with crude petroleum, and when it has soaked in, set on fire. The first method is the easiest; the second the most expensive; the last is the best.

A VIRGINIAN informs the Rural New Yorker that if fruit trees are rubbed with a piece of fresh meat, so as to make the tree bloody and greasy up as high as the rabbits can reach, they will not touch them. One or two applications during the winter will be sufficient.

THE California papers give an account of a remarkable mountain of salt, situated in the southeastern part of the State of Nevada. It is reported to be about five miles in length, and six hundred feet in height. The body of salt is of unknown depth. It is chemically pure and crystalline, and does not deliquesce on exposure to atmosphere. Like rock, it requires blasting from the mine, whence it is taken in large blocks, and is transparent as glass. This would afford an abundant supply to the whole world, could it be cheaply mined and transported; but it now stands in the wilderness, an object for the admiration of the curious and the inspection of the scientific. It is believed that there is but one other place on the globe where it exists in such a state of purity, in workable quantities, and that is at Cracow, Poland.

THE French navy now contains sixty-three armored ships of war, two hundred and forty-one screw propellers, fifty-one side-wheel steamers, and one hundred sailing vessels, making the very respectable total of four hundred and fifty-five frigates, corvettes, etc.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold,

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE
OF THE
CHARTER OAK.
ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 505 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
del2 6m 97 and 99 Julia street.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana,

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Solky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Satiley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guthelt Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Smut Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. ja16 6m

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

FOR BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS,

The United States Mail Steamship
Trade Wind,
J. T. MORRILL, Commander,

Under contract with the Honduras Government, will hereafter sail on the following WEDNESDAYS of every month, at 5 o'clock P. M.:

On WEDNESDAY, Oct. 21, 1868.
" Nov. 25, "
" Dec. 23, "
" Jan. 20, 1869.
" Feb. 24, "
" Mar. 24, "
" April 21, "

For freight or passage apply to GEORGE W. HYNSON & CO.,
ja16 3m No. 82 Camp street.

The Trade Wind connects with regular packets for Santo Tomas, Omoa and Ysabel.

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. del2 6m

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens FEBRUARY 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00

For circular address
ja2 1m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton, W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tylor, J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb, A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio, Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick, Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney, W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks, C. E. Girardey,
Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss, Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith, Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier, Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,

OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT
LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION
OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre, W. S. Mount,
John Davidson, L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier, William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks, William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt, T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper, Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike, Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard, John C. Sinnott
J. Canfield, C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith, W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
R. W. YOUNG, Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER, Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST., (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

Now Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Cah't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Roshorough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

A. EYRICH,

(Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
Manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and
Heating Stoves of all kinds.
je13 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

F. M. ECKFORD, New Orleans. GEO. ALPH. CAGE, Columbus, Miss.

ECKFORD & CAGE,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 42 Union street, New Orleans.
oct10 3m

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,
JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER,
77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
nov1 New Orleans, La.

A STAR IN THE EAST!

A new star has appeared in the literary circles, called the "ILLUMINATED WESTERN WORLD." Its illustrations are all printed in beautiful oil colors, from one to seven, at a single impression. In this feature alone the "Illuminated Western World" stands forth the foremost of the age.

Aside from its magnificent illustrations, however, its columns will teem weekly with Fiction, Solid Prose, Charming Poetry and Glowing Romance. It is a fit companion of every fireside—the magazine of every branch of literature, the champion of all noble industries, the support of the farmer, merchant, artisan, and the education of the masses. Send for specimen copies. Sold by all news dealers. Subscription, $3 per annum. Address

THE WESTERN WORLD CO.,
Corner Park Place and College Place, my8 tfr P. O. Box 4,929, New York.

TO THE WORKING CLASS.

I AM NOW PREPARED TO FURnish all classes with constant employment at their homes, the whole of the time, or for the spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Fifty cents to $5 per evening is easily earned by persons of either sex, and the boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. Great inducements are offered those who will devote their whole time to the business; and, that every person who sees this notice may send me their address and test the business for themselves, I make the following unparalleled offer: To all who are not well satisfied with the business I will send $1 to pay for the trouble of writing me. Full particulars, directions, etc., sent free. Sample sent by mail for ten cents. Address E. C. ALLEN, mh13 tfr Augusta, Me.

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address
W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
my1 tfa Cleveland, Ohio.

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, SCROFula.—A lady who had suffered for years from Deafness, Catarrh and Scrofula was cured by a simple remedy. Her sympathy and gratitude prompt her to send the receipts free of charge to any one similarly afflicted. Address
MRS. M. C. LEGGETT,
ap24 tfr Hoboken, N. J.

PATENTS—MUNN & CO., EDITors Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.
Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above.
my1 tfr

$10.—INDISPENSABLE TO EVery household. Perfectly wonderful. Everybody buys at first sight. Agents making fortunes. Illustrated circulars free. Address
APEX S. M. CO.,
my8 tfr 208 Broadway, New York.

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,
AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session,	$48 00
Tuition, Fall session,	32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address
REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLlege, Mansfield, De Soto parish, La.

Rev. CHARLES B. STUART, A. M., President.

OWNED BY THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Fall Session of this well-known institution will open on WEDNESDAY, the 30th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers.

The following are the terms for a session of four and a half months, payable one half at entrance and the remainder on the 1st day of December:

Board, including washing, fuel and room-rent, in gold	$67 50
Tuition in English and Latin, in currency	25 00
French, in currency	15 00
Music, in currency	30 00
Use of instrument, in currency	7 50
Incidental fee, to be paid by every pupil, in currency	2 00

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

Traveling ministers of Louisiana Conference charged no tuition in English and Latin.

Every boarder will furnish a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, a coverlet or spread, and towels and lights.

For catalogues, containing full particulars, address the President. july25 3m

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Briuley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hull Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)..	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two.....	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three.....	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four.....	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

REV. J. C. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

CHURCH OF THE STRANGERS, New York.—Visitors to the city of New York are informed that they will find divine service every Sunday, in the large Chapel of the University, Washington Square, at ten and a half A. M. and at seven and a half P. M. The evening service in summer is at eight o'clock. Waverley Place, immediately north of the New York Hotel, out of Broadway, runs west to Washington Square, on the east side of which is the University. The entrance to the church is the inside door of the University. University Place cars run from the door of the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the door of the church. From the St. Nicholas and Metropolitan, take the cars corner of Broadway and Broome, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. At the Astor House take University Place cars, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. Strangers will find cordial welcome and polite attention.

The pastor is Rev. Dr. DEEMS, who devotes himself to the spiritual interests of strangers. If any be sick, let them address him a note by mail, as "Pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York," and it will reach him. The ladies who compose the "Society of the Sisters of the Stranger" procure medical, legal and spiritual help for strangers in perplexity, distress or sickness. Address "Sisters of the Stranger," care Rev. Dr. Deems, New York.

If you are coming to New York soon, cut this out and paste it in your memorandum book.
mar6 2m o

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J. M. Bonnell, D. D., President.
Rev C. W. Smith, A. M., Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W. C. Bass, A. M., Professor of Natural Science.
C. Schwartz, A. M., Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs. A. B. Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs. E. T. Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of instrument $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
ap5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE
Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, ang15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 50 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well-known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, ESQ., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HANSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.

op22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio,

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PAPER WAREHOUSE,

137.....Poydras street.....137

Between Camp and St. Charles streets,
New Orleans.

Agent for the sale of R. Hoe & Co.'s Printing Presses and James Conner's Sons Type.
no7 3m

JAMES MACLENNAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY, ETC.,

Greenville, Mississippi.

Refers to Governor B. G. Humphreys, and many others in Mississippi, and to R. L. Walker, 190 Common street, Rev. J. C. Keener, D. D., and Rev. J. B. Walker, D. D., 112 Camp street, New Orleans, La. oct31 3m

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESsor to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this Institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term.....$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term..... 30 00
Contingent fee, per term..... 2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Bonnors.

For further information apply for circular to
O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,
No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july6 1y

J. H. MASSEY,

Formerly of the firm of J. H. Massey & Co., having formed business relations with

MoSTEA & VALUE,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN DRY GOODS,

98.....Canal Street.....98

will be pleased there to receive his old friends and acquaintances. He is satisfied he can offer such inducements as will be satisfactory to all wishing to make investments in his line.

Orders addressed to him from parties not wishing to visit the city will receive his personal attention. oct17 3m

ROBERT L. WALKER.

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug8 6m

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTItute, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Langnages	$215 00
Music	50 00
French or one Modern Language	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address
WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.
SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address,

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR.				1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC.				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have again to notice only a moderate degree of animation in the general market. In some departments of the wholesale trade we hear complaints of increasing dullness, but dealers are anticipating a revival of business toward the close of the month. Dry goods, in particular, are offered at unusually low prices, and offer decided advantages to country buyers. Sugar has been in moderate request, at about previous rates, and operations in molasses have been confined to retail transactions. The movement in Western produce has been on a very limited scale, operations being restricted by scant supplies. There are, as there have been throughout the season, foreign orders pending here for both wheat and corn, but the supplies are either too trifling to attract the attention of buyers, or holders ask prices which would insure a serious loss on shipments to Liverpool. The bulk wheat offered last week has been shipped to New York, and there is none either at the landing or in store. A barge load is offered to arrive, but shippers are unwilling to operate, excepting in cargoes on the spot.

The weather has been clear and pleasant, and we may now expect that the accounts from the country will be more cheering. The rivers are bank-full, but it is confidently hoped that the levees will stand the pressure, and that we shall be spared from the disasters of any serious crevasses.

The river has risen three inches since our last report, and is now three inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 7th instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	3227
Lake.....	5
Mobile.....	357
Florida.....	15
Texas.....	16
Total.....	3620

On Saturday, under the stimulating influence of a marked advance in foreign exchange, factors raised their pretensions, but, later accounts from New York reporting that gold had receded, they subsequently met the demand more freely, and the business summed up 2,000 bales, at previous rates for the medium and lower qualities, but rather stiffer prices for middling and strict middling. On Monday both the course of exchange and the tenor of the foreign news were calculated to depress prices, but the demand running mostly on the better qualities, which were scarce, strict low middling was manifestly stiffer, ruling at 27⅝ to 27¾c., while middling was firm at previous rates. The lower grades were neglected and drooping, without showing any quotable falling off. The sales, however, were on quite a limited scale, not exceeding 1,100 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with a moderate inquiry, and continued inanimate throughout the day, only a few buyers coming forward, and the movement being checked by the scant supply of the kinds wanted. The lower grades were offered much more freely than the better qualities, and, with the limited competition among purchasers, could not be sold unless at lower prices, while middling and the finer descriptions were scarce and held at previous rates. Under these circumstances the business was confined to 1,300 bales, and good ordinary showed a falling off of ¼c., while low middling could be bought at easier rates.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 5,300 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 763,040 bales, against 574,935 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 125,209 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 6,599 bales to France, and a decrease of 285,447 to Great Britain, and of 14,520 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary.....	24½ to 25½
Good ordinary.....	26 to 26½
Low middling.....	27½ to 27¾
Middling.....	28¼ to 28½
Strict middling.....	28¾ to 29

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....	1959
Arrived past three days.....	652
Arrived previously.....	792712—796332
	798291
Exported past three days..... 16490
Exported previously..... 713489—729879
Stock on hand and on shipboard.....	68312

Sugar.—During the past week the market has been quiet, but there has been a better feeling and more disposition to purchase at the ruling rates. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 400 hogsheads.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, May 11, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head.....$45 to 55
Texas cattle, second qual, per head. 40 to 45
Texas cattle, third qual, per head... 30 to 35
Hogs, per lb gross..... 8 to 9c
Sheep, first quality, per head..... $5 to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head..... 2½ to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head..... — to —
Milch cows, choice, per head..... 80 to 100
Much cows, per head..... 50 to —
Texas cows, with calves..... — to —
Yearlings, per head..... 6 to 10
Calves, per head..... 6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 00	10 00
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	..	..
East India	24	25
Bale Rope Kentucky, ₩ lb	..	..
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	1 20	.. ..
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50	.. ..
Crackers	6 00	.. ..
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fire	65 00	70 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow	..	..
Adamantine	17	22
Star	17	22
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl	.. ..	.. ..
Northern	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	9 50	10 00
Western, ₩ coarse	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14	17½
Havana	..	..
Java	..	..
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	37	38
Sheathing	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow Metal	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	23½
Tarred, American	.. ..	21
Russia	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	3 62½	4 00
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	20	23
Feathers, ₩ lb	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	1 70	.. ..
Herrings	75	..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	.. ..	28 00
No. 2	.. ..	22 00
No. 3	.. ..	17 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	5 50	.. ..
Extra	5 75	10 50
Fine	5 30	5 37½
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	13	14
Currants, Zante	13½	14
Almonds, soft shell	25	..
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
Layer	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₩ box	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 10	2 40
Canada	2 40	2 60
Oats	75	..
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	72	76
Beans, ₩ bbl	9 00	14 00
Hops, ₩ lb	12	15
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	22 00	28 00
Northern	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	8	13
Kip Skins	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country	17	18
Pelts ₩ piece	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6½	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	35	65
Muscovado	..	..
Refinery, Reboiled	67½	80
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3	.. ..
Black do	4	4½
Select, water rotted	6½	..
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	4 00	5 00
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	2 00	4 00
Pitch	2 50	3 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 35	3 50
No. 2	2 25	2 50
No 3	.. ..	.. ..
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	45	48
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 45	.. ..
Coal Oil	37	39
In cases	48	50
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed	35 00	40 00
Meal	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	nons	here
" Western	10 00	20 00
" North half bbl	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₩ lb	..	..
Tongues ₩ doz	..	..
Pork, Mess	32 25	32 50
Prime Mess	28 00	..
Hog, round, ₩ lb	.. ..	13½
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	17½	17½
Do., canvassed	19	21
Sides	17½	17½
Shoulders	13½	13½
Green Shoulders	13	13½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	19
in kegs	19½	21
Fair, in tierces	.. ..	17
Butter, Northern	40	50
Western	25	47½
Cheese, American	20	24
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	1 25	1 75
Onions	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	5½	9½
India	..	..
Carolina	10	10½
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	..	..
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	..	..
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	8	12
Southern	..	..
Castile	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	7	14
Havana, White	15½	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters	—	—
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	9	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refused	7	10
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	—	—
Baling	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	35	40
Burry	10	16
Louisiana, Native	22	25
Texas, ₩ Mellco	25	27

SPECIAL NOTICES.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-third anniversary celebration of the New Orleans District Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held in Carondelet street church, at half-past three o'clock P. M., on Sunday, the 16th of May.

The schools will all meet on Saturday previous, May 15th, at three P. M., for rehearsal of pieces and songs.

The superintendents will please see that there be a large and punctual attendance of their respective schools.

W. H. Foster, President.

May 4, 1869.

NOTICE.

Autaugaville, Ala., April 29, 1869.

The ministers and delegates to the district meeting to be held for the Wetumpka district will report at the store of H. L. Golson & Co., and any coming by the river will land at Vernon, and conveyance will be furnished to Autaugaville.

Wm. A Edwards, Pastor.

PENSACOLA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Pensacola district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Milton, Florida, June 3-6.

A full attendance is earnestly desired, and the official members are referred to the constitution in the printed minutes of our last session for an explanation of their duties.

Members, on arriving at Milton, will report at the Eagle hotel. Provision for all. Bishop Andrews will preside.

J. A. Parker, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

New Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers	May	9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.		10
Germna churches: at Craps st		16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st		21
Jefferson City		23
Plaquemine		30
Felicity street	June	6
Thibodeaux		13
Carondelet street		27
Baton Rouge	July	18
Moreau street		25

J. C. Keener, P. E.

Union Springs Dist., Montgomery Conf.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Troy, at Bethel	Apr.	3, 4
Brundidge, at Williams'		10, 11
Pine Level, at Orion		17, 18
Union Springs		24, 25
Rocky Mount, at Athens	May	1, 2
Mt. Hilliard, at Mt. Hilliard		8, 9
Line Creek, at Line Creek		15, 16
Fort Deposit, at Letohatchie		22, 23
Mount Ida, at Emmans		27, 28
South Butler, at Ebenezer		29, 30
Greenville circuit, at Union	June	4, 5
Greenville station		6, 7
Sandy Ridge, at Spring Hill		9, 10
Millville, at Rogers' chapel		12, 13
Elba, at Elba		19, 20

J. W. Shores, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo circuit, Concord	Apr.	17, 18
Montevallo station		24, 25
Arbacoochee ct., Chulafinee	May	1, 2
Liaeville circuit, Lincville		5, 6
Fredonia ct., Chapel Hill		8, 9
Lafayette circuit, Lafayette		11, 12
Dadeville circuit, Camp Hill		15, 16
Pinckneyville ct., Enmuckfaw		19, 20
Marble Val. ct., County Line		22, 23
Chandler Spriag ct., Chandler Spring		29, 30

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Tusoaloosa District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Summerfield	Mar.	13, 14
Perryville		20, 21
Selma		27, 28
Randolph	Apr.	3, 4
Tuscaloosa		10, 11
Havana		17, 18
Forkland		24, 25
Greensboro and Newbern	May	1, 2
Brush Creek		8, 9
Marion		15, 16

Jas. L. Cotten, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion	Apr.	10, 11
Macon station		17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill	May	1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville		8, 9
Cooksville, at Hebron		15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew		22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville	June	5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn		12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb		26, 27

S. H. Cox, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist., La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carroll circuit	May	1, 2
Delhi and Floyd circuit, at Hurricane		8, 9
Sicily Island		15, 16
Waterproof		22, 23
Winsborough circuit		29, 30
Bastrop and Oak Ridge	June	5, 6
Lyad Grove circuit		12, 13

W. G. McGaughey, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia	Apr.	17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville		24, 25
Calcasieu	May	1, 2
Bellevue		8, 9
Bayou Mallet		15, 16
Vermilionville		21, 22
Opelousas		29, 30
Grand Chenicre	June	5, 6
Washington		12, 13
Plaquemine Brulee		19, 20

J. D. Adams, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit	Apr.	17, 18
Monroe circuit		24, 25
Vernon circuit	May	1, 2
Farmersville circuit		15, 16
Homer circuit		22, 23
Haynesville circuit		29, 30
Bossier circuit	June	5, 6
Minden circuit		12, 13
Spurta circuit		19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit		26, 27

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson	Mar.	30
Wilkinson	Apr.	1
Percy's Creek	May	15, 16
Woodville		17
Buffalo		18
Tunica		19
St. Helena		22, 23
Amite		25
Meadville	June	9
Liberty		12, 13

Address, Liberty, Mississippi.

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n.	Mar.	27, 28
Mobile, Franklin street	Apr.	3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street		10, 11
Whistler		17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne		24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa	May	1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion		8, 9
W. Pascagoula, at Ocean Sp'g's		15, 16
Cottage Hill, at Allen's	June	5, 6
St. Stephen's, at St. Stephen's		12, 13

Jas. A. Heard, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE.

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, - - - - 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, - - - - 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, - - - 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE

ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 43 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8
New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker at Chartres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Caroodelet street, New Orleans
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

July25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months,	$150 00
Fuel,	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department,	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department,	40 00
Music,	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each,	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15, Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
de12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....169

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC,

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....71
New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes.

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y No. 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street
oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, Virginia.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
del2 3m Emory Post Office, Va

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON, President.
sep5 2m

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE Academy.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad: Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address

nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custombouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sept

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 18.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 730.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—124 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COPENHAGEN, May 14.—At a banquet in this city to-day, General Raasloel, lately Danish minister to Washington, who was present, made a speech, in which he referred to the sale of the Danish islands in the West Indies to the United States; said he had great confidence in the American Senate. When negotiations were made clear the Senate would not hesitate to ratify the sale. The present delay was owing entirely to the old differences between President Johnson and Congress.

MUNICH, May 14.—The Bavarian government has issued a circular note to the governments of France, Austria, Prussia, Baden, and Wurtemburg, inviting those powers to a conference to be held in this city for the purpose of preserving the rights of States against the church.

VIENNA, May 14.—On the occasion of the closing of the Austrian Chambers, the president congratulated the members that the situation of Austria had been greatly improved; referred with pleasure to the conciliation of Hungary and new laws which had been enacted on various subjects, and concluded by saying that the Emperor protecting, no peril menaces the constitution, if its friends are faithful.

PROGRESS OF THE REVOLUTION.

HAVANA, May 14, via KEY WEST.—Private letters from rebel sources giving accounts of a battle on the 3d, at Los Minos, have been received. The Spaniards numbered one thousand two hundred under command of Lisen. The revolutionary force was commanded by General Quesada. One report says before the fighting commenced Quesada posted native Cubans in front, protected by entrenchments, and placed four hundred Dominican American volunteers in their rear, with orders to fire upon them if they ran. Thus placed between two fires the Cubans fought with desperation.

The Spaniards attacked the entrenchments three times with bayonets. The two first assaults were repulsed by the Cubans. The third was very determined and severe, and the Cubans began to waver, when Quesada ordered the rear guard to the front; they advanced, driving the Cubans into the front ranks of the enemy. A hand to hand combat ensued, in which the butchering was horrible.

The Spaniards finally gave way and retreated, but in good order.

Their loss is estimated at one hundred and sixty killed and three hundred wounded; that of the Cubans two hundred killed and a proportionate number wounded. The forces of Quesada, after the fight, marched to San Miguel and burned the town in sight of the retreating Spaniards.

It is generally believed that the revolutionary leaders have changed their policy, and in the future will fight instead of retreating to the mountains on the appearance of any considerable force of government troops.

In the battle at Attagracia, on the 18th ultimo, the Cuban loss was two hundred, and the Spanish one hundred and eighty killed and wounded.

The Spaniards here regard the result of these actions fatal to the cause of the rebellion, but the Cubans are jubilant over them as the first great successes of the war for independence.

WASHINGTON May 15.—The following is promulgated to-day:

A PROCLAMATION
BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

In pursuance of the provisions of the act of Congress approved April 10, 1869, I hereby designate the 6th day of July, 1869, as the time for submitting the constitution passed by the convention which met in Richmond, Virginia, on Tuesday, the 3d day of December, 1867, to the voters of said State registered at the date of such submission, viz, July 6, 1869, for ratification or rejection, and I submit to a separate vote the fourth clause of section one, article third, of said constitution, which is in the following words. (Here follows the disfranchising clause.)

And I also submit to a separate vote the seventh section of article third of the said constitution, which is in the following words. (Here follows the test oath clause.) I direct the vote to be taken upon each of the above cited provisions alone, and upon the other portions of the constitution in the following manner, viz: Each voter favoring the ratification of the constitution, excluding the provisions above quoted, as framed by the convention of December 3, 1867, shall express his judgment by voting "for the constitution." Each voter favoring the rejection of the constitution, excluding the provisions above quoted, shall express his judgment by voting "against the constitution." Each voter will be allowed to cast a separate ballot for or against either or both of the provisions above quoted.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, this the 14th day of May, in the year of our Lord 1869, and of the Independence of the United States of America the ninety-third.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President.
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

ANOTHER STATEMENT ABOUT THE ALABAMA CLAIMS MATTER.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A letter has been received in this city from London, from a prominent American and ex-official of this government, in which the writer says that no matter what instructions this administration may send over regarding new negotiations on the Alabama question, the British government will never consent to the settlement of the claims except by international arbitration; and unless the administration accepts this from the start as the proper basis, no negotiations of any character need be expected.

INSTRUCTIONS TO SOUTHERN COMMANDERS.

After some discussion of the question in cabinet meeting, it has been decided to instruct the military commanders in the South to investigate the alleged outrages there, especially in Georgia. Instructions have been sent to the military commander in Georgia to institute a thorough examination into the recent killing of Mr. Adkins, a member of the Georgia Legislature, and to find out if possible the perpetrators of the assassination, that justice may be meted out to them.

NINTH CENSUS.

The sub-committee of the special committee of the House appointed on the census, consisting of Messrs. Garfield, Halderman, Lollin, Wilkerson, and Cullom, will get here on the 25th instant, to prepare a bill providing for the taking of the ninth census.

THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

Official advices have been received that twenty-one States have ratified the fifteenth constitutional amendment for universal manhood suffrage. The assent of three more States is still necessary to make it a part of the constitution.

GALVESTON, May 18.—General Reynolds, commanding fifth military district, informs the chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Texas that he has selected all registrars for the State, and if the President issues an order for an election in Texas, it can be held in July, at the time designated by the late convention.

OMAHA, May 18.—Seven companies of the Fifth Cavalry, under General Carr, moving from Kansas to Fort McPherson, encountered five hundred Cheyennes. A fight ensued, in which the Indians left twenty-five warriors on the field. The troops lost three killed and three wounded. Carr is still in pursuit near Medicine Lake creek.

LONDON, May 18.—Reverdy Johnson, in a letter declining a banquet proposed by the authorities of Southampton, expresses gratification at the extinction of the late apprehensions of unfriendly relations between Great Britain and the United States.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Revenue Supervisor of Tennessee recommends that the revenue marine be extended to the navigable waters of the Ohio, Missouri, and Mississippi rivers, to use swift steamers.

Fish don't think Great Britain ought to apologize in addition to paying.

Cresswell is ousting and appointing postmasters at the rate of four hundred per week.

The cabinet will commence the consideration of Mississippi affairs at its next meeting, and will take up Texas subsequently.

Grant goes to the Naval Academy ball at Annapolis on June 4.

Fish has submitted certain questions to Hoar regarding removals under the amended tenure of office act. Vague ideas regarding the meaning of the act are afloat.

It is stated that Senators Morton and Sherman have written Boutwell elaborate protests against his gold selling, bond buying and sinking fund policy.

It is stated that the Treasury declines to pay warrants signed, Porter for Borie.

The sub-Judiciary Committee of the House will take evidence on the Busteed case in Mobile. They depart on this mission to-morrow.

HAVANA, May 19.—Reliable accounts of the Los Minos fight reduce the affair to a skirmish. The Spaniards and patriots are suffering equally from fever. It is stated that many patriots are dying from want of shelter and medicine.—Trains are again running on the Puerto Principe and Nuevitas railroads. Cane grinding is interrupted by rains.

Another battalion of negro troops departed to-day for active service in the field.

The Diario says the insurgents burned the towns of Sabanean, Cascarro, and Gunnarro. The Voz de Cuba doubts the truth of the report.

A naval court has sentenced the captain and mate of the captured schooner Galvanic to six years' imprisonment, and the twenty-two passengers captured on board to eight years.

BREAKS IN THE LEVEE.

THE CREVASSE IN ST. BERNARD.

A visit yesterday to the Villere crevasse, about two miles below the Barracks, in the parish of St. Bernard, inspired us with very little hope for the growing season in that parish. The river is very high indeed, and the levees all along the Third District and below are very leaky, and appear to be in a dangerous condition. The break at Villere's, under these circumstances, is sufficiently formidable to spur our city authorities into the utmost exertions to avert the impending disaster. A large area of the parish of St. Bernard is already under water, and the river still rushes its current through the gap.

At General Dahlgreen's place, just below the Barracks, we found General Hicks, with a detail of some forty men, arresting a most threatening break in the levee. The same energy and promptitude at the Villere crevasse would save thousands of dollars, and we were glad to learn from the general that he purposed taking force enough with him to day to do some effective work at Villere's. The bagasse and bean poles being used by the few hands we saw at work there yesterday would hardly build a mill-dam. Our levees need the most watchful care on the part of those upon whom this duty is devolved, and we trust that immediate and efficient means will be adopted to save the city and the neighboring parishes from the disaster of a general inundation.—Times, May 14.

BREAK AT THE ASHLAND PLANTATION.

From Mr. J. Stuart, a resident of the parish of Ascension, we learn that a crevasse of the most serious character occurred on Wednesday, at three o'clock, at D. F. Kenner's Ashland plantation. The crevasse, in the first place, was caused by a crawfish hole, and would have been easily stopped if any material had been on hand for that purpose. In the absence, however, of any such facilities, the crevasse soon gained rapidly in extent, and on Thursday night was already forty-five feet wide, and eight feet deep. It had then extended on the road parallel with the river two miles down, and up from the break two miles. At last accounts it had gone back over Burnside's Rosewood plantation and the back part of Colomb's and Merchand's, and will soon flood the New River settlements. It is hoped, if the material can be obtained, that the crevasse will be stopped in two days. The waters thus far have flooded about one thousand seven hundred acres of corn and cane.—Times.

CREVASSE AT HERMITAGE LANDING.

By the arrival of the steamer Virginia, Captain W. R. Holcroft, from Louisville, we learn that a serious crevasse has occurred at Hermitage landing, three miles above Port Hudson, on the opposite side of the river. The gap is about sixty yards wide, and unless preparations are made immediately to stop the breach, it will entail a serious disaster to the crops. No preparations had been made to stop it up to the time the Virginia left.—Times.

THE FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The first Sunday school in the world was established by Ludwig Hacker, in Ephrata, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, in 1740. Robert Raikes started one in Gloucester, England, in 1782, and he has generally been credited as the originator of such schools.

SPAIN.—CASTELAR'S SPEECH.

We are indebted to the Picayune for this speech, as reported by the Madrid correspondence of the London Standard of April 17. It is a most eloquent and marvelous utterance to have been made anywhere, but thrice marvelous in the atmosphere of Spain and in the Spanish Cortes. Who can doubt, after reading it, that the spirit of the Bible and of Protestantism is fairly at work in that stronghold of the Inquisition, Catholic Spain? The Standard says:

Castelar made a speech on the 12th, which has certainly raised him to a pinnacle of popularity seldom attained by any public man in so short a space of time. It was the more extraordinary as it was unpremeditated, being in the shape of a reply to a long speech delivered immediately before it by one of the dignitaries of the clerical party, Senor Manterola, the Canon of Vitorin. Castelar's masterly reply has taken the whole country by storm. In the streets, in the clubs, in the committee rooms of the Congress, in the railway trains, and in the press, scarcely anything else is talked about. Its peroration was certainly one of the finest and most effective oratorical efforts to which I have ever listened, and produced the most extraordinary effect upon the entire Cortes. When he sat down he was instantly surrounded by the members of the Republican Left, who shook his hands and embraced him in the usual Spanish manner, amid the most deafening applause from all sides of the House and from the galleries above. But this was not all. Several of the ministers rose from the "banco azul," and, crossing the floor, went up to him, followed by almost the whole of the majority, and were equally as demonstrative as the Republicans. They grasped and shook his hands till one would have thought the arms would drop out their sockets—they embraced and hugged him, and many of them in their excitement kissed him? It was a never-to-be-forgotten scene. To crown all, the stoical Rivero, the president of the Assembly, rang his bell, hastily pronounced the session over, and instantly left his chair to join the rest in their demonstrations! The next moment I saw him not only clasp the gifted orator in his arms, but actually kiss him on the cheek! Nor was the excitement confined to the deputies below; it extended itself to the galleries above, which, especially the diplomatic and the press tribunes, were crammed. They, too, joined in the applause.

THE SPEECH.

In reply to Canon Manterola, on April 12, Castelar reviewed the effects of the imposition of a religion by the State. Those who, like Senor Manterola, believe in it, ought not to condemn Henry VIII, of England, issuing a decree converting his Catholic people into Protestants; nor the French Revolutionists requiring the adoration of the Goddess of Reason; nor Robespierre promulgating, by a coercive law, as a creed without which no one could be a French citizen, the doctrine of the Supreme Being; nor Napoleon believing in Theodoric, the Roman Emperor, who by a coup d'etat imposed Christianity on the Roman Senate? Napoleon believed in the right of the civil power to exert itself thus in matters of religion, and for a time hesitated whether he should restore to France the ancient Catholic religion or impose the Protestant religion on her. He decided eventually for the former, but why? Solely because Catholicism was essentially authoritative, and obliged men to bow the knee. Nevertheless, those who studied France impartially would see that though Catholicism was restored in the churches, it was not restored in the consciences. It was an error, the gravest of errors, to ask, in the name of moral and religious ideas, as Senor Manterola had been asking in that chamber, the coercive force and the material aid of the State. If we believed in religion the voice of our own conscience was sufficient to make us follow its precepts. If we did not believe in it the protection of the State was highly injurious, as it obliged us to be hypocrites and to make professions with our lips which we had not in our hearts. Religion might then be the means of helping us to deceive our fellow-men, but we could never deceive God—God, who penetrates the depth of the will and of the conscience. There had been two ideas which never succeeded yet in the world—one religion for all and one nation for all. Various illustrious Pontiffs tried, from time to time, to accomplish the first, but failed. Alexander, Cæsar, Charlemagne, Charles V, and Napoleon tried to accomplish the second, and likewise failed. The idea of variety conquered the conquerors. The variety of conscience conquered the Pontiffs, and the variety of people conquered the warriors. He combated Senor Manterola's ideas as to the progress of Catholicism. As to England, its progress was not religious, but social. It had not been effected in the consciences, but in the laws, and this they owed to the Liberal Protestant party, whom they were every day anathematizing, and whom they would persecute if they could. As to the United States, she had thirty-seven million inhabitants, but only about ten per cent. of them were Catholics, and they were due, to a very large extent, to the annexation of States which were originally of Catholic settlement—Texas, Louisiana, California. He said there were four fundamental races in Europe—the Latin, the Germanic, the Greek, and the Sclavonic. The Latin race reflected its socialistic character, its love of unity, its tendency to discipline and organization, and universal vassalage in Catholicism. The Germanic race reflected its individualism and its love of personal independence in Protestantism. The Greek race manifested the predominance of the metaphysical idea over the moral. The Sclavonic adored a species of armed Messiahism, a sort of autocratic religion. In the government there were two races—the Indo-European and the Semites. The Indo European was the progressive one, the creators of the ancient Greek and the modern German. The Semites was the religious race, and was represented by Moses, Christ, and Mohammed. The Jews and Arabs, those children of the desert, adored the one God. The Christian Semites adored principally the first person of the Trinity, and scarcely noticed the second or the third. The Indo-European adored the Virgin and the saints, and scarcely recognized God. [After thus establishing his general principles, he took up Canon Manterola's question as to when the Catholic Church had ill treated the Jews.] Why, the fact was they were treated as slaves, and reckoned up with beasts of burden! He had with him the inventory of the property of the monastery of San Cosme and San Damian in nine hundred and seventy eight. Did the deputies know how those monks catalogued their goods? Here it was: fifty mares, twenty female Moors or Jews, thirty male ditto! He then asserted Spain had not always been an intolerant country. Witness the times of Ferdinand III, the Holy, and of Alonzo X, the Wise, the first of whom conquered Seville and the second Mercial. Religious intolerance began in the middle of the fourteenth century and in the fifteenth. Then it was that San Vicente Ferrer preached that sermon in the cathedral of Toledo which resulted in the terrible massacre of the three thousand Jews in that city. Senor Manterola had said, tauntingly, that the Jews were only fit to make slippers, and had asked him to cite what illustrious men had sprung from their race since their expulsion. He could cite many, but he would only give Spinosa, the first of modern philosophers who, had it not been for their Inquisition, might have been born here, and his glory might have gilded their horizon, for he was born of Spanish descent and of Spanish Jews. They might dissent from his ideas, but they could not deny his genius. Intolerance had deprived them of that glory. Disraeli, his (Castelar's) political enemy, the Tory, Conservative—call him what they liked—in politics; but he was a great orator, a great novelist, a great literatus, a great statesman, and the head of the British aristocracy. He was a glory which, but for their criminal intolerance, might have belonged to the Spanish nation. Daniel Manin, too, the Italian patriot, was born of parents who sprang from expelled Spanish Jews. The fact was that, in depriving themselves of the Jews they had deprived themselves of an infinity of names who might have been the lustre and the glory of the country. He then proceeded to a fierce onslaught against the body Canon Manterola represented—the Neo-Catholics—winding up by saying of them, "The ox knoweth its owner and the ass its master's crib; but the Neo-Catholic party knoweth not its Lord." [This perversion of the Bible caused intense amusement to all but the reverend deputies who did not look at all pleased, especially as it was very evident that Castelar was carrying the House with him.] Alluding to persecution, he said that Senor Manterola's puerile assertion that the church did not kill the heretics, but the civil power did, was equivalent to the assassin saying he did not kill his victim, but his dagger did. The Inquisition had been the dagger of the church. The truth of the persecutions was to be read in every page of their ecclesiastical history. Did Senor Manterola wish him to cite the encyclical in which Pope Innocent III condemned the Jews to eternal slavery? Did he wish him to bring the letter in which Pope Pius V charged Philip II to seek an assassin to kill Elizabeth of England? He then passed on to Senor Manterola's boast as to the Catholic church having been the depository of learning, and the founder of grand universities. He would be just. He would admit this. When Europe entire was decomposed by feudalism, the church was the centre of unity; the idea of life; the tribune of the people; she was the shield of the people, and the only intellectual and moral instrument in the midst of barbarism. She could not live long in such times without being a powerfully progressive institution. But compare the great universities which the ideas of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries originated with the most illustrious of their own—Salamanca, for instance.—What illustrious foreign, English or German universities had Senor Manterola cited? Those of Spain had retrograded, not because the Spaniards were less intelligent or talented than the English or the Germans, but because the latter had acquired before them the grand moral treasure of liberty of thought. He then passed on to reply to the Canon's remarks as to Rome: "Senor Manterola says I have never been in Rome. Yes, I have. I have visited its ruins, I have contemplated its three hundred domes; I have been present at the ceremonies of the holy week; I have admired the gigantic Sibyls of Michael Angelo, which seemed to launch eternal maledictions; I have seen the sun penetrate into the basilica of St. Peter's; I have sought in those ashes an item of religious faith—I have only encountered deceit and doubt. Yes, I have been in Rome, and I have seen in the 'Salin Regalia,' painted by Bassari, a fresco of the emissaries of the King of France, who sent to the pope the head of Coligny. I have seen the apothosis of the great ecclesiastical glories of the executioners—the assassins of the night of St. Bartholomew."

His speech at this point was tremendously applauded, and he then commenced the peroration which has excited so much attention, and which, even when translated into English, is very fine, but in the original Spanish, as delivered by Castelar, is matchless:

"Canon Manterola has said that he would renounce all his ideas and all his beliefs if the Jews returned again to rebuild the temple of Jerusalem. What! does Senor Manterola believe in the terrible dogma that the children are responsible for the sins of the fathers? Does Senor Manterola believe that the Jews of to-day are the Jews who crucified Christ? I do not believe it; I am more of a Christian than that. Great is God in Sinai; the thunder precedes him, the lightning accompanies him; the light envelops him, the earth trembles, the mountains fall in pieces! But there is a God grander and greater than that. Not the majestic God of Sinai, but the humble God of Calvary, nailed to a cross, wounded, thirsty, crowned with thorns, gall on his lips, and yet saying, 'Father, forgive them, forgive my executioners, forgive my persecutors; pardon them, for they know not what they do!' Great is the religion of power, but greater is the religion of love. Great is the religion of implacable justice, but greater is the religion of pardoning mercy. And I, in the name of that religion—I, in the name of the Gospel, come here to ask you to write in the front of your fundamental code—liberty, equality, and fraternity among all mankind."

VERY recently, at the residence of Dr. Stanley, Dean of Westminster, Mr. Thomas Carlyle and Mr. Robert Browning were specially invited to meet Queen Victoria. Mr. Grote, the historian of Greece, was of the party, with his wife, who is on the regular staff of contributors to the Edinburg Review. They, however, were previously acquainted with the Queen.

HE who would have a wife without a fault must remain a bachelor.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1869.

FOURSCORE.

Fourscore, fourscore to day!
I'm almost home, they say,
And I'm waiting now to hear my Father call;
He bids me patient be,
And He will come for me,
My tottering steps to guide that I may never fall.

As I look far back
O'er the lonely track
I've wandered through so wearily since my good man went away,
To my old brain it seems
Full of dim and misty dreams;
And I hear his loved voice saying, "Dear, you'll come to me some day."

Around our hearthstone bright,
With the glow of fire at night,
There gathered seven dear and childish forms of beauty rare;
And its fitful shadows played
O'er each bent and glossy head,
As in tender tones his lips poured forth a blessing and a prayer.

And now I'm all alone,
For He called them one by one,
Till the dear pet lamb alone, of all our flock, was left;
Then with anguish keen I cried,
"Spare this, my joy and pride,
For if thou callest him, then indeed am I bereft."

But He knew what was best,
And where my heart should rest;
So one bright morn He whispered, and my darling slid away.
Into His arms outspread—
So he has all my dead;
And now I'm wailing to be called, and He may come to-day.

Fourscore, fourscore to-day,
I'm very old, they say;
Just pull the blanket over me, for I'm very, very cold;
But there's no one to sorrow,
And I may be young to-morrow,
For I see my darlings beckoning me to come into His fold. —Galaxy.

The Pulpit as Viewed from a Pew.

NUMBER THREE.

AUTAUGAVILLE, ALA., April 16, 1869.

The pursuit of our subject in the last communication brought us to refer our want of success to the character of our pulpit exercises. For a sermon to be productive of good the speaker must be in full sympathy with those he aims to influence. He must be natural, he must be in earnest. If he would have others feel, his utterances must be felt by himself. His object should be to induce men to think, and, above all things else, to act. Any effort short of this aim will fail in the accomplishment of good. Bring our ministry up to this standard, and by it judge them.

Have we not too many homilies prepared during the week in the same manner as one would arrange an address for a college commencement or an essay for a literary club? The chief aim would seem to be to please. The sermon is measured by the probable degree of pleasure afforded the mind. It is addressed to the intelligence of the hearer, and we, in turn, estimate its force by its intellectuality. The pew, perhaps, yields a willing assent to all the truths announced—applauds every commendation bestowed by the outside world, and even treasures up for awhile the impressions made upon the mind, while the pulpit seems content with these evidences of approval. But what heart has been moved to action? How many good resolves have been aroused? What member has had his faith strengthened? What penitent comforted, what sinner induced to amend his way? What addition has been given to the religious tone of society? Had Jonah followed the modern practice of sermonizing in his mission to Nineveh, think you its inhabitants would have repented in sackcloth?

Many years ago a writer in the Southern Literary Messenger, in a rather elaborate article, while animadverting with some severity upon the practice obtaining in many denominations of reading their sermons, paid a just tribute to the success of Methodism, and attributed it to the extemporaneous character of its preaching.—We can now no longer recognize this as a characteristic of our church, and would apply the strictures indulged by the writer upon others to our own pulpit. The practice, then, of reading the sermon, or what is but little better, of memorizing it, is the great fault that, in our mind, underlies the want of success in our pulpit ministrations. Few sermons, now-a-days, are delivered from Methodist pulpits but what have been previously written, and, to say the least, it is a strange coincidence that the aggressive character of the church has diminished in proportion to the increase of the practice.

In all the efforts that are made to accomplish general results by popular speaking, there are none in which the speakers have restricted themselves to written or memorized discourses so closely as in the pulpit, and in none has success been so uncertain. At the bar, in the senate, on the stump, everywhere, where the object is to induce men to carry into practice the convictions of their judgment, the manner of speaking is extemporaneous; it is precisely suited to the occasion; it impresses us with its earnestness and awakens our sympathy. As it is felt, so will it make others feel. Hence the success attending forensic effort—hence the power of the public speaker in giving direction and concentration to popular opinion. Suppose our country was invaded by an enemy whose avowed purpose was to devastate the land, destroy our every hope of happiness in life, and reduce our families to a state of utter misery. How could we be best aroused to our danger and duty? Certainly not by addresses whose standard of thought, composition and delivery was in keeping with those we too frequently hear from the pulpit. Paul would scarcely have made Felix tremble, as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance and a judgment to come, had his heart not been fully alive to the language his lips dared to utter; nor would Peter have reached the multitude on the day of Pentecost had he followed the manner of the Scribes in reading the Scriptures to them.

Some one has said of Methodism that it was "Christianity in earnest," and we would vindicate our right to the title by having more preparation of the heart—none the less of the mind—and a great deal less of the lips in our pulpit exercises. We would maintain our peculiarity for extempore language. We would assimilate our public exercises more to the spontaniety that often attends other popular undertakings. We would then continue aggressive. The pulpit, warmed into activity by a heavenly zeal, would radiate an influence through the pews that would quicken the church in all its departments, and she would move forward with all her instrumentalities harmonizing in the spread of Gospel truth.

A CHURCH STEWARD.

M. E. Church Missionary Expenditures.

The following table shows the expenditures, classified in three parts—foreign missions, domestic missions to foreign populations, and domestic missions to native or English speaking populations. In the last item will be found a very large increase for the years 1866 and 1867, called for by the extension of the work in the Southern States.

YEAR.	FOREIGN MISS. Gold.	FOREIGN MISS. Cur'cy.	DOMESTIC MISS. For'n born Pop'n.	DOMESTIC MISS. English speak'g Pop'n.
1862	$92,742	$100,297	$50,200	$59,650
1863	96,816	131,032	49,200	79,250
1864	141,397	203,734	55,650	136,600
1865	125,112	315,228	58,125	196,500
1866	164,452	275,657	67,100	575,252
1867	190,755	306,674	68,950	575,354
1868	140,417	203,625	51,600	330,450
1869	195,186	275,866	58,150	311,250
Aggregates for 8 y'rs.	1,146,877	1,812,113	458,975	2,264,306

The above table shows only the expenditures in the mission work proper. All contingencies, office and publication expenses, are to be added.

TRUTH is immortal; the sword cannot pierce it; fire cannot consume it; prisons cannot incarcerate it; famine cannot starve it.

BRITISH HONDURAS—ONCE MORE

BELIZE, April 29, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Having just heard that it is reported in the States that my family is almost starving, I request the publication of the following statements, in justice to myself and to this much abused country.

When I came out to this country, and moved up to my present lovely home, I brought with me—and I have them now—about two hundred letters from persons in different parts of the Southern States, asking information about Honduras, and a large number of them stating the determination of the writers to come out soon to my neighborhood, and buy of me lands, which I had conditionally bought of Governor Austin.

Several of the letter-writers earnestly requested me to select them places, and stated that they had the gold ready for the first payments, and some asked me to have houses ready for them and to meet them in Belize.

Not doubting but that some of these persons would soon come, I had about twenty hands to clear and build for these people, and bought rations for them to the amount, altogether, of about $250, on the faith of these letters, and made four or five trips to Belize to meet the steamers, so as to forward any persons who might come. These trips kept me from home, at considerable expense, and a great deal exposed to the weather, till both means and credit were exhausted; and now, at the end of eighteen months, not a single person has come to my neighborhood, and not a shilling have I ever received.

While I was on my way home from Belize, with supplies, it once happened that my family suffered for want of bread and salt, as well as sugar and coffee; but they had a large supply of hogs, and had to use green plantains and bananas instead of bread. As soon as I got home we were well supplied, and have been ever since. We now have sugar and sirup in abundance, and about twenty acres in plantains and bananas, and are paying off the $250 debt. Three-fourths of it is paid already, and I think will be all discharged in less than three months. I shall then commence paying what I owe in Belize, and then in the States. I am in high spirits, and if society comes out to my neighborhood shortly, I expect to end my days there.—But if settlers should not come in four or five years, I hope to have my place so much improved that, as a coffee plantation, I can sell it for a large price, and be able to go to whatever place the providence of God may point out, with means sufficient to make us comfortable for life.

It is harder to suffer in my neighborhood than anywhere else that I know of. I have bought many fat hogs, in trade, for less than two cents a pound, and hens for eight or nine cents, and I can now do the same to the full extent of what one or two families would need.

If I cannot make money at my place I don't think it possible that I can make it elsewhere.

I also regard my place as very suitable for the circulation of Testaments, hymns and tracts in Spanish, and I hope that the plan I am now carrying out may result in much good to the souls of the Spanish Indian race.

B. R. DUVAL.

"SIR," said an old Scotch woman to her minister, "I dinna ken a part of your sermon yesterday." "Indeed; what was it?" "You said the apostle used the figure of circumlocution; and I diana ken what it means." "Is that all? It's very plain. The figure of circumlocution is merely a periphrastic mode of diction." "Oh! ah! is that all?" said the good woman; "what a puir fool I were not to understand that!"

GOD is a sure paymaster. Trust him.

Vicksburg Dist., Mississippi Conference.

PORT GIBSON, MISS., May 10, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Two weeks ago I completed my second round on the Vicksburg district since Conference. Though we have had but few pleasant Saturdays and Sundays, and I have suffered almost daily with rheumatism on account of necessary exposure to the long-continued inclement weather, I have been able to meet every quarterly meeting, do a fair proportion of pastoral visiting, and perform some other extra services.

Our prospects on the district are of a mixed character—some things encouraging and others equally discouraging. Of the former, I rejoice to find such a large proportion of our old members, amid the desolations of war and the hopeless wreck of their earthly fortunes, unshaken in their religious principles and practices, and firm in their attachment to the church of their early love.

Our Sabbath schools are again gradually coming into life. The principal difficulty I find is in securing the regular services of competent teachers. We can get the children and libraries, but we are very deficient on the score of faithful teachers. Were I a layman in the church, it seems to me I would esteem it a great privilege to be a teacher in a Sabbath school. It would give me something definite to do in order to advance the Redeemer's kingdom.

Your list will show that you are getting a few additional subscribers to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE in the bounds of this district. But little has yet been done for this great interest of our Conference in comparison to what, I think, ought to be done. Our people got out of the habit of getting and reading our Conference organ during the war, and too many of them are slow in renewing their subscriptions. In my pastoral visitations I sometimes visit half a dozen prominent Methodist families in a week without seeing a single copy of our ADVOCATE. But as money gradually gets back in the country, and our mail facilities become re-established, and the preachers resume the habit of keeping our official organ before the people, we shall see our subscription list greatly enlarged. While on this subject I may be permitted to express my suprise and regret at a circumstance I have met with in several localities in this district.—Some of our predecessors in important pastoral charges have seemed to ignore the existence of our Conference official organ, and have superceded it by getting up clubs for distant papers, which contain but few of our official documents, and scarcely an item of our local church news. I am an utter stranger to the views and feelings that could prompt a member of the Mississippi Conference to act so inconsistently. I publish myself as the authorized agent of all our church papers, and would be glad to introduce any of them among our people; but where they can take but one I invariably urge them to take the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, because it is equal to any other in solid usefulness, and, in addition to that, it is the official organ of my Conference, and contains our local church news. My respect for the decision of my Conference, officially expressed, has great weight with me in matters of this sort.

Our finances are improving on most of the pastoral charges in the district, and I think the ministers will be better paid this year than at any time since the close of the war. But still, I regret to say, most of them have to labor hard on their little farms to eke out a support for their families. While I approve of their course, I deplore the necessity that compels them to do it. Hard physical labor interferes greatly with intellectual improvement and entire devotion to pastoral work. I still believe, if the ministers are as earnest and faithful in their work as the claims of their families and creditors will permit them to be, that, as the people improve in their financial condition, they will support them as in former years. Four of my pastoral charges—Rocky Spring, South and North Warren, and Vicksburg—have promptly paid the presiding elder's claim up to date. They do not allow me to work on credit, but pay for the work as it is turned off. This is certainly the scriptural rule for doing such things, and withal very cheering to the heart of the preacher.

We have to meet some formidable difficulties in several portions of this district; but as mere complaining will do no good, I am not inclined to say much about them. We had ten of our best churches destroyed and others greatly damaged by the Federal army during the war, so that we have to commence again, as we did on the same territory forty or fifty years ago, in private residences and school houses. Our congregations are much smaller than formerly. What churches are yet standing are seldom more than one-third filled. The people have not the means of going to church that they used to have; and then such are the thieving propensities of the loose negroes roving about that a part of each family must stay at home to protect what little they have left to live on. But few middle-aged and old people come into the communion of the church. As a class they seem to be beyond our reach. I have never known the young people more devoted to worldly pleasure. But we intend to labor on, and pray and hope for better times.

Yours affectionately,

J. G. JONES.

WHAT IS WANTED.—1. Prayer—intelligent prayer, with the facts, by reading, personal examination, and reflection brought clearly before the mind; anxious prayer, feeling the burden of the doom of the impenitent; believing prayer, knowing and trusting fully in the Almighty arm and the infinite love of Him who has appointed prayer as a means to the performance of His glorious purposes of mercy; sincere prayer, seeking counsel and strength to do fully our own individual share in the great work.

2. Faithfulness in the administration of the trust of property. Every man to give one-tenth of his income to the Lord. This is to be multiplied as the Lord prospers him. The responsibility for this trust to be realized, and taught, and preached, until faithfulness to it shall be the rule and practice of the whole church.

3. Consecrations of personal effort. There is something for every man and woman to do, and every man and woman should do something. The young must be taught to feel that life, in whatsoever walk, is to be Christ's. The brightest, most pious, most strong, must have the call of the Master for their services as heralds of His kingdom sounded in their ears. Parents must be sincere when they give a child to God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost in baptism. The rising generation must be trained to look and to labor for the establishment on all the earth of a divine reign of righteousness, joy and peace.—Record.

RELIGION PRACTICAL.—No man says the Rev. John Caird, can become a soldier by studying books on military tactics in his closet; he must in actual service acquire those habits of coolness, courage, discipline, address, rapid combination, without which the most learned in the theory of strategy or engineering will be but a school-boy soldier after all. And, in the same way, a man in solitude and study may become a most learned theologian, or may train himself into the timid, effeminate piety of "religious life;" but never, in the highest and holiest sense, can he become a religious man until he has acquired those habits of daily self-denial, of resistance to temptation, of kindness, gentleness, humility, sympathy, active beneficence, which are to be acquired only in daily contact with mankind. Tell us not, then, that the man of business, the bustling tradesman, the toil-worn laborer, has little or no time to attend to religion. As well tell us that the pilot, amid the winds and storms, has no leisure to attend to navigation, or the general on the field of battle to the art of war. Where will he attend to it? Religion in this life is mainly and chiefly the glorifying God amid the duties and trials of the world; the guiding our course amid the adverse winds and currents of temptation by the starlight of duty and the compass of divine truth; the bearing us manfully, wisely, courageously for the honor of Christ, our great leader, in the conflict of life.

IT IS reported that France will soon reduce her army.

Letter from the Rev. J. Harrell.

OUR INDIAN MISSIONS.

VAN BUREN, ARK., April 24, 1869.

As you expressed a desire to hear from us on this great frontier, I desire to comply with your request, and give you a short sketch of our present condition.

I am glad to inform you that we are making preparations to build a church for our little flock in Fort Gibson, Cherokee nation. The Board of Foreign Missions have appropriated $1,000 for our assistance; and friends are making a vigorous effort to raise $1,000 in addition, which will enable us to erect a good frame building, sufficiently commodious for our congregation. I see from Dr. Green's report of the proceedings and wishes of the board, that we may in due time expect some help for other points in building houses of worship. This is the first instance of appropriations coming from our board to build houses of worship in the Indian Mission Conference. But times are changing. The iron horse will soon pass through the Indian country; and will, to some extent, increase the population, and as a church we must look to our interests.

We have recently met with a great loss to the church in the death of Rev. Walker Carey, who died on the 15th of March, at his residence, in the Cherokee nation. His end was peaceful and triumphant. I send you a short notice of his life and death. It is, however, a matter of rejoicing, that although the workmen die, yet the work goes on—for, since the death of Brother Carey, two others have been licensed to preach, both native men, one of whom already gives evidence of great usefulness.

We have another item that should be of interest to the church, viz: In reference to the Asbury Manual Labor School, located at North Fork, Creek nation. I spent a day with them last week. Rev. Thomas B. Ruble is the superintendent, and has now under his charge eighty scholars, all well clothed, and in every way efficiently cared for. There are two good teachers employed, and the children are making improvements creditable to all concerned. The plan upon which we operate is for the Methodist Episcopal Church South to furnish the superintendent and the teachers, and pay their salaries, while the Creek nation meet the remainder of the expenses: houses, clothing, subsistence, etc. The principal building is of brick, and, I believe, one hundred and ten by forty, three stories in height, with verandas and the necessary outbuildings. They all eat, sleep, pray, and are taught, under the same roof. This school, we trust, with good management, under the providence of God, will accomplish much good.

There is hope of being able next fall to reopen another school, in the Choctaw nation; propositions having already been received on the subject. In conclusion, may we not for a moment look at the Indian tribes in their true light? Once the owners of the soil of the American continent—whose our great States are spread out—where our great cities stand, whose spires pierce the clouds—all was once their own. 'Tis true, these lands were purchased, often a handful of beads, which flattered the vanity of the ignorant savage, without being of any real value, constituting the sole remuneration given. Now they are poor. Is it not right, and pleasing in the sight of God, that we should do something for them ere they fade away? do something that will improve their condition to some extent in this life, and give them the hope of immortality beyond the grave?

J. HARRELL.

—Memphis Christian Advocate.

THERE were eleven persons in one house in Montreal, recently, says the Gazette, who sat down to a dinner of cold beef, but one of the boarders not liking cold beef, the landlady sent out to buy some ham, which was hastily cooked for him. The ham coming on the table, eight others also partook of a little of it, and the landlady regretted that she did not get some more. Of the eight who partook of the ham, all became sick to a greater or less degree. But those who ate of the cold beef only did not suffer. An investigation was had, and trichinæ were found. Some of the patients are very ill, and it is feared will not recover.

TRYING FREE SEATS.—The Episcopal Church of St. John, at Warehouse Point, Connecticut, has tried the free seat system for one year, without any subscriptions or formal pledges, but taking offerings at each service, and have raised nearly $1,700, which met their current expenses, with increased contributions to objects outside of the parish.

BE OPEN for correction; if you are in the wrong, frankly acknowledge it.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1869.

Correspondence Between the Bishops of the M. E. Church and the Bishops of the M. E. Church South.

413 Locust St., St. Louis, May 7, 1869.

To the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South—Rev. and Dear Brethren: We have been deputed to convey to you a communication from the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

We are ready to wait upon you at such time and place as may suit your convenience.

With assurances of Christian regard, Yours truly,

E. S. Janes.
M. Simpson.

St. Louis, May 7, 1869.

To Bishops Janes and Simpson—Rev. and Dear Brethren: Your note of this date to the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, informing them that you have been deputed to convey to them a communication from the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of your readiness to wait upon them for this purpose, has been received.

I have been instructed to reply that they will be pleased to receive you to-morrow, at ten o'clock A. M, at their room, 1406 Lucas Place.

Very respectfully and truly yours,

H. N. McTyeire,
Secretary.

Accordingly, at ten o'clock A. M., Bishops Janes and Simpson having been announced, were introduced to the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and, after some general conversation, made the following communications:

Meadville, Pa., April 23, 1869.

Dear Brethren: It seems to us that as the division of those churches of our country which are of like faith and order has been productive of evil, so the reunion of them would be productive of good.

As the main cause of the separation has been removed, so has the chief obstacle to the restoration.

It is fitting that the Methodist Church, which began the disunion, should not be the last to achieve the reunion; and it would be a reproach to the chief pastors of the separated bodies if they waited until their flocks prompted them to the union, which both the love of country and of religion invoke, and which the providence of God seems to render inevitable at no distant day.

We are aware that there are difficulties in the way, growing out of the controversies of the past and the tempers of the present.

We have, therefore, deputed our colleagues, Morris and Janes, to confer with you, alike as to the propriety, practicability and methods of reunion, hoping they, having been elected to their high office by the church before its severance, and endeared to all its parts by their apostolic labors, may live to see the severed parts united upon a foundation honorable to all, stable as truth, and harmonious with the fundamental law of our religion.

In behalf of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Respectfully yours, etc.,

T. A. Morris, President.
D. W. Clark, Secretary.

To the Reverends the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South:

P. S.—Bishop Morris having stated that it was doubtful whether he would be able to fulfill the duties of the commission, it was resolved that Bishop Simpson be added to the delegation above described.

T. A. Morris.

St. Louis, Mo., May 8, 1869.

To the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, convened in St. Louis, Mo—Rev. and Dear Brethren: At a meeting of the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held in Erie, Pennsylvania, in June, 1865, we made and published the following declaration:

"That the great cause that led to the separation from us of both the Wesleyan Methodists of this country and of the Methodist Episcopal Church South has passed away, and we trust the day is not far distant when there shall be but one organization, which shall embrace the whole Methodist family in the United States."

This declaration was made in good faith, and shows what were then our sentiments and feelings, and was deemed by us as the utmost we were authorized to say or do on the subject at that time.

Although our late General Conference did not directly authorize us to take further specific action in the matter, yet we judge that some of its acts justify advanced steps on our part.

In our quadrennial address to the General Conference we referred to the declaration above quoted, and no exception was taken to it by that body.

The General Conference, to promote the union of Methodistic Churches, appointed a commission, consisting of eight members of that body and the bishops of the church, who were "empowered to treat with a similar commission from any other Methodist Church" that may desire a union with us.

We have understood that there were in the minds of many of the members and ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church South reasons why they consider it unsuitable for them to initiate measures to effect a reunion of the two churches.

Believing, as we do, that if they were one in both spirit and organization much more could be accomplished for the interests of humanity and for the glory of God, we are desirous of doing all we consistently can to promote a union on terms alike honorable to both churches and in the spirit of our Divine Lord.

We therefore ask your attention to the commission above referred to, and we express to you the opinion that, should your approaching General Conference see proper to appoint a similar commission, they will be promptly met by our commission, who, we doubt not, will be happy to treat with them, and to report the result to our next General Conference.

Praying that Infinite Wisdom may guide both you and us in this important matter, so that our Redeemer's kingdom may be advanced and His name glorified,

We are yours, in the bonds of the Gospel of Christ,

E. S. Janes,
M. Simpson,
In behalf of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

St. Louis, Mo., May 11, 1869.

To the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church—Rev and Dear Brethren: It has afforded us pleasure to receive in person your respected colleagues, Bishops Janes and Simpson, deputed by you to confer with us; and we cannot forbear to express our regret that one of the delegation appointed by you to us—the venerable Bishop Morris—was not able to be present. We desired to see him again face to face, to enjoy his society, and to renew to him the assurance of our affection and regard. Our own senior superintendent, Bishop Andrew, though in the city, was hindered by the feebleness and infirmities incident to age from being present at the reception of your colleagues, and enjoying with us the interview.

Your communication, together with that laid before us by your commission, has been considered, and we entirely agree in your estimate of the responsibility, in the premises, resting on the chief pastors of the separated bodies of Methodism.

We would approach, dear brethren, the matter of your communication with the utmost candor and love, and so meet the advanced steps on your part that nothing shall be wanting on ours to bring about a better state of things, becoming and beneficial to us both. We deplore the unfortunate controversies and tempers that have prevailed, and that still prevail; and our earnest desire and prayer to God is that they may give place, and that speedily, to peace. In evidence of this, we are ready not only to respond to, but to go further than your communication, and from our point of view to suggest what may help to remove the difficulties and obstacles that are in the way.

Permit us, then, to say in regard to "reunion," that in our opinion there is another subject to be considered before that can be entertained, and necessarily in order to it; we mean the establishment of fraternal feelings and relations between the two churches. They must be one in spirit before they can be one in organization. Concord must be achieved before any real union. Heart divisions must be cured before corporate divisions can be healed.

You will not consider it as unfriendly to the freest flow of Christian sympathy evoked by your overture, if we remind you that we initiated the measure to effect fraternal relations some years ago; and, as was declared then, and as we do now declare, in good faith and with most Christian purposes. Our General Conference sent one of its most honored elders to your General Conference to convey their Christian salutations, and through him to offer to you the establishment of fraternal relations and intercourse." It pains us to refer to the fact, but it is matter of history, that he was not received.

The closing words of Dr. Pierce to your General Conference, upon being notified of the failure of his mission, are in your possession:

"You will therefore regard this communication as final on the part of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. She can never renew the offer of fraternal relations between the two great bodies of Wesleyan Methodists in the United States. But the proposition can be renewed, at any time, either now or hereafter, by the Methodist Episcopal Church. And if ever made upon the basis of the Plan of Separation, as adopted by the General Conference of 1844, the Church South will cordially entertain the proposition."

His language to our General Conference, in submitting his report, was:

"Thus ended the well-intended commission from your body. Upon this noble effort I verily believe the smile of Divine approbation will rest, when the heavenly bodies themselves will have ceased to shine. We did affectionately endeavor to make and preserve peace, but our offer was rejected as of no deserving."

The evils that have followed this rejection we suffer in common with you. We lament them in common with you; and, notwithstanding all that has since occurred, we are ready, on terms honorable to all, to join heart and hand with you to stay, and, as far as practicable, to remedy them. But you could not expect us to say less than this—that the words of our rejected delegate have been ever since, and still are, our words.

It may help the more speedy and certain attainment of the ends we both desire, to keep distinctly in mind our mutual positions and to hold the facts involved in our common history in a clear light.

You say "that the great cause which led to the separation from us of both the Wesleyan Methodists of this country and of the Methodist Episcopal Church South has passed away." If we understand your reference, we so far differ from you in this opinion, that it may help any negotiations hereafter taking place, to restate our position. Slavery was not, in any proper sense, the cause, but the occasion only, of that separation, the necessity of which we regretted as much as you. But certain principles were developed in relation to the political aspects of that question, involving the right of ecclesiastical bodies to handle and determine matters lying outside of their proper jurisdiction, which we could not accept; and, in a case arising, certain constructions of the constitutional powers and prerogatives of the General Conference were assumed and acted on, which we considered oppressive and destructive of the rights of the numerical minority represented in that highest judicatory of the church. That which you are pleased to call, no doubt sincerely thinking it so, "the great cause" of separation, existed in the church from its organization, and yet for sixty years there was no separation. But when those theories, incidentally evolved in connection with it, began to be put into practice, then the separation came.

We cannot think you mean to offend us when you speak of our having separated from you, and put us in the same category with a small body of schismatics who were always an acknowledged secession. Allow us, in all kindness, brethren, to remind you, and to keep the important fact of history prominent, that we separated from you in no sense in which you did not separate from us. The separation was by compact, and mutual; and nearer approaches to each other can be conducted with hope of a successful issue only on this basis.

It is our opinion that the controversies and tempers which so disturb the churches, and are so hurtful to the souls of those for whom Christ died, are due, in a large measure, to irritating causes which are not entirely beyond the control of the chief pastors of the separated bodies. To this end we invite your concurrence and co-operation.

And we take this occasion frankly to say, that the conduct of some of your missionaries and agents who have been sent into that portion of our common country occupied by us, and their avowed purpose to disintegrate and absorb our societies that otherwise dwell quietly, have been very prejudicial to that charity which we desire our people to cultivate toward all Christians, and especially those who are called by the endeared name of Methodists; and their course in taking possession of some of our houses of worship has inflicted both grief and loss on us, and bears the appearance, to disinterested men of the world, of being not only a breach of charity, but an invasion of the plainest rights of property. Thus the adversary has had occasion to speak reproachfully, and the cause of our Master has been wounded by its professed friends.

Brethren, these things ought not so to be, and we propose, until some action more formal, and authoritative, and advanced in this direction, can be taken by our highest judicatories, to unite with you in preventing them. We do not say that our own people have been, in every instance of these unhappy controversies and tempers, without blame as toward you. But this we say, if any offences against the law of love, committed by those under our appointment; any aggressions upon your just privileges and rights, are properly represented to us, the representation will be respectfully considered, and we shall stand ready, by all the authority and influence we have, to restrain and correct them.

These are our views; and we are sure that we represent the sentiments of our ministers and people. We have no authority to determine anything as to the "propriety, practicability and methods" of reunion of the churches represented by you and ourselves.

With sentiments of Christian regard, we are, dear brethren, very truly yours,

R. Paine, Chairman.
H. N. McTyeire, Sec'y.

Christian Minister Mobbed by Loyal Leaguers.

The Knoxville Press and Herald of April 27 gives an account of the mobbing of one of our ministers of the Holston Conference. The editor says: It will be remembered by our readers that in February, 1868, Rev. Henry C. Neal, a devoted young minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, while faithfully pursuing his calling and endeavoring to do his Master's service, was cruelly set upon by an armed mob of ruffians in Blount county, stripped, tied to a tree, and mercilessly beaten with hickory withes until his blood flowed down upon the ground. The offense of Mr. Neal was, that he did not heed the "warning" given to him under the authority of the Leagues, that he would not be permitted to preach the Gospel in that county. The shocking details of that outrage are yet fresh in the memories of our readers. Of the men who participated in it we know of none that have been brought to punishment except such as an avenging God has visited upon them. Mr. Neal's successor in that field of labor is Rev. Jacob Smith, a modest, though zealous and faithful embassador of Christ. About the middle of last month (March) the savage spirit of intolerance and persecution broke loose against him, and he was driven from his house of worship, where his congregation had gathered on the Sabbath day to hear him. An account of this disgraceful affair was published by us at the time.

On Saturday, the 25th ultimo, Mr Smith had another appointment to preach to his congregation at Mr Peter Brakebill's school house, on Little river, two and a half miles from Logan's Chapel, (the scene of the former mob,) and about ten miles from Knoxville. As we learn the facts from persons living in the vicinity, and some of whom were eye-witnesses of part of the transaction, as Mr. Smith was approaching his place for preaching on horseback, he was met by a mob, most of them armed, who assaulted him in the most brutal manner, accompanying their demonstration with ruffianly oaths and threats against his life. The party, as our informant states, was headed by Captain Jo. Greer, with Elias Goddard, clerk and master of the Chancery Court of Blount county, Mitchell Davis, young Brown, (son of "Parson" Brown, of Maryville,) young Boyd, (whose father lives on Nail's creek,) and a considerable number of negroes. They first attacked the horse, which they knocked down once or twice with clubs. They then assaulted Mr. Smith, beating him over the head and body with clubs and the butt-ends of their pistols, offering to him in the meantime the grossest indignities. Becoming fearful of discovery, they then took him back about half a mile into the woods, and having compelled him to dismount, they stripped him to his shirt and proceeded to beat him with clubs and switches until he was well-nigh exhausted. Some persons happening to pass by, hearing and seeing what was going on, hastened to the school house, where the congregation was gathering, and made report of the outrage. A squad of citizens started immediately to his relief, but did not arrive in time to overtake the ruffians. They met Mr. Smith in the road, near the place where he had been cruelly beaten. He was quite faint, and bore many marks of his savage treatment. Notwithstanding his feeble condition, he insisted on being conducted to his appointed place for preaching. He and his friends proceeded to the school house, and, though suffering greatly with his wounds and bruises, he preached his intended sermon on "The Immortality of the Soul," without refering in his discourse to the outrage from which he had just escaped. He became too faint to finish entirely his sermon, but gave way, calling upon a church brother to conclude the exercises with prayer. He had to be assisted from the stand to a neighboring house. Where the mobbers went to, after finishing their beating, our informants do not state, but they were evidently satisfied that Mr. Smith would not be able to fill his appointment. Finding, however, that he had preached to his congregation, they were highly incensed, and with additional recruits, (among them the former sheriff of the county,) went to the house of Alexander Kennedy, Sr., who had assisted Mr. Smith in his religious exercises, and with oaths and threatenings of vengeance, told him they had resolved that Mr. Smith must not attempt to preach in that county any more—that the loyal people intend to have things their own way, and that there had been enough "rebel" preaching there to suit the loyal people. We give these facts as reported to us by as reliable men as live in Blount county. There may be slight inaccuracies in the minor details, but the main facts, we are assured, are hardly stated in the fullness of their damning truth.

This is the second minister of the Gospel who has been cruelly beaten in Blount county by a mob of bigoted, illiberal partisans, for no other reason than that he was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The men who mobbed and almost murdered the Rev. Mr. Neal escaped with impunity, and now a similar occurrence has disgraced the annals of Tennessee. We call the particular attention of Governor Senter to the fact that when outrages were committed by lawless bands in counties in this division of the State, the "loyal militia" were precipitated upon those counties. There was no scruple about inflicting the militia upon this people, notwithstanding it was susceptible of the clearest proof that they do not sympathize with or encourage mob violence. We are aware that Governor Senter did not call out or order the militia into these counties; but he has permitted them to remain as a standing menace to the people, and to that extent has sanctioned the act of his predecessor.

The Knoxville Press and Herald says: "The swift recurrence of this outrage in our very midst, coupled with the threats of the perpetrators that its repetition may be daily looked for, is well calculated to shock and to startle a people who have been educated to revere a God and to respect his ministry. We have become somewhat indifferent to crime and to deeds of cruelty, of late years; but even the war, with all its demoralizing influences, had not prepared our community to receive, without a shudder of horror, the intelligence of such acts of barbarism and savage cruelty as the civilization (?) of Blount county seems capable of perpetrating. The mind of every reader will naturally inquire: What has inspired this devilish spirit of intolerance and wicked persecution of a branch of the Christian church? It is not the result of a life-long education with these men. Their fathers before them taught them no such acts of cruelty and barbarism. Sectarian bigotry and exclusiveness, in former days, wrought their mischief in East Tennessee, as elsewhere; but sectarianism here, in its days of worst intolerance, never prompted the use of the cudgel, the stone, or the lash. But in this case there was no room for sectarianism. The doctrines held and preached by the victim of this cruel persecution differ in no respect from those which the instigators and perpetrators of the villainies profess. Religious bigotry has shed rivers of blood in its day, but it is not responsible for this outrage. Paganism persecutes the Christian missionary with the sword and the torture, but the scene of this persecution is in a Christian community. Whence, then, had this devilish act its origin? Who inspired it, if neither religious bigotry, nor fanaticism, nor yet pagan fury urged on its perpetrators? There can be but one answer to this question. This outrage, like the many which have preceded it, is the direct and the expected, yes, and the wished for result of the incendiary and wicked teachings of the officials of the Methodist Church North—the loyal church—of the Simpsons, the Pearnes, the Spences, and the Drakes. These men have used the cloak of loyalty to carry out their schemes of personal aggrandizement. Under the lying pretense of a fervent patriotism and an undying loyalty, they have taken the property of churches and of individual members, and have applied it to their own use. In violation not only of Christian courtesy, but even of common decency, they have assumed to take possession of the entire property of the Methodist Church South, to which the body they claim fellowship with renounced, years ago, its claims; and not satisfied with the seizure of the property, they have spared no pains to stir up strife, ill-feeling, and contentions among brethren and kindred. By their preaching, their letters, and their private conversations, they have sedulously endeavored to fire the loyal heart to such a pitch that no member of the hated organization should be permitted to preach in East Tennessee, and that its ministers should preach the Gospel at the peril of their lives. With what success they have labored the record will show."—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Political Potato Digging in England.—Among the stories current with reference to the last West Gloucestershire election, is the following, which is perfectly authentic: A very active legal agent, on the Liberal side, started to bring a man to the poll. The agent found the elector, a poor man, in his garden. At the moment he was engaged in digging potatoes. "Come along," said the agent; "we want you to vote for Kingscote and Marling." "Well," said the elector, "I must finish digging these potatoes first, and if you want me to go along, you had better help me." The agent was a man of all work, so, taking a spade, he very ably and adroitly assisted the voter in his work, taking something like from twenty minutes to half an hour to finish the job. "Now, come along," said the man of law, chuckling over the delight with which he would tell of his achievement in the committee room. "No," said the elector; "I might better have left the potatoes in the ground than dig them up and leave them exposed; you must help me to put them away." This was more than the agent bargained for; but, having gone so far, he determined he would not lose his man for want of going a little further. So he set bravely to work. At length this was completed, and the two started for the next polling place. "I feel uncommonly hot," said the elector, as they passed a public house. "After all this work would you not like a little drop?" "Oh, by all means," said the agent. "Come in." So in they went, and had a good drink, for which the agent, of course, paid. "For whom did you say I was to vote?" "Of course for Kingscote and Marling," was the reply. "Well, I don't know that," said the other to the utter discomfiture of the agent; "I have always voted blue, and I feel as blue as ever; but I'll think on it, and by the time we reach the booth I'll have made up my mind."

The rest of the walk was spent by the man of law in urging the political pre-eminence of the Liberal side over the Conservative; but all to no purpose, for when the all-important question was asked of the elector by the deputy sheriff, he gave the name of Colonel Somerset. The agent was crestfallen. All his glorious visions of triumph had departed in a moment. The crowning narrative which he meant to tell—how he dug and housed the potatoes and made sure of his man—before an admiring committee, vanished. But he had taken too prominent a part in the affair not to be obliged to give an explanation, and thinking candor and frankness the best in the matter, he plainly told how he had been outwitted by the "blue clodhopper," who made him dig and house potatoes, and find drink for two in the bargain, and all for nothing, or (as he considered) worse than nothing.

The Doom of Primogeniture.—Another bulwark of British aristocracy is threatened by the Liberal iconoclasts—the law of primogeniture. That is said to be the next point of attack, as soon as the Irish Church disestablishment bill is passed, which, in all probability, will be this month. The law of primogeniture is a relic of Norman feudalism, and was a contrivance expressly invented to prevent the minute distribution of real estate. It is wholly in the interest of the aristocracy, and inimical to the interests of the people. This law provides that a man's eldest son shall inherit all his "real" property, and if he has no sons, the estate is transferred to the next male relative, leaving the deceased man's wife and daughters in poverty. The law is oppressive to children, other than first-born, and deleterious in the last degree to the nation at large. The only wonder is that the English people have so long acquiesced in its enormity. As they are getting the upper hand now, we think they will not acquiesce much longer.

The Duke of Somerset, in the House of Lords, referring to the late discussion on missionaries, said that he was most happy to exonerate the London Missionary Society from any participation in the late unfortunate proceedings. He asked if the use of gunboats was the best way to promote Christianity in China? Lord Clarendon stated that the government entirely disapproved of the use made of the gunboats and had ordered that the $10,000 demanded of the Chinese authorities should be returned, and the guarantee of $40,000 cancelled, with expressions of regret that they had been demanded. The vice consul was much to blame and had been removed from his post, and instructions had been forwarded which would prevent anything of the kind occurring again. Our relations with China, his lordship assured the House, were never on a more satisfactory footing than at present.—Church Union.

The Spanish Cortes has decided against a republic.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1869.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

TO AGENTS.

We have been sending to some of our agents surplus copies of the ADVOCATE, and each week will continue to do so, for a while. Our church needs, must have, a sweeping revival of religion. One of the means to accomplish this is the diffusion of light. We have thousands of members who are asleep and do not go to church often enough to wake up. Once a month the preacher comes; that they expect, and feel no unusual sensation at the sight of him. Now throw in the ADVOCATE once a week, and see what effect that will have on the brother. It may wake him. At any rate it is worth the experiment. Give him a specimen copy, and follow him up. We can live without him, but he may die without us. There is no swifter way of stirring up a chronic and opening the channels of spiritual life than by circulating good books and good papers. Try the eyes of the people if you fail to take their ears.

THE WELCOME TO THE BISHOPS.

This interesting ceremony, according to arrangement, took place at the First church, on Thursday night. It was introduced by singing the grand anthem, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace."

The pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. Clinton, then announced the well known hymn, entitled "The Minister's Welcome."

"We bid thee welcome in the name
Of Jesus, our exalted Head."

The prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. W. A. Smith. After a voluntary, sung by the choir, Hon. Trusten Polk, appointed to deliver the address of welcome, rose in his place in front of the altar, and addressed the bishops seated within the altar railing in words fitly and earnestly spoken. The senior bishop, the Rev. Bishop J. O. Andrew, made the first reply, in words accompanied by deep emotion, and which cannot be appreciated fully, apart from the pathos of his venerable presence.

The other bishops spoke successively in the order of their election to the episcopal office. The spacious audience room was filled to its utmost capacity, and the vast company was pervaded by an enthusiastic sympathy with the purpose and spirit of the occasion. It was, as Bishop Doggett remarked, utterly unique and novel in the ceremonial of church communions. At its conclusion there was a sentiment of universal satisfaction, and heightened love and veneration for these, our chief ministers, who had acquitted themselves so handsomely in their impromptu addresses, and so honorably represented our beloved Methodism in the just and noble sentiments they uttered.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

SELF-DECEPTION.

The most alarming deception of all is to be mistaken about our own salvation. A wrong estimate of others may lead to serious losses, but there is nothing so ruinous as a false view of ourselves. The bare possibility of thinking that we are Christians, when we are really aliens and outcasts, should awaken serious reflection. It is, however, more than possible, if we may judge by the tenor of Scripture. The warnings against deception in the experience of divine mercy are so numerous that we may well conclude that the danger of it is very great. With all our proneness to mistake the true character of our neighbors, the tendency is still greater to put a false estimate upon ourselves. A just account of onrself is a very difficult, if not an impossible thing; but this is of small moment, comparatively, when the error does not reach to the fact of our acceptance with God.

In innumerable matters the best of people usually have false views of themselves, at the same time that their hope of salvation is real and well grounded. They may not take a true and accurate measurement of their gifts, they may even think more highly of themselves than they ought to think, and they may have infirmities and defects of temper and spirit of which they are unconscious. In their motives there may be a mixture of the lower and almost worldly, some shade of earthly ambition associated with the true principles of Christian devotion, and other imperfections of which they have no suspicion. However much these forms and degrees of deception mar the character and impair the usefulness of Christians, they may consist with a state of assured pardon. Serious as the consequences of this defective introspection are, they are as nothing compared to that fatal delusion which leads us to believe that all is well, when in truth the wrath of God abideth upon us.

There are many forms of deception among sinners, with reference to their guilt, the probabilities of future repentance, and their power to break the chains which long habit has forged. Outside of the lines of Christian orthodoxy there are also many more phases of it. Leaving these out of the question, how many are there who are deceived as to the fact of their present reconciliation to God? One class of the deceived have never experienced the regenerating work of the Spirit. There was an awakening, and some of the elements of genuine repentance, but the soul did not reach saving faith, nor the felt change of heart which marks the experience of the converted. The hurt has been slightly healed, and the cry of peace has been made where there is no peace. In this class, besides mistaking the gracious awakening and religious concern for justification and its attendant blessings, there are not a few who rest in false grounds of mercy. Outward rites and ordinances are supposed to exert a mysterious power, and to bring the subjects of them into a new and accepted relation to God. By these and other means those who believe that they have savingly embraced the Gospel, who have sincerely intended to do so, are still in their sins, "without God and having no hope in the world."

Another class of deceived ones is composed of those who have known the way of righteousness, and who have unconsciously fallen away from God. There are backsliders and apostates who are deluded with no false hopes. They know and acknowledge their real situation.—But there are multitudes who do not know that they have become withered branches. They have maintained their connection with the visible church, and the fearful truth is yet to be discovered that at heart they are no longer vitally united to the Vine. Here is to be found religious self deception in its most frequent manifestations, where the loss of saving grace has been so insidious, so gradual, and so disguised, as to have escaped detection. When at the lowest ebb of spiritual life the bankrupt soul is saying, with the utmost complacency, "I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing," and knows not that he is "wretched and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

The two classes we have noticed are alike in the important fact that they believe themselves to be safe, and that they have truly and savingly received the Gospel. The foolish virgins supposed they had done all that was needful, and that they were completely ready for the midnight cry. This deception is sincere, and yet it leads not the less to ruin. Men may think that they are on their way to glory, sincerely believe that they are tending thither, and yet be fearfully surprised by their final repulse from the gates of heaven. To suppose that sincerity alone can save is to suppose that hypocrisy is the only damning sin. To be deceived in reference to our conversion is certainly unnecessary. With the open Bible, with the privilege of prayer, and with the promise of the Holy Spirit, none need go astray. Honest, thorough self-examination must become the habit of our lives if we would shun this terrible evil. "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith; prove your ownselves."

Every day should we look into the heart, and with devout prayer for divine light and assistance, search all the chambers of the soul. This is the more necessary as the heart is naturally "deceitful above all things," and as the devil uses every art, as the god of this world, to blind and delude. The best friends may unintentionally confirm us in our error, because they would comfort rather than give pain. Closeted with God and realizing the vastness of the interest at stake, the truth must be sought, and the real state of the heart must be ascertained. Whatever the conclusion, the throne of grace is now accessible, and in Christ there is plenteous redemption.

*

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Sabbath school convention, called by the New Orleans District Sabbath School Union of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was held last week in the Carondelet street church. Thursday night, the 13th, Dr. J. B. Walker delivered the introductory address. His subject was: What is the Influence of the Sabbath School upon the well-being of Society. The theme was discussed ably, and the delighted auditory were prepared by this introductory service for the subsequent duties of the convention. The convention proper was organized on Friday evening, the 14th, at half-past five o'clock P. M. Dr. J. C. Keener was elected president, and Richard Jones secretary. Sunday school teachers, all official members of the church, and delegates to the convention from abroad, were recognized as voting members. Friday and Saturday evenings the convention was in session, adjourning Saturday night at ten P. M. The address of Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, on Friday night, was on "The Relation of the Sabbath School to the Church, and the duty of the Pastor and Members of the Church Toward the Sabbath School." The theme was thoroughly analyzed, and presented in a most impressive and practical aspect. All regretted the absence of Dr. Jefferson Hamilton, of Mobile, who was prevented by sickness from attending. He was to have delivered an address on Saturday night, on "Personal Piety in the Sabbath School, its Influence and how to Increase it." We hope some time yet to hear the doctor on this surpassingly important subject. Besides the regular addresses already noticed the president of the convention delivered an excellent speech on taking the chair, and another at the final adjournment. Much of the time of the convention was spent in the open discussion of several subjects of vital importance to the cause of Sabbath schools. The debates were interesting, and we hope profitable. The time was altogether too short. Not much could be done, in two brief evening sessions, beyond affording glimpses of the fields covered by the subjects proposed for investigation. The next convention must have more time.

Definite action by resolution was reached on only a few questions, as follows:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention punctuality is one of the first qualifications of a Sabbath school teacher.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention the teachers in the Sabbath school should give their own deep attention to the study of the lesson pertaining to the exercises of their classes.

Resolved, That we recognize the relation of the Sabbath school to the church as very near and vital, and that we will renew our energy and zeal therein.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the pastors of our churches to preach frequently to the children of the Sabbath school; and that it is the duty of the members of our church to interest themselves in the Sabbath school, and unless prevented by other duties to labor in or for the school.

Resolved, That the best method of securing teachers is to keep up in connection with the Sunday school a well-conducted Bible class for the adult members of the church.

Resolved, That the best method of teaching in the Sabbath school is the catechetical method by question and answer.

Resolved, That wherever practicable a competent singing teacher should be employed to teach the children the rudiments of music.

Resolved, That the best method of obtaining money for Sabbath schools is to ask it of the congregation to which the school is attached.

Resolved, That the plan of missionary operations adopted by the Felicity street Sabbath school be recommended to the consideration of our schools; and that said plan be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

THE ANNIVERSARY.

Sermons were preached in the morning at eleven A. M., in all our churches, on the Sabbath school cause, and collections taken for the Sabbath School Union. Altogether we suppose several hundred dollars were realized. The anniversary exercises took place at the Carondelet street church at half past three o'clock P. M. With the exception of the opening prayer and the benediction, the exercises were by the children. W H Foster, Esq., president of the Sabbath School Union, had charge of the proceedings. This was the twenty third anniversary held under his supervision, and fully equal to any of the past in the attendance, the singing, and the speeches. We were disposed to pronounce it the best of all. The singing of the German schools in their own tongue was the perfection of melody. The opening and closing speeches, the former by H. Boullemette, and the latter by Caswell Ellis, were gems as to matter, and delivered with propriety and effect. Probably eight or ten schools were present, and the spacious church was filled with the children and the friends of the cause. This multitude of children made up a congregation more beautiful than any other we expect to see this side of heaven. *

THE MISSIONARY PLAN adverted to in a resolution of the Sunday school convention, now in operation in the Felicity street school of this city, will be published next week.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

SUMMERFIELD, ALA., May 8, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Please acknowledge the receipt of another $10 for the young men at Summerfield who are studying for the ministry, sent by Brother Turner, of Butler. I will only add that we are greatly in need of money.

S. P. RICHARDSON,
Tr. P. A. S., Mobile Conf.

ON THE first of June the transatlantic cable rates will be reduced to four English shillings per word. Five words are allowed gratis for the address and signature; should the address require more, the surplus words are to be paid for like the text of the dispatch. A dispatch of ten words, therefore, together with the five words allowed for address and signature will only cost £2, or about $10.

IT IS reported in Germany that Rosenkold, the Swedish naturalist, and his wife have been shot in Paraguay by order of Lopez.

CHINAMEN are beginning to come from California to the Atlantic cities.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE HISTORY OF METHODISM IN KENTUCKY. By the Rev. A. H. Redford, D. D. Vol. 2, from the Conference of 1808 to the Conference of 1820. Nashville, Tennessee: Southern Methodist Publishing House. 1869. 12mo, pp. 511.

We have opened this volume, as we did the first, to see if by reading a few lines we should be drawn into reading a page, or if one page would compel us to read on; and so it proved. Whether the theme is to us more fascinating than it would be to the ordinary reader we are not able to decide; but certainly the book strangely fastens the attention. Considerable portions of it are drawn from other works on the early Methodism of the West. It is surprising to learn how many of the noted preachers of our church have been in Kentucky, or passed through it, or started from it. Dr. Winans, for instance, is made tributary to or flows from "Methodism in Kentucky." We should have put him down to Methodism in Mississippi. However, the author brings out some incidents in the history of that great man quite new to us. To instance: His presence at the interview between Tecumseh and General Harrison. The conference between the two threatened to terminate in a bloody massacre. It was at this moment Mr. Winans "ran to the house of the Governor, obtained a gun, and posted himself at the door of the house as the champion of the family."

It is worth while preaching a year or so in Kentucky to secure a niche in some future volume of this excellent history. For sale by R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street.

BLACK FOREST VILLAGE STORIES. By Berthold Auerbach. Translated by Charles Goepp. New York: Leypold & Holt. 1869. 12mo, pp. 377.

These stories give, we suppose, a very correct picture of the manners and life of the peasantry of the Rhine. Nothing can be freer from intricacy than the plan upon which they are evolved. The most ordinary elements of fiction, such as murder, seduction, and bankruptcy, enter into their composition. Like one of the old pictures of a Dutch kitchen, it is much to the life, but depicts nothing more than some "boors drinking," a spinning wheel, an iron pot, and a few heads of cabbage. For sale by A. Eyrich, 130 Canal street.

Also from A. Eyrich, 130 Canal street:

LORING'S TALES OF THE DAY. By Miss Thackeray, author of "Fine Old Friends," "The Village of the Cliff," etc. Boston: Loring, publisher. 1869. Pp. 39.

A pleasant railroad companion.

FARMING BY INCHES; OR, "WITH BRAINS, SIR" Uniform with "My Ten-rod Farm." Boston: Loring, publisher. 1869. Pp. 123.

This serves up the art of gardening in the vehicle of clod-piercing conversations; a little family projection of a treatise on phosphates, artichokes, plowing, and plaster, with frequently recurring names of agricultural implement firms. A very ingenious composite of silver-skinned onions and Boston imagination.

THE GIRLS OF FEVERSHAM. By Florence Marryat. Boston: Loring. 1869. Pp. 131.

It is one of "Loring's Railway Library" series.

THE VILLA ON THE RHINE. By Berthold Auerbach. Translated by Bayard Taylor. New York: Leypold & Holt. 1869. Vol. 1, 12mo, pp. 531.

We are indebted to Mr. A. Eyrich, No. 130 Canal street, for the first works we have seen from the pen of Auerbach, and, as he is evidently an author of high reputation with the German public, we feel much hesitancy in noticing this work. The principal impression it has made upon our mind is, that the writer lacks sympathy with his own creations. If he were summing up a case, as a judge, or repeating the story of another for the entertainment of a company, he could not be less identified with the characters and movement which the while he unfolds. This studied objective style produces a new and not very pleasant impression upon the reader of the author's cold distrust of all men and all goodness. It is in remarkable contrast with the warmer method and, we must think, the more natural flow of Sir Walter Scott. The work is a good study for those who are curious in the opinions and sentiments which control and shape the highest circles of German life.

Plan of Episcopal Visitations for 1869.

FIRST DISTRICT—BISHOP PIERCE.
St. Louis, St. Louis, Sept. 1.
Missouri, Chillicothe, Sept. 15.
Indian Mission, Oekmulgee, Sept. 29.
Arkansas, Fayetteville, Nov. 10.
Little Rock, Magnolia, Nov. 24.

SECOND DISTRICT—BISHOP KAVANAUGH.
Kentucky, Cynthiana, Sept. 1.
West Virginia, Point Pleasant, Sept. 15.
Memphis, Holly Springs, Nov. 3.
South Georgia, Cuthbert, Dec. 1
South Carolina, Cheraw, Dec. 15.

THIRD DISTRICT—BISHOP PAINE.
Tennessee, Murfreesboro, Sept. 15.
Montgomery, Union Springs, Dec. 1.
Mobile, Selma, Dec. 15.

FOURTH DISTRICT—BISHOP M'TYEIRE.
Illinois, Bloomington, Sept. 15.
Louisville, Owensboro, Sept. 22.
Mississippi, Jackson, Dec. 1.
Louisiana, Shreveport, Dec. 15.
Baltimore, Baltimore, March 3.

FIFTH DISTRICT—BISHOP DOGGETT.
Holston, Abingdon, Sept. 22.
Virginia, Richmond, Nov. 10.
North Carolina, Newbern, Nov. 24.
North Georgia, Rome, Dec. 8.
Florida, Lake City, Dec. 22.

SIXTH DISTRICT—BISHOP WIGHTMAN
East Texas, Henderson, Oct. 26.
Trinity, Paris, Nov. 3.
Northwest Texas, Weatherford, Nov.
West Texas, Goliad, Dec. 1.
Texas, Lagrange, Dec. 15.

SEVENTH DISTRICT—BISHOP MARVIN.
Columbia, Corvallis, Oregon, Sept. 1.
Pacific, Vacaville, Cal., Oct. 6.

THE COLORED CONFERENCES.
Mississippi, at Crystal Springs, Bishop McTyeire.
Memphis, at Nashville, Bishop Paine.
Georgia, at Macon, Bishop Pierce.
Kentucky, at Winchester, Bishop Kavanaugh.
(Time to be given.)

St. John's M. E. Church South.

DEDICATION SERVICES.

The dedication of this elegant church edifice was the conspicuous featuro of the Sabbath services. A large assembly crowded the spacious audience room. Pews and aisles were filled to their utmost capacity. Many stood about the doors, and a considerable number went away for lack of room to accommodate the overflowing congregation. All the bishops were in attendance, and particularly in the imposing and solemn services. The church is located in the western part of the city, at the corner of Locust street and Ewing avenue. It is of Gothic style of architecture. It was built by Messrs. Maurice & Dickson, of brick, with stone capping, from designs furnished by Thomas Walsh, Esq. It is most admirably planned for church uses, and particularly for the convenience of a Methodist congregation. The main audience room fronts on Locust street, is about fifty five feet by eighty-seven feet, on the ground floor, seating about six hundred persons comfortably. There are four large windows on each side, of stained glass, the colors distributed and classified to produce the softest and best light. A large front window over the main entrance furnishes light for the gallery, while the two small eye-windows at each side of the front modify the glow of the side lights. The roof is self-supporting, the inside finish being such as to represent a series of seven semi-concentric arches, the bases of which rest against the walls, forming alcoves between for the windows, the painting representing rafters in the style of the medieval era. The pulpit is a model of simplicity and beauty, being an elevation of only three platform steps. It is of carved, oiled walnut, with lamp stands on each side, of the same wood, surrounded with a railing of the same material, the platform being elegantly carpeted, as indeed is the whole floor. The painting of the wall immediately in the rear of the pulpit is done to represent an alcove, and so perfectly that it is difficult to detect the fact of its being a painting.

On the occasion the pulpit and altar table were handsomely decorated with natural flowers in beautiful vases, and the whole scene presented the most pleasing effect. The chapel building is two stories high, fronting about forty-five feet on Ewing avenue, by a depth of one hundred feet. The upper story is the Sabbath school room, which is, perhaps, the most commodious and complete in the city, extending the whole length of the chapel building. On the lower floor is the lecture room, with the pastor's office and class room adjoining in the rear. The two buildings are joined together in the shape somewhat of the letter T, and at the junction rises the tall and graceful spire. The total cost is over $100,000, including the grounds, containing one hundred and fifty feet on Locust street by one hundred and thirty-four feet on Ewing avenue.

The programme of exercises was peculiarly interesting. The singing was conducted by the choir, W. E. Gray being leader and B. F. Gray the organist, assisted on the occasion by several members of other choirs. It commenced with the grand anthem, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings."

Bishop Wightman then read passages of Scripture, including extracts from the eighty-fourth Psalm, the fourth chapter of St. John, and the third chapter of Second Corinthians.

Bishop Doggett then read a hymn, commencing

"Behold thy temple, God of grace,
The house that we have reared for thee;"

which was sung with fine effect by the choir and congregation. Then a solemn and impressive prayer was delivered by Bishop James O. Andrew, which was followed by another hymn, read by Bishop H. H. Kavanaugh, and sung by the choir and congregation, beginning

"Lord of hosts, to thee we raise Here a house of prayer and praise."

Bishop George F. Pierce preached the dedication sermon. It abounded in the force of evangelical truth eloquently rendered. We are enabled to reproduce it for publication in our next issue. The text was:

"I indeed baptize you with the water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am unworthy to bear. He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire, whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor and gather the wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

Sunday School Celebration at Elyton Alabama.

ELYTON ALA., May 12, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Among the many interesting and pleasant things that took place during the district meeting, which convened in this place on the 6th of May, perhaps the most interesting of all was the Sunday school celebration.

The Methodist schools of this place and Irondale were joined by the Episcopal school here, making in all a very imposing group of sparkling eyes and smiling faces. Saturday was set apart for this jubilee among the little folks. The programme was well arranged, and executed to the admiration of all. The exercises began at ten o'clock A. M., and continued two and a half hours, and then "away to the woods" we went.

The singing and speaking were all up to the times. Mr. William Walker, Esq., the orator of the day, acquitted himself like "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." His speech was in the right direction, and cannot fail to do good. The picnic dinner was located in a beautiful grove, and notwithstanding the vast concourse of people who had gathered to witness the exercises, the fair hands of those who preside over Elyton hospitality had provided an abundance for all. Taking it item by item, or as a whole, the celebration was a decided success, and will long live in the memory of those who participated in its soul-stirring scenes.—O I to hear those children sing that "Beautiful River" was enough to cause angelic harpers to pause and listen to catch each note as it fell from such tiny lips in liquid song! As I sat and listened I thought: Well, if the infant choir of heaven can beat that, if ever I get there I will ask my Father to let me join the Sunday school up there!

I tell you, Mr. Editor, the Sunday school cause is moving forward in this district. The report of the committee on this subject shows that the people are waking up. Pastors and churches are beginning to see and feel the importance of taking care of the lambs of the flock of Christ. May the Great Shepherd inspire us all with new zeal, so that we will never rest until a Sunday school is established in every valley and cove in all this mountain district!

In conclusion, we feel that it is but due that we should say that Brother Gurley, and the corps of faithful officers and teachers of each one of these schools, deserve the thanks of all the lovers of the Sunday school cause in this district for the impetus they have given to it by showing us what personal effort can accomplish, as was so powerfully demonstrated by this celebration. May their labor of love be as "bread cast upon the waters," that shall be gathered up day by day for years to come!

J. M. BOLAND.

CENTENARY CHURCH, ST. LOUIS.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE BY BISHOP M'TYEIRE, OF TENNESSEE.

The corner-stone of the new Centenary church of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was laid at the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Pine streets.

It will front one hundred and sixty feet on Pine and one hundred and nine on Sixteenth street, and will be built of solid stone walls, in pure Gothic style of architecture. Both fronts will be in pitch faced ashlar, with two margins. The stone walls will be one hundred feet high; and the tower will tower to the heavens two hundred feet—eighteen feet higher, we understand, than any other in the city—one hundred feet of which will be of stone.

The audience room will be sixty feet four inches by ninety feet three inches, with galleries on three sides, the ceiling extending over the galleries, making it one hundred and five feet in the clear. The auditorium will be forty-three feet six inches in the clear in height, and a basement room beneath for a lecture room, Sabbath schools, etc., covering the whole ground, is to be sixteen feet six inches in length. Underneath, still, will be a cellar of the same dimensions, for hot air furnaces and other purposes.

Immediately in the rear of the church proper will be a four-story building for the pastor's office, library rooms and the social meetings of the church. Adjoining on the west, and also fronting on Pine street, will be the pastorage. Both of these are to be of stone, and corresponding in architecture with the church proper. The entire cost of the several structures is estimated at $150,000.

Mr. Thomas Dixon, of Baltimore, Maryland, is the architect, and Mr. J. Legg the superintendent of the work.—St. Louis Christian Advocate

THE divine authority of the Scriptures and their inspiration are two distinct, but inseparable truths. The authority of the Scriptures proceeds from their inspiration, and their inspiration establishes their authority; just as the tempering of the metal produces the steel, and the steel results from the tempering. If the authority of the Scriptures falls, their inspiration falls; if, on the contrary, it be the inspiration that is taken from us, the authority likewise vanishes away. The Scriptures without inspiration is a cannon from which the charge has been removed. But fear not! this cannon does not suffer its charge to be taken away.

MARRIED.

On the 13th of May, at the Methodist Episcopal Church South in St. Joseph, Missouri, by Rev. C. J. Van Deventer, Rev. M. B. CHAPMAN, of Louisiana, to Miss MAGGIE F. HARRIS, of St. Joseph.

By the Rev. Robert A. Davis, at the residence of Colonel Keep, of Wadelawn Mississippi, Mr. FRANK W. ANDERSON to Miss EMMA COLLINS.

At the residence of Thomas Smith, Esq., by Rev. J. A. Parker, on the evening of May 4th, Captain JOHN SWIFT to Mrs. HARRIET CUMMYNS, all of Milton, Florida.

OBITUARIES.

N. W. CHAPMAN died at his residence in Monroe, Louisiana, on the 24th of December, 1868.

He was born in East Feliciana parish in 1819. His parents were Presbyterians, but he united himself with no church until 1856, when, under the ministry of Rev. J. J. Wheat, at Clinton, Louisiana, he and his wife united with the Methodist. From the time of his admission to the day of his death he was an active and most efficient steward. Very soon after joining the church he erected a family altar, and the "morning and the evening sacrifice" were never omitted. His eldest son, now a minister, would, when a mere boy, alternate with his father in conducting the family worship.

Brother Chapman was early in life—perhaps when not more than ten years old—thrown upon his own resources. He entered a mercantile house as a clerk, and soon acquired a perfect knowledge of his business. At the breaking out of the late civil war he was an extensive merchant in Clinton, Louisiana. But, like thousands of others in the South, he saw the savings of long and laborious years all swept away before the ravages of war. He determined to try his fortune in a new field, and removed with his family to Monroe, on the Ouachita river. Here, first of all, in conjunction with his most eminently pious wife, he went to work to secure an organization of the few Methodists there into a society, and to establish a Sabbath school. In this they succeeded beyond their most sanguine hopes, and, aided by an active minister, saw a most interesting church and Sabbath school blessing the community with their hallowed influences.

In business he was successful. Starting at the close of the war almost without means, he would, had he lived, speedily have acquired an independence. His great anxiety to provide a competence for his family led him to labor most nutiringly, and under this over-work and ceaseless anxiety a feeble constitution gave way.

He was, in all the relations of life, an admirable man—devoted to the happiness of his family, earnest in his efforts to help the church, and generous to all. He will be sadly missed in the church. His loss to his family is irreparable. May the God in whom he trusted care for and bless the widow in her bereavement, and be a father to his children.

A FRIEND.

Died, on Saturday evening, March 20, 1869, at the residence of her parents, on Brush creek, Perry county, Alabama, MARY SAVINA TURNER, daughter of G. S. and S. C. Turner, aged seven months and four days.

She was a subject of affliction during the greatest portion of her short stay on earth. She was the idol of her father, the joy of her mother, and the pet of a circle of kind relatives.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Judge William B. Egan, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART, President.
my22

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

CIRCULAR TO ADVERTISERS,

SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS,

CONTAINING

A list of Seven Hundred and Fifty choice Advertising mediums, subdivided into more than fifty small lists, with Price Cards showing the cost of any advertisement from one line to one column.

A list of the leading Daily Papers in all the large towns and cities of the United States and Canada.

A list of Two Hundred leading Weekly and Monthly publications, with estimates showing the cost of an advertisement of from five to twenty five lines, from one week to two months.

A list of prominent Advertisers who have patronized this Advertising Agency, and letters showing the opinions of such men concerning the advantages it offers.

Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Advertising Agents, my22 tfa 40 Park Row, New York

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. my22 1fa

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, my22 1fm Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address SPIRIT PICTURE CO., my22 tfa 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.,) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Advertising Agents, my15 tfa 40 Park Row, New York.

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO., my15 tfa Boston, Mass. or St. Louis, Mo

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS A year. Address FOX & CO., my15 1fa Saco, Maine.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

That the American Watch is superior in accuracy as a time keeper, and in substantial value, to its imported rivals, is now generally conceded by the intelligent. It is so made as to render imperfection a physical impossibility.

The question now is, "Which is the best American Watch?" Then follows, "Which thoroughly good Watch is really the cheapest?" We answer:

The Waltham Watches have stood the test of time. Waltham is the original seat of American watch-making. The idea of making our own watches, and making each piece of machinery specially adapted thereto, so that a piece lost or broken may surely be replaced by a similar piece from any other watch of its class, or one ordered from the manufactory on purpose, originated here; and here it has been carried to perfection. Every year since the start has witnessed improvements in machinery, processes, and workmanship, until watches are now made at Waltham as cheaply and as excellently as anywhere on earth, as the vast and ever-widening demand for them abundantly proves.

The success of the American Watch has impelled several attempts at rivalry, which we are nowise inclined to disparage. All of these are hopeful, and will doubtless improve with experience and the lapse of time. But buyers must feel greater confidence in the time keeping of a watch from this pioneer concern than in one manufactured by any of its young rivals. If any do not, we urge them to inquire of their friends who have bought and carried the American Watch. Every purchaser may have a guarantee, if he will, that this Watch shall give entire satisfaction.

So constant and signal have been the improvements in machinery at the Waltham manufactory that the Company have not only been enabled to make better and better Watches, but they now sell them for fewer dollars in greenbacks than they cost in gold before the war.—But they wish no one to buy their Watches because of their cheapness. They commend them as better time-keepers than any other which are or can be sold at prices so moderate. They ask purchasers not to be persuaded by importunate dealers, who may be governed by considerations of profit into buying watches of doubtful accuracy, when, by buying a Waltham they may be sure of getting a first rate time-keeper at a moderate price.

An illustrated description of the different styles of Watches now manufactured by the Company sent to any address on application

No watches retailed by the Company.

ROBBINS & APPLETON, General Agents, my15 3mp 182 Broadway, N. Y.

CABINET ORGANS.

QUALITY BEST.—PRICES LOWEST.

1. That the quality of the MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS is the very best is not questioned by unprejudiced and well-informed persons.—These Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest premiums at Industrial Exhibitions to the number of seventy five, including the First Class Medal at the Paris Exposition. They are recommended as the standard of excellence, the best, by several hundred of the most eminent musicians in America and Europe, whose testimony is printed, and will be sent to any one desiring it.

2. It is the fixed policy of the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company to sell their Organs always at the least remunerative profit. They are now very much the largest manufacturers of these instruments in the world. With increase of business they have been able to make corresponding increase and improvement in machinery and facilities for manufacture, by means of which they are now producing yet more perfect work than ever before, and this at increased economy in cost. Accordingly they are now selling the best Organs they have ever made at prices which are as low, or even less than would be the cost of manufacture of inferior instruments without the advantage of such facilities.

Four-octave Organs, $50 each. Five-octave Organs, with Knee Swell, $100. Five-octave Double Reed Organs, with five stops, Tremulant and Knee Swell, $125. The same, six stops, with addition of one octave of Sub bass, connected with the Manuals, $150. The same, seven stops, with Sub bass and Octave Coupler (each key commands four separate reeds, giving this style nearly twice the power of a Double Reed Organ, with much greater variety,) $175. Five-octave Double Reed Cabinet Organ, with five stops, Automatic Swell and Improved Vox Humana, the finest instrument of its size which can be made, $170. Many other styles at proportionate prices up to $1,000 each.

Lowest prices printed, invariable, and alike to all.

Circulars, with full particulars as to styles, prices, peculiarities of construction, etc., sent free to every applicant. Address the MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., my15 4tp 154 Tremont street, Boston; 596 Broadway, New York.

"A WORD TO HORSEMEN."

Dr. TOBIAS' celebrated VENETIAN HORSE LINIMENT has been tested by the first Horsemen in this country, and proved to be superior to any other. The late Hiram Woodruff, of "trotting fame," was never without a bottle in his stable. It is also used by Colonel Bush, of the Jerome Park Course, at Fordham, New York, who has over twenty running horses under his care, among which rank some of the finest stock in America. It is warranted to cure Lameness, Sprains, Scratches, Bruises, Galls, Cuts, Wind Galls, Colic, Sore Throat, Nail in the Foot, and Over-heating, when used according to the directions.

All who own or employ Horses are assured that this Liniment will do all, if not more, in curing the above named complaints. No Horse need die of Colic, if, when first taken, the Liniment is used according to the directions. Always have a bottle in your stable.

Price, in pint bottles, $1. The genuine is signed S. I. Tobias on the outside wrapper.

For sale by the Druggists, Saddlers and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. my15 5tp

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address W. A. HENDERSON & CO., my1 1fa Cleveland, Ohio.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 25 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, imab.	25 00
Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo.	2 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	21 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6.50 each	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo.	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist of Methodism, 3 vols	6 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext.	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address ROBT. J. HARP, Agent, 112 Camp street, my15 New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO., 37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $2,000,000, Gold
Surplus, - - 1,200,000, Gold

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, Nevada.
Baby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER, BANKERS, And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. ap10 3mp

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO., Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. my15 tfa

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE, my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house:

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 58 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON, W. H. DAMERON. je23 1y

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE ap15 1y New Orleans.

F. HATHORN, Late of Shropshire & Hathorn. ALF. H. PIERSON.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANT

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street, oct7 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA

FOR SAMPLE STOCKING.—Samples and circulars of Lamb's Family Knitting Machine, and Chicopee Sewing Machine Address, enclosing red stamp, JAMES D. ORNE, my8 tfa General Agent, 922 Chestnut st., Philada., Pa.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address DR. S. S. FITCH, mh13 9mp 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mp Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER, PLANT Syringe, Window Washer and Garden Engine for $5. Send stamp for circulars to N. E. P. PUMP CO., my8 tfa Danvers, Mass.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO CO., New York. ap10 tfa

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

CRADLE HYMN.

BY ISAAC WATTS.

Hush! my dear; lie still and slumber;
Holy angels guard thy bed!
Heavenly blessings without number
Gently falling on thy head.

Sleep, my babe; thy food and raiment,
House and home thy friends provide;
All without thy care or payment,
All thy wants are well supplied.

How much better thou'rt attended
Than the Son of God could be,
When from heaven He descended,
And became a child like thee!

Soft and easy is thy cradle;
Coarse and hard the Saviour lay,
When His birth-place was a stable,
And His softest bed was hay.

Blessed babe! what glorious features,
Spotless fair, divinely bright!
Must He dwell with brutal creatures?
How could angels bear the sight?

Was there nothing but a manger
Cursed sinners could afford
To receive the heavenly stranger?
Did they thus affront their Lord?

Soft, my child; I did not chide thee,
Though my song might sound too hard;
'Tis thy mother sits beside thee,
And her arms shall be thy guard.

Yet to read the shameful story,
How the Jews abused their King,
How they served the Lord of Glory,
Makes me angry while I sing.

See the kinder shepherds round him,
Telling wonders from the sky!
Where they sought Him, there they found Him,
With His Virgin Mother by.

See the lovely babe a-dressing!
Lovely infant, how He smiled!
When He wept, the mother's blessing
Soothed and hushed the holy child.

Lo! He slumbers in His manger,
Where the horned oxen fed;
Peace, my darling, here's no danger,
Here's no ox a-near thy bed.

'Twas to save thee, child, from dying,
Save my dear from burning flame,
Bitter groans and endless crying,
That thy blest Redeemer came.

Mayst thou live to know and fear Him,
Trust and love Him all thy days;
Then go dwell forever near Him,
See His face, and sing His praise!

I could give a hundred kisses,
Hoping what I most desire;
Not a mother's fondest wishes
Can to greater joys aspire.

STORIES ABOUT ELEPHANTS.

An interesting account is given us of the effect of training the elephant. These animals are stalled at the foot of some large tree, which shelters them during the day from the extreme heat of the sun. They stand under this tree, and to it they are chained by their hind legs.

Early in the morning the keeper makes his appearance from his hovel, and throws the keys down to the elephants, who immediately unlock the padlocks of the chains, loose themselves, and, says the narrator, "in the politest manner return the keys to the keeper." They then proceed with him to the nearest forest, and as soon as they arrive there, begin breaking down the branches of the trees, choosing those that are most agreeable to their taste, and arranging them in two large fagots. When they have collected as much as they think they require, they make withes and bind up their two fagots, and then twist another to connect the two, so that they may hang over their backs one on each side; and having thus made their provisions they return home. The keeper may or may not be present during that time; all depends on whether the elephants are well trained, or have been long in servitude. On their return, the elephants pass the chains round their legs, lock the padlock, and present the key as before.

When a party of elephants have gathered in a neighboring forest the branches of trees they require, and have returned to the tree where they are accustomed to find a shade, they amuse themselves with their repast, eating all the leaves and tender shoots, and rejecting the rest. When one of them has eaten enough, he usually chooses a long bough, and pulling off all the side branches, leaves a bush at the end, forming a sort of whisk, to keep off the flies and musketoes, which get into the cracks and crannies of the elephant's thick hide. Sometimes he will put the end of his trunk down in the dust, draw up as much of it as he can, and turning his trunk over his head, pour it out over his skin, powdering and filling up these. This being done, he will take the long branch already described, and amuse himself by flapping it right and left, and in all directions about his body, wherever the insects may settle.

In this way an elephant was one day employed, when the keeper brought a little black child and laid it down before the animal, saying in Hindostanee, "Watch it," and then walked away into the town. The elephant did not object to this interruption, but at once broke off the larger part of the bough, so as to make a smaller and more convenient whisk, and directed his whole attention to the child. Gently did he fan the little creature, driving off every musketo that approached, for upward of two hours, until the keeper returned.

Of all the stories I have ever read of elephants, I well remember one of ill-temper. An army in India was ordered to march, and the elephants were called forth to carry the tents. One of them submitted for a time, and, at length, he uttered his complaints, but they were not regarded, and another tent was put upon him. He now became sulky, and when ordered to go on he did so; but in what way? He threw his trunk in the air, shrieked his indignation, and set off at a trot, which was about equal in speed to a horse's gallop, knocking down all that came in his way, and producing the greatest confusion.

I have often thought of this elephant when I have seen a child ponting and crying as it proceeded to do what it was told, or knocking down anything that was near. O, what a sad sight is a cross-grained, ill-tempered, passionate child.

An elephant is, after all, an irrational creature; we may make, therefore, some excuse for a fit of disobedience; but none can be made for a child in a pet. Have you ever been so? Ask God to help you so to watch your spirit that you may never be ill-tempered again.

THE SACK OF PEARLS.—A traveler missed his way and lost himself in a desert. Nearly famished with hunger and thirst, he reached at length a shady palm tree and a fresh fountain. Near the fountain he found a small bag lying on the ground. "Thanks to God!" said the man, as he lifted the little bag, "these are perhaps peas, which will keep me from starving." Eagerly he opened the bag and said, "Alas! alas! they are only pearls!"

"Worth more than gold or pearls, you see,
The little loaf that feedeth thee!"

Though he had now a bag of pearls worth several thousand pounds, he was still in danger of starvation. But he prayed earnestly to God for help, and presently there came, hastily riding on his camel, a Moor, who had lost the bag of pearls. He had compassion on the starving man, gave him bread and refreshing fruit, and took him along on his camel.

"Behold!" said the Moor, "how wonderfully God disposes all things! I regarded it as a misfortune to have lost the pearls, but God permitted it that I might return again and save a life!"

"By little things the Almighty saves
His people from untimely graves."

—Children's Magazine.

FENELON AND A PEASANT.—After a certain battle in France, Archbishop Fenelon received, in his palace at Cambray, all the wounded officers and soldiers, as well as the poor people of the country round. He had them taken care of, and fed at his own expense.

As he was walking in the midst of them, he saw a young peasant who ate nothing, and who appeared in the utmost affliction. Fenelon went and sat down by him, and, trying to encourage him, told him that the next day a great body of troops was expected; that they would drive the enemy entirely away, and that he would soon be able to return to his village.

"I shall never find my cow there," answered the peasant; "the poor animal supplied me with plenty of milk, and supported my father, my wife, and my children."

Fenelon then promised to give him another cow; but, after having made useless efforts to console him, he took an exact description of the cottage where he dwelt, at a place one league from Cambray. He set out himself at ten o'clock at night, with his pass and a single domestic, repaired to the village, brought back the cow with him in the middle of the night, and immediately made the poor peasant happy by informing him of it.—Children's Magazine.

A BEAUTIFUL CUSTOM.—In the mountains of Tyrol it is the custom of the women and children to come out, when it is bedtime, and sing their national songs until they hear their husbands, fathers and brothers answer them from the hills on their return home.

On the shores of the Adriatic the wives of the fishermen come down about sunset and sing a melody. After singing the first stanza, they listen awhile for the answering strain from off the water, and continue to sing and listen till the well known voices come borne on the tide, telling that the loved ones are almost home. How sweet to the weary fisherman, as the shadows gather around him, must be the songs of the loved ones at home, who sing to cheer him; and how they strengthen and tighten the bonds that bind together those humble dwellings by the sea! Truly, it is among the lowly in this world that we find some of the most beautiful customs in practice.—Children's Magazine.

SCIENTIFIC.

The Velocity of Insects' Wings During Flight.

The Comptes Rendus contains an interesting article, by E. J. Marey, containing the results of an attempt to submit to strict experiment the study of those motions which the eye cannot follow, and the form of which cannot, under ordinary circumstances, be discussed, on account of their extreme rapidity. The points to be determined, and the questions to be answered, were:

What is the frequency of the movements of insects' wings? What are the different positions which the wing takes in the different phases of each of its revolutions? By what mechanism does the wing, taking the air for its fulcrum, produce the locomotion of insects?

The results attained have a direct bearing upon the construction of flying machines, and will be perused with interest by aeronauts and those aspiring to be aeronants.

Physiologists have attempted to determine the frequency of the movements of the wing, from the sound produced by the insect during flight. They have been compelled to admit very high figures; six hundred vibrations a second, for the common fly; yet that number must be tripled in cases of very rapid flight. Other insects must produce a far greater number of beats. Naturalists, nevertheless, have been little agreed upon the cause which produces the sound we hear during the flight of insects. Some authors think the sound independent of the wing movements, produced by a special humming apparatus; it is due, according to others, to the alternate movements of the air, in escaping and entering the tracheal tubes.

In face of these discordances, the author sought for a mode of exhibiting, in an unmistakable manner, each of the beats of the wing of an insect, and the graphic method answers very well for determining their frequency.

He grasped, with a fine pair of nippers, the hind part of the abdomen of an insect, and when it sought to fly, directed one of its wings in such a way that it rubbed by its point against the surface of a smoked cylinder, which revolved with a known velocity. The wing, at each of these revolutions, carried away a little of the black of the smoke which covered the cylinder, and left a trace of its passage. This experiment gives a diagram exhibiting the varied forms that are periodically reproduced with the same characteristics, and, consequently, correspond to one revolution of the wing. By means of a chronographic diapason, the exact number of the revolutions of the wing which are effected in a second were precisely determined. That which he used gave a graphic delineation of five hundred simple vibrations per second.

A continual rubbing of the wing on the cylinder presents a resistance to this organ, which retards its frequency; so in order to have the nearest approach to the truth, those drawings were selected in which the contact of the wing with the cylinder was at a minimum, so that the diagrams were reduced to a series of points.

The frequency of the movements diminishes, also, when the wing is loaded with a little weight. It diminishes equally by fatigue, and the action of cold. Everything occurs in this case, as in the rhythmic movements of the muscular system in different animals. Under equally favorable conditions for observation, the frequency of the beats which different species of insects produce, brings before us curious results. The numbers found for each second are as follows:

Common fly, 330; drone, 240; bee, 190; wasp, 110; hawkmoth, 72; dragon fly, 28; cabbage butterfly, 9.

A more complete study of a great number of well-determined species would, doubtless, furnish much higher figures as the maximum frequency.

It should be added that the wing movements, in this sort of captivity, on account of the greater resistance, will be reduced in number. The above figures must, therefore, be below those representing vibrations in a free flight.

The graphic method does not answer very well to determine the course of the wing at each of its revolutions. The tracings which the point of the wing of an insect describes in space are inscribed on the surface of an ideal sphere, which has for its radius the length of the wing, and for its centre the point at which this organ is implanted in the thorax of the insect. A spherical surface of this nature could only be tangential at one point to the surface of the registering cylinder, and every fuller contact risks deforming the drawing more or less, in reproducing the curvature of the wing. To obtain an exact notion of the course of the wing in space, Wheatstone's optical method was employed. It is well known that this celebrated English physicist terminates vibrating rods with bright metallic balls, whose gleam leaves upon the retina persistent impressions of the periodical movements they execute.

By fixing with varnish a little piece of gold leaf to the end of an insect's wing, and placing the animal in a ray of sunlight, a bright luminous image was obtained in the form of the figure 8, which indicates the different points in space traversed at each revolution, by the gilt spot.

Among different sorts of insects the experiments almost always met with the same form.

Resuming then the graphic method to verify this result, he succeeded in obtaining successively portions of the drawing, in some cases giving the upper loop of the 8, in others the lower, and in others the double point, where is the intersection of the two halves of the 8.

By way of further confirmation, he sought to register the contact of the wing with the cylinder, not only by its point, but by its anterior margin. The theory anticipates that under these conditions the figure 8 ought to disappear, and in its place one should obtain a double contact of the wing with the cylinder. One of these contacts took place at the instant the upper loop of the 8 was formed, and at the point where this loop presents its convexity to the cylinder. The other contact took place where the lower loop was formed under the same conditions.

The author concludes that this complex movement does not result from a series of periodic muscular acts executed by the insect, acts which would produce in one case a simple oscillation in a vertical direction, while in the horizontal direction, other muscles would produce, at the same time, two oscillations. In reality, the insect only executes one movement of lowering the wing, to which succeeds a movement of elevation, and if in consequence of these two contrary movements, the wing is not limited to oscillate in one plane, this results from the resistance of the air, which imposes upon the wing a deviation in each half of its course.—Scientific American.

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE EFFECT OF CHARCOAL ON FLOWERS.—A correspondent of the Revue Horticole says that not long ago he made a bargain for a rosebush of magnificent growth and full of buds. He waited for them to blow, and expected roses worthy of such a noble plant and of the praises bestowed upon it by the vender; but when it bloomed all his hopes were blasted. The flowers were of a faded hue and he discovered that he had only a middling multiflora, stale-colored enough. He therefore resolved to sacrifice it to some experiments which he had in view. His attention had been directed to the effects of charcoal as stated in some English publications. He then covered the earth in the pot, in which the rosebush was, about half an inch deep with pulverized charcoal. Some days after he was astonished to see the roses, which bloomed of as fine a lively rose color as he could wish. He determined to repeat the experiment, and therefore when the rosebush had done flowering he took off the charcoal and put fresh earth about the roots and waited for the next spring impatiently to see the result of this experiment. When it bloomed the roses were, as at first, pale and discolored, but by applying the charcoal as before, they soon assumed their rosy red color. He then tried the powdered charcoal in large quantities upon petunias, and found that both the white and violet colored flowers were equally sensitive to its action. It always gave great vigor to the red or violet colors of the flowers, and the white petunias became veined with red or violet tints; the violets became covered with irregular spots of a bluish or almost black tint. Many persons who admired them thought they were choice new varieties from the seed. Yellow flowers appear to be insensible to the influence of charcoal.

A GOOD LAW.—We perceive that during its late session the General Assembly of Pennsylvania passed a law imposing a penalty of $25 on any one killing an insectivorous bird, classing as such robbins, martins, swallows, blue birds, woodpeckers, and all the small birds generally. This is a wise law, and if properly enforced will be of much greater benefit to farmers, gardeners, and fruit growers than many persons unacquainted with the real habits of these beautiful little creatures would suppose, for they are the best preventive yet found against the destruction of vegetables and fruits by insects, and should therefore receive a kindly welcome and protection at every country or suburban homestead, instead of being made the victims of wretched pot-hunters for city markets, or thoughtless boys. The man who would deliberately shoot a blue bird, or a red bird, not to speak of the graceful swallow, or the merry martin, ought to be peppered himself with mustard seed shot for every such wanton outrage. We saw two persons on the streets some days ago, one with a string of martins and the other with one of blue birds, and thought that both of them deserved a good whipping.—Picayune.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE
OF THE
CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years; and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
97 and 99 Julia street.
det2 6m

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Dealers in all descriptions of
MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,
New Orleans, Louisiana;

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Smut Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 ty No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see.
jn16 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....,CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

In existence thirty years.
del2 6m

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens FEBRUARY 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00

For circular address
ja2 1m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION,

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton, W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler, J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb, A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio, Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick, Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney, W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks, C. E. Girardey,
Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss, Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith, Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier, Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,
OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.
ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT
LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION
OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre, W. S. Monnt,
John Davidson, L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier, William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks, William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt, T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper, Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike, Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard, John C. Sinnott,
J. Caulfield, C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith, W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
R. W. YOUNG, Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER, Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST. (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments.

oct17 1y

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Rosborough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

---

A. EYRICH,

(Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL

AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn-Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
Manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and
Heating Stoves of all kinds.
fe13 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

F. M. ECKFORD, New Orleans. GEO. ALPH. CAGE, Columbus, Miss.

ECKFORD & CAGE,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 42 Union street, New Orleans.
oct10 3m

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER,

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
New Orleans, La.
nov1

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.:—I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS—MUNN & CO. EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above.
my1 tfs

$10.—INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY household. Perfectly wonderful. Everybody buys at first sight. Agents making fortunes. Illustrated circulars free. Address

APEX S. M. CO.,
my8 tfs 208 Broadway, New York.

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Deotal Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

---

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,

AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, - - - $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, - - - 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address

REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Briniey Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hull's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation Is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)..	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two.....	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three.....	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four.....	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

Rev. J. O. KEENEN, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

CHURCH OF THE STRANGERS, New York.—Visitors to the city of New York are informed that they will find divine service every Sunday, in the large Chapel of the University, Washington Square, at ten and a half A. M. and at seven and a half P. M. The evening service in summer is at eight o'clock. Waverley Place, immediately north of the New York Hotel, out of Broadway, runs west to Washington Square, on the east side of which is the University. The entrance to the church is the main door of the University. University Place cars run from the door of the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the door of the church. From the St. Nicholas and Metropolitan, take the cars corner of Broadway and Broome, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. At the Astor House take University Place cars, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. Strangers will find cordial welcome and polite attention.

The pastor is Rev. Dr. DEEMS, who devotes himself to the spiritual interests of strangers. If any be sick, let them address him a note by mail, as "Pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York," and it will reach him. The ladies who compose the "Society of the Sisters of the Stranger" procure medical, legal and spiritual help for strangers in perplexity, distress or sickness. Address "Sisters of the Stranger," care Rev. Dr. Deems, New York.

If you are coming to New York soon, cut this out and paste it in your memorandum book.
mar6 2m o

THE THIRTY FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A B Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument, $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
sep3 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, Louisiana, was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty-seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENEFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.
ap22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

---

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PAPER WAREHOUSE,

137.....Poydras street.....137

Between Camp and St. Charles streets,
New Orleans.

Agent for the sale of R. Hoe & Co.'s Printing Presses and James Conner's Sons Type.
no7 3m

JAMES MACLENNAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY, ETC.,

Greenville, Mississippi.

Refers to Governor B. G. Humphreys, and many others in Mississippi, and to R. L. Walker, 190 Common street, Rev. J. C. Keener, D. D., and Rev. J. B. Walker, D. D., 112 Camp street, New Orleans, La. oct31 3m

---

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term.. ....$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term..... 30 00
Contingent fee, per term..... 2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and Attorneys.

For further information apply for circular to

O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Sec'y Secretary of Faculty.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,

No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july6 1y

J. H. MASSEY,

Formerly of the firm of J. H. Massey & Co., having formed business relations with

McSTEA & VALUE,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN DRY GOODS,

98.....Canal Street.....98

will be pleased there to receive his old friends and acquaintances. He is satisfied he can offer such inducements as will be satisfactory to all wishing to make investments in his line.

Orders addressed to him from parties not wishing to visit the city will receive his personal attention. oct17 3m

---

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug5 6m

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages.....	$215 00
Music.....	50 00
French or one Modern Language.....	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address

WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE. SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $80,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869,

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has continued quiet since our last issue, with only a limited movement in the wholesale trade. Sugar has been in moderate request, without any change in prices, and the sales of molasses have been confined to a few trifling lots at previous rates. Operations in Western produce have been on a moderate scale, there being no stocks to afford any scope to buyers for shipment. Prices, however, have been firm, and corn, in particular, in consequence of scant supplies, has sold at higher figures. Provisions generally have been without much animation, but there has been more done in lard, the sales of which have been to a moderate extent at steady prices. There have been no further barge arrivals from above, and the moderate supply of grain brought down last week was all promptly disposed of, in part by shipment to New York, and the rest by sales from the levee.

Our accounts from the country are of a conflicting tenor. In some localities the crops are promising and the negro laborers working satisfactorily, but in most others we receive complaints of ungenial weather, excessive rains, and a bad stand. In others the lands have been submerged by crevasse water, and the prospect is gloomy in the extreme. On the whole, the aspect is discouraging. The cotton crop will inevitably be late, and with the danger of future casualties and contingencies, and the probability of a limited picking season, can hardly fail to be short in proportion to the acreage planted. These are moderate views compared with the gloomy statements and opinions of some in our cotton circles.

The river has fallen one inch since our last report, and is now three inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 14th instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi	[illegible]
Mobile	98
Florida	18
Texas	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

On Saturday the movement commenced with very little spirit, and continued languid throughout the day, buyers claiming further concessions, which most factors refused, and the sales were consequently confined to 800 bales, at rather weaker prices, but without any quotable reduction. In some cases, however, factors accepted offers which they had previously refused. On Monday the advance in gold and foreign exchange was calculated to impart an active stimulus to the demand, but there being no report from Liverpool, where business was suspended from its being a holiday, and buyers refusing to pay any higher prices, factors who were anxious to realize were compelled to accept Saturday's figures. In fact in some cases the lower grades were sold at still easier rates. The business, at the same time, although larger than on Saturday, was of only moderate extent, not exceeding 1,800 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with only a moderate inquiry, and continued quiet throughout the day, the sales amounting to 1,300 bales, and prices showing no quotable change. If anything, the lower grades were easier, factors evincing a disposition to meet the demand more freely; but, notwithstanding a further advance of ¼ per cent. in foreign exchange, the business was confined to a very few buyers. The better qualities were firm at previous rates.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 3,900 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 768,600 bales, against 576,607 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 123,491 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 8,718 bales to France, and a decrease of 298,827 to Great Britain, and of 5,322 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary	24 to 25
Good ordinary	27 to 27½
Low middling	27½ to 27¾
Middling	28¼ to 28½
Strict middling	28¾ to 29

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales	1,300
Arrived past three days	5,745
Arrived previously	770,329—776,074
	777,374
Exported past three days	8,745
Exported previously	735,529—744,274
Stock on hand and on shipboard	33,100

Sugar.—The movement in sugar has been on a moderate scale, but prices have been maintained, the grades above fair being most in request.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, May 18, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head	$45 to 55
Texas cattle, second qual, per head	40 to 45
Texas cattle, third qual, per head	35 to 40
Hogs, per lb gross	8 to 9c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$6 to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head	2½ to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to 2
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	6 to 10
Calves, per head	6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 00	10 00
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₱ yard
Kentucky
East India	21½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs	1 25
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50
Crackers	8 00
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fine	65 00	70 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow
Adamantine	17	22
Star	16½	22
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton		15 50
Anthracite ₱ ton	9 50	10 00
Western, ₱ barrel		50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	11	13½
Havana
Java
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton		15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb	37	38
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow Metal	29	31
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23	23½
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	3 50	4 00
Dyes, ₱ lb.:
Logwood, Campy	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	6
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	21
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western		25
Feathers, ₱ lb	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₱ box	1 70
Herrings	75
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl		25 00
No. 2		22 50
No. 3		16 50
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	5 25	5 37½
Extra	5 50	11 00
Fine	4 62½
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples
Currants, Zante	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell	25
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
Layer		3 50
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
Malaga ₱ box
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000
Sicily ₱ box
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 10	2 40
Canada	2 40	2 60
Oats	73
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	77	79
Beans, ₱ bbl	9 00	13 00
Hops, ₱ lb	12	13
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	27 00	28 00
Northern	25 00
Louisiana
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	8	12
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	18
Pelts ₱ piece
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6¼	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₱ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses ₱ gallon:
Louisiana	35	62½
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	60	60
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	2	3½
Black do	5	6
Select, water rotted
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb	4 90	5 00
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	2 00	4 00
Pitch	2 50	3 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 25
No. 2	2 25
No. 3
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon	45
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 40	1 45
Coal Oil	37	39
in cases	45	50
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₱ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton
Cotton Seed	35 00	40 00
Meal
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
Western	19 00	20 00
North half bbl
Dried, ₱ lb
Tongues ₱ doz
Pork, Mess	32 00	32 25
Prime Mess	28 00
Hog, round, ₱ lb		13
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	17½	18
Do., canvassed	19	21
Sides	17½	17½
Shoulders	13½
Green Shoulders		12½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	19
In kegs	19	19½
Fair, in tierces		17
Butter, Northern	15	50
Western	25	42½
Cheese, American	20	23
P tatoes, ₱ bbl	1 25	1 50
Onions
Green Apples
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	5½	6½
India
Carolina	10	10½
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	25
Crude
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store	2 25	2 30
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
Turk's Island, ₱ bushel
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	8	12
Southern	6	10½
Castile	15	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	8	14½
Havana, White	13½	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	9	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refuse	7	10
Common Refuse	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb
Bailing	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	35	40
Burry	10	18
Louisiana, Native	22	26
Texas, (Gal) Mestiza	25	27

SPECIAL NOTICES.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

NOTICE.

Autaugaville, Ala., April 29, 1869.

The ministers and delegates to the district meeting to be held for the Wetumpka district will report at the store of H. L. Gorson & Co., and any coming by the river will land at Vernon, and conveyance will be furnished to Autaugaville.

Wm. A. Edwards, Pastor.

PENSACOLA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Pensacola district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Milton, Florida, June 3-6.

A full attendance is earnestly desired, and the official members are referred to the constitution in the printed minutes of our last session for an explanation of their duties.

Members, on arriving at Milton, will report at the Eagle hotel. Provision for all. Bishop Andrews will preside.

J. A. Parker, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

New Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers,	May	9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.		10
German churches: at Craps st		16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st		21
Jefferson City		23
Plaquemine		30
Felicity street	June	6
Thibodeaux		13
Carondelet street		27
Baton Rouge	July	18
Moreau street		25

J. C. Keener, P. E.

Union Springs Dist., Montgomery Conf.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Troy, at Bethel	Apr.	3, 4
Brundidge, at Williams'		10, 11
Pine Level, at Orion		17, 18
Union Springs		24, 25
Rocky Mount, at Athens	May	1, 2
Mt. Hilliard, at Mt. Hilliard		8, 9
Line Creek, at Line Creek		15, 16
Fort Deposit, at Letohatchie		22, 23
Mount Ida, at Emmaus		27, 28
South Butler, at Ebenezer		29, 30
Greenville circuit, at Union	June	4, 5
Greenville station		6, 7
Sandy Ridge, at Spring Hill		9, 10
Millville, at Rogers' chapel		12, 13
Elba, at Elba		19, 20

J. W. Shores, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit	Apr.	17, 18
Monroe circuit		24, 25
Vernon circuit	May	1, 2
Farmersville circuit		15, 16
Homer circuit		22, 23
Haynesville circuit		29, 30
Bossier circuit	June	5, 6
Minden circuit		12, 13
Sparta circuit		19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit		26, 27

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson	Mar.	30
Wilkinson	Apr.	1
Percy's Creek	May	15, 16
Woodville		17
Buffalo		18
Tunica		19
St. Helena		22, 23
Amite		25
Mendville	June	9
Liberty		12, 13

Address, Liberty, Mississippi.

Jas. A Godfrey, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n.	Mar.	27, 28
Mobile, Frank in street	Apr.	3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street		10, 11
Whistler		17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne		24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa	May	1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion		8, 9
W Pascagoula at Ocean Spg's		15, 16
Cottage Hill at Allen's	June	5, 6
St. Stephens at St. Stephen's		12, 13

Jas. A. Heard, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist., La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carroll circuit	May	1, 2
Delhi and Floyd circuit, at Hurricane		8, 9
Sicily Island		15, 16
Waterproof		22, 23
Winsborough circuit		29, 30
Bastrop and Oak Ridge	June	5, 6
Lynd Grove circuit		12, 13

W. G. McGaughey, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia	Apr.	17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville		24, 25
Calcasieu	May	1, 2
Bellevue		8, 9
Bayou Mallet		15, 16
Vermilionville		21, 22
Opelousas		29, 30
Grand Chenière	June	5, 6
Washington		12, 13
Paquemine Bend		19, 20

J. D. Adams, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo circuit, Concord	Apr.	17, 18
Montevallo station		24, 25
Arbacoochee ct., Chulafinee	May	1, 2
Lineville circuit, Lineville		5, 6
Fredonia ct., Chapel Hill		8, 9
Lafayette circuit, Lafayette		11, 12
Dadeville circuit, Camp Hill		15, 16
Pinckneyville ct., Emmuckfaw		19, 20
Marble Val. ct., County Line		22, 23
Chandler Spring ct., Chandler Spring		29, 30

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion	Apr.	10, 11
Macon station		17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill	May	1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville		8, 9
Cuckesville, at Hebron		15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew		22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville	June	5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn		12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb		26, 27

S. H. Cox, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST NOW MADE.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE PIANOS OF BUNHAM & SONS, MARSCHALL & MITTAUER, AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $ 150 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every instance guaranteed, or the money refunded. no11 1y

TO THE WORKING CLASS.

I AM NOW PREPARED TO FURnish all classes with constant employment at their homes, the whole of the time, or for the spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Fifty cents to $5 per evening is easily earned by persons of either sex, and the boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. Great inducements are offered those who will devote their whole time to the business; and, that every person who sees this notice may send me their address and test the business for themselves, I make the following unparalleled offer: To all who are not well satisfied with the business I will send $1 to pay for the trouble of writing me. Full particulars, directions, &c., sent free. Sample sent by mail for ten cents. Address E. C. ALLEN, Augusta, Me. m9d13 1fs

CONSTITUTION WATER IS A certain cure for Diabetes, and all diseases of the Kidneys.

For sale by all Druggists. fe20 3mr

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 4 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Charles street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no11 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,
je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs. YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year, and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months	$150 00
Fuel	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department	40 00
Music	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

H. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
de12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 161 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STEINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.
oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

71.....Camp street.....71

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and prices;

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflammable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y No. 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—251 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street.
o'11 7 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 11th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WHITE, President,
de12 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty-eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. P. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address no14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct5 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom House Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BIOUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sep

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 19. WHOLE NUMBER 735.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Important intelligence is expected from Cuba during the coming ten days. Government detectives report from various ports along the coast, movements of small, suspicious looking crafts, and there is no doubt that expeditions are still being fitted out, and that arms and munitions of war are still being transmitted from the United States to the Cubans and Spaniards too.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Ex-Mayor Opdyke, of New York, and Boutwell, had a consultation to-day. Opdyke presented no arguments or protest against Boutwell's proposed policy. Boutwell and Opdyke, after consultation, seem to be in accord regarding the proper immediate future financial course. After the interview Boutwell expressed his determination to persist in selling two millions of gold and purchasing and placing in the sinking fund a million in bonds weekly until the bonds so purchased and placed reach twenty-six millions. This course will involve the sale of nearly sixty millions of gold.

During the present month the accumulation of gold in the treasury reaches to between five and six millions

Attorney General Hoar decides, regarding New York legislation, enabling national to become State banks, that it is not within the power of the Legislature of New York to alter, modify, add to, or diminish the powers, duties, or liabilities created in or conferred upon a banking association, established under an act of Congress.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

The reign of the Metropolitan police has been inaugurated in Jefferson City with acts of high handed brutality, and outrages upon the rights and liberties of respectable and innocent citizens.

Just after the terrible melee which occurred in the market house yesterday about half past nine o'clock, every species of indignity was offered to those residents who were found upon the streets.

The Catholic church was forcibly entered by an armed band of policemen and searched for suspicious characters, as was also the residence of the brother, who was told that if he did not open his door it would be broken down.

About three o'clock, as General Blanchard, an old resident of Jefferson City, was sitting at dinner, he was told that his young nephew had been arrested while going home in a car and taken to jail. He immediately rose and proceeded toward the jail to endeavor to effect his release.

While passing the market place one of four policemen standing on a corner said to him, tauntingly, "Jefferson City is not showing much fight to-day."

He replied that the people had very little chance, when the four men seized him, two on either side, and dragged him to prison, where, to use the expression of our informant—one of the most estimable citizens of Jefferson City—"he was beaten like a dog, and such epithets as 'rebel' and 'old scoundrel' applied to him." The general, who is far advanced in years, and somewhat feeble, declares he thought they intended to kill him. Mrs. Blanchard, procuring a number of her neighbors, on hearing of the fact, went to the jail, and, after much difficulty, succeeded in getting her husband out.

It is contended by many of our best lawyers that the occupation of Jefferson City yesterday by Governor Warmoth and Mower was simply a military raid, without authority of law, and that the Supreme Court has as yet made no decision which renders it incumbent upon the citizens of Jefferson City to accept the rule of the Metropolitan police.

They assert that the case is still in the courts, and that Governor Warmoth has exercised a grave responsibility in anticipating the decision and in calling upon the military forces of the government to foist upon an unwilling people a police system which ensures safety to none but his political friends, and will entail a burdensome tax upon the parish.—Picayune, May 20.

OLD SCHOOL PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The Old School Presbyterian Assembly reconvened this morning. After the usual devotional exercises the records of several additional synods were reported present, and several committees were allowed to retire for consultation. The reception of delegates from other bodies and hearing reports from committees to examine synodical records were adopted as the order for Monday.

Rev. Mr. Bur offered a resolution as follows:

WHEREAS, It is well known that unscriptural views of the marriage relations are becoming prevalent in some parts of our land, so that its obligations are disregarded by many separations of husband and wife, and divorces for slight and unwarrantable reasons are becoming more frequent every year; and

WHEREAS, The horrible crime of infanticide is also on the increase; and

WHEREAS, The evils which these errors and crimes have already brought upon the church and country, and the worse evils which they threaten in the future, make it imperative that the whole power of the ministry and church of Jesus Christ should be put forth in maintenance of truth and virtue in regard to these things; therefore,

Resolved, That we urge upon the ministers of our church the duty of giving instructions to the people of their respective charges as to the scriptural doctrine concerning the marriage relation, and that we warn them against joining in wedlock any who have been divorced upon other than scriptural grounds; and we also exhort church sessions to the exercise of due discipline in the cases of those members who may be guilty of violating the laws of the church in this particular.

Resolved, That we regard the destruction by parents of their own offspring, before birth, as a crime against God and against nature, and that as there are many influences at work in public and in secret to corrupt the minds of people until the frequency of such murders is no longer sought to be concealed, we hereby warn those who are guilty of these crimes that they cannot inherit eternal life, and that it is vile hypocrisy for such persons to remain in connection with the visible church of Christ; and we exhort those who have been called to preach the Gospel, and all those who love purity and the truth, and who would arrest the just judgments of the Almighty God from the state that they may be no longer silent or tolerant of these things, but take a bold stand, that the flood of impurity and cruelty may be stayed.

These resolutions were laid over for future consideration.

A resolution from a Philadelphia body, requesting that ministers of the church be exhorted to preach on the duty of total abstinence on the last Sabbath of the year, was discussed, amended by changing the word exhorted to enjoined, and by fixing the time on the third Sabbath in December or the earliest practicable time, and passed nearly unanimously. During the discussion a member objected to the term total abstinence, preferring temperance, on the ground that the Bible did not enjoin the former. This objection did not obtain. Tuesday evening was named for considering the subject of reunion, and approved by the assembly.

Overtures were presented from several presbyteries by the appropriate committee, looking forward to a union of the two branches of the Presbyterian Church, North and South. It was recommended by a resolution of the Committee on Bills and Overtures that correspondence be opened with the Southern body.

A gentleman from the Potomac synod said their branch was not yet ready to consider the matter.

Rev. Dr. Johnson spoke in favor of the resolution. He believed no prejudice existed against the Church South, and that for the sake of the freedmen we ought to unite. His own pulpit was perhaps not regarded the most loyal in the land, yet he preached the Gospel, not politics. The Southern branch of our church entirely misconceives our feelings. It is our duty to make overtures to them. We should hold out the hand of welcome.

Mr. Fairfax, of Georgetown, was opposed to the recommendations of the committee. The feeling of alienation must first be reconciled. The action of the Pittsburg Convention must be settled, for so long as it remains there will be an obstacle to the good feeling of the churches. Action must be taken thereon before any correspondence can take place with advantage. The Episcopal Church, he said, was the only one which was in union with the South. This follows from the fact that they seek a union in government rather than in doctrines. He hoped the resolution would not pass. Dr. Blackwood, of Philadelphia, hoped the objection of the gentleman would not be insisted upon. If we go forward, taking the steps which are necessary by mutual intercourse, the matter may be brought about.

An informal letter was read by the stated clerk of the assembly, saying any overtures at present would not be allowed. It would create divisions and complications among the Southern people.

A motion to table the whole subject was rejected, and it was referred to a special committee of three ministers and three elders, to be appointed by the moderator.

The report of the Committee on Elections was presented and adopted. Adjourned till Monday.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

MOBILE, May 25.—The Presbyterian Assembly on Monday appointed a committee to revise the form of government and discipline. The committee reported in part to-day.

The assembly recommends its presbyteries to throw their licentiates so far as practicable into destitute fields.

On the subject of co-operation with the General Assembly of the Old School in labor among the freedmen, the following was unanimously adopted:

That inasmuch as the correspondence of the secretary of the Committee on Freedmen of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, with the secretary of sustentation of our church, has developed no practicable mode of co-operation between the two churches in their efforts to evangelize the freedmen, this General Assembly is not prepared to take any steps contemplating the proposed concert of action.

Resolved, That the secretary of sustentation is hereby instructed to communicate the foregoing resolution to the Committee on Freedmen of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

A resolution on the maintenance of simplicity in church music laid over.

A missionary meeting was held on Monday night.

A plan was reported for insuring the lives of ministers in our connection, and a resolution was introduced looking to an amendment in the charter of the church.

At the meeting to-night several addresses were made on the subjects of education and religious publications.

COMMERCIAL CONVENTION.

This body met at the Mechanics' Institute on Monday, the 24th inst., at twelve o'clock M. Delegates were present from most of the Western and Southern States.—General Vandever, temporary chairman, delivered a lengthy and able speech. Judge Alexander Walker, of this city, delivered the address of welcome.

The Committee on Permanent Organization here entered and announced Chauncey J. Filley, ex-mayor of St. Louis, permanent president of the convention.

Vice Presidents.—Governor Charles Anderson, Kentucky; General Wm. Vandever, Iowa; J. H. Browman, Mississippi; J. A. Fouqua, North Carolina; S. R. McCamey, Georgia; George H. Waters, South Carolina; William B. Isaacs, Virginia; William H. Sutton, Arkansas; A. P. C. Bonto, Ohio; B. H. Epperson, Texas; Wm. M. Byard, Alabama; Milton Brown, Tennessee; Thomas Richeson, Missouri; J. H. Oglesby, Louisiana; W. B. Halliday, Illinois.

Secretary.—A. C. Waugh.

Assistant Secretaries.—J. C. Gies, J. B. Henion, Iowa; William H. Barrett, Mississippi; Colonel McBride, Georgia; Colonel Z. Davis, South Carolina; S. B. French, Virginia; D. C. Cross, Arkansas; A. W. Mullen, Ohio; M. V. McMahan, Texas; C. DeLeon, Alabama; William D. Haynes, Tennessee; J. D. Williams, Missouri; E. E. Lane, Illinois; Walter Phillips, Louisiana.

The committee recommended the following committees:

1. On removing obstructions in the Mississippi river and tributaries.
2. Repairing and extending the levees.
3. Foreign commerce and postal subsidies and emigration.
4. Pacific railroad.
5. Western trade.

The committee recommended the adoption of the rules and regulations of the House of Representatives of the United States for the government of the convention; also, that the convention meet each day from nine o'clock A. M. till twelve M. and from half-past three to six P. M.

The report as read was unanimously adopted.

General W. J Hardee, J. H. Oglesby, and Dr. English were then deputed by the president to conduct the permanent president to the chair. [Applause.]

Mr. Filley, on being introduced to the convention, delivered an eminently practical address, showing the advantages of the Mississippi route, and the ultimate good which will redound to the whole South and West from its being fully opened up.

Wm. M. Burwell, on the part of the Chamber of Commerce of New Orleans, read an address, which was submitted to the appropriate committee.

GENERAL MINUTES FOR 1868.

After more vexatious delays and difficulties than we ever before encountered in procuring the minutes of the Annual Conferences, we have at length stereotyped this work for 1868. Some of the conferences have excellent secretaries, and some have not. We hope the conferences will be careful whom they elect to this office in future; and that the bishops will see that full answers to all the Disciplinary questions are forwarded to us without delay. Our friends who are fond of figures will find some that are suggestive in these minutes. They will see that our colored members are still leaving us, though many of them are joining the colored connection which the bishops are organizing, so that there is only an apparent loss. We have cause for gratitude in an increase of over thirty thousand white and Indian members during the last year. We copy the GENERAL RECAPITULATION.

CONFERENCES.	Traveling preachers.	Superan'd preachers.	Local preachers.	White members.	Colored members.	Indian members.	Total ministers and members.	Increase.	Decrease.
1. Baltimore	159	4	102	19[illegible]	251	....	19873	2718	.....
2. Virginia	147	14	139	35[illegible]3	954	....	37167	.....	310
3. West Virginia	42	2	71	8[illegible]3	28	....	8999	2265	.....
4. North Carolina	98	7	179	32514	1319	....	34117	.....	387
5. South Carolina	146	6	188	40420	4318	....	45108	.....	1950
6. North Georgia	121	12	375	40495	4119	....	45122	.....	265
7. South Georgia	105	14	201	20860	2462	....	23642	.....	3237
8. Florida	10	2	73	5887	649	....	6601	216	.....
9. Montgomery	104	14	302	24764	7307	....	29191	.....	1757
10. Mobile	87	10	131	15158	3778	....	19164	.....	3413
11. Louisiana	56	4	70	8140	1136	....	9406	.....	372
12. Mississippi	110	11	145	14348	2112	....	16726	.....	2317
13. Memphis	174	12	395	36851	575	....	37807	.....	1278
14. Tennessee	176	10	309	4104[illegible]	336	....	41925	1125	.....
15. Holston	98	5	211	25877	172	75	26138	473	.....
16. Kentucky	82	9	113	15298	868	....	16371	787	.....
17. Louisville	99	6	177	21562	628	....	25472	2783	.....
18. St. Louis	83	10	125	16771	2[illegible]8	....	17210	1522	.....
19. Missouri	109	2	118	17195	213	....	17637	3337	.....
20. Arkansas	77	2	170	12882	360	....	13491	.....	460
21. Little Rock	61	3	124	10791	529	....	11510	2137	.....
22. Indian Mission	15	....	53	[illegible]14	45	2226	2387	599	.....
23. Texas	53	5	71	3801	290	....	4123	.....	120
24. Trinity	39	8	121	8694	550	....	9412	1155	.....
25. East Texas	28	2	100	[illegible]678	950	....	7762	655	.....
26. Northwest Texas	43	1	120	6325	547	....	7436	2365	.....
27. West Texas	29	2	12	3039	431	....	3576	90	.....
28. Columbia	15	....	10	810	....	....	885	107	.....
29. Pacific	54	2	96	2813	....	....	2915	273	.....
30. Illinois	45	....	33	3[illegible]5	4	....	3127	866	.....
Total in 1868	2495	179	4413	5[illegible]3596	32085	2301	545969	26615	16586
Total in 1867	2389	192	3952	472481	54172	1851	535010	.....	.....
Increase	106	....	461	31113	....	450	10029	Net increase
Decrease	....	13	....	....	22087	....	....	....	.....

[The transferred preachers are reckoned with those of the conferences to which they now belong. The nine bishops are not counted; their addition would make the number of traveling preachers, including those on the superannuated list, 2,683. The preachers who located this year (69) are not counted; on the other hand, the preachers who were admitted on trial (179,) and those who were readmitted (57,) are counted among the traveling preachers, though many of them are also reckoned with the local preachers. There are some members in China who are not counted, not being officially reported. The Indians in the Shawnee mission, St. Louis Conference, are counted with the whites. There are defects in the minutes of some of the conferences, which the editor vainly endeavored to supply. The preachers and members of the separate colored connection, which the bishops are organizing, agreeably to the provisions of the General Conference, are not counted here, as they have their own minutes.]—Nashville Christian Advocate.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

JASPER DISTRICT MEETING, MOBILE CONF.

ELYTON, ALA., May 24, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The monotony of our quiet town has been very pleasantly broken into for the past few days by the district meeting of the Jasper district, which has just closed a very interesting and, we trust, profitable session in our midst. Considering the very busy season of the year we had quite a good turnout of the delegates. All seemed to come in the spirit of their mission. All the important interests of the church passed in review before the body; it was emphatically a spiritual feast. And as there is likely to be wisdom in the multitude of counsel, no doubt many, yea all, went away wiser, or, we trust, resolving to be better men than ever before. The preaching was good; it was appropriate. We had preaching all day and every night during the meeting, except Saturday, which was taken up, until about one o'clock, with our Sunday school celebration, the account of which you now have, or will soon have. The committee on the spiritual condition of the church made a very good, encouraging report. The finances are improving considerably. Most of the preachers are doing well in this respect; Sabbath schools are greatly on the increase; a gracious revival on this subject. Mr. Editor, if you had been here and could have seen the number of little boys and girls, as well as young men and young ladies, in procession, you could not but conclude that we are awake on the subject of Sabbath schools.

J. G. GURLEY.

GADSDEN, ALABAMA, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Our meeting continued three weeks, when we closed it on account of rain. The weather was unpleasant most of the time. The following is the result: About twenty conversions, thirty-one accessions, and several backsliders healed. Most of the converted were young persons. Converted children, when nursed properly, make the best members. May God help us all to believe it. We expect, now that the work has begun well, to have a "sweeping revival." Our Sunday school anniversary celebration took place on Wednesday, the 12th instant. It was the twenty third anniversary. General Turrentine organized the school twenty three years ago with just six persons; now there are about one hundred and eighty, and still growing. General T. has been superintendent since the organization of the school. R. E. C.

WETUMPKA, ALA., May 19, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The prospect is very flattering on the Wetumpka district. Have had many good quarterly meetings lately. The love feasts have been full of life and power. The good time is coming!

Fraternally yours,

WM. S. TURNER.

WE LEARN with profound sorrow of the death of Brother M. Headen, of Corpus Christi. He died of pneumonia, at his home, on the 29th of April. It was our lot to share his hospitality during a portion of our sojourn at Corpus Christi, at the late Annual Conference, and our heart was won by his deep and unaffected piety, and his warm and generous character. The church in Corpus Christi, and indeed the entire community, has met a sad loss. May his mantle fall on one worthy to wear it. We see by the Advertiser that all the stores in the place closed doors in token of their respect for the memory of so good a man, and, though the weather was inclement, it seemed that the entire community was at the funeral. We will receive, we trust, from some one who was with him during his last hours a fitting tribute to his memory.—Texas Christian Advocate.

OUR CHURCH IN WASHINGTON.

We have already called attention to the efforts of our brethren in Washington to erect a suitable church in the Federal City. They are determined to have one, convenient, commodious, elegant, a credit to the connection. They are deeply in earnest—and we are disposed to help those who are doing all they can to help themselves. We do hope that their agent will find favor with the people wherever he goes. We call attention to the following communication, which fairly sets forth their wants and claims:

BISHOPS' MEETING,
St. Louis, May 10, 1869.

TO THE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH: The prospects and necessities of our common cause in Washington City, D. C., induce us to invite your special attention to the statements and request which we shall make in this paper.

Before the war a lot had been purchased in an eligible locality for the erection of a Metropolitan Church of our name in that city. The splendid building of the Young Men's Christian Association now stands upon that lot, and our former house of worship, on Eighth street, is a synagogue of the Jews. Both those pieces of property have been inevitably sacrificed, and are lost to us.

Our society, decimated by the fortunes of the war, was reduced to less than fifty members. It now numbers over two hundred and fifty members, nearly a hundred per cent. more than it numbered at any former most flourishing period.

Our people there did not inquire, before undertaking the enterprise to which we are about to allude, whether the church throughout the connection would aid them in their undertaking; but, absolutely certain that they should need such assistance, they counted upon it with equal certainty, and are now at the most trying crisis in the erection of any church edifice, i. e., within four or six weeks of its completion.

They will finish it by management, but in expectation of contributions from all the churches, without which they will be embarrassed beyond hope in the payments yet to be made.

The church, although not metropolitan in name, is metropolitan in dimensions and cost; its site being the most eligible for the purpose in all that section of the city in which it stands, and that also being the most improving section of Washington City.

It stands, the representative of an evangelical Methodism, and an object of the deepest solicitude to the few earnest hearts who have undertaken its erection, with trust in God, and in reliance, through Him, upon the sympathy and assistance of their brethren everywhere.

Alone, they were unequal to the task. They partake, in common with the other citizens of Washington, of those disadvantages which always belong to a non-commercial city. But they have stood nobly in their lot for the interests of Southern Methodism in their community; they have stood up against reproach and persecution in that centre of political prejudices, such as, in its peculiar stress, perhaps our people nowhere else have been called to suffer; they have determined to give our church a position there that will command respect. They deserve to be sustained. They must have at least $30,000 from abroad.

We therefore recommend and request that, on the first Sunday in July next, a special collection in aid of the Washington church be taken up throughout the entire connection, and the proceeds thereof be forwarded, by draft or post office order, to Rev. W. V. Tuder, Washington, D. C., who will acknowledge receipt of the same in the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist, and in any other paper that the parties sending may indicate.

JAS O. ANDREW.	H. H. KAVANAUGH.
R PAINE	W. M. WIGHTMAN.
G. F. PIERCE.	D. S DOGGETT.
	H. N. MCTYEIRE.

BE NOT all sugar, or the world will swallow thee up; nor all wormwood, or it will spit thee out.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1869.

THE OLD FISHERMAN.

BY JEAN INGELOW.

There was a poor old man
Who sat and listened to the raging sea,
And heard it thunder, lunging at the cliffs
As like to tear them down. He lay at night;
And "Lord have mercy on the lads," said he,
"That sailed at noon, though they be none of mine!
For when the gale gets up, and when the wind
Flings at the window, when it beats the roof,
And lulls and stops and rouses up again,
And cuts the crest clean off the plunging wave,
And scatters it like feathers up the field,
Why then I think of my two lads
That would have worked and never let me want,
And never let me take the parish pay:
No, none of mine; my lads are drowned at sea—
My two—before the most of these were born.
I know how sharp that cuts, since my poor wife
Walked up and down, and still walked up and down,
And I walked after, and one could not hear
A word the other said, for the wind and sea
That raged and beat and thundered in the night—
The awfulest, the longest, lightest night
That ever parents had to spend. A moon
That shone like daylight on the breaking wave.
Ah, me! and other men have lost their lads,—
And other women wiped their poor dead mouths
And got them home and dried them in the house,
And seen the driftwood lie along the coast,
That was a tidy boat but one day back.
And seen next tide the neighbors gather it
To lay it on their fires.

"Ay, I was strong
And able-bodied—loved my work—but now
I am a useless hull; 'tis time I sunk;
I am in all men's way; I trouble them;
I am a trouble to myself; but yet
I feel for mariners of stormy nights,
And feel for wives that watch ashore. Ay, ay,
If I had learning I would pray the Lord
To bring them in: but I'm no scholar, no;
Book learning is a world too hard for me;
But I make bold to say, 'O Lord, good Lord,
I am a broken down poor man, a fool
To speak to Thee; but in the book 'tis writ,
As I hear say from others that can read,
How, when Thou camest, Thou didst love the sea,
And live with fisherfolk, whereby 'tis sure
Thou knowest all the peril they go through,
And all their trouble.

"'As for me, good Lord,
I have no boat; I am too old, too old—
My lads are drowned; I buried my poor wife;
My little lasses died so long ago
That mostly I forget what they were like.
Thou knowest, Lord, they were such little ones;
I know they went to Thee, but I forget
Their faces, though I missed them sore.

"O Lord,
I was a strong man; I have drawn good food
And made good money out of Thy great sea;
But yet I cried for them at nights; and now,
Although I be so old, I miss my lads,
And there be many folk this stormy night
Heavy with fear for theirs. Merciful Lord,
Comfort them; save their honest boys, their pride.
And let them hear next ebb the blessedest,
Best sound—the boat-keels grating on the sand.

"'I cannot pray with finer words; I know
Nothing; I have no learning, cannot learn—
Too old, too old. They say I want for naught,
I have the parish pay; but I am dull
Of hearing, and the fire scarce warms me through.
God save me, I have been a sinful man,
And save the lives of them that still can work,
For they are good to me; ay, good to me.
But, Lord, I am a trouble! and I sit
And am lonesome, and the nights are few
That any think to come and draw a chair,
And sit in my poor place and talk awhile.
Why should they come, forsooth? Only the wind
Knocks at my door, oh long and loud it knocks,
The only thing God made that has a mind
To enter in.'"

Yea, thus the old man spake,
These were the last words of his aged mouth—
But One did knock. One came to sup with him,
That humble, weak old man; knocked at his door
In the rough pauses of the laboring wind.
I tell you that One knocked while it was dark,
Save where their foaming passion had made white
Those livid, seething billows. What he said
In that poor place where He did talk awhile,
I cannot tell; but this I am assured,
That when the neighbors came the morrow morn,
What time the wind had bated, and the sun
Shone on the old man's floor, they saw the smile
He passed away in, and they said, "He looks
As he had woke and seen the face of Christ,
And with that rapturous smile held out his arms
To come to Him!"

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: My last letter was written just after Conference, and since its publication two have appeared from Brother Scurlock. I had thought to surrender the field to him, but several visits to different points lately have afforded me information which I cannot get to my friends except through your columns; and I have, therefore, taken the pen again.

San Jose is a city of six thousand inhabitants, and is fifty-two miles almost due south from San Francisco. A railroad thence has been in operation for several years. During the last twelve months this road has been extended thirty miles further, to the town of Gilroy, and assumes the name and dignity of the Southern Pacific railroad. Upon the completion of the railroad to Gilroy the citizens of that town and the railroad company proposed a grand excursion and dinner as an "inauguration." Through the courtesy of a friend I was among the invited guests on the occasion, and in company with some fifteen hundred others, crowded into twenty-six cars, propelled by three engines. We made the trip to Gilroy and back the same day, remaining several hours in the enterprising town, partaking of a sumptuous dinner, and hearing railroad speeches. Among the several very significant mottoes displayed in large capitals on the occasion, the most prominent one was, "No Snow Blockade." There is now considerable enthusiasm here for the speedy construction of the Southern Pacific railroad. The recent stoppage of our mails and express matter for six weeks, by the snow on the other line, caused all eyes to turn toward that route which would never encounter such a difficulty.

After passing out among the hills which environ San Francisco, our entire trip was up the Santa Clara valley, which still extends forty miles beyond Gilroy. At one point, for half a mile, the ocean came beautifully into view, and there began a range of low hills on our right, some two miles distant, which gradually grew taller and taller, soon developing into a regular range of mountains, with an occasional peak of considerable height. On our left the bay was in sight nearly all the way for thirty miles, until we passed its upper point, where the valley, instead of simply edging the bay, fills the entire space of about fifteen miles, as level as a floor and as rich as a garden. Beyond San Jose the valley narrows to from eight to three or four miles; the mountains come nearer, and the life and beauty of the scenery are much increased. The mountains present to the eye an apparently smooth surface, but are partly covered with a thick tangled growth of bushes, and partly with redwood forest, and in many places are fine for cultivation and grazing. The redwood is very similar to our pine, but much lighter, more easily cut and cleaved, and lasts like cedar. It is universally used for building and fencing purposes.

Since this trip, just referred to, I have attended our district meeting, held at a flourishing country church in the very heart of this valley. I left the cars at Santa Clara, the next station to San Jose, and a beautiful town of some two thousand inhabitants. A brother was waiting for me with his rockaway, and from the depot to the church, three and a half miles distant, did not break his trot, except to stop once at a house on the way. I was assigned to stay at the house of a brother who lived three and a half miles from the church in another direction, and in going to his house we kept up a brisk trot the entire distance. Immediately upon our arrival a brother preacher, who went with me, said, "Now let us look at the country." So we mounted to the top of the wind mill, about thirty feet high, and he began our lesson in topography. "There is the city of San Jose, six miles southeast of us; and there is Santa Clara, five miles northeast of us; and yonder is the church we have just left; and that fringe of trees winding up to the mountains marks the course of Santa Clara creek. You see the bay yonder, on the north, twenty miles off." And so the whole valley, fifteen miles wide at this place, and so long that the eye did not reach the limit, lay at our feet like a vast picture, of which the mountains on each side were but a proper frame. Every house for miles around was distinctly visible, as there is only a sprinkling of trees and the whole country is level.

The residences are commodious and handsome, and almost every one is surrounded with ample orchards of many varieties of fruit and a large vineyard. The pear trees in the yard of the house where I stayed were as full of young pears as of leaves. It was perfectly amazing. This brother also had a dozen trees, in full bearing, of genuine black pepper, which I find grows luxuriantly here.

Throughout this valley all the farmers keep in their own stock, so that not much fence is needed. The fences, however, are very good. I learned from the brother with whom I stayed that the best and cheapest fence is the picket fence, constructed as follows:—The redwood is cut five feet, and split into stakes from one to two inches thick. These are sharpened a little at one end, and during the winter, when the ground is soft and wet, are driven easily into the ground, about four or five inches apart. A railing nailed along near the top completes the fence, which will stand and be good at the end of twenty years. You perceive there is not a heavy timber handled nor a spade used in the entire process.

Some fields had been left out this year for hay purposes. Where the ground was rich these were grown up with a heavy growth of clover and wild oats, as thick and luxuriant as if it had been planted. Where the field was less rich only the wild oats came up, but as tall and thick as I ever saw in Alabama when cultivated. It was just time to begin to cut this for hay—just as the seeds show a sign of ripening. If they ripen they fall out immediately, and are lost. The cutting of hay, like everything else, is done by machinery. One man, with two horses, will cut ten acres, and another man, with one horse, will gather it into piles, where it can lay until you are ready to stack.

I noticed a great deal of wild oats coming up in the wheat, and called attention to it, and so discovered another of the many wonders of this country. By a remarkable provision of nature the oats ripens first and drops out; while the wheat, when ripe, is closely clasped in its cap, and will stand for months, and not chatter out when cut on the dryest day. The yield of wheat through this valley is from thirty to seventy bushels per acre.

I inquired the price of the land, and was answered, "From $100 up." It seems that the owners understand the lower limit, but have no idea of the upper. If any were for sale it could be bought for from $100 to $150 per acre, with elegant improvements, in tracts of from eighty to one hundred and sixty acres. The improvements would greatly reduce the price. It is plain that in this valley, shortly, wheat culture will be abandoned, and the whole land become one vast garden, orchard, or vineyard.

Let not our friends suppose that because this land is so high, equally good land cannot be had at a moderate price. Just over these mountains, in the Salinas valley, the same quality of land can be bought for from $10 to $20 per acre.—But there is no railroad to take you to San Francisco in two hours. Your grain will go by a schooner, and you can come over the hill in a stage coach, and then down on the railroad.

The body of the population in all these valleys are Southerners, and our church has a footing everywhere. JESSE WOOD.

TRUE goodness is like the glow worm; it shines most when no eyes but those of heaven are upon it.

"FEED MY LAMBS."

MR. EDITOR: For more than a year I have felt an increasing interest in the "lambs" of "the flock over which the Holy Ghost has made me overseer."

It is with painful anxiety that I have seen them, from Sabbath to Sabbath, go home from Sunday school not to return to church. And I have thought it were better for them to stay away from Sunday school and come to church, as "it pleases God, by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe," and also because, if they fail to form the habit of attending divine service in youth, they will not likely attend when they get too large to go to Sunday school; and in this way we may diminish our congregations.

It is a little remarkable that many of the young people of our country who have been raised, we might say, in the Sabbath school, do not attend preaching regularly. Any system that keeps the children from hearing the Gospel is suicidal. But it is not necessary for the children to neglect either the Sabbath school or the house of worship. This is only one of the unhappy tendencies of these times that portend unmitigated evil to the church in this country.

I have tried in various ways to remedy the matter in my congregation, but thus far without much success. First I urged the children in Sabbath school to come to church, and endeavored to secure the co-operation of their parents and Sunday school teachers in the same; but this failed. Then I undertook to preach to them once a month, on Sunday afternoon; but though this promised at first to succeed well, it finally failed also. Now I contemplate another plan, for I cannot think of giving up so important a matter. It is to preach to them every Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. Let them know this hour is for them, and urge them all to attend their own meeting. Let the "old folks," if they come, do like the Syrophenician woman was willing to do—eat the crumbs that fall from the children's table.

But, having failed twice, I am a little afraid to try it; and I have written this, Mr. Editor, to get your opinion on the subject. Will you be good enough to give it, and oblige W. B. L.

Jasper District, Mobile Conference.

ELYTON, ALA., May, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The signs of the times are truly encouraging all through my district. I commenced my second round on the 1st of April, and up to the present there has been more or less interest manifested at every appointment.

Brother W. E. Cameron protracted his quarterly meeting at Northport with fine success. The church at that place was needing a revival very much. The meeting was commenced under great outside pressure; but seeing signs of good, I remained with Brother Cameron ten days. By this time we had succeeded in clearing nearly every business house in the place of that terrible curse, called whisky, driving the monster from these respectable quarters back into his dismal den, known in some localities by the name of "dogry." This, of course, had its effect, and soon the work began in good earnest. When I left the church was all alive, with the burden of souls upon them. There had been some bright conversions, and I left twenty penitents at the altar.

Brother Cameron wrote me, two days later: "The meeting is still going on with increasing interest. Had twelve conversions, with thirty penitents at the altar. Don't know when I will close." May these be only the drops that precede the cloud of mercy which will inundate all this land with the "water of life!" For this we still labor and pray. J. M. BOLAND.

CHARITY gives itself rich, but covetousness hoards itself poor.

EVERY temptation is an opportunity of getting nearer to God.

The Question of Life Insurance.

'A Layman,' in your issue of the 11th, simply begs the whole question when he assumes that the text ('If any provide not,' etc., 1 Tim., v. 8,) asserts the principle of life insurance. It was, in fact, a very unfortunate allusion on his part, as must be evident to any one who will examine the context. The apostle truly is speaking of 'widows;' but not of potential, but actual widows, whose support he makes the duty of their living 'sons' and 'nephews,' or in default of these natural guardians, he requires that their support be assumed by the church. He considers the indigent widow to constitute, of right, a member of the 'household' of the contemporary 'son' or 'nephew.' And it is perfectly evident that the providing he here enjoins is for immediate support. There is no question as to a man's duty to provide while he lives. The matter in controversy is whether it is his duty to provide for his family after he is dead and gone. I submit that the apostle, in the text quoted by 'A Layman,' was speaking of immediate provision; and here, it seems to me, this whole question, from a scriptural standpoint, may be summarily disposed of. The Christian widow ought to be cared for by her near relations, especially sons and nephews, who should 'learn first to show piety at home and requite their parents,' or else by the church. What is the scriptural idea of the church? I submit it is plainly a brotherhood, an organic body, whose 'members' 'should have the same care one for the other.' If one member 'suffer,' all the members suffer with it; all the members are necessary, even the poor widows; and this body should have 'all things common,' in idea certainly, so far as that the superfluous means of the affluent should flow out to the needy. Then he that 'gathers much' has 'nothing over,' and he that 'gathers little' has 'no lack,' and the proper equilibrium is maintained. The church is therefore the proper insurance company—the one divinely chartered—and its capital, the weekly offertory. This is a resource which can never fail, unless faith and charity fail, unless Christianity itself is 'a cunningly devised fable.' If men say this is not practical, I have only to reply that this objection, if pushed to its legitimate conclusion, is fatal to Christianity as a divine institution. I do not discriminate between the clergy and other Christians, in this matter. I know of but one standard for Christian men. I submit further, that it is the object of Christianity to reconstruct society, 'a consummation' surely at this time to be desired, prayed for, and labored for. I submit also that as we (all Christians, but especially all ministers,) are officially, I might say, witnesses for Christ and His truth—if it is not our duty, by word and in life, to insist upon the true ideal of the church and the highest standard of duty? To do this will of course subject us to trial; will, from a worldly standpoint, be a ruinous, stark-mad policy; but then we must be willing to be 'fools' for Christ's sake, remembering that if we yet 'please men' we cannot be the servants of Christ. The exhortation 'to work' and 'provide,' was addressed to idle fellows, whose families must suffer or be a burden on the church, and was eminently proper; but when it is sought to stretch this precept further, I reply with the Master's words, 'Let it not be a care to you about the morrow,' 'Lay not up treasure on earth,' 'Give and it shall be given unto you.' It is abundantly evident that we cannot, in this world, do our duty and lay up treasure. Condemn whom it may, this is God's truth, and nothing can be plainer. It cannot be set aside without evacuating hundreds of the most striking passages of Scripture.

Not only is the precept scriptural, but nothing could be more reasonable, or better justified by every day's experience. We are taught that we are God's 'stewards;' the property we command, the 'Lord's money;' we must live out of it, not in luxury but with Christian moderation; the surplus is God's, the holder enjoying only the high privilege of dispensing it. Money laid up and left to children is generally a curse. It 'breeds worms and stinks.' Money left for religious or benevolent purposes is generally wasted; money given away by its living possessor is blessed. If it be true, to quote Dr. South, that our 'abundance must yield to our neighbor's necessity, and our necessity to his extremity,' then how, pray, can we either lay up treasure or indulge in luxury with a clear conscience or salve fide? The Christian religion is on trial; its very existence seems imperiled; why? Partly I believe because we are afraid of the truth, because the people loving to have it so, the prophets prophesy falsely. I contend that 'a decent maintenance' is all any Christian is entitled to. Insist on this, and perhaps the church would diminish to a Gideon's band; but be it so; every man would then be a host. The case of a Christian in this world of suffering is analogous to that of a man in a besieged city. What would we think of one, who had a year's supply of provisions, refusing to divide with the starving, because, six months after, he might need himself? We must always give precedence to debts on hand, already due—'first come, first served.' Follow this principle, and what clergyman, what Christian is there who could not dispose of all his surplus income ten times over? This rule kills life insurance, for its turn would never come. Not to speak of the pressing local demand for the surplus wealth of Christians, in maintaining the numerous eleemosynary institutions, look at our immense domestic missionary field, look at the teeming millions of China, Japan, and Africa, yea look at Africa which is at our doors. What Christian can look at all this and lay up treasure? I appeal to the Scriptures and the Primitive Church which gives us both precept and example, and insist on the maxim of Sallust, 'that kingdoms must be maintained by the same means by which they were first won.' The matter of life insurance I attack incidentally; it is 'a bubble,' which if I live to a good old age, I expect to see burst; a broken cistern which will not hold water. What I desire to contend against is the Mammon worship, of which it seems to me an incidental feature. I suppose your correspondent is about as well as the majority of ministers, and he fears less self denial, and yet he has never seen the time, nor does he ever expect to see it, when he could let money lie idle by him, or 'lend it, except to 'the Lord.' I believe that Wesley's rule epitomizes the Scripture, and to be the only one which can save us from the sin of covetousness—to wit: 'Make all you can, save all you can, and give all you can'—J. H. Tillinghast, Christian Witness SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPHS.—In the first place they may be caused by the resuscitation of an image which previously existed on the same plate, but which had since been cleaned off. Now there are certain kinds of glass, and certain peculiarities of their surface, which are highly favorable to the retention and subsequent development of an old picture. A soft, colorless French glass, which at one time was much used for covering daguerreotypes and glass positives, seemed to possess a fatal facility for retaining an image. If the picture were washed off, and the plate were only cleaned by means of whiting and water, the ghostal image of the former subject would be almost certain to "put in an appearance" when the new subject came to be developed.

There is, also, a certain condition of the chemicals favorable to the production of the "spirit photograph." If the collodion be colorless, and the silver bath on the verge of giving foggy pictures, it will be found that the deposition of silver by the developer will be more influenced by the state of the surface of the glass plate than when the conditions are such as to render fogging more difficult, if not impossible. Witness, for example, those markings made by the cloth used in cleaning the plate. Invisible to the eye, showing no "sign" even if breathed upon, when the plate has been sensitized and developed, they appear with startling and annoying distinctness. We have, with chemicals in this delicately-poised condition, successfully developed one of the thermographic images of Mr. Moser, formed by heating a glass plate when another body, such as a shilling, was placed upon it. The consideration of the above appears to us to form an explanation of the existence of those "spirit photographs" which we have seen.

We are assuming perfect honesty on the part of the photographer; but, if he were at all skillful and desirous of cheating, it would be the easiest matter imaginable for him to cause any number of "spirit" pictures to appear in the finished picture. To do this it is only necessary that either before or after the exposure in the camera the figure which it is sought to be made to appear should be printed on the iodized plate from a transparency with an opaque ground. An exposure to the light of a candle, or gas flame, for a few seconds suffices to produce the image. In this way we once, to the profound amazement of a clerical friend, took a portrait of him which, when developed in his own presence, showed him supported on the right by the Apollo Belvidere, and on the left by the Greek slave.—New York News.

THE father of Baron Bunsen, a shrewd and humble-born German, sent his son out into the wide world with this advice as to expenditure: "In clothing, live up to your means; and in food, below your means; and in dwelling, above your means. Don't be a soldier; stand erect before a man with a title."

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1869.

THE GARDEN HOUSE.

The lodge into which Raleigh was moved, on the suggestion of his physician, leaned against the Tower wall. It was warm and dry; covert from the Thames blast, and opening out among trees and flowers. In this Garden House Raleigh was to spend the noblest years of his life.

His first love was science. In the hope of finding a specific cure for every evil to which flesh, as flesh, is heir, Raleigh sat in his still-room, before his furnace and retort, day after day, year after year, question nature with a keen eye, and wresting her secrets with a cunning hand. While he was bent on these great trials he hit upon that powerful potion which became widely known, and universally admired, as Raleigh's Great Cordial.

Learned essays have been written to expound the virtues of this mixture; a blending of pearl, musk, hartshorn, bezoar stone, mint, borage, gentian, mace, red rose, aloes, sugar, sassafras, spirits of wine, with twenty other things; a charm against disease which was high in favor, not alone with city madams and country squires, but with the noblest persons in the land, notably with Queen Anne, with her son, Charles the First, and her grandson, Charles the Second. The ablest chemists tried to improve it; the wisest physicians sought to explain it. Digby proposed to increase its power by adding viper's heart and flesh. Frasier studied the science of its combination. Lefebre, the French physician, wrote a treatise, by the king's command, on its sovereign virtues. Queen Anne believed that it saved her life. Charles the Second would take no other medicine; and even now the great cordial finds a place in our accepted medical schools.

Drawing from his little fire in the still-room, these spirits and essences of nature, Raleigh came to be regarded by simple folk as a great doctor. His room was filled with vases; jars, and phials, which that said spy and profane rascal, Sir Thomas Wilson, afterward described as containing "all the spirits in the world except the Spirit of God." Men of science came to learn from him. The Wizard Earl stood by his side in the still-room. Hariot and Allen watched his experiments with curious eye. Mayerne admitted his supreme knowledge of drugs, and went very near to allowing his superior skill in judging of disease. Folk sent to consult him in their sickness; and if he had been free to go about he might have gained a very large practice as a medical man.

Hapless Lady Raleigh could not turn her heart to books and cordials. Year after year, year by year, she could not be comforted, and would not be silenced. In her ardent wrestling with her fate she complained of him, the recluse in the Tower; saying, in her blind love, that even he would make no effort to get free. Absorbed with his books, and phials, she fancied him wishing to be left alone to his own undoing. One day, as she sat before his desk writing, she burst into his room, just as she used to lie in wait for the king, holding little Wat by the hand, pressing her baby to her heart; and stamping once before her husband, she asked him how he could be so cruel to his wife and babes as to sit there, wasting his life, in poring over books and maps? Poor captive! This was the hardest trial he was called to bear. He could not blame her, and he could not help her.

Days, months, years, went by. One by one his honors, offices, and estates were taken away by James. Durham house was one of the first to go. Sherborne castle was still left to him; but Sir Robert Carr, a new and grasping favorite, having heard that the house was good, that the site was beautiful, that the soil was rich, begged it from the king. When Lady Raleigh threw herself at James' feet, beseeching him not to take the bread from her children's mouths, the king coarsely answered, "Madame, I mann ha' it; I mann ha' it for Carr." Lady Raleigh, hot with holy wrath, threw up her hands, and called on heaven to launch its bolts on the man who robbed her fatherless children of their bread!

Those bolts were not long in coming.

Raleigh's lodge under the Tower wall became a court, to which a crowd of men, who stood the highest among the learned and the great, repaired for profit and delight. Raleigh was still a centre. Bacon sought in him a patron of the new learning. Percy dined with him in the lieutenant's house. Hariot brought him books and maps. Pett came over with his models; Jonson with his epigrams and underwoods. The magi—Hariot Hues and Warner—made a part of Raleigh's court. Selden was often here; Mayerne sometimes, Bilson now and then. Nor were these all. Queen Anne sent messages to the prisoner.—Prince Henry rode down from Whitehall to hear him talk. The young prince, who was eager about his sister's marriage, learned from Raleigh to distrust the policy of a Savoy match; and from the same high source he caught his leaning toward the court of France. Princess Elizabeth looked on her brother's friend as her own best guide. For the young prince Raleigh wrote his "Discourse touching a marriage between Prince Henry, of England, and a daughter of Savoy;" for the young princess his "Discourse touching a match between the Lady Elizabeth and the Prince of Piedmont." In both these treatises he gave new and deadly offence to his foes in Madrid. The Spanish faction at Whitehall were furious; for the prince and princess made no secret of their own adhesion to Raleigh's views. It seemed to those pensioners of Philip that Raleigh was establishing a second government in the Tower, from which he presumed to dictate his policy to the king. And they were right. Raleigh's writings struck the note of opposition, everywhere slumbering in men's hearts, against a match with either Spain or an ally of Spain. Elizabeth married a German prince; setting the example, so largely followed in all coming years, of seeking alliances for our reigning house, not among strange races, but among our own Teutonic kin.

But the talk of the old sailor and the young prince ran much on the sea, on ships, and on naval war, for which the lad was already quickening with heroic fire. Raleigh promised to reduce his thoughts on these high things to order in a regular treatise on "The Art of War by Sea." Riding away from the Tower, after one of the mornings thus spent, the prince cried aloud to his attendants, "No man but my father would keep such a bird in a cage."

When the prince fell sick Queen Anne insisted that he should take Raleigh's cordial; a medicine which had saved her own life, she said, when every other remedy had failed. It came too late; the hope of England died; and the projected treatise on naval war was laid aside.

In this Garden House Raleigh finished, if he did not begin, the first part of his magnificent "History of the World," a work without an original, though it has had a thousand successors. The tale there told in part was to have been a great prose epic; its theme, the life of man on our mother earth. In the eleventh year of his confinement Raleigh produced one volume of his labors; all that he lived to write; and it is no new thing to say that this volume of universal history is one of the grandest fragments on our library shelf.

Opinions vary as to Raleigh's share in the production of his work. Ben Jonson told his friend Drummond that the history was composed by a circle of wits; but this account can hardly have been true. Ben wrote the poetic prefix, though he did not dare to sign it. There I think the foreign work begins and ends. The style is uniform throughout; a style too pure for any other pen to claim. No doubt the historian sought such help as every historian seeks and finds. Burrell aided him with Hebrew; Hariot gave him hints on science; others may have helped him in questions beyond his ken. But the book, as book, is certainly Raleigh's own.

From the Garden House he sent forth other writings; some of great value, others trifles of the day. Among these works may be named "A Discourse on the Invention of Ships," and "Observations on the Sea Service."

But his main solace, after all, was the heroic work in which he had embarked his fame and fortunes from his earliest times; that of founding free States; fighting the Spaniards with a weapon—that would renew itself forever. From the Bloody tower he directed operations in Guiana and in Virginia; never ceasing to drop his purse into that scale into which he could no longer dash his sword.

On the episode of Raleigh's release from prison, his western voyage, his unhappy return, and his fresh arrest, there is little need to dwell. These events make the history of England for one troubled and shameful year. When he came back a prisoner he found his apartments in the Bloody tower and the Garden badge occupied by his spoilers, Carr and his new wife, now Earl and Countess of Somerset.—Her Majesty's Tower, by W. H. Dixon.

When my mother says no, there's no yes in it." Here is a sermon in a nut-shell. Multitudes of parents say no; but after a good deal of teasing and debate it finally becomes yes. Love and kindness are essential elements in the successful management of children, but firmness, decision, inflexibility, and uniformity of treatment are no less important.

SCIENTIFIC.

Transits of Venus in 1874 and 1882.

Doubtless many of our readers may think it premature to say anything about an event six years before it will transpire, but there are good reasons in this case for such an apparently ill-timed proceeding. The transits of Venus to take place in 1874 and 1882 are justly looked forward to by astronomers as the greatest astronomical events of the century in which they will occur. Why they are so considered, and the necessity for anticipating them by extensive preparations, it is the object of this article to show.

The phenomena called transits occur only with the inferior planets, that is, those whose paths of revolution around the sun lie wholly within that of the earth. A transit is nothing less than an eclipse of the sun by an inferior planet, that is, the passage of either Venus or Mercury directly between the earth and the sun, so that their disks partially obscure its face, and appear as round, dark spots upon it. Conventional usage has limited the term eclipse of the sun to the obscuration of its disk by the moon, and transit to the same effect produced by the passage of Venus and Mercury between the earth and the sun, although there is no essential difference in the nature of the phenomena.

The transits of Venus occur very seldom. The first one, we believe, of which there is any record, was observed in 1639, by the gifted young astronomer, Horrox, whose brilliant career was so suddenly terminated by death at an age when few have even begun to achieve immortality. The celebrated Dr. Halley communicated a paper to the Royal Society in 1691, with a view of calling attention to a proposed method for determining the parallax of the sun, and thereby its real distance from the earth. Since his time only two transits of Venus have occurred, viz, in 1761 and 1769. Dr. Halley expressed in his paper the belief that, in the way proposed, the sun's distance from the earth would be determined with great accuracy. The feasibility of the method at once attracted the attention of astronomers, and, upon the occurrence of the transits in 1761 and 1769 the sun's distance was computed to be ninety-five million one hundred and seventy-three thousand English miles.

The parallax of heavenly bodies is the difference in their apparent relative position, when viewed from different stations. It is usually expressed in degrees, minutes, and seconds of angular measurement. This may be illustrated by the following simple method. Take a station at any point where a tree, or lamp post, or stake can be brought into range with a corner of a house or any other fixed object, representing the sun. The intervening object may be considered to represent the planet Venus, and the station at which the two observed objects are in line may represent a portion of the earth's surface. If, now, the observer take a station to the right or left of the first station, the objects will no longer appear superimposed, but separated to a distance, depending upon the distance between the two stations, the distance of the stations from the remotest object, and the distance of the stations from the intervening object. The angular difference between the apparent positions of the bodies observed, and the distance between the stations, are sufficient data for determining all the other distances, provided the angle formed by a line joining the two stations, and a line joining either station with the intervening object is also known. The problem is then reduced to the finding of one side of a triangle, another side and two angles being given, a very simple operation in plane trigonometry. In astronomical observation there are always some determinate errors, arising from refraction and other causes, which may, however, be readily corrected, and do not affect the general principle of the method as above illustrated.

In calculating the distance of the sun from the earth, the stations, from which the observations are made, can be so placed that the semi-diameter of the earth becomes one side of a triangle. The parallax of the sun was thus calculated from the transits of 1761 and 1769, and found to be 8.65 seconds angular measurement, and the distance of the sun was hence determined to be ninety-five million one hundred and seventy three thousand English miles, as given above. Subsequent calculation by Encke made the parallax to be 8.5776 seconds.

It will be seen that the correctness of these results depends upon the accuracy of the observations upon which the mathematical calculations were based. That these were not accurate, seems probable from the fact that there is every reason to believe, from the sun's parallax, as more recently determined, that the distance as originally computed is wrong by at least four million miles.

Many hypotheses have been made as to the origin of such a grave mistake—some attributing the error to confounding a part of the planet with its penumbra, and others to mistakes in the computation, but these are of little importance. The time is approaching when the problem can be reworked, and, with the improved apparatus now possessed by astronomers, and the wonderful advances made in methods of observation, it may well be hoped that this time a reliable result will be obtained. The Standard (London) says of the extensive preparations now initiating for the observation of the coming transits, that "the Astronomer Royal is doing good service in preparing betimes for the great event. Though it may seem a long time to look forward to, to those who are unacquainted with the amount of preparation required for such observations, those who know the difficulty of procuring a large number of first-rate instruments, unless plenty of time is allowed, will know that there is really no time to be lost, especially if, as we should hope would be the case, all the expeditions sent out are provided with precisely similar instruments and apparatus. It is imperative upon the government to put no obstacle in the way of carrying out these observations in the most perfect manner. England must not be behind the Continent, at any rate. If any amount of failure takes place, it will not be from want of preparation on Mr. Airy's part. At the late meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society he showed that there was nothing indefinite about his ideas; he had already prepared careful maps both for observing the ingress and egress of the planet. He showed the importance of sending expeditions to several places, because, among other considerations, a thousand obstacles might interfere with the observations in any particular place. There are places which, if weather, etc, are favorable, will be admirable for all purposes, but, as in the case of Kerguelin Island, the chances are very much against a clear atmosphere. Captain Toynbee said that this island is seldom to be found on account of the fog. If practicable, no expedition will be of the importance of one sent to the South Pole, that is, as near to it as possible. At the South Pole the effect of parallax will be the greatest—that is to say, the position of Venus will vary to the greatest extent on the sun's disk. The Astronomer Royal in his maps suggests two points, one in Enderby's Land, but here the sun would be too low for it to be a certainly advantageous position—he greatly preferred a point in the Antarctic Continent, where Sir James Ross landed. As a place for observation nothing could be better. The only point is, Will the severity of the climate admit of the expedition? Captain Richards, the hydrographer to the Admiralty, spoke well upon it. He showed that if properly fitted out and provided with good huts, clothing, and food, there would be no further objection to the place than must stand in the way of any Aretic expedition. Those, however, who joined in it would have to make up their minds to one thing, namely, that they would have to spend a year upon the spot; for that it was unapproachable at anything near the time when the transit will take place. To show, however, that he did not consider this in any way fatal to the position as a station for observation, he said that he should much like to be one of the party himself. In this he was fully borne out by Captain Davis, who landed there with Sir James Ross. So that we may hope that this, at least, will be one station, and that the government will not postpone till too late the preparations to make it as favorable for the comfort of the spirited observers who will join in the expedition as for the objects of the enterprise. It may possibly be advisable to send out an exploring party previously, though Captain Davis did not seem to think that it would be necessary. The first great difficulty in all places will be to get the absolute longitude. No ordinary nautical longitude will be of the slightest value. Observations necessary can be made at many places easily accessible, as far as England is concerned, as at Alexandria, where the telegraph will be of great use; at many places, too, in the United States, where we can safely leave the work to Americans. We may especially do the same in the case of the Russians, where the exact longitude of Orsk, the extremity of the great arc of longitude extending from that place to Valencia, is known to a millionth part of a second, or in other words, to absolute certainty. The other places which are recommended to the English government are—Mauritius for one reason, and Madagascar for another. If, however, it should be thought unnecessary to fix both of these spots, then an intermediate station, viz, on the Island of Bourbon, would be preferable. If the Astronomer Royal can show that the two stations would be of considerable advantage, we hope that no financial reasons will prevent his wishes being carried out. Above all things we would urge upon the authorities the importance of making up their minds as to the instruments to be used, and in losing no time in having them put in hand. There is one more point worth noticing. How far photography can be depended on as to accuracy in helping to discover the sun's distance is not easy to answer off hand; but certainly it is not to be doubted that much useful and interesting information may be secured by its means; and it is highly desirable that at none of the stations its use should be neglected. This part of the question is not, however, of the same pressing importance as the fixing of the stations suitable for observing the ingress and egress of the planet, and of the preparation in good time of the instruments and apparatus required."

Our readers will now be prepared to appreciate the importance of this subject, and to understand why its discussion is likely to occupy, to a large extent, the attention of the scientific press for a considerable time to come.—Scientific American.

MISSIONARY INTELLIGENCE.

"Carleton," the correspondent of the Boston Journal, has reached Singapore, in his journey around the world. He sends a graphic description of tropical experiences as he finds them on the coast where Judson labored, and other missionaries now spend their lives. He does not find them living in bowers of ease; nor would he prefer that country to England or America. Here is the pleasant picture he draws of > Ceylon's tropic isle,

> Where every prospect pleases,
> And only man is vile:

"If we were to go on shore we should find snakes, scorpions, centipedes, lizards, and all sorts of vermin, in yonder spice groves. There are wood-leeches which creep into your nostrils when asleep, and make themselves a comfortable home in your nose, living on the best blood of your brain; the deadly cobra comes into the house without invitation, and makes himself at home in your bed; spiders, with legs three inches long, and bodies of the size of a small tea cup, spin webs over your windows, or hang on the corners of your rooms. Swarms of flying ants come into the dining room at dinner time and light upon your roast mutton; white ants bore out the table legs, the pillars of the house, carry off your best suit of clothes, or your books, in a single night; bugs, flies, fleas, beetles, cockroaches, lice, blue bugs, black bugs, yellow bugs—creeping, flying, skipping, hopping, jumping, running—coming at morning, noon, and night—especially at night, when you are sweating, tossing, turning and tumbling, and trying to get a wink of sleep! How nice to have a great spider straddle over your face, or to have cockroaches as large as mice run across the dinner-table! If these seem to be exaggerations go into the Museum of Natural History and see in the wonderful collection of insects there what sort of company the people of the tropics are compelled to put up with. The lands of spice are delightful as seen by the poet's eye. The natives undoubtedly think there are no climes so beautiful, and there are some Englishmen who profess to like these lands better than their own misty isle. It is well for the world that tastes differ."

A missionary letter from Africa speaks of a tiger killed near the residence of the writer, of a serpent of immense size, and most poisonous bite killed in his house, of solid clouds of mosquitoes, of frogs, scorpions, centipedes, and large hairy spiders, creeping into the beds, chests, and closets, and adds: "As lately, one evening, we were going to rest for the night, we found our beds covered with two different sorts of ants. Already in the afternoon a countless number of the black ants were making their way through our room, every one with an egg in its mouth. We tried to stop them, when there came a still more troublesome species, brown, biting, and bad smelling insects, which were the allies of the first, and so we were glad to leave them alone. They all vanished after an hour or two, and we thought to get some sleep; but the bed from top to bottom was covered with them, and they made their way through all the bed clothes. If we meddled with them they would bite severely; and if we killed any of the worst species they sent forth an intolerable smell through the room. We had the bed taken into the open air and well shaken, and then gave the vermin an hour to march off. After this we made the bed again; but scarcely had we laid down when the covering once more swarmed with them. At last we found that by rubbing the posts well with chalk, and putting plenty of it around the feet of the bed, the ants went away. It reminded us of one of the plagues of Egypt."—American Church Missionary Register.

It will surprise many to know that last year the donations from foreign mission stations to the London Missionary Society were more than $62,000, or more than one-fifth of the whole income of the society. We say men of the world can appreciate such a fact, for they know the value of money and how hardly men will part from it unless for some material or earthly good for themselves or those they love.—When men, once gross idolaters, give their hard-earned money in such large measures to speed the Gospel by which they have been blessed, the work in their own hearts must be great and radical. * * * Or, take another result, larger and more comprehensive in its reach. The idols in Madagascar are abolished, and the native Christians have met in the open air in the queen's camp for worship. At one place, which a little more than a year since was full of opposition, two native Christians have built a place of worship, and written to a missionary to come to their aid. The government requires the sacred observance of the Sabbath, and the seven large churches and the two smaller ones of the capital are said to be thronged. The church members number five thousand five hundred. "Allelnia, the Lord God omnipotent reigneth."—American Church Missionary Register.

At the recent coronation of the Queen of Madagascar, on the four sides of the canopy over the throne were inscribed these words: "Glory to God—Peace on earth—Good will to men—May God be with us." At the side of the queen's seat was a small gilded table, upon which were placed a very handsomely bound Malagassy Bible and a copy of the laws of Madagascar. The word of God and the laws of the land—these are the emblems of her rule. Yet only ten years ago to be known as a Christian in Madagascar was to be exposed to imprisonment, exile, and death.—American Church Missionary Register.

Ebal and Gerizim.—After the Israelites had crossed the Jordan and taken the city of Ai, they assembled, as Moses had before commanded them, in the valley between mounts Ebal and Gerizim, half of them "over against" either mountain. The Levites on Mount Gerizim then read the blessings, and the Levites on Mount Ebal the cursings, the vast congregation responding, Amen.

There are those who have tried to discredit this narrative, saying it is not reasonable to believe that the voice of any man could be heard from one mountain to the other.

An English clergyman, the Rev. John Mills, who spent three months at Nablous, at the foot of these mountains, states that where they approach nearest to each other are the two lowest spurs, looking like two noble pulpits, where the Levites probably stood. The valley between, he says, is like the floor of a vast place of worship, and the mountain slopes receding gradually, offer room for hundreds of thousands to be conveniently seated to hear the words of the law.

Mr. Mills and two of his friends determined to test the question whether the human voice could traverse the distance between the two mountains. He ascended the pulpit on Gerizim, where he read the command concerning the blessings, and one of his friends did the same on Ebal, reading the cursings. The other friend remaining in the valley, distinctly heard every word and syllable, as did also the one on the mountain opposite the reader. Before they descended, the one in the valley requested them to sing, and gave out—"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." They sang it to the tune of Old Hundred; and so clear is the atmosphere there, it was their impression that if the whole area before and around them had been filled with listeners, every note would have been distinctly heard.—Children's Magazine.

Dr. Spencer, some days before his death, gave orders that nothing—not even as much as a thread of black—should be on his coffin. "For," said he, "I have been a sorrowful man these many years—lamenting the deplorable state of Christ's church militant here on earth; but now, being on the point of retiring into the church triumphant in heaven, I will not have the least mark of sorrow left upon me; but my body shall be wrapped up all over in white, for a testimony that I die in expectation of a better and more glorious state to come."

The Leeds Mercury states that Lord Hatherly, the new Lord Chancellor of England, has been a Sabbath school teacher for thirty years. "In his attendance at the school, his punctuality is so unerring that upon hearing it he serves as an invariable time-piece, both teachers and scholars knowing well that if they are able to reach the door with or before him they are perfectly safe."

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. E. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1869.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

EPISCOPAL DIPLOMACY.

The correspondence so suddenly inaugurated by the Northern Board of Bishops was published at length in the ADVOCATE of last week. The singular caution with which it was introduced, and the generalities in which it abounds, awaken in our mind, possibly, an undue suspicion of its intent. It may be that every Southern man has just now in him a reigning distrust of everything that proceeds from ant-austral regions, whether from political or ecclesiastical sources. Repeated reconstructions, open violation of the terms of capitulation, and continued military rule have done their work so effectually that more grace is required to restore confidence in any Northern proposition than most of us have.

However, the Northern bishops propose union:

"It is fitting," say they, "that the Methodist Church, which began the division, should not be the last to achieve the reunion; and it would be a reproach to the chief pastors of the separated bodies if they waited until their flocks prompted them to the union, which both the love of country and of religion invoke, and which the providence of God seems to render inevitable at no distant day."

This matter of restoring union is now the rage. Episcopalians, North and South, Presbyterians, Old and New, are yielding to the new force. Then the Episcopalians are proposing still further, that all Methodists allow themselves to be ordained over again by Moravian bishops, so that all on board this large craft may take passage upon their pirogue; this they conceive to be eminently for the "interests of humanity." In vain do we assure them that Methodists are fully satisfied with their own ordination and church; they yet constantly insist. It secures for them the character of catholicity, and at the same time unsettles some weak souls which are the more easily gobbled up.

We have never been able to see the desirableness of "reunion," or "union," with the Northern Methodists. It would increase the political force of that church greatly, which is already too great for the country's good. In fact all these "reunions" are in the sole interest of that tendency toward a centralizing despotism which threatens all civil as well as all political liberty. If the Church South could deliver herself from the common pressure by placing herself under the ægis of a body that prayed and fasted to induce the Lord to impeach President Johnson, she would not, could not do it. No, her work is to live with her own people, and if need be go down with them. The Methodist Church South is full large enough to do good work for Christ, the country, and the world. We only seek to swell it by the conversion of sinners.

But let us consider more accurately the situation of affairs as between these two branches of Methodism, and as in view of this spontaneous episcopal overture.

A quarter of a century ago the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at its session then being held in New York, determined, by a vote of one hundred and forty-seven to twenty-three, upon a friendly division of the church, forming thereby two distinct churches in place of the Methodist Episcopal Church. To quote the language of the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States, rendered ten years after the division: "By force and authority of the said General Conference (of 1844) the religious association known as the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States of America, as then existing, was divided into two associations, or distinct Methodist Episcopal churches."

At the time of this division the members of the General Conference from Northern States were largely in the majority; but the measure was expressly declared to be "not schism, but separation for mutual convenience and prosperity." By the terms of the "Plan of Separation" the membership was divided in block; and so was the property of its "Book Concern"—all the meeting houses, parsonages, colleges, schools, and cemeteries, within the limits of the Southern or the Northern territory, were declared to belong respectively to the Southern or the Northern division of the church. Nothing could be plainer or fairer. The South acted upon the understanding, but, to its surprise and annoyance, could only recover its share of the property at the end of the law. Suits for property are not usually productive of charity, and these made a wide breach between the two halves of Methodism. As a corollary to this the North refused to receive a fraternal messenger from the South, and occasional raids mutually intensified these differences. Still the two divisions prospered, and the increase of their membership, of their schools, and their missions, indicated the wisdom of the action of the General Conference of 1844. The law suit and the messenger, however, would come up, for Southern people have a persistent memory.

Next came the war, full of dreadful things, and if it had been waged even after the most civilized methods, was not favorable to any increase of love. It was difficult to conceive how any church, as a church, could be seen amid its fires, or be found at work fanning its flames. But to the chagrin of all good men, the Northern division of Methodism entered the lists in propria persona, and threw itself actively into the conflict.

One of its bishops armed himself with the following document, singled out and seized the principal churches of the Southern division of Methodism, ejected its ministers, and occupied them with his own men:

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE GULF,
New Orleans, Jan. 18, 1864.
Special Orders No. 15.
[Extract.]

5. In accordance with instructions, contained in a letter from the Secretary of War, under date of November 30, 1863, all houses of worship within this department, belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in which a loyal minister, who has been appointed by a loyal bishop of said church, does not now officiate, are hereby placed at the disposal of the Rev. Bishop Ames.

Commanding officers at the various points, where such houses of worship may be located, are directed to extend to the ministers, that may be appointed by Bishop Ames to conduct divine service in said houses of worship, all the aid, countenance, and support practicable in the execution of their mission.

Officers of the quartermaster's and commissary departments are authorized and directed to furnish Bishop Ames and his clerk with transportation and subsistence, when it can be done without prejudice to the service; and all officers will afford them courtesy, assistance, and protection.

By command of Major General Banks.
GEORGE B. DRAKE,
Assistant Adjutant General.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE GULF,
New Orleans, La., July 13, 1865.
Official.
J. SCHUYLER CROSBY,
Brevet Lieutenant Colonel,
A. D. C. and A. A. A. Gen.

Here was something worse than the law suit, harder to swallow, and much harder to forget.

But at length peace unfolded her benign wings. The thunders of war went down beyond the sky, the voice of the turtle was heard once more, and timid creatures which had been frightened away by the dreadful roar of the combat, now crept forth again into God's sunshine. The holy angels opened the treasured vials of prayer, and shed love's sweet odors once more upon the sanctuaries of the land. But long after the pursuit of war had ceased the pulpits of Southern Methodism continued to be filled by this war-installed ministry. It was only by peremptory order from President Johnson that the appointees of Bishop Ames could be gotten out of the churches of the Southwest. They were literally ejected against their will; and in all those houses from which they were not then ejected they still remain, to the scandal of the cause of Christ. There are three such churches now in this city, and not a few in East Tennessee and elsewhere.

Here again was something more than the special order seizure, worse than the law suit, or the rejected messenger—a church claiming to hold property, after peace is restored, by virtue of "military conquest."

A few months after this ejection was effected the General Conference of the Southern Methodist Church met in this city. All of a sudden, like a thought from heaven, there came to this venerable body a telegram from a Northern Conference proposing mutual prayer. Rather startling, thought we, but no doubt honestly meant. It was honestly accepted; we prayed. When lo! the parties who proposed prayer flash a *re*consideration and a refusal! Memory, that same Southern memory, writes down another time, "These people are not sincere." And again there comes up the law suit—the messenger—the "special order 15"—the "military conquest."

About this time Bishop Ames published a letter in which he proposed in good faith to leave the question of Southern Methodist property to Chief Justice Chase! though the Supreme Court had, without a dissenting opinion, ordered and decreed it to be the property of the Methodist Episcopal Church South ten years before! And latterly the organ of Northern Methodism published in Atlanta, Georgia, by the book agents at Cincinnati, denies that the decision has any force, and still claims all Southern Methodist churches!

In keeping with all this the principal paper of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the New York Christian Advocate, announces it to be the policy of that church to disintegrate and absorb Southern Methodism—an announcement which has the double force of being made by the most influential person in that church, and of being exactly descriptive of its home missionary policy. This idea of recovering a national breadth by forming a Methodist Episcopal Conference in every Southern State, met with great favor both from its Missionary Board and its Bench of Bishops. Preachers were sent out, were sustained as missionaries, and some made large returns of membership. In East Tennessee Bishop Clark reported a great success among whites as well as blacks. But in all these gains it was virtually but a transfer of members from Southern to Northern Methodism. The two hundred thousand blacks who belonged to the former might be "disintegrated" very rapidly; by some military pressure, some appeal to the obligations which they were under to their liberators, and a slight application made to exhorters and leaders in the shape of missionary appropriations, they could be melted off in large masses and floated out into the wide sea of Northern Methodism. This kind of missionary enterprise adds nothing to the cause of the Saviour, because it only repeats in a new form among His people the conflict of passion which had ceased elsewhere. No sinners are converted or added to the church, but the war of States is changed into a war of churches. We know this is putting the matter strongly, but truly. We do not object to the presence of Northern Methodism in Southern States; but we seriously object to any church that carries on an ecclesiastical piracy and parades its spoil as an achievement of the spirit of missions.

Without going further in this bill, we sum up the items which canse the present wide divergence between two Methodisms: the law suit and its corollary, the rejected messenger, the "special order" seizures, the "military conquest" titles, the "net result" telegram, the "disintegrating" policy.

It is in this attitude of affairs that we are surprised by a new phenomenon—a visit from the Northern bishops!—Angels coming out of a thunder storm! We admire, and then ask, What sort of angels are these? Charity always regards the messengers of peace with favor, no matter in what shape they come; much more when they come as the angels of the churches. Can this vision efface the memory of the past and the facts of the present? That is the question. And upon regarding this company of godly persons we find one of them, at least, to be mortal—Bishop Ames, him of "special order 15," not to mention one or two others of earthly mold. They unfold their message, and our readers and the whole church have by this time pondered it. It seems to be in the interest of peace. "Their words are smoother than butter."

"At a meeting," say they, "of the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held in Erie, Pennsylvania, in June, 1865, we made and published the following declaration:

"That the great cause which led to the separation from us of both the Wesleyan Methodists of this country and the Methodist Episcopal Church South has passed away, and we trust the day is not far distant when there shall be but one organization, which shall embrace the whole Methodist family in the United States.

"This declaration was made in good faith, and shows what were then our sentiments and feelings, and was deemed by us as the utmost we were authorized to say or do on the subject at that time.

"Although our late General Conference did not directly authorize us to take further specific action in the matter, yet we judge that some of its acts justify advanced steps on our part.

"In our quadrennial address to the General Conference we referred to the declaration above quoted, and no exception was taken to it by that body."

In June, 1865, these were their "sentiments and feelings, uttered in good faith." And while they were uttering these sentiments we were on our way to Washington to obtain our churches in Louisiana from the hand of the President and the Secretary of War. We waited through July, August, September, October, and November, of 1865, and then by the intervention of Mr. Johnson we, after four months, obtained that which those angels of the Northern Methodist Church might have given us in one moment. But that was the year after the war. They now feel "justified" in taking some "advanced steps," the General Conference having taken "no exception" to their "declaration" of 1865. We suppose not, for that body took the "declaration" at its worth, by weighing it against their episcopal acts. The Conference doubtless felt that so long as they went in that direction they needed no further specific instruction, that the policy of "disintegration and absorption" was being well enough managed. We may, therefore, be pardoned if we look at the acts, not at the "declarations" of this episcopal board.—What is it doing "for the interests of humanity and the glory of God?" It is holding on to every church in the South in which it was placed by Secretary Stanton, from which it has not been forcibly ejected by Mr. Johnson. In Maryland it holds on to churches because the deeds run in its favor, though congregations which built the churches are turned out of doors; in Louisiana and Tennessee it holds on to churches where the deeds do not run in its favor, but holds by "military conquest."

Now let these venerable representatives of charity begin their mission in the "interests of humanity" by giving up every church which they occupy in violation of either law or equity, and by abstaining from all acts likely to disintegrate the love which remains between us and them. Otherwise let them not expect to have the credit of doing something without doing it—to seem to do something, not to do it, and yet get the credit of doing it.

BROKEN CISTERNS.

God himself is the exceeding great reward of his children—their portion and their inheritance. He is the desire of the devout, and the object of ardent pursuit. He is the supreme happiness of the believing heart, and "more glorious than the mountains of prey." His favor leaves nothing to be desired, and His loving kindness is better than life. The passionate fervor of the sanctified soul is kindled by the gracious manifestations of the divine nature. David's words do no more than express the Christian's experience when he exclaims:—"Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire besides thee." There is no happiness out of God. "Without God in the world" is the sum of misery and desolation. There is no peace to the wicked, and there is no real blessedness. God alone is the fountain of living waters, as the source of spiritual life and happiness. Our misery is in wandering from Him, and our only and abiding good is in returning to Him.

Men are ever seeking substitutes for God. Revelation and all complete experience affirm that peace and satisfaction are nowhere but in "the Father of Lights." Both declare the vanity of earth without the comforts of religion, and utter their solemn warning against trifling with the interests of eternity. Yet this forsaking of God for other objects of worship and other grounds of happiness is almost universal. It is certain that Christ offers rest to all who labor and are heavy laden, if they will come to Him; and God is pledged to make good the declaration that "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." All are invited and challenged to test the claims of religion, to taste and see that the Lord is good, and to do the will of God, that they may "know of the doctrine." The irreligious, however, seldom think of God and His grace as that which they now want to relieve their sorrows and to gladden their hearts, but as the necessary and melancholy companion of old age and death. They regard experimental Christianity, indeed, as the enemy of all earthly happiness, and as a marplot to all plans and schemes of worldly enjoyment.

Under these false views of God and His requirements the young turn away from religion, and seek in pleasure and sin what they can only obtain in the knowledge and service of Christ. Older people are deluded by the promises of mammon, and "covetousness, which is idolatry," corrupts and leads them away from the fountain of life and peace. In other directions, as of ambition, sensual indulgence, social excitements, and even in things which in themselves are lawful, many are painfully and, as they may imagine, hopefully striving for contentment and rest. The sin and the failure of all is the attempt to do without God, and the supposition that anything in the universe can supply His place as our light and our salvation. He is and must ever be the essential portion, and all created good must be subordinate. All the beautiful and precious gifts of Providence have but a planetary office, ministering to our enjoyment in an inferior degree, while our abiding happiness comes from the director ray of Him who is both sun and shield. Created things can no more satisfy man's spiritual nature than reflected light can meet the vital necessities of our earth.

While this disposition to seek happiness in created objects is so universal in the unconverted, the temptation to do so is often strong in believers. The Lord is a jealous God, and He will not give His glory to another. Our love to Him must be supreme, and He must be to us a satisfying portion. Nothing can therefore be more offensive to Him than the wanderings of desire and affection. He is dishonored by the avowal, in heart or in act, that His service does not yield happiness and contentment. It is this libel and contempt which pleasure-loving and worldly-minded Christians are inflicting upon the name and service of Christ. At this point the danger is great, and the heart must be kept with all diligence. God is the happiness of the spiritually-minded. If the soul has lost this consciousness of God as the chief joy, it has fallen upon some object of spiritual idolatry. As the hold of heavenly things relaxes, our grasp of the earthly becomes more tenacious. Thus this process of defection from God, and seeking a substitute for Him, may be either begun or consummated in the once pure heart. The world, in its protean shapes of riches, pleasures, ambition, and vices, has usurped the place in the heart which the Saviour once occupied. Happy are the true believers who are clear of this sin, and who have escaped this delusion; and fortunate are they who have awakened to a sense of their error in time to retrace their steps!

Too often the lesson of wisdom is learned late in life, or perhaps too late to be of any practical value. It is difficult to convince men that they are pursuing phantoms and shadows when they are laboring for fortune and worldly success, to the exclusion and neglect of godliness. The emptiness of fashion and all its accompaniments is hard to impress upon the youthful mind while her votaries are so largely in the majority. It is the crowning work of faith and of the Holy Spirit to put all created things beneath the believer's feet, so that God alone is left as the strength of his heart and his portion forever. The worthlessness of all will, however, be exposed some time. It will be in the revelations of the awakened prodigal, whose wretchedness, disappointment, and utter beggary happily leads him back to the Father's house, or it will be in the awful disclosures of eternity, amidst the despair and anguish of the lost soul, and in the flames of torment which constrained the rich man to cry out for a drop of water. It is a mercy indeed to learn the truth before the day of probation closes, and the greatest of all mercies to learn it early in life. Then life will not be wasted upon these vain endeavors after happiness, nor expended upon "broken cisterns that can hold no water."

Sunday School Missionary Society of Felicity Street School.

The superintendent, W. H. Foster, Esq., has furnished us the following statement of the plan of a Sunday School Missionary Society as organized and in operation in the Felicity street church of this city. We publish it in accordance with the request of the Sunday School Convention. If other schools should not adopt it altogether, the statement will prove suggestive and helpful in maturing and perfecting different plans for the promotion of the missionary spirit among the children.

The Felicity Street Sunday School and Missionary Society, as its name imports, is both a Sabbath school and a missionary association. All who are members of one are members of the other. Officers, teachers, and scholars of the school are all missionaries, by the fact of membership of the society, and not by payment of initiation and monthly dues. All this is abolished, and the funds for missionary purposes are raised by the children, who report to their teachers monthly the amount, large or small, they have been able to save or collect during the month.

The Mode of Collection.—The school is divided into classes, each under the charge of a teacher. Each class is named with an appropriate name, accompanied with a suitable corresponding motto, as "Lambs of the Fold," "He will gather them with His arm and carry them in His bosom;" "Truth Tellers," "Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord;" "Wesleyans," "The best of all is God is with us;" "Flower Gatherers," "I will get me to the mountains of myrrh, and to the hills of frankincense."

We have the further names of Dewdrops, Rosebuds, Little Warriors, Crown Jewels, Lambs of Jesus, Standard Bearers, Little Pilgrims, Olive Leaves, Wide Awakes, Pillars of the Temple, etc.

On missionary Sabbath, with us the last Sabbath of each month, the teachers are each furnished with an envelope with the name of his class upon it, and collects from each member of his class the moneys saved and collected by them, and places it all in the envelope, writing the aggregate amount of the collections of the class on the face of the envelope, also the name of the scholar who has reported the largest amount to his teacher. This scholar is the banner scholar of his class for the month, and enjoys the privilege and distinction of making the monthly report for the class. The superintendent from the stand calls the names of the classes for missionary reports, when each class reports in turn, through the scholar who has reported to his teacher the largest amount, and whose name is written on the envelope, who advances and hands the envelope to the superintendent, who then publicly reports to the school the name of the class, the aggregate amount, and the name of the scholar making the report.

After all the classes have been called and reported, the sum total of the reports of all the classes is given by the superintendent, with the name of that class which has the largest amount, which is proclaimed the banner class for the ensuing month.

Whenever a class has reported $5, and for every $5 they report, they have the right to select and designate a life member of the society, one of their own members, or whoever they please to select, and an appropriate certificate of membership, signed by the officers of the society, is furnished and delivered.

Among the advantages of this plan are: 1. That the old system of membership and roll call to pay dues took up the entire Sabbath school hour, while this requires fifteen to twenty minutes only. 2. Under the present system we realize about four times that amount monthly that was collected by the old system. 3. There is a degree of emulation created, which is desirable in every good word and work.

To increase the interest of the school in the cause of missions, and bring the subject more nearly home to them, we have adopted the plan of making appropriations of our mission funds.

The last two years we have been remitting, doubly to our missionaries in China, from whom we have answers in reply, accompanied by curious specimens of Chinese art, and picture illustrations of their customs, language, and religion.

We receive also letters direct from the missionaries addressed to the children, who are thus brought into direct communication with the mission work, and thereby become more fully identified with it, and more deeply interested in the cause of missions.

OPELOUSAS RAILROAD SOLD.

The sale took place yesterday, as advertised, in the presence of a large concourse of citizens of property and character, and was awaited with intense interest by all assembled.

Mr. Morgan, who was present, kept in the background, though his representative was near the stand.

During the somewhat tedious reading of the mortgage certificate from the various parishes, in which the order of seizure and sale was often repeated at length, there was breathless stillness.

Judge Durell had come down himself from the judgment seat, and sat smiling and talking in a low tone to a friend upon the end of the platform.

At last the reading was ended, and General West began to call for bidders for the property, ten per cent. of the cost payment to be paid in treasury notes at the stand, fifteen per cent. more in five days, and the residue as soon as the deeds were ready.

His voice hesitated and faltered as he called for bids. The first came from the rear, but came after several calls without answer.

"One million of dollars."

The next bid was

"Fifteen hundred thousand dollars," and was either by Mr. Whitney or Mr. Jules A. Blanc, between whom the bidding continued until Mr. Blanc bid "Two millions of dollars."

Then, after one or two calls, came a bid from Mr. Whitney,

"Two millions and fifty thousand dollars."

There was no response to a further call for bids.

At last the marshal pronounced the word "Gone! The road is sold."

"Who," said the marshal, "is the purchaser?"

"Charles Morgan."

Mr. Morgan's friends gathered around him to congratulate him, though he did not seem to regard his purchase as a very low one; but he said he would now show the people of New Orleans how to build a road.—Picayune, May 26.

NOTHING so adorns the face as cheerfulness. When the heart is in flower its bloom and beauty pass to the features.

Plan of Episcopal Visitations for 1869.

FIRST DISTRICT—BISHOP PIERCE.

St. Louis, St. Louis, Sept. 1.
Missouri, Chillicothe, Sept. 15.
Indian Mission; Ockmulgee, Sept. 29.
Arkansas, Fayetteville, Nov. 10.
Little Rock, Magnolia, Nov. 24.

SECOND DISTRICT—BISHOP KAVANAUGH.

Kentucky, Cynthiana, Sept. 1.
West Virginia, Point Pleasant, Sept. 15.
Memphis, Holly Springs, Nov. 3.
South Georgia, Cuthbert, Dec. 1.
South Carolina, Cheraw, Dec. 15.

THIRD DISTRICT—BISHOP PAINE.

Tennessee, Murfreesboro, Sept. 15.
Montgomery, Union Springs, Dec. 1.
Mobile, Selma, Dec. 15.

FOURTH DISTRICT—BISHOP M'TYEIRE.

Illinois, Bloomington, Sept. 15.
Louisville, Owensboro, Sept. 22.
Mississippi, Jackson, Dec. 1.
Louisiana, Shreveport, Dec. 15.
Baltimore, Baltimore, March 3.

FIFTH DISTRICT—BISHOP DOGGETT.

Holston, Abingdon, Sept. 22.
Virginia, Richmond, Nov. 10.
North Carolina, Newbern, Nov. 24.
North Georgia, Rome, Dec. 8.
Florida, Lake City, Dec. 22.

SIXTH DISTRICT—BISHOP WIGHTMAN.

East Texas, Henderson, Oct. 26.
Trinity, Paris, Nov. 3.
Northwest Texas, Weatherford, Nov. 17.
West Texas, Goliad, Dec. 1.
Texas, Lagrange, Dec. 15.

SEVENTH DISTRICT—BISHOP MARVIN.

Columbia, Corvallis, Oregon, Sept. 1.
Pacific, Vacaville, Cal., Oct. 6.

THE COLORED CONFERENCES.

Mississippi, at Crystal Springs, Bishop McTyeire.
Memphis, at Nashville, Bishop Paine.
Georgia, at Macon, Bishop Pierce.
Kentucky, at Winchester, Bishop Kavanaugh.
(Time to be given.)

MARRIED.

On the 12th of May, 1869, in Baldwin county, Alabama, by Rev. J. J. Grace, Mr. JAMES A. CARNEY to Miss LOUISA A. DOLIVE.

Wilmington (North Carolina) Journal please copy.

On the 6th instant, at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev. W. Wadsworth, Mr. WILLIAM L. MITCHEL, of the Brookhaven Journal, to Miss ARCOLA GRANBERRY, of Copiah county, Mississippi.

OBITUARIES.

JOHN J. GOZA, oldest son of J. A. and Frances T. Goza, was born March 19, 1851; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South when about nine years old; and died February 24, 1869, at his father's residence in Carroll county, Mississippi, of hemorrhage of the kidney.

John was a noble young man. Respectful and obedient, he delighted to serve his parents. Home was the most attractive place to him. Industrious, he took a great deal of care off of his father's hands. He was a model to the young men of the neighborhood in this respect. As a Christian his piety was uniform up to a few months previous to his death, when, in an unguarded hour, he suffered the evil one to persuade him he was unworthy to be a member of the church; but by the persuasion of his pastor he concluded to remain a member thereof. At this time his health was bad, and he was denied the privilege of attending the services of the sanctuary; but from his conduct after the conversation between him and his pastor we have every reason to believe he inherits a mansion in that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

May our heavenly Father, who doeth all things well, sanctify this affliction to the good of the souls of his bereaved parents and brothers and sisters!

P. A. JOHNSTON.

Died, at his residence, near Mansfield, on the 4th of April, Brother ISHAM BUTTERWORTH, in the seventy first year of his age.

He was a native of Virginia, but for many years a resident of Desoto parish Louisiana. He was a professor of religion and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South—a man of character and worth. He had raised and educated a large family of children, all of whom, I believe, honor their parents by serving the God of their father.

The circumstances of his death were sad. Being afflicted with epilepsy, he had an attack and fell in the fire. No one being present, he was severely burned, and only lived a short time; but he came to and was conscious and resigned. Thus passed away another good man, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Mansfield, Louisiana.

JOHN PIPES.

Nashville Christian Advocate please copy.

Died, at his residence, at Macon, Mississippi, on Tuesday evening, May 18, 1869, Hon. ISRAEL WELSH, in the forty-eighth year of his age.

After a painful illness of several weeks, borne with patience and Christian resignation, he quietly passed away, leaving behind him the savor of a good name, as well as abundant evidence that he has gone to enjoy the rest that remains for the people of God.

WILL. H. LEITH.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchonpitoulas street. my29 3m

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARANTEED—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. my29 tfs

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO., my29 tfs 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street, New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2, $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above. my29 tfs

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price. A. WILKINS, my29 tfs Detroit, Mich.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June,

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Judge William B. Egan, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART, my22 President.

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. my22 tfn

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, my22 tfs Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address SPIRIT PICTURE CO., my22 tfs 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S
ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., my15 tfs Advertising Agents, 40 Park Row, New York.

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO., my15 tfs Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens FEBRUARY 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00

For circular address ja21m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

That the American Watch is superior in accuracy as a time keeper, and in substantial value, to its imported rivals, is now generally conceded by the intelligent. It is so made as to render imperfection a physical impossibility.

The question now is, "Which is the best American Watch?" Then follows, "Which thoroughly good Watch is really the cheapest?" We answer:

The Waltham Watches have stood the test of time. Waltham is the original seat of American watch-making. The idea of making our own watches, and making each piece by machinery specially adapted to it, so that a piece lost or broken may at once be replaced exactly by another of its sort, originated here; and here it has been carried to perfection. Every year since the start has witnessed improvements in machinery, processes, and workmanship, until watches are now made at Waltham as cheaply as anywhere, as the vast and ever-widening demand for them abundantly proves.

The success of the American Watch has incited several attempts at rivalry, which we are nowise inclined to disparage. All of these are hopeful, and will doubtless improve with experience and the lapse of time. But buyers must feel greater confidence in the time keeping of a watch from this pioneer concern than in one manufactured by any of its young rivals. If any do not, we urge them to inquire of their friends who have bought and carried the American Watch. Every purchaser may have a guarantee, if he will, that this Watch shall give entire satisfaction.

So constant and signal have been the improvements in machinery at the Waltham manufactory that the Company have not only been enabled to make better and better Watches, but they now sell them for fewer dollars in green-backs than they cost in gold before the war.—But they wish no one to buy their Watches because of their cheapness. They commend them as better time-keepers than any other which are or can be sold at prices so moderate. They ask purchasers not to be persuaded by importunate dealers, who may be governed by considerations of profit into buying watches of doubtful accuracy, when, by buying a Waltham they may be sure of getting a first rate time-keeper at a moderate price.

An illustrated description of the different styles of Watches now manufactured by the Company sent to any address on application.

No watches retailed by the Company.

ROBBINS & APPLETON, my15 3mr General Agents, 182 Broadway, N. Y.

CABINET ORGANS.

QUALITY BEST—PRICES LOWEST.

1. That the quality of the MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS is the very best is not questioned by unprejudiced and well-informed persons.—These Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest premiums at Industrial Exhibitions to the number of seventy five, including the First Class Medal at the Paris Exposition. They are recommended as the standard of excellence, the best, by several hundred of the most eminent musicians in America and Europe, whose testimony is printed, and will be sent to any one desiring it.

2. It is the fixed policy of the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company to sell their Organs always at the least remunerative profit. They are now very much the largest manufacturers of these instruments in the world. With increase of business they have been able to make corresponding increase and improvement in machinery and facilities for manufacture, by means of which they are now producing yet more perfect work than ever before, and this at increased economy in cost. Accordingly they are now selling the best Organs they have ever made at prices which are as low, or even less than would be the cost of manufacture of inferior instruments without the advantage of such facilities.

Four-octave Organs, $50 each. Five-octave Organs, with Knee Swell, $100. Five-octave Double Reed Organs, with five stops, Tremulant and Knee Swell, $125. The same, six stops, with addition of one octave of Sub bass, connected with the Manuals, $150. The same, seven stops, with Sub bass and Octave Coupler (each key commands four separate reeds, giving this style nearly twice the power of a Double Reed Organ, with much greater variety.) $175. Five-octave Double Reed Cabinet Organ, with five stops, Automatic Swell and Improved Vox Humana, the finest instrument of its size which can be made, $170. Many other styles at proportionate prices up to $1,000 each.

Lowest prices printed, invariable, and alike to all.

Circulars, with full particulars as to styles, prices peculiarities of construction, etc., sent free to every applicant. Address the MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., my15 4tr 154 Tremont street, Boston; 596 Broadway, New York.

"A WORD TO HORSEMEN."

Dr. TOBIAS' celebrated VENETIAN HORSE LINIMENT has been tested by the first Horsemen in this country, and proved to be superior to any other. The late Hiram Woodruff, of "trotting fame," was never without a bottle in his stable. It is also used by Colonel Bush, of the Jerome Park Course, at Fordham, New York, who has over twenty running horses under his care, among which rank some of the finest stock in America. It is warranted to cure Lameness, Sprains, Scratches, Bruises, Galls, Cuts, Wind Galls, Colic, Sore Throat, Nail in the Foot, and Over-heating, when used according to the directions.

All who own or employ Horses are assured that this Liniment will do all, if not more, in curing the above named complaints. No Horse need die of Colic, if, when first taken, the Liniment is used according to the directions. Always have a bottle in your stable.

Price, in pint bottles, $1. The genuine is signed S. 1. Tobias on the outside wrapper.

For sale by the Druggists, Saddlers and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. my15 5tr

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address W. A. HENDERSON & CO., my1 tfs Cleveland, Ohio.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 25 vols	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 50
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY.

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes, Pens, Rulers, Pencils, Inks, Blank Books, Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes.

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address ROBT. J. HARP, Agent, my15 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural, and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold
Surplus, - - 1,000,000, Gold

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific Coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. ap10 3mr

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO., Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise. Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. my15 tfs

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER for sale by principal Druggists,
CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE, my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,
AND
McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
No. 52 Union Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON, W. H. DAMERON. je23 1y

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE
sep15 1y New Orleans.

F. HATHORN, late of Shropshire & Hathorn. ALF. H. PIERSON.

HATHORN & PIERSON,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
And Wholesale Dealers in
Groceries, Oils and Drugs,
Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

FOR SAMPLE STOCKING.—Samples and circulars of Lamb's Family Knitting Machine, and Chicopee Sewing Machine. Address, enclosing red stamp, JAMES D. ORNE, General Agent, my8 tfs 922 Chestnut st., Philada., Pa.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address DR. S. S. FITCH, mh13 9mr 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mr Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER, PLANT Syringe, Window Washer and Garden Engine for $5. Send stamp for circulars to N. E. P. PUMP CO., my8 tfs Danvers, Mass.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO CO., New York. ap10 tfs

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

LITTLE THINGS.

BY MRS. VIRGINIA FRANTZ.

A little dewdrop, sparkling bright,
Responsive to the morning dawn,
Said, "I'll put out my tiny light,
I'll not be missed when I am gone."
Forthwith it closed its silvery eye,
And vanished with the sweet perfume;
But ah! the rose whereon it beamed
Soon lost the brightness of its bloom.

A child that eagerly had watched
The opening rose-bud day by day,
Came to the spot and grieved and wept
To see it withering away.
The sun went up, and noon and eve,
Many fair roses cheered the bower,
But each its own sweet dewdrop kept,
Within its heart, a freshening power.

Oh! have we not, like drops of dew,
Some rose-bud for our special care—
Some work that we alone can do—
A heart to keep all fresh and fair?
Oh! let us never, never be
The drop that, wearied of its light,
For one unkind, impatient word,
Some flower of happiness may blight.

A gentle word, a word of love,
It is a little thing to speak;
But I have seen it bring a ray
Of joy unto a tearful cheek!
An unkind word, an angry look,
Say you it is a little thing?
A word a loving heart has broke!
A look has left in life a sting.

Oh! let us light our little sphere
So long as God doth will it so;
The smallest light that He hath made
Doth please Him with its faithful glow.
We may not all be suns and stars;
God loves the dewdrop just as well,
Though they light not the universe,
If they but sparkle where they fell.

Then let us do our little work,
Nor think it small if we have made
One human heart keep fresh and green!
One life's lost bloom makes others fade.
Yes, other hearts will fade for what
This heart, if nourished, might have been;
Oh! let us faithful do our part,
That joyless lives be not our sin.

One star lights not the midnight dome,
One stream fills not the ocean deep,
One bird makes not the forest gay,
But all in harmony must keep;
Each gladly do his little part,
And then the great harmonious whole
Will praise the everlasting God
While the eternal ages roll.

—Brandon Republican.

FLOWERETS.

FROM THE GERMAN.

I.—THE STOLEN HORSE.

A peddling thief had stolen a farmer's only horse. Of course the unfortunate man had to buy another animal, for seed-time was at hand. He traveled fifty miles to an auction mart, where horses and mules were for sale. There, among the numerous horses, our farmer discovers the one stolen from him! Immediately he approached the man offering his horse for sale, stating that that was his horse, and that he intended to have him back. But the possessor of the horse refused to give up the animal, saying that he had bought him years ago. Then the farmer very quickly, with his hat, shut the horse's eyes, asking the thief—for the thief it was—if he had owned the horse for years, to say with which eye the horse was blind. Then the rogue was puzzled, for he had not examined the horse's eyes; but he guessed and said, "With the right eye." Then the farmer laughed and said that it wasn't the right eye. "Oh!" exclaimed the thief, "I made a mistake. It is the left eye with which the horse is blind." The farmer then laughed still more, took his hat away, and told the crowd which had gathered around that the horse was not blind at all. Thus the thief was detected, arrested, and punished.

II.—THE WOLF.

John was herdsman of a large flock of sheep, which had their pasture adjoining a large forest. One day, for the sake of the mere fun of the thing, he cried, "The wolf is coming! the wolf is coming!"

Then the farmers came running with axes, thrashing-flails, and fence-rails, looking out for the wolf in order to kill him. Not finding him, they returned. John felt greatly tickled at his success.

On the following day John repeated the very same trick. Again the farmers, though not so numerous as on the previous day, came running at full speed to kill the wolf which John had cried out was coming. Of course they were again doomed to disappointment, John in the meantime chuckling with glee.

But, behold! on the third day the wolf actually appeared. Now John cried with all his might, "The wolf! the wolf!" The farmers, however, did not heed his cry; they had suspected John's rogueries. Now the wolf scattered the flock, and even killed a little lamb which belonged to John himself, and which had been his pet.

If confidence you would possess,
Ne'er from the truth digress:
J. B. A. AHRENS.

A CHILD MISSIONARY.

'Ma'am,' said a little girl in India, recently converted, to the wife of a missionary—'ma'am, I have many words to say. I am a Christian. I know Jesus, and love Him. My people are heathen. They worship idols. They know nothing of Jesus. My grandmother is a very old woman. She will not live long; and I want to tell her before she dies that 'it is a faithful saying that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.''

'But, Jane, your people are far away. How can you tell them all this?'

'Ma'am, this is what I wish to say. I am strong enough to walk now, and I have a great desire to go. Ma'am, will you let me go?'

'Jane, I am a little afraid. You are but a young girl. Your people are all idolaters. They may try to keep you, and persuade you again to bow down to an image.'

Calm and firm, she said, 'No, ma'am; you must not fear that. I will never worship an idol again.'

'You think so now, dear Jane; but they may be very angry, and beat you.'

'I will ask Jesus to keep me and help me to bear the beating; and I know He will. Please, ma'am, let me go. In fourteen days I will come back again; so please, ma'am, let me go.'

This could not be withstood. Jane was allowed to go; and an old Christian man, going that way, was requested to take charge of her.

Jane was again and again reminded that it was only by 'looking up to Jesus' she could hope to stand firm.

On the fourteenth day she returned. With a gladsome face and quick step she sought for her who was indeed to her a mother.

'Salaam, ma'am; just in time,' was the first salutation.

'Just in time for what, Jane?'

'To tell my grandmother about Jesus. She was very sick when I reached her home; and I sat down and told her all about it. She did not seem to know at first what I meant; but she lived three days; and I prayed for her, and talked to her, when she could hear it; and O! ma'am, I hope she is saved. A little before she died, she said, 'I do believe in Jesus.' Would not He save her, ma'am?'

Late in the day, and weak as was that poor old woman's faith, who shall say it was not equal to his who said, 'Lord, remember me?' And, if so, may we not hope that she has entered the kingdom of heaven? London Juvenile Missionary Magazine.

A REMARKABLE ENCOUNTER.—A remarkable story comes from Bodega bay, California, of a terrific battle between a sperm whale and a number of swordfish, which resulted in the defeat of the whale. The fight was witnessed by a farmer plowing in his field near the coast, only a few miles north of the "Golden Gate." The sea was smooth, and the first indication of the conflict was a commotion in the water nearly a mile from shore, but as the combatants rapidly approached the land, their movements became distinctly visible. The swordfish were five in number; the whale, though displaying great activity, was no match for them. In making their thrusts into the sides of the whale, the swordfish kept clear of his tail, one blow from which would have been fatal to either of them. With maddened fury the whale struck right and left, then dived to escape his tormentors; but they followed quickly, and soon brought him to the surface. Blood was seen spirting from deep gashes in his sides. The contest lasted nearly one hour, when the whale, with a mighty effort, flung himself upon some low rocks, and soon died. Many persons from the neighboring village of Petaluma went out to view the carcass. It was fifty or sixty feet in length, and there were gashes two feet deep and six feet long in its sides.

A GRANDSON of the Governor of Virginia, a child of some four or five summers, was on a visit to its maternal grandfather, who is a wealthy landholder in Ohio. One day, after making his first visit to Sunday school, with the religious instruction of which he seemed duly impressed, he accompanied his grandfather to gather the fruit of a large walnut tree. On the way the little fellow said: "Grandpa, who do all these woods and fields belong to?"—"Why," said the matter-of-fact gentleman, "to me." "No, sir," emphatically responded the child, "they belong to God." The grandfather said nothing till they reached the richly laden tree, when he asked, "Well, my boy, whom does this tree belong to?" This was a poser, and for a moment the boy hesitated; but casting a longing look upon the nuts, he replied: "Well, grandfather, the tree belongs to God, but the walnuts are ours."

FARM AND GARDEN.

WINES.

The coloring matter is contained only in the skins or husks. It is of a resinous nature, and, therefore, insoluble in the must, so long as no alcohol has been formed. For this reason the must will only produce white wine where the must is not allowed to ferment on the skins. In this mode, i. e., fermentating on the skins, the coloring matter is dissolved by the alcohol formed during the process of fermentation. The more thoroughly this is done the darker is the color of the wine; the richer the must is in sugar the more alcohol is formed; the longer the wine is left in contact with the skins—the color too appears darker—the less acid the wine contains. The addition of sugar water of the same per cent. as the must, and in proportion to acid, i. e., reducing it to from four and a half to seven and a half thousandths per cent., instead of lessening the color, but gives it a darker shade. Coloring matter when brought into contact with the air, oxydizes, turns a brownish red, and gradually separates from the wine. Red wines should, therefore, be transferred from one cask into another, by means of a gutta percha or leather pipe.

TANNIN.

This is a substance of peculiarly astringent taste, which is important in making wines, because it frees it from a number of those substances, partly useless and partly injurious, that are contained in the must. In the grape tannin is present in the seeds, skins, and stalks. The greater amount of tannin in red wines, when fermented on the stalks, seeds, and skins, seems to be the reason why they are generally preferred, as a common beverage in Southern countries, to the white wines, containing a greater amount of tartar. The effect of the high temperature of those countries, in relaxing the muscles, would become greater, by the frequent use of a beverage, containing much tartar, and of a laxative character, while tannin tends to produce a greater contraction in the muscular system than any other substance in daily use. The Northern man, on the contrary, requires in his drink something that quickens the blood, and promotes its circulation, rather than an astringent.

NITROGENOUS COMPOUNDS

consist of vegetable albumen, gluten, etc., and are combined with other ingredients in the unripe fruit. These substances, dissolved in the must as completely as the sugar, under certain circumstances, turn into the fermenting principle. With the increasing temperature of the atmosphere a change of air is constantly taking place in the cask, the heat of the day rarifying the wine, and expelling from the empty space the air already partially deprived of its oxygen. Through the coldness of the night the wine is again thickened and condensed, thus admitting fresh air, by means of which new oxygen is received, and new lees are formed, of the material already existing for this purpose. There is much less matter left in red wines after fermentation, because being allowed to ferment on the skins, seeds, and stems, the tannin extracted from them settles, with a corresponding quantity of yeast matter, in the form of an insoluble compound. Red wines which have become settled, and have fully undergone fermentation, and have been kept in contact with the skins and seeds for several months, will never work again after the first drawing off. Wines in which the whole of their sugar has been decomposed are called dry or sour wines.

AROMA OR FLAVORING SUBSTANCES.

Besides the peculiarly agreeable flavor of wines made from grapes, and by which they are distinguished from all others, made from fruits and berries, there is still another peculiar fragrance developed in some wines, made from particular varieties of grapes. This odor resembles the fragrance of the grape blossoms, and is known as aroma or bouquet of the wine. Neither the general flavor of the wine nor bouquet is present in the must, but the substance exists there, from which these are developed, during fermentation and in the cask. The former, the characteristic flavor of the wine, is due to a fatty acid discovered by Liebig and Pelouze, and which has been named by them Oenanthic acid or ether, as it always occurs in connection with ether. As bouquet wines, or those abounding in fine aroma, bring a price double or treble of those in which this matter is deficient, it is easy to see what damage is done by neglecting to select and assort the grapes, and using only those of the ripest and best quality. It has been determined by actual experiments that the bouquet matter (aroma) is contained in the skins of the grapes. For this reason the must of bouquet grapes should be allowed to ferment a few days on the skins of the selected berries.—A. C. Cook, in Southern Cultivator.

Bone Dust as a Fertilizer.—How to Prepare It.

During my recent visit to Jackson I contracted for several tons of bone dust, and finding it too expensive to manipulate it with sulphuric acid, the usual mode, I immediately wrote to Professor Hilgard, of Oxford, for some plan by which I could derive the most benefit with least expense, and herewith communicate his plan.

"I would advise you to take about an equal bulk or more of fresh ashes, and half a barrel or more of slaked lime, well mixed with the ashes, mix with the bone meal, in a tight hogshead, and pour water on so as to cover the meal and ashes all the time. In ten days, or two weeks, there will not be a grain of hard bone left. Then dry and use as you would the real bone dust—it is even better. I treat all my bone refuse this way without crushing. Two months suffice for the hardest leg bone to be made a mush. If you cannot get up the needful amount of fresh ashes take the leached, and add to each barrel, ashes dry, five to eight pounds sal soda."

Under our old system of killing mules and oxen, to make more money to buy more mules and oxen, we have their bones bleaching on every plantation, which may be turned to good account by gathering them up and applying Dr. Hilgard's advice in preparing them as the best of fertilizers. If but a ton, or a half ton, can be collected by any one, he will be amply rewarded for his trouble. I have seen no plan for dissolving bones to compare with Dr. Hilgard's. Dissolving with sulphuric acid would require a cemented vat, and then the enormous amount of acid required to dissolve the bone meal would be a serious objection, and prevent its use in a great measure, even where the material was accessible. I regard this plan of dissolving bones so valuable, and calculated to do so much good in the future, that I beg you to give it publicity in your valuable paper.—C. M. Vaiden, in Mississippi Clarion.

MOLE-KILLING.—I tried several kinds of traps, but with poor success. At last I found a very simple remedy, viz: salt. Arm yourselves with a stick about one inch in diameter, slightly tapering at one end, a small bag of coarse salt, (one pint or quart,) start out after a rain, and when you find a fresh mole sign, make a smooth opening into the molo hole with the stick, (I commonly use my forefinger,) put into the hole one teaspoonful of salt cover this opening carefully with a chip, leaf, or clod of dirt, as may be most convenient. Then sift over this covering through your fingers sufficient dirt to completely cover up the clod or leaf. This is necessary, and done to exclude the light. The mole being very timid will become frightened at the least light, and hasten on or change his course. Do not let any dirt fall in the salt, and leave everything as nearly as like you found it as possible.

I do not know how the salt acts upon the mole, but if these instructions are closely followed I guarantee that the moles will disappear. Until I discovered this remedy I was greatly annoyed by moles. But now, friend Hardup, on that point I am easy.—Southern Cultivator.

ARCHBISHOP MANNING ON THE RITUALISTS.—The London Times copies from the Globe the following remarks which the Roman Catholic prelate introduced into his sermon, delivered on Easter day, in the Moorfield cathedral:

The doctrine of the Eucharist, Dr. Manning expounded as the truth of the Holy Catholic and Roman Church. In the suburbs of this church, in the twilight, were good and honest men, who had come to receive the faith which their church did not teach them; they believed in the real presence, they erected their altars, they made a tabernacle, for which their church gave them no authority. They received and treasured up what they believed to be the body of Christ. They adopted the comely and beautiful vestments of the church. He loved them for the love which they bore to the shadow of their Lord; his whole heart yearned over them.—The church would do anything and sacrifice anything, except only God's truth, to open the doors wide and admit them into her communion. It was based on the assumption that the truths of Christianity were addressed to the reason, only that reason must be enlightened by the Spirit of God. So far goes the quotation. The reporter seems to have volunteered the comment that "the most interesting feature of the discourse was that in which the archbishop gave utterance to sentiments so respectful and affectionate toward the Ritualists." It makes these persons very angry when they are blamed for their approaches to Romanism by Protestants. How do they feel when they are praised and invited in at the "wide" door by the archbishop, who was once, like them, a professed member of the Church of England, but discovered the inconsistency of that position, and went over to Rome, where he teaches and practices all that consistently which the Church of England does not teach nor give authority for?—Exchange.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE OF THE CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
del2 6m 97 and 99 Julia street.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cidar Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steal Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Smut Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
jal6 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 91 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. jal6 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

In existence thirty years. del2 6m

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS A year. Address FOX & CO., may15 tfk Saco, Maine.

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tylar,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,

Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, . . . President.
W. S. PIKE, . . . Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, . . . Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, . . . General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,
OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.
ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre,	W. S. Monnt,
John Davidson,	L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier,	William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks,	William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt,	T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper,	Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike,	Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard,	John C. Sinnott
J. Canfield,	C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith,	W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON, . . . President.
W. S. PIKE, . . . Vice President.
R. W. YOUNGS, . . . Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER, . . . Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST., (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. F. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Roshorough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

A. EYRICH,

(Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL

AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
Manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and
Heating Stoves of all kinds.
to13 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

F. M. ECKFORD, New Orleans. GEO. ALPH. CAGE, Columbus, Miss.

ECKFORD & CAGE,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 42 Union street, New Orleans.
oct10 3m

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER,

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
nov1 New Orleans, La.

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS. JOHN DARBY & CO., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid,—and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS.—MUNN & CO., EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above.
my1 tfs

$10.—INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY household. Perfectly wonderful. Everybody buys at first sight. Agents making fortunes. Illustrated circulars free. Address

APEX S. M. CO.,
my8 tfn 208 Broadway, New York.

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,

AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, - - - $18 00
Tuition, Full session, - - - 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address

REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS'

Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE,

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)..	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two.....	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three.....	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four.....	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

Rev. J. O. KENNER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

CHURCH OF THE STRANGERS, New York.—Visitors to the city of New York are informed that they will find divine service every Sunday, in the large Chapel of the University, Washington Square, at ten and a half A. M. and at seven and a half P. M. The evening service in summer is at eight o'clock. Waverley Place, immediately north of the New York Hotel, out of Broadway, runs west to Washington Square, on the east side of which is the University. The entrance to the church is the main door of the University. University Place cars run from the door of the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the door of the church. From the St. Nicholas and Metropolitan, take the cars corner of Broadway and Broome, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. At the Astor House take University Place cars, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. Strangers will find cordial welcome and polite attention.

The pastor is Rev. Dr. DEEMS, who devotes himself to the spiritual interests of strangers. If any be sick, let them address him a note by mail, as "Pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York," and it will reach him. The ladies who compose the "Society of the Sisters of the Stranger" procure medical, legal and spiritual help for strangers in perplexity, distress or sickness. Address "Sisters of the Stranger," care Rev. Dr. Deems, New York.

If you are coming to New York soon, cut this out and paste it in your memorandum book.
mar6 2m o

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W O Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument, $5; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
sep5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, Louisiana, was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty-seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as "PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC," we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold by Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.
ap22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio, Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PAPER WAREHOUSE,

137.....Poydras street.....137

Between Camp and St. Charles streets,
New Orleans.

Agent for the sale of R. Hoe & Co.'s Printing Presses and James Conner's Sons Type.
no7 3m

JAMES MACLENNAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY, ETC.,

Greenville, Mississippi.

Refers to Governor B. G. Humphreys, and many others in Mississippi, and to R. L. Walker, 190 Common street, Rev. J. O. Kenner, D. D., and Rev. J. B. Walker, D. D., 112 Camp street, New Orleans, La. oct31 3m

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDRENS SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this Institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term.. ....$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term..... 30 00
Contingent fee, per term..... 2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circular to

O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand.

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan.
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,

No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july6 1y

J. H. MASSEY,

Formerly of the firm of J. H. Massey & Co., having formed business relations with

MoSTEA & VALUE,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN DRY GOODS,

68.....Canal Street.....68

will be pleased there to receive his old friends and acquaintances. He is satisfied he can offer such inducements as will be satisfactory to all wishing to make investments in his line.

Orders addressed to him from parties not wishing to visit the city will receive his personal attention. oct17 3m

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug5 6m

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank—one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages.....$216 00
Music 50 00
French or one Modern Language 20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address

WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE, SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages.....$80 00
Incidental Fee. 5 00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75 00
Incidental Fee..... 5 00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20 00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust.
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday
JAN.	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday
JULY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC.				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have again to notice very little animation in the general market. We hear reiterated complaints of increasing dullness in most branches of the wholesale trade, only a moderate movement in sugar, nothing of any moment in molasses, great dullness in Western produce, and a very limited business in our leading staple. Our wholesale dealers, nevertheless, still anticipate a revival of trade before the usual summer stagnation, and are encouraged in this hope by the stocks throughout the interior having been much broken, while the supplies here are not only ample, but are offered at unusually low prices. Operations in Western produce have been restricted by scant stocks, the West sending us but little more than sufficient to meet the local demand. Prices of corn, in particular, have consequently advanced to a point considerably above the limits of foreign orders, and must, of course, recede should our future receipts be in excess of the demand for home consumption.

The weather has been clear and pleasant. Our accounts from the country are more encouraging, but we still receive pretty general complaints of backwardness of crops, and serious injury from inauspicious weather. A good deal of damage has also been caused by the recent crevasses.

The river has fallen one inch since our last report, and is now six inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 21st instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	2775
Mobile.....	560
Lake.....	3
Texas.....	2
Total.....	3340

On Saturday, under the depressing influence of further unfavorable accounts from Liverpool, and an additional decline in gold and foreign exchange, the demand continued limited, and although factors showed a disposition to meet it more freely, the business was confined to 800 bales, while, with some irregularity, prices exhibited a pretty general falling off of ¼c. On Monday the movement was partially suspended, but as there was very little offering on which factors evinced much anxiety to realize, the few buyers who came forward—the bulk of the business in fact being done by two parties—were unable to find the descriptions they wanted, unless at comparatively full prices, and while the sales embraced only 550 bales, even running lots of low middling and middling were respectively firm at 27½c. for the former, and 28¼ to 28½c. for the latter. In fact a desirable list of the former brought 27¾c. On Tuesday the market opened with some little inquiry, but the demand was checked by still more discouraging telegrams from Liverpool and New York, as well as by a decided decline in foreign exchange, and 600 bales changed hands at irregular prices, indicating that although the general advantage was still more on the side of the buyers, yet in many cases they were compelled to pay outside rates, especially for the better qualities. The stock is now so much reduced that it is daily becoming more difficult to execute orders of any magnitude.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,950 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 773,048 bales, against 577,903 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 116,563 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 15,632 bales to France, and a decrease of 287,837 to Great Britain, and of 2,810 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary.....	24	to 24½
Good ordinary.....	25½	to 26½
Low middling.....	27	to 27½
Middling.....	28	to 28½
Strict middling.....	28½	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....		1059
Arrived past three days.....	3340
Arrived previously.....	805468	—608808
		810767
Exported past three days.....	7476
Exported previously.....	749793	—757275
Stock on hand and on shipboard....		53492

Sugar.—On Saturday the market was wholly inactive, but on Monday, with more liberal receipts, a fair business was done at previous prices, some 200 hogsheads having changed hands at 6c. per pound for cistern bottoms, 8 to 8¾c. for inferior, 11¾c. for fair, 12¼c. for good fair, 12⅞c. for fully fair, 13¾c. for prime, and 15¾c. for white.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, May 25, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head.....$45	to 55
Texas cattle, second qual, per head. 40	to 45
Texas cattle, third qual, per head... 15	to 25
Hogs, per lb gross..... 8	to 9c
Sheep, first quality, per head..... $5	to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head..... 2½	to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head..... —	to 3
Milch cows, choice, per head..... 80	to 100
Milch cows, per head..... 50	to —
Texas cows, with calves..... —	to —
Yearlings, per head..... 6	to 10
Calves, per head..... 6	to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows.....	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers...	9 00	10 00
Cotton Scrapers.....	6 00	6 50
Sweeps.....	6 00	6 50
Cultivators.....	10 00	11 00
Shovels.....	10 00	17 00
Spades.....	11 00	18 00
Axes.....	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₰ yard:
Kentucky.....	..	..
East India.....	24¼	24½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₰ lb..	..	..
Bran, ₰ 100 lbs.....	1 30	.. ..
Bread, ₰ 100 lbs.: Pilot....	5 50	.. ..
Crackers.....	6 00	.. ..
Bricks, Lake, ₰ M.....	9 00	16 00
English, Fire.....	65 00	70 00
Candles, ₰ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford.....	..	..
Tallow.....	..	..
Adamantine.....	15½	22
Star.....	15½	22
Chocolate, No 1 ₰ lb.....	38	55
Sweet and Spiced.....	35	67
Cider, Western ₰ hhl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Northern.....	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₰ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₰ ton.....	9 50	10 00
Western, ₰ barrel.....	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₰ lb.....	14	17½
Havana.....	..	..
Java.....	..	..
St. Domingo.....	nonn	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₰ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₰ bushel.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₰ lb.....	37	38
Sheathing.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts.....	37	38
Yellow Metal.....	29	31
Cordage, Manilla, ₰ lb.....	23½	24
Tarred, American.....	.. ..	21
Russia.....	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₰ bbl.....	3 75	4 25
Dyes, ₰ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y.....	4	4½
St. Domingo.....	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico.....	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₰ lb.....	1 75	1 85
Madder.....	22	24
Eggs, ₰ doz. Western.....	21	23
Feathers, ₰ lb.....	90	95
Fish, Cnd, ₰ box.....	1 70	.. ..
Herrings.....	75	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₰ bbl.....	.. ..	28 00
No. 2.....	.. ..	22 50
No. 3.....	.. ..	16 50
Flaxseed, ₰ lb.....	4	6
Flour, ₰ bbl:
Superfine.....	5 35	5 50
Extra.....	5 75	11 00
Fine.....	4 50	4 62½
Fruit, Prunes, ₰ lb.....	14	15
Figs, Drum.....	20	21
Dried Apples.....	..	..
Currants, Zante.....	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell.....	25	..
Raisins, M R, ₰ box.....	nonn	here
Layer.....	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₰ box.....	none	here
" Malaga, ₰ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₰ 1000.....	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₰ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₰ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10.....	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12.....	3 50	3 75
12 x 18.....	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₰ bushel:
Malt, Western.....	2 10	2 40
Canada.....	2 40	2 60
Oats.....	80	..
Corn, shelled ₰ bushel.....	78	90
Beans, ₰ bbl.....	9 00	13 00
Hops, ₰ lb.....	12	13
Gunpowder, ₰ keg.....	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₰ bag.....	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₰ ton.....	28 00	30 00
Northern.....	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₰ lb.
Dry salted Mexican.....	16	17
Wet salted, city slaughter.	8	12
Kip Skins.....	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country.....	17	18
Pelts ₰ piece.....	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₰ ton.....	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₰ lb.....	5	6
English, ₰ lb.....	4½	5
Hoop, ₰ lb.....	6	8½
Sheet.....	6½	9
Boiler.....	8	10
Nail Rods.....	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties.....	6	7
Castings, American.....	6½	7
Lime, Western ₰ bbl.....	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime.....	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c.....	2 00	2 25
Cement.....	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₰ gallon:
Louisiana.....	37½	65
Muscovado.....	..	..
Refinery, Reboiled.....	60	80
Moss, ₰ lb:
Gray, Country.....	2	3½
Black do.....	5	6
Select, water rotted.....	7	8
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₰ lb.....	4 90	5 00
Wrought, German.....	15	20
English.....	18	18
Naval Stores, ₰ bbl:
Tar.....	2 00	4 00
Pitch.....	2 50	.. ..
Rosin A No. 1.....	3 00	4 50
No. 2.....	2 25	.. ..
No. 3.....	.. ..	.. ..
Spirits Turp ₰ gallon.....	40	42½
Varnish, bright.....	50	55
Oils, Lard ₰ gallon.....	1 40	1 45
Coal Oil.....	37	39
In cases.....	48	50
Cotton Seed, Crude.....	70	75
Refined.....	95	1 00
Tanners' ₰ gallon.....	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₰ ton.....	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed.....	35 00	.. ..
Meal.....	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₰ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern.....	none	here
" Western.....	19 00	20 00
North half bbl.	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₰ lb.....	..	..
Tongues ₰ doz.....	..	..
Pork, Mess.....	32 00	32 50
Prime Mess.....	28 00	..
Hog, round, ₰ lb.....	.. ..	13
Bacon, Hams, ₰ lb.....	17½	18
Do., canvassed.....	19½	20
Sides.....	17½	17½
Shoulders.....	13½	15½
Green Shoulders.....	..	12½
Lard, Prime, in tierces....	18½	19
In kegs.....	19½	20
Fair, in tierces.....	.. ..	17
Butter, Northern.....	40	60
Western.....	25	42½
Cheese, American.....	18	20
Potatoes, ₰ bbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Onions.....	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples.....	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₰ lb, Louisiana.....	7	10
India.....	..	..
Carolina.....	..	..
Saltpetre, refined, ₰ lb.....	14	25
Crude.....	..	..
Salt ₰ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store.....	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo.....	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse...	2 15	2 20
from store.....	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₰ bushel.....	..	..
Soap, ₰ lb, Western.....	7	7½
Northern.....	8	12
Southern.....	6	10½
Castile.....	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₰ lb:
In the city.....	8	15½
Havana, White.....	15½	16½
Yellow.....	13½	14½
Brown.....	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₰ lb:
Balers & Cutters.....	—	—
Choice and Selections....	15	19
Fine Leaf.....	12	15
Medium Leaf.....	9	11
Fair Leaf.....	10	12
Common Leaf.....	8	10
Good Refused.....	7	10
Common Refused.....	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₰ lb.....	—	—
Balling.....	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₰ lb.....	30	35
Burry.....	10	12
Louisiana, Native.....	20	22
Texas, ₰ Mexico.....	20	22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

PENSACOLA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Pensacola district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Milton, Florida, June 3-6.

A full attendance is earnestly desired, and the official members are referred to the constitution in the printed minutes of our last session for an explanation of their duties.

Members, on arriving at Milton, will report at the Eagle hotel. Provision for all. Bishop Andrews will preside.

J. A. Parker, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs.....	May	29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit.....	June	5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station.....		12, 13
Brookhaven station.....		19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandyw'e,	July	3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard.....		10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val:		17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground.....		24, 25
Burtenton ct., at Tabernacle.		31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda.	Aug.	7, 8
Crystal Springs and Huzlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst.		14, 15

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

New Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers.	May	9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.		10
German churches: at Craps st...		16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st....		21
Jefferson City.....		23
Plaquemine.....		30
Felicity street.....	June	6
Thibodeaux.....		13
Carondelet street.....		27
Baton Rouge.....	July	18
Moreau street.....		25

J. O. Keener, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit.....	Apr.	17, 18
Monroe circuit.....		24, 25
Vernon circuit.....	May	1, 2
Farmersville circuit.....		15, 16
Homer circuit.....		22, 23
Haynesville circuit.....		29, 30
Bossier circuit.....	June	5, 6
Minden circuit.....		12, 13
Sparta circuit.....		19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit.....		26, 27

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carroll circuit.....	May	1, 2
Delhi and Floyd circuit, at Harricane.....		8, 9
Sicily Island.....		15, 16
Waterproof.....		22, 23
Winsborough circuit.....		29, 30
Bastrop and Oak Ridge....	June	5, 6
Lynd Grove circuit.....		12, 13

W. G. McGaughey, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia.....	Apr.	17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville..		24, 25
Calcasieu.....	May	1, 2
Bellevue.....		8, 9
Bayou Mallet.....		15, 16
Vermilionville.....		21, 22
Opelousas.....		29, 30
Grand Cheniere.....	June	5, 6
Washington.....		12, 13
Plaquemine Brulee.....		19, 20

J. D. Adams, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion..	Apr.	10, 11
Macon station.....		17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill..	May	1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville...		8, 9
Cooksville, at Hebron.....		15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew.....		22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville.	June	5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn.		12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb.....		26, 27

S. H. Cox, P. E.

Union Springs Dist., Montgomery Conf.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Troy, at Bethel.....	Apr.	3, 4
Brundidge, at Williams'.....		10, 11
Pine Level, at Orion.....		17, 18
Union Springs.....		24, 25
Rocky Mount, at Athens...	May	1, 2
Mt. Hilliard, at Mt. Hilliard.		8, 9
Line Creek, at Line Creek..		15, 16
Fort Deposit, at Letohatchie.		22, 23
Mount Ida, at Emmaus.....		27, 28
South Butler, at Ebenezer...		29, 30
Greenville circuit, at Union.	June	4, 5
Greenville station.....		6, 7
Sandy Ridge, at Spring Hill.		9, 10
Millville, at Rogers' chapel..		12, 13
Elba, at Elba.....		19, 20

J. W. Shores, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n.	Mar.	27, 28
Mobile, Franklin street.....	Apr.	3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street...		10, 11
Whistler.....		17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne.....		24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa....	May	1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion.....		8, 9
W. Pascagoula, at Ocean Spg's		15, 16
Cottage Hill, at Allen's.....	June	5, 6
St. Stephen's, at St. Stephen's		12, 13

Jas. A. Heard, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, - - - - 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, - - - - 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, - - - - 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,
MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,
AND HALE
PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S
CIRCULAR TO ADVERTISERS,
SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS,
CONTAINING

A list of Seven Hundred and Fifty choice Advertising mediums, subdivided into more than fifty small lists, with Price Cards showing the cost of any advertisement from one line to one column.

A list of the leading Daily Papers in all the large towns and cities of the United States and Canada.

A list of Two Hundred leading Weekly and Monthly publications, with estimates showing the cost of an advertisement of from five to twenty five lines, from one week to two months.

A list of prominent Advertisers who have patronized this Advertising Agency, and letters showing the opinions of such men concerning the advantages it offers.

Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
my22 tfn 40 Park Row, New York.

TO THE WORKING CLASS.

I AM NOW PREPARED TO FURnish all classes with constant employment at their homes, the whole of the time, or for the spare moments. Business now, light and profitable. Fifty cents to $5 per evening is easily earned by persons of either sex, and the boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. Great inducements are offered those who will devote their whole time to the business; and, that every person who sees this notice may send me their address and test the business for themselves, I make the following unparalleled offer: To all who are not well satisfied with the business I will send $1 to pay for the trouble of writing me. Full particulars, directions, etc., sent free. Sample sent by mail for ten cents. Address E. C. ALLEN, Augusta, Me.
mh13 tfn

DR. C. McLANE'S
VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 43 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8
New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,
And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Clmtres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans. oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

FOKUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION. — TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months, - - - -	$150 00
Fuel, - - - -	10 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department, -	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department, -	40 00
Music, - - - -	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each,	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to
B. ARBOGAST,
President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM,
Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
Jn9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
dc12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS,

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

71.....Camp street.....

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes;

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflammable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no11 1y No. 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je20

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street.
oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses—Tuition Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than one hundred and seventy-one students. Last session one hundred and seventy-one students also matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
del2 3m. Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE, Brookhaven Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 1st of SEPTEMBER, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay the expenses for five months, including board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address
H. F. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School (Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Demeron, 91 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom-house Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carpet, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASK, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops, Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 20. WHOLE NUMBER..... 731.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Cubans and Cuban sympathizers here are in high spirits. During May three cargoes of arms and ammunition have been safely landed in Cuba, with a strong presumption that a fourth has surely reached its destination, the effect of which, they say, is already perceptible in the recent rebels, according to Spanish admissions.

Bassett, the colored minister to Hayti, is quoted as saying: "The President was very emphatic, and at the same time very cautious in expressing himself about the policy of annexation. He said his own views were in favor of such policy, but that he thought in all cases the people of a country to be annexed should first show themselves anxious for the union with us, and that then it would be a subject for the consideration of our government."

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 1.—In the Old School Assembly, resolutions defining its policy toward the freedmen were accepted, except that favoring the employment of ministers connected with the Southern Church, provided they placed the same in connection with this assembly, which was tabled.

CUBAN EXPEDITIONS.

NEW YORK, June 2.—To day's Tribune says: We have special and reliable advices that by means of seven or eight expeditions which have within a few months left New York and Philadelphia, the Cubans have received large and somewhat surprising quantities of arms and munitions of war. The Cuban authorities here and at Washington have, as we are informed, been incessantly active, and the result of their efforts is seen in the animated hopes and renewed spirit of the patriots in the field.

The following is an authentic list of the expeditions alluded to, and their cargoes of military supplies:

By the Salvador, from Key West, 1,500 arms and 3 field pieces; from Nassau, by the same, 2,500 guns and 8 cannons; by the Grapeshot, 4,000 guns and 2 cannons. These vessels originally left New York.

Those sent from Philadelphia in the first expedition therefrom were three schooners with 3,500 arms and 4 steel guns. This cargo was delivered near Trinidad, 17th of April, and has already, if report be credible, told with effect on the situation in that greatly disaffected quarter. The second expedition had its landing at the same place, with 3,000 guns in a small steamer. The third expedition hast just gone. By these various expeditions the Cubans have received 21,100 small arms and 22 field pieces.

CUBA.

HAVANA, May 31.—The troops are in active pursuit of the fillibusters who landed at the Bay of Nisse; have captured three of their cannon, and killed Emanuel Quarvez, commander of the riflemen.

A heavy engagement has taken place at Puerto Padre. The insurgents are massing in the vicinity of Los Lunas. A skirmish is reported near Cienfuegos, between the regulars and insurgents. Dulce's order sending a number of political prisoners to Spain is revoked.

EUROPE.

LONDON, June 1.—The Irish Church bill passed its third reading by a vote of 361 to 237. The vote was greeted with uproarious cheers from the ministerial benches.

Nearly all the journals have articles on the presentation of addresses to Minister Motley, and discuss the probable future relations between Great Britain and the United States.

The Times, after contrasting Sumner's speech in the Senate with Motley's language, hopes that the peaceful tenor of the latter is not a tribute to appearances, but a real and practical indication of the intention of his government of setting aside all controversies with Great Britain.

The Times offers Mr. Motley a hearty welcome, and is assured that both the government and the people of the nation will appreciate his friendly expressions.

The Telegraph says any propositions made by Mr. Motley will be weighed on their merits. England having made protest against Sumner's doctrine, has dismissed it from consideration.

The Star rejoices at the friendly tone of the American minister.

MADRID, June 1.—It is reported that the Republican members will not oppose a final vote in the Cortes on the question of the future form of government for Spain, but will unanimously refuse to subscribe to the oaths prescribed by the constitution.

LONDON, June 1.—Minister Motley, in replying to the address of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, was very pacific. He deprecated hostilities between the two countries as adverse to the happiness of the world, the progress of civilization and the best hopes of humanity. Motley made a strong point of the blood alliance between the United States and England. Motley concluded:

"My most strenuous efforts shall be devoted to the further good understanding on the basis of enduring friendship and kindly relations, in accordance with the great principles of justice and honor which are the immutable and only safe and unerring guides in the conduct of nations."

ST. PETERSBURG, June 1.—The Czar has signified his intention to send an envoy extraordinary to Washington to congratulate Grant, and express the Czar's appreciation of the value of the maintenance of amicable relations between Russia and America.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MONTGOMERY, June 1.—The State Immigration Convention convened today and is well attended from different parts of the State. Much interest has been manifested, and a plan for providing homes and securing immigrants is in a fair way of being adopted.

ATLANTA, June 1.—The corner stone of the Atlanta University, an institution on the plan of the Oberlin and Howard Universities, was laid to-day. The attendance was large, and included General Terry and staff, Governor Bullock, Judge Erskine, Judge McCay, and many other prominent citizens. The institution is being established under the auspices of the Freedmen's Bureau and the Educational Aid Societies.

TRIAL OF THE JEFFERSON PRISONERS.

The Jimplecute, of May 28, says:

The military commission did nothing yesterday of importance, but to read the testimony of Major Curtis and Lieutenant Dubois, adduced the day before. About one hundred witnesses have been summoned to appear for the defense, on the 7th proximo.

The principal business done this morning was the taking of the evidence of Anderson Wright, the freedman who escaped at the time the other parties were killed. We will publish the evidence as soon as it can be procured.

JEFFERSON, TEXAS, June 1.—In the military trial to-day, Richard Figueres, who had turned State's evidence, the prosecution's strongest witness, was placed on the stand. He at first stated that he did not wish to give evidence, as General Buell expected more of him than he could tell, and had this morning threatened him with prosecution and punishment for perjury if he did not tell all he had stated privately; and also that he would be tried for the crime with the balance. He only recognized a few of the prisoners.

Figueres shed tears, and the scene created much feeling. His testimony was not concluded. One or two more freedmen have been examined, and they swore every way. The trial will last three months.

RAILROADS.

The Rome (Georgia) Courier, of the 26th ultimo, publishes the following extract from a private letter:

"The road from New Orleans to Mobile will be completed by the early spring. Mobile has waked up, and will build from Mobile to Selma a grand trunk one hundred and fifty miles, in eighteen months. Mobile city gives $1,500,000 in bonds, citizens $500,000, counties $500,000, and the State indorses $2,400,000, in all $4,900,000. Twenty miles to be built in four months, and the balance rushed through faster than ever done before. The woods are on fire, and Alabama will, in five years, have two thousand five hundred miles of railroad finished, and be on the high road to prosperity."

A LETTER from San Francisco chronicles the arrival of the first installment of what promises to be quite an extended Japanese emigration. The Celestials bring with them mulberry trees, tea and bamboo plants, in the cultivation of which they design to engage. This, among other facts, shows that Asiatic immigration is rapidly on the increase, and in a short time will penetrate to every agricultural district in America.—New Orleans Times.

LOUISIANA.

New Iberia.—It is now nearly two weeks since we have had rain, and in consequence the crops are suffering, and dust fills the air everywhere. It is sufficiently warm, however, and a shower would make crops grow rapidly.—Times, May 28.

East Feliciana.—The week past has been warm and dry, just the thing to bring out the cotton crop, which has been kept back by the recent cold nights and mornings. Planters generally report a very decided improvement within the past week. The corn crop is in fine condition, and with a favorable season, promises a large yield. Freedmen are reported working well.—Clinton Patriot, May 29.

Terrebonne.—One day this week we took a drive down Little Caillou and were much pleased to notice a decided improvement in the crops. There is a perfect stand of corn, and cane is beginning to grow. A little more rain is needed.—Houma Civic Guard, May 27.

West Baton Rouge.—A little rain is much desired to refresh and invigorate the crops. We are not actually suffering for rain, though a good shower would be very acceptable.—Sugar Planter, May 29.

Bienville.—The weather has continued remarkably cool for the past week, rendering blankets and winter clothing indispensable. Husbandry has not met with much hindrance, however, as but little rain has fallen during the week. Crops look to be in statu quo.—Sparta Times, May 22.

Iberville.—Since Sunday before last the weather has been dry, and up to last Monday much too cool for the season. The unusual cool spell has not been beneficial to the crops, and favorable to the health of the people. The crops look, however, quite fair, and now that the warm weather has set in, we may hope to see cane, corn, cotton, and all other plants grow up rapidly and finely. The dry spell has at least given the planters a good chance to keep down the grass and weeds.—South, May 29.

Speaking of the overflows, the same paper says: We are glad to be able to state that the damages in this section are small. No crops of any great importance have been injured in this parish. The Grosse Tete and Maringouin sections are quite safe. The river levees of the parish are all reported in a condition of safety.

Texas.—Vegetation, under the influence of genial and continued sunshine, is putting on her greenest glories, and corn, and cotton, which erst looked so wan and weak, have assumed a healthy hue, and began a vigorous growth. They now promise a bountiful yield.—Gazette, May 29.

The Gazette has passed into the hands of T. W. Castleman.

Lafourche.—The bayou continues to fall slowly in front of Thibodaux, the decline being already some six or eight inches. This has diminished the flow of water in the Gaudet crevasse so much that the fall in the swamps has uncovered a considerable quantity of ground, that may yet be planted in corn or other produce.—Thibodaux Sentinel, May 29.

Caddo.—We were pained to see, on a recent trip to the country, the miserable condition of the crops. Corn, which should now be at least waist high, cannot, by ripening, reach the knee, while the cotton is wretchedly small and unthrifty. Our planters have had the worst spring to contend against known for many years, if ever known before. Still, with favoring showers in June and July, the yield of corn may be a small average—it could not possibly be good.—Shreveport Southwestern, May 27.

GRACE GREENWOOD has sold her Little Pilgrim to Alfred L. Sewell & Co., publishers of the Little Corporal of Chicago. The Pilgrim has been published as a children's magazine for over fifteen years, and has been a popular juvenile, but will now stop "pilgrimaging" on his own account, and hereafter be an "aide" to the conquering Western Napoleon, the Little Corporal, the well deserved circulation of which was even before this addition larger than that of any other juvenile magazine in the world. Grace Greenwood still writes for it. The July number begins a new volume, and we advise our friends to send on to the publishers, at once, one dollar, which is the price for one year, and give their children this unique, original magazine, which has no superior anywhere. Those who subscribe during June will receive the June number extra.

DESOTO CORRESPONDENCE.

MANSFIELD, LA., May 18, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The work of our new church edifice, under the management of efficient mechanics, is progressing according to design. The exercises of last Sabbath to us were pleasant and profitable. In the morning we had a good Sabbath school; after preaching we had a pleasant communion season; at four P. M. the advocates of the cause of temperance of different denominations of Christians met at the Baptist church, and organized a total abstinence temperance society, styled the Desoto Parish Total Abstinence Temperance Society. At night the society and a large audience were addressed by the Rev. Peter Crawford, president of the Keachie Female College. He took the position that total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors is the only safe ground to occupy; he argued that artificial stimulants are totally unnecessary for the healthy; that they are injurious to an alarming extent, and finally that the cause of temperance had been vastly promoted by temperance societies, and hoped, under God's direction, that they would do much more to arrest the mighty tide of intemperance. He dealt in stirring facts, and was severely in earnest, indulged in no anecdotes, and there was no laughing or cheering. On one occasion, in his discourse, he challenged comparison between total abstinence men and those who drank; and I don't know that he thought of it, but it occurred to me that he was fortunate in the samples which he had on hand, himself a large, fine looking, robust gentleman, and President Stuart, sitting behind him in the pulpit, looking as if he had never been sick, or wanted for anything. These were the samples.

After an earnest sermon of two hours the speaker sat in the pulpit somewhat exhausted; and when we bade him adieu, he said, "The Lord is with me. I go feeling that I have done my duty." If the Baptist church is not proud that they have such a man, all I have to say is that they ought to be. There were about forty persons signed the pledge. We have adopted the plan of preaching, or lecturing, on the subject of temperance, at all the prominent points in the parish, monthly, or as often as we can, and of presenting the pledge of total abstinence to the people. The ministers of the Baptist, Presbyterian, and Methodist churches are united in this work.

We see from a communication in the ADVOCATE that some brother from Alabama has waked up to the importance of the temperance cause. We should like to shake hands with him. Where is Dr. Harmon? There is certainly no less cause for his zeal now, upon the subject of temperance, than there used to be. The ADVOCATE gives us a stirring article on the subject occasionally, but we need more of them. Please let us have them. I know that I am called ultra upon this subject, but it does seem to me, if any one will look into it, he must see that its evils are assuming an alarming magnitude.

We have some heavy rains; some fears of an overflow on Red river, and an occasional hail storm passes through the country, and the weather is unusually cool for the season; yet the prospect for a good crop is still flattering; the fruit also, both wild and domestic, will be abundant.

We have never witnessed so much quiet and good order, and apparent prosperity in our midst, since the war, as prevails at present. The freedmen, undisturbed by politics or any other nuisance, stay at home satisfied and do their work. If we could convince the people that an unsanctified prosperity had never failed to ruin any people, we should have no fears about their future. The summer season is now approaching, when thousands of your people will be leaving the city, and to those who remain it will be, in some respects, a season of apprehension and fear. If epidemics should prevail before the end of the year, thousands will be no more; while we, up here in the country, are just on the qui vive of our annual convivialities. Soon Brother Scales will favor us with his Sabbath school anniversary and cheering picnic; and soon thereafter the commencement of the Mansfield Female College will come off. The Rev. Samuel Armstrong will preach the commencement sermon, and the Hon. Geo. Williamson, of Shreveport, will deliver the literary address to the graduating class. This is an occasion of greater magnitude, in some respects, than any other of our place.

J. P.

MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

JACKSON, MISS., May 24, 1869.

TO THE PREACHERS AND LAY MEMBERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE—Brethren: You will remember that at the last session of our Conference the lay members formed a Ministerial Educational Association, which, as indicated by its name, was organized to aid in the education of young men preparing for the ministry.

It is expected and earnestly desired that all the district conferences, at their first meeting, should form auxiliary associations. The whole internal working will depend upon the active co-operation of these auxiliaries.

The board of managers would call your attention to this subject, and solicit you to organize at your earliest convenience.

There is no restriction upon the auxiliaries except they will be required to fix the fee of $5 for an annual member.

Let us urge you to co-operate in this important undertaking, and endeavor to enlist the whole church and all its friends.

B. G. HUMPHRIES, Pres't,
J. C. KITTRELL, Sec'y,
JOHN T. CAMERON, Treas.,
THOMAS REED,
——— WORTHINGTON,
Board of Managers.

Report of Committee to Divide the Tennessee Conference.

For the information of all concerned, the report of the committee appointed to make a division of the Tennessee Conference, is now published, and with the view of calling the attention of the other Conferences adjoining, who are likely to be affected by the proposed changes in boundaries, so that harmonious action may be had at the next General Conference.

REPORT TO THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

The undersigned, a committee appointed at the last session of your honorable body, "to report an equitable line of division" of the Tennessee Conference, beg leave to submit the following report:

On the 30th of April your committee met a committee of the Memphis Conference upon the subject of boundaries, in the town of Athens, Alabama, and after a full interchange of views and a discussion of the questions growing out of the subject, the conclusion was arrived at that it was impracticable at this time to designate and report the contemplated line of division.

They found the Mississippi portion of the Memphis Conference, as represented in said meeting, unwilling, at present, to be separated from the Memphis Conference and added to that portion of the Tennessee Conference situated in the State of Alabama, thus forming a new Conference out of the territory detached from said Conferences.

From various communications laid before the meeting and other trustworthy sources of information, it was ascertained that the question of forming new Conferences out of the territory now covered by the Mississippi, Louisiana, Mobile, and Montgomery Conferences was being discussed, and that the idea of making Conference boundaries conform to State lines seemed to prevail generally. Your committee are satisfied that this view of the subject is fast gaining ground in the minds of our people, and that in all future changes of Conference boundaries it will exert a controlling influence. From all they are able to learn, your committee are convinced that important changes in the lines of said Conferences will be inevitable at no distant day, and all of said Conferences, and the new ones which may be formed out of their territory, made to conform in their geography as nearly as practicable to the boundaries of the States in which they are located.

Being wholly unable to designate any line of division of the Tennessee Conference at this time, and believing that it would be far preferable for the Tennessee Conference to act in conjunction with the other Conferences above named upon the question of a change of boundaries and the formation of new Conferences; and that those questions can be more judiciously and satisfactorily settled in a meeting where the views of all will be represented. Your committee beg leave to submit the following resolution, and recommend its adoption:

Resolved, That we recommend that the Tennessee, Memphis, Mississippi, Louisiana, Mobile, Montgomery, and any other Conferences interested, at their next sessions, appoint a committee from each Conference, consisting of two clerical and two lay members, to be taken from the delegates elected to the General Conference, who shall meet at Memphis, Tennessee, two days before the assembling of the General Conference, and agree, if they can, upon the lines and boundaries of these several Conferences, and the new ones, and submit their agreement to the General Conference for adoption.

Respectfully submitted,
A. S. RIGGS, Chairman.
W. B. WOOD, Secretary.

The secretaries of the Conferences mentioned in the foregoing resolution are requested to preserve the above report, and present it to their Conference, at the next session thereof. W. B. WOOD, Sec'y.

THE GRAIN TRADE.

We append a statement of the amount of wheat and corn shipped from New Orleans by the Elevator and Warehouse Company alone during the last ninety days.

It will be borne in mind that shipping grain in the summer season via New Orleans has generally been regarded as an extremely hazardous undertaking by our Western grain growers, who have been persistently taught by the East that the route via the Northern lakes, Erie canal, etc., was the only safe one for shipping grain to the Atlantic.

A number of recent experiments having proved eminently successful, and wheat, etc., from this port having been carried in bulk to Liverpool and other European cities, not only in perfect order, but for lower figures than was possible by any other route, the attention of the West has been fully aroused to the fact, and the grain current is rapidly turning into its new and natural channel—the channel constructed by nature herself, and as far superior to the channels wrought out by the labor and ingenuity of man as the steady brilliance of the sun exceeds in splendor the uncertain and flickering beams of a farthing rushlight.

The Elevator and Warehouse Company have shipped as follows since March 1, and have a large supply still on hand for exportation in bulk:

	Wheat.	Corn.
To Liverpool	104,546.05	14,213.27
To Charleston	.....	13,765.25
To Savannah	.....	13,813.12
To Barcelona	13,013.35	.....
To New York city	19,672.25	93,660.18
To Boston	.....	7,933.52
Total	137,232.05	143,376.22

—Picayune.

BIRDS THE FARMER'S FRIENDS.—An intelligent farmer boy in Illinois observed a small flock of quails commencing at one side of a corn field, taking about five rows regularly through the field, scratching and picking around every hill, then returning and taking another five rows, till, thinking they were pulling up the corn, he shot one, and then examined the field. On the ground they had been over he found but one stalk of corn disturbed, but in the quail's crop he found one cut-worm, twenty-one striped vine-bugs, over a hundred chintz-bugs that he could distinctly count, and a mass apparently consisting of hundreds of chintz-bugs, but not one kernel of corn. During the past five years the quails in that vicinity have been decreasing, and the chintz-bugs increasing.

A STATUE of Lord Palmerston is to be erected in Southampton.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1869.

THIS IS YOUR HOUR.

They urge Him up the weary hill,
The thronging people mocking still,
Loud tongues and scowling brows!
The meekness that no wrath could move,
The calm of all-enduring love—
Their frenzied fury rouse.

The fiend has gained his promised hour,
And now he tries his utmost power,
For ruin follows loss—
The head so oft upraised to bless,
The heart that planned the world's release,
Are drooping on the cross.

Pale Nature breathes dismay and doubt,
Drear Hades pours his blackness out,
And hides the o'er-reaching blue;
Foul shapes and spectres grim are there,
Their sable wings o'erload the air,
All hell is there to view.

Shall Satan conquer? Hark! a cry!
The victor shout! the demons fly!
To ancient woe consigned;
And with a shock that rends the earth,
And gives the dead a second birth,
Hell's gate is clashed behind.

O sons of men, your voices raise,
Your hearts of stone dissolve in praise,
To greet the eternal day!
The strains from Memnon's form that broke,
By beams of transient sun were woke—
Our Sun shall shine for aye.

—British Herald.

CONSOLIDATION OF CHURCHES.

There is something beautiful and desirable in a union of heart and spirit, and all Christians should unite in praying, "Make us of one heart and mind." All should hold to the truth as it is in Jesus—all should build upon the chief corner stone, Jesus Christ. So pleasantly sounds all this that even the name of "union" has a pleasant ring, and seems a goodly something. Now we like union in spirit, union in purpose, and union in final aim; but we see not the connection between consolidation and union. Incompatible elements, as water and oil, may be corked up in the same bottle, and yet, though there is conjunction, there is no union. We can imagine a half dozen families living together in the same neighborhood, maintaining the most cordial and amicable feelings, but the same families housed together, under one broad roof, might find it difficult to harmonize and maintain kindly relations. So we think contiguous nationalities and ecclesiastical organizations may separately maintain good neighborhood, because their slight angularities do not come in conflict; but consolidated there would be friction and discord.

There seems just now to be a great desire and tendency toward consolidation in Church and State. The consolidation in State is an old idea. The Assyrians, the Persians, the Macedonians, all tried it, and Rome made the grandest experiment of all; and we know how all these experiments resulted. The extremities were too far from the heart. The vital blood of patriotism grew cold in its long circuit. The body politic became enfeebled, diseased, and fell apart into its original elements. We all know Charlemagne, Charles the Fifth, and Napoleon labored at this centralization and consolidation business, and how the incompatible elements, by a centrifugal force that no human power could repress, flew apart and resolved themselves into their original political elements and affinities. England, Russia, Prussia, and the United States are all working at this same old experiment to-day, and we doubt not the same disastrous results will ensue.

To leave out of view, in this article, the consolidating efforts of the various Presbyterian and Episcopal bodies, and confining our attention to the propositions of the Episcopalians and the Methodist Episcopal Church North to unite with them, we have to say that we think the proposed consummation not desirable.

First, then, in regard to the oft suggested ecclesiastical consolidation with the Episcopalians, we think it would terminate in one of two results, either of which would, we suppose, be profoundly deplored by the Episcopalians themselves. If the Methodists of the United States should all consolidate with the Episcopalians, and adopt the Episcopal form of government, numerically some fourteen times more numerous, we should soon vote every Episcopal peculiarity out of existence, and practically annihilate the church—perhaps its very name. If the aggressive spirit of the Methodist ministry and laity was carried en masse into the Episcopal church, we think the annihilation of its present peculiarities, differencing it from the Methodist, would be an inevitable and not distant result.

If, however, the Episcopalians could subdue the aggressive zeal of the Methodist people, and the fervent and pungent preaching of their ministers; if they could make them ritualist and formalist; then, judging the Episcopal church of the future by the Episcopal church of the present—we see not why we should not—then the Episcopal people would be sadly deficient in ministers to fill their pulpits and minister at their altars. Everybody knows that a considerable per cent. of the present Episcopal ministers are the fruit of Methodist preaching and training. Do away with the aggressive and ardent character of Methodists, turn them into ritualist and formalist, and they would be shorn of their locks and their power as instruments to produce and train ministers. Here, then, we should have a vast flock with but few shepherds, and the cry would go abroad, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few." If our Episcopalian friends will take this—as we think—just and probable view of the practical results of consolidation, they will abandon that idea, and be better content with the present situation and its benefits.

In relation to consolidation with the Methodist Episcopal Church North, we think, independent of various difficulties to be overcome, it would be objectionable—First, on administrative grounds. So large a General Conference would be unwieldy, inconvenient, and expensive. For the same reason that Annual Conferences ought to be divided and subdivided, we think that the General Conference should have been divided, and if the immediate occasion of division had not arisen, we believe an amicable division, such as we desired and sought, would have been better than continuance under one ecclesiastical organization.

But we have graver reasons for resisting consolidation — reasons growing out of moral and political considerations. A single church organization, numerically strong enough to control elections, would at once be corrupted by a countless horde of demagogues, who would crowd into her fold, steal the livery of heaven to serve the devil in, and secure their aggrandizement by election to office. It is most difficult to preserve the purity of the church now, but this difficulty would be greatly increased by the temptation which consolidation would hold out to corrupt and ambitious men to connect themselves with the church, with the hope of political advancement and financial gain. We know that such results followed when the imperial purple began to ornament its robes with the cross.

All history shows that immense ecclesiastical organizations, when constituting a numerical majority in any nationality, have been not only destructive of purity, but dangerous and subversive of civil and religious liberty. Look, for example, at Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Portugal, and England. All readers of history are familiar with the bloody and the dreadful past.

Let us have all the fraternity we can on Christian principles. Let us cultivate good neighborhood. Let us "endeavor to keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace." Let us provoke one another to love and good works, and compel the world to say, "Behold, how these Christians love!" But let us have no unwieldy, overshadowing, and dangerous ecclesiastical organization, destructive of piety and subversive of liberty. W.

NEW ORLEANS, May 26, 1869.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Some time since one of my correspondents said to me in a letter, "In your reply let the text be: San Francisco as it is." This request has suggested to me that probably there are many who would like to see a letter on the same subject; and, if our editor agrees with me, this may partially satisfy that curiosity.

The entrance to the Bay of San Francisco is a narrow but very deep channel, called the Golden Gate. The bay, as may be seen by referring to any map, spreads out to the north and south, like the wings of a bird. Just opposite the city it is eight miles wide, but in other places much wider. A small island, Alcatrace, fronts the mouth of the Golden Gate, and seems specially made for the fort and batteries located on it. A large island, known as Goat island, lies just opposite the city, and is warmly advocated as the proper position for the permanent depot of the great Pacific railroad. The southern arm or wing of the bay is very wide, and, with the ocean, forms San Francisco county into a peninsula.

Accustomed to the smooth back of the Atlantic, and the level character of nearly all the Eastern cities, one is very much surprised, upon approaching San Francisco, to see its numerous and immense hills. It presents a broken, ragged appearance, which is exceedingly unpleasant. That immense hill, whose base is covered with buildings, but whose top is so steep, and perfectly bare, except that a solitary signal house crowns it, is Telegraph hill. A mile west of it, further from the water's edge, and more handsomely ornamented with houses and flower gardens, rise the several summits of the Russian hill. Centrally in the city stands the California Street hill, whose flat summit embraces many streets and squares, filled with handsome buildings; whose sides, though steep, are covered with residences and business houses, and at whose base, on all sides, the great business streets of the city lie. A mile southeast of this, and near the southern water front, rises the Rincon hill, now more handsomely ornamented with residences than any hill in the city; but it stands in the way of commerce and must come down. Montgomery, Second, First, and other prominent business streets point right against and over this hill. They now need the space it occupies. These elegant flower gardens must give place to dry goods. The work of digging it away has already begun. The same is true of the immense Telegraph hill on the north border.

These hills are now fully embraced in the densely populated parts of the city. Others of equal height and greater extent are embraced in the limits, laid off in streets, dotted over with buildings, and will soon begin to feel severely the ruthless touch of pick and spade. By the transforming hand of energy and perseverance, moving hills and creating plains—causing the water to recede and the dry land to appear—this unsightly, ungainly, rugged, ugly city will become one of the most comely in the world, with a broad expanse of shore for business streets, and a grand background of hills for residences.

A very large part of the city is made ground, edges of the bay and flat marshy valleys being filled in from the excavated hills. Where the immense pile of the custom house now stands was the place where the ships anchored in 1849. Over all the southern portion of the city now stretches a plain, one mile wide and two miles long, which was a few years ago covered over with immense sand hills—banks of clear sand, thrown up twenty or thirty feet high by the winds and tides, in the process of years. These are removed and used to fill in low places and shallow edges of the bay, by means of what is called the "Steam Paddy." This is a steam engine, which works an immense scoop. A regular railroad is built up by the side of one of these sand hills, and the Paddy will load a train of fifteen dump cars in a few minutes.—Thus whole acres are relieved of these hills of sand, and at the same time whole acres of a certain shallow arm of the bay are filled in, and in a few months both are so covered with buildings that persons well acquainted with the former geography of the city are bewildered.—Persons who have resided here ten years now point out the location of former sand hills in the very heart of the city, and two miles within the limits of thick buildings.

By a census taken last year the city has nearly one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants. A very large portion of these are foreigners. The Jews are a numerous and very wealthy class. The Germans and Irish are also very numerous and respectable. The Chinese are a very large population, and very useful in their way. The negroes are not numerous, but very orderly, and as well to do, I suppose, as anywhere in the world. It is remarkable how the different peoples represented here show natural proclivity to certain occupations. The Jews, as everywhere, deal in "cheap clothing and shoes"—a general furnishing business. The restaurants, meat markets, fruit stands, beer, wine and cigar stores are almost entirely kept by Germans. The Irish manifest their well known peculiar fondness for the spade. The Chinese have almost a complete monopoly of the washing and ironing business, and supply at least half the servants for private families. The negroes monopolize all the work done with a brush. They are the barbers, white washers, chimney sweeps, brush boys at hotels, and boot blacks.

The Chinese population is worthy of more mention. They inhabit certain portions of the city, densely populated. They prefer narrow streets, where the cellars are deep and the buildings high. They have their own grocery, vegetable, and meat stores, but are not specially exclusive. Many of them speak and write English with astonishing correctness. They have among them many wealthy merchants, who transact business largely with our banks and express companies. Generally they preserve their national peculiarity of dress; but the innovation of the European habit begins first with their hats, and then the shoes, and then the pantaloons. We see many of them wearing boots. Occasionally one is dressed out and out in American style. It is rarely one is seen without his long cue behind and head shaved in front; but I have seen several. Their washing and ironing is very superior, but they wear out the clothes rapidly. As house servants they learn everything with astonishing quickness. One rarely needs to be told the same thing a second time. Remember that all this refers to their men and boys. Their women are not numerous, seem to do no work, and never go into any one's house.

They have a temple. I visited it at the time of their new year, corresponding to our Christmas, when they take a week's holiday, frolic, burn an immense quantity of fire crackers, and adorn and renew everything. Go up Dupont street, narrow and crowded, a certain distance, and turn into a mean little alley. At the end of it you enter a dingy brick building, four stories high, each story a single room, about twenty by thirty feet. You are impressed with the filthiness, smokyness, and darkness of the place. You see one or two sick Chinamen lying in one corner, and feel apprehensive. Ascend to the second story, and see many inscriptions on the walls, and various signs of Oriental strangeness about the place. The room is lighter and cleaner. Go up to the third story, and it is better still, with more inscriptions, in brighter gilt characters, and embroidered curtains, and various curious figures, all in gilt, bronze, and bright colors. The fourth story brings you into the very presence of the "Josh" himself—a huge figure of a big fat Chinese emperor, carved in gilt, surrounded by such a profusion of gilt, bronze, and colored characters, engravings, inscriptions, all possible imaginable forms of animals, and curious combinations. The air of the room is heavy with the smoke of burning wax tapers, and the entire walls and ceilings are covered with the same curious but showy and ingenious carvings and embroidery.—Chinese of various grades are loitering about the room, looking on with most perfect indifference—smoking, whistling, talking and laughing. I felt tenfold more reverence than they seemed to have.

Of the churches in San Francisco the handsomest, by far, is the Jewish synagogue, a lordly pile, with two immense cupolas, built in the style of the Greek church. The next finest is Grace church (Episcopal,) yet unfinished. St. Ignacius (Jesuit,) St Mary's (Catholic,) and Calvary (Presbyterian,) are all very large and fine churches. All the other leading denominations have, of course, excellent churches.

The finest building in the city is the Merchants' Exchange, which would be an ornament to any city in the world. The hotels—Occidental, Lick, Russ, Cosmopolitan, etc.—are all very large and costly buildings. The public school buildings are all very large, costly, and ornamental structures. The city prides itself in these. The entire population has the opportunity of free education. The school system is very complete, and the best teachers are secured at the best salaries, from $3,000 down to $1,000.

The city police is efficient, and the fire department perfect. By the telegraphic signal system and the steam fire engines it is rarely that a building is burned down. The water works of the city are worthy of special mention. In the greatest quantity we get water as pure and cold as I used to drink from the best wells and springs in Alabama.

San Francisco is perfectly complaisant, and buoyant with confidence as to her future greatness. She spurns any rival, hisses at the pretensions of Chicago, and proudly emulates New York. Across the bay, on the left, she has her Brooklyn, in the beautiful and aspiring city of Oakland, now having about six thousand inhabitants; and her Jersey City in Alameda on the right, with its several thousand population. But I have written enough. Come and see for yourself.

JESSE WOOD.

IN MEMORIAM.

At the second quarterly meeting for Richland circuit, Mississippi Conference, held at Shiloh, on the 17th of April, 1869, the president appointed a committee to report suitable resolutions on the death of the Rev. PETER JAMES, who has died since the last quarterly conference for this circuit, who returned the following preamble and resolutions:

It becomes the duty of your committee to report the death of the Rev. Peter James, who died on the 18th of March, 1869.

Brother James was in the eightieth year of his age when he died, or rather fell asleep in Jesus. He has gone to his reward, testifying with his words the power of grace and the goodness of God. When asked if he was prepared to die, he emphatically said, "Yes, yes, yes, long ago. If I had let that matter alone until now it would have been too late."

Some time in the winter of 1868 he was seriously injured by his horse, from which he never recovered. He suffered much, yet never murmured against the providence of God, but ever looked to Jesus, the author and finisher of his faith, for aid under his great sufferings. His life was an example to others, and in his own case magnified the power of God and the wisdom of God.

He commenced preaching in the year 1812. His name is on the minutes of the first Conference held in Mississippi, all the members of which but one are gone. Soon, very soon, the last one of that glorious band will have passed away. He was compelled to locate twice, but was never satisfied. He entered the Conference the third time, and was after superannuated, which relation he held the time of his death.

Brother James was a good preacher. He grieved much over the gloomy prospects of the church; prayed and exhorted both preachers and people to increase their efforts in the cause of the church, as well as personal holiness. Shiloh was a peculiar object of his love. Here he seemed to centre all the earnestness of his nature.

The last conversation one of your committee had with him he said, "Don't give up Shiloh." The last time he was in Shiloh he saw one of his sons join his beloved church. The next morning, during prayer that another one of them had joined the church, he could clap his hands, the tears rolling down each other down his venerable face, and shout, Glory! Both these sons are active and energetic Sabbath school teachers. May the mantle of their father rest upon them.

We could say much more, but time will not permit. We therefore beg leave to offer the following resolutions:

Resolved, That in the death of Brother James the church has lost one of its most aged, venerated, and useful ministers in the Mississippi Conference one of its greatest members.

Resolved, That the members of Richland circuit, with whom he was so long identified, mourn his removal from their bounds, but are satisfied that he has an abundant entrance ministered unto him into the saint's everlasting rest.

Resolved, That the recording steward set apart one page in his book to record his age, length of his ministry, death, and these proceedings.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings be forwarded to the editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication, and one furnished to the family of the deceased.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. G. THOMAS,
D. G. PEARCE,
J. H. DOCKERY,

Conference adopted the foregoing preamble and resolutions unanimously by a rising vote.

G. W. MITCHELL,
Recording Steward.

SHILOH, April 17, 1869.

THE GREAT METEOR.—The Norwich (Connecticut) Courier gives the following description of the great meteor, as seen in that Ten thousand calcium lights could not have made surrounding objects as distinct. Looking into the street, it was as if thousands of tons of gunpowder had exploded in some building. Following it closely came a loud rumbling sound from the south, like some mighty wave breaking on the beach. The people in the vicinity of the plain say that a tremor of the earth was at this time perceptible. Many were of the opinion that an earthquake was coming to visit us.

No pen can describe the magnificence of this brilliant phenomenon. Nothing similar to it has been seen, that we have record for centuries. Monstrous meteors have flashed across the heavens frequently, and other aerial phenomena have been visible at times, but nothing has been seen so peculiar in shape, so beautiful in its effects as this.

A CHINESE FUNERAL.—A San Francisco correspondent of the Boston Journal thus describes a Chinese funeral:

First comes a wagon containing several Chinamen, one of whom is beating aloud a gong, and another a pair of cymbals to warn away evil spirits, another scattering little bits of white paper along the street to the cemetery, by which the dead can find his way back to the regions of the living, and a large pigs roasted to a brown with a portion of which the mourners, who follow in a long line of carriages and wagons, and appear to be jolly enough, are to regale themselves at the grave, and the remainder is left there by the for the departed one, but is generally taken possession of by the "Melican men," as the Chinese term the Americans.

A PARSIMONIOUS RELIGION.—Comte, the founder of the Positive Philosophy and of the "Worship of Humanity," drew up a sustentation schems for the support of the ministers of his new religion, in which "the high priest of humanity" was to receive a salary of about $12,000 a year, and four assistant supervisors about $6,000 each. It appears, however, that in 1867 only forty-six persons contributed to the fund—twenty-five of them being Frenchmen, sixteen "Western," and five anonymous. And the sum total of their contributions was but $720!

Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1869.

HOLY VOYAGE IN PALESTINE.

EXPLORATIONS AT JERUSALEM.—SOME WEEKS AMONG THE RUINS.

The Times publishes another letter from the daring traveler who, in a canoe, the "Rob Roy," has been exploring the rivers, lakes, and streams of Palestine. This time Rob Roy dates his letter from Jerusalem, where Lieutenant Warren, with a party of English engineers, has been carrying on a series of excavations for a length of time.

"The topographists and archæologists of the work have doubtless been pleased with deep interest the letters from Captain Wilson and Lieutenant Warren which, from time to time, have appeared in your columns on this subject, and which many newspapers in other countries have copied. Though Jerusalem is more than it has been for centuries, a focus of inquiry for the student, and of interest for thousands of Moslems, and for all Christians and Jews who read their Bibles, yet there has been undoubtedly a dull apathy about the whole subject which it is difficult to account for, and which is only now being removed by what you have published as to the feasibility of bringing again to light at least an image of the magnificent grandeur of the Holy City in ancient days. Four weeks spent in diligent work among the ruins here have shown me that to see them properly would need as many months of energetic investigation; but, as most travelers here have only a limited acquaintance with the subject, and a brief time to enlarge their knowledge, it may be for the benefit of new tourists—and they are now arriving in batches of twenty at a time—to be told what can be very well seen even in a single day.

"For this purpose Lieutenant Warren meets us in the morning early, clad in a blouse of genuine red color, and a sergeant of engineers has long tapers for our dark promenade. Down the mouth of a dark shaft a rope ladder is lowered until the brown bare legs of a worthy native from Siloam can stand on the upper end. One by one our party lessens on the surface as each disappears under ground, and our last glimpse of the upper world rests upon two enormous stones in the massive wall of Moriah, and which, by their curved edge projecting, show that once an arch was there. Dr. Robinson was the first traveler to remark this, so it is called 'Robinson's Arch,' and we are going down fifty feet below the present surface to see what can be found below of this old bridge all once hidden and protected by the debris of centuries.

"The hole we are in is like a well, but it is lined with strong planks, and at the dark bottom our passage is through an opening as if into a kitchen grate, where we grope on all fours, with a hard knock on the head now and then, bending sideways too, as well as up and down, until suddenly the roof becomes ragged and crooked, indescribably contorted by angles, all of them the corners of well cut stone. For here we are in a confused heap of huge voussoirs, or arch stones, which, once high in the air, spanned gracefully the rocky vale between Zion and the temple. At a siege of Jerusalem Titus parleyed with the Jews across his gorge, and then these stones were hurled down here, and with what a crash! Upon them, hidden by their own ruin, new buildings arose and gardens flourished. These also were laid low, and on the desolate mounds the present houses stand. The Jerusalem we see to-day is not the real Jerusalem. That is buried under fifty feet of wreck and confusion, but in its forced silence somehow it speaks eloquently, bidding the Christian and the Jew to heave its burden off, to open the dark to the light and air, and to read in the covered relics the story of past times. Therefore we look up and around on these old stones, and seem to listen—with an inquiring gaze, for nothing of their rich, bold masonry has been spoiled by this turmoil above. Old as they are, we notice among them one stone below the rest, and yet more hoary than the others. It is a part of a still more ancient bridge across the rocky cleft, which then was steep at the sides, but now is filled up by fifty feet of rubbish. David in former days may have marched over here. Certainly many kings and prophets after him have trod upon these stones.

"Tanks, cisterns, aqueducts, pavements, are opened to us underground. Once down we can scan by the magnesium light a subterranean city, the real Jerusalem. The labor of building this, and of now mining into it when buried, is forgotten in wonder as we gaze on the silent relics, or wander about the caverns, echoing a hollow voice. But for this we must be agile, like cats or monkeys, and follow Mr. Warren, complacently crawling on his back through a dark crevice. Another great arch, called Wilson's, also now buried, may be visited without such gymnastics. This also spanned the same valley, and the rock-cut passage for troops may be followed as it winds among ample halls, until we are suddenly barred by the walls of a modern house which is an end terribly prosaic for a romantic journey.

"Impressed more than ever with the importance, the extent, difficulty, and interest of the work, its necessary expense, and permanent value, we climb again up the rope ladder. Daylight regained, seems bright, cheerful, and warm, but somehow too glarish also. No mind worth having but must have been stirred deeply by the scene below. The thoughts down there are now like the dream of a past night, when we awake to a common work-day morning, and soon the calm Moslem with his bare legs rolls up the ladder in a pile upon his back as we follow down the valley to 'Job's Well.' Near this Mr. Warren once wriggled through a dark hole in the rock and opened upon a splendid tunnel. At each two hundred feet are long sloping stairs from this to the ground above. Through each of these, now fully opened, we can look down and almost see the clear water which runs rippling at the bottom, coming whence no man can tell, but it wells up plentifully at the end, and then runs along the Kedron valley till the roots of thirsty olive trees lap it up dry, and you may ride for hours below in the course of 'the brook Kedron' only upon hot stones bleached white in the sun.

"A little further up this valley we look into a deep cave where the Virgin's Fountain is running in smooth pools of rock. A network of water channels was once made in Jerusalem, perhaps not less wonderful than the towers and palaces and pinnacles in the daylight above. Few men have dared to follow Mr. Warren in the amphibious tour of the Jerusalem watercourses. In this one, for instance, the water comes first from the Pool of Siloam, and it swells up high at uncertain moments as you squeeze through a passage in the dark, wet up to the shoulders, and where the head must be raised at 'high tide' to keep nose and mouth from being filled. Mr. Warren, indeed, seems to have a subterranean turn of mind, and it is fortunate when one's duty and one's inclination are in the same direction. To-day we were visiting the harem enclosure, where the level sward of green is gorgeous with spring flowers in bouquets here and there round the old pillars and marble blocks. Suddenly Mr. Warren determines to raise one particular stone of these, and ropes, levers, and ladders were speedily at work. The old Sheikh of the Temple Area, (a sort of Moslem dean and chapter in one man,) intensely bigoted, but outwardly complying, sits restless on the grass, now and then groaning deeply, as he sees the Englishman disappear into a great cavern, the last of the cisterns examined in this hollow sounding, grassy square. After measuring this below, Mr. Warren entered a small hole in the turf above, where one could hardly expect a terrier to go in, taking leave of us all, with a good-humored joke to the anxious Sheikh, who forced a grim smile into his face, evidently half fearing, half worshiping the 'Nazarene' intruder he was set to watch. After all, a touch of craziness insures respect among these Moslems, and often I found myself that the Arabs dared not touch the being who could float in a boat alone. After twenty minutes of anxious suspense we heard a cheerful 'Halloah!' far off and in a totally unexpected direction, and there was Mr. Warren erect again on the surface, having traversed a new passage under the grass in total darkness, and creeping on his side. A bit of magnesium was given to the grave Sheikh in reward for his easy guardianship. The old man took it like a child, and thanked the giver, but with a more audible groan. Next we can enter a shaft near the 'Golden Gate' of the temple where two beautiful arches in the exterior wall mark the exact spot at which the Moslems are sure the 'Nazarenes must one day enter to conquer all.'

"It is hard exercise, but healthful and appetizing, to climb up and down these shafts; yet we may include in our day's work a visit to shaft fifty-two, its number telling how many others must be left unseen. This goes straight through the rubbish at the southeast corner of Jerusalem. Above us, rising proudly still, is the ancient angle of the Temple Area, which overhangs the valley steep below, two hundred feet. Most likely it was on this, or a pinnacle near, that our Lord was placed in his three fold temptation. Even now the wall is fifty feet high above the ground, the most expressive feature of the Holy City seen from without in the profile of Jerusalem. At a depth of nearly fifty feet below the present ground, near the wall, we reach at last the corner stones of the venerable building, so that what we have looked up to before as lofty is seen only from a raised base of rubbish, actually eighty feet high above the real rock, and thus much robbing the Harem wall of more than its veritable height. Even above the present surface the stones are huge as well as ancient, and at the bottom they are equally massive and beautifully cut. The rock itself is bared at last upon which the marvelous structure rests. Where each lowest foundation stone lies upon it we can see the rock has been leveled to receive its brethren. Here, and only here, are clippings from the chisel. The stones, indeed, had been finished by divine command before they were placed, but mason's tools had to be used on the live rock as it lay.

"In one part there had been even then some rubbish here, and this had been cut out to admit the lowest stones. Among this debris I was fortunate enough to pick out the tooth of a camel, which must have lived among the Jebusites before even this old wall was built.

"It is on these lowest courses of stones, most of them very large—one more than seventeen feet long—that you can see by candle light the curious letters, or at any rate, characters in red paint, of which full particulars have been published in your columns. These letters are numerous, distinct, and large, and others are actually cut in the stone, but all of them are complete puzzles to the best scholars here, and the decision of the English, German, and French savans as to their meaning is awaited with deep interest. The color of the pigment used for these letters varies in appearance from time to time as you revisit them. Perhaps a few weeks more may efface some of these marks entirely. Meanwhile, I determined in my last visit to them to-day to imitate the actual tints as well as possible by water colors and on paper. On bringing up these copies to daylight it was at once remarkable how differently they appear in the sun's rays from what they do in the galleries below, where only candles or the magnesium light have shown them to the curious visitor.

"It is disheartening to be told that, from want of funds to keep this shaft open and the wood lining of it properly renewed, even this very interesting sight must be only temporary, and that the approach to it must be closed again a few weeks from this time, for the wood will not last safely much longer. Meanwhile the travelers here have availed themselves of a precious opportunity. An American lady was lowered down the shaft in a chair last week—the first lady who has seen these ancient writings. Mr. Simson, whose drawings are so widely known in the Illustrated London News from the Crimea, and Abyssinia, and the Brindisi route, descended with his sketch book yesterday. It is hoped that the Marquis of Bute will go down the shaft this week; and perhaps some man who has heart, and head, and money will enable the Palestine Exploration Fund at least to keep the shaft open and in secure repair, even if it be left to our posterity to clear away all the rubbish that clogs the splendid wall of Jerusalem, and to lay open to the sun, and to the eyes of the world, the long covered splendors that are still there, after so many wars, and fires, and razing, and the gnawing of ruthless time.

"Yours, etc., ROB ROY.

"JERUSALEM, March 9."

The London Times on Mr. Sumner.

Mr. Sumner had the questionable honor of contributing more than any other man to the war which broke up the Union, and to the differences which keep the breach still open. His mode of handling political questions always was to put them in the form which least admitted of a common understanding and a possible reconciliation. In the long and bitter controversy with the Southern politicians before the actual disruption, it was evident that nothing human nature was capable of would have satisfied Mr. Sumner, and that what he demanded of the South was, in fact, moral and political self-annihilation. He never made any allowance for that actual state of things which is always and everywhere the most important part of every question, and which must be taken into account in the interest both of mercy and of justice. A style of argument which called upon some hundred thousand gentlemen not only to ruin themselves and their families, but to gibbet themselves to all ages as the worst enemies of mankind, was not intended to convince or persuade. It succeeded, however—that is, in the ruin of the South, and in the sacrifice of more life and property than were ever thrown away on an interstine feud. If any one name deserves more than any other to be inscribed on the annals of that war, at least on its opening chapter, it is that of Mr. Sumner. We will not charge him with any wish to lighten his own responsibility by making us divide it with him. On the contrary, we believe him to be perfectly satisfied with the results of the controversy. The demands of justice are, however, infinite; vengeance is proverbially insatiable, and its reckonings can know no bounds but those of space and time. There is a satisfaction yet to be made, and which the Southern States, ravaged, desolated, and ruined as they are, have not made, and, indeed, are hardly in a condition to make with due solemnity. Till some millions of men, or some great power representing that number, have humbled themselves in the dust before Mr. Sumner, and confessed themselves knowingly, purposely, deliberately, and utterly in the wrong, and prepared to make corresponding restitution, he feels he has not all that his cause justly entitles him to. He has not received his due meed of humble acknowledgments. But would even this set him at rest, and interrupt that enormous calculation of that ever-growing sum of wrongs? Could we suppose all England on its knees before him, imploring his forgiveness and offering any terms, we fear he would only be disgusted with a humility which put an end to his mission. It would not even leave him the congenial employment of calculating damages up to thousands of millions, for that would become the work of appointed umpires and professional statisticians.

To every point of law, to every possible plea, and to every allegation of fact necessary to his case Mr. Sumner has done ample justice. In the picture he has drawn, the mighty malefactor that had long waited for an opportunity to damage the eldest child of political liberty begins by fostering a quarrel; proceeds at once to allege a war where there is no war; extorts an admission to that effect from a chance word of the American President; recognizes belligerents; accords belligerent rights, and then willfully and deliberately launches armed expeditions which destroy the Northern commerce, root and branch; and inflames and protracts the war far beyond even its natural and probable dimensions. All this he describes in the simple and highly dramatic form of a stupendous national crime, committed by the whole nation, its government, its Parliament, its merchants and manufacturers, its colonies, and every possible representative, with the exception of a Cobden or a Bright. Such a conception of this country and its mode of operation might be possible to some honest and simple-minded savage who had never heard of free opinions, civil rights, and constitutional securities, or of any of the institutions which make a man a citizen. But Mr. Sumner is himself born and bred in the midst of these institutions. He knows that his own countrymen claim a divine right to have sympathies, and to profess them, for any class or any cause to their taste. He knows that they may and do contribute not only sympathy, but large substantial assistance, embodied in money and men, to such causes as, for example, that which is aiming at the dismemberment of the British empire. He knows, of course, too, that his fellow-citizens sell arms, ships, and all other munitions of war to all causes and all parties indifferently, and that there is not a single act done on this side which cannot be capped with ten from this own side of the Atlantic. No doubt, it is trying to any temper, whether British or American, to find neighbors apparently chuckling over the disasters which are really no concern of theirs, and for which their respectful sympathy is rather due. But Mr. Sumner is well aware that England has never yet received any sympathy from America in her own hour of trial. The incident of the Canadian rebellion which he introduced in his speech might have recalled the fact that his fellow-citizens largely assisted the rebels, not so much for their sake as for a certain feeling toward this country. These feelings, unpleasant as they are, being thus universal, uncontrollable, and therefore permissible under a free Constitution, have at least to be kept within legal bounds, and how to do this has always been a difficulty at Washington as well as here. We may not have succeeded here. We may have been dilatory. Our government may even have been guilty of that "crass" carelessness, or neglect, charged upon them by Mr. Sumner. But this would only put the British nation and government exactly on a par with the American people and government under similar circumstances. The latter have had to observe their own laws and the laws of nations under the very great difficulty of a universal wish to break them, if possible, and they have only succeeded to an extent satisfactory to themselves—not quite so satisfactory to others.

THE London Bible Society has given away two hundred thousand copies of the Gospels, and five million tracts in Spain.

A LESSON FOR US.

At a recent missionary anniversary in England the Bishop of Oxford alluded to the prosperous condition of the churches of northern Africa in the first centuries of the Christian era, and the probable cause of their decline. We extract a couple of paragraphs. Christianity must be aggressive. A living church must be a missionary church. Let Christians heed the lesson in view of the claims of tens of thousands of heathen in their midst, and in China and Japan and the Pacific isles.

"There was a time when the whole of that northern belt of Africa was bright with Christian light; there was a time when Cyprian and Augustine knelt, and prayed, and wept, and suffered, and ruled in the great churches of northern Africa; there was a time when, with the church's rule, temporal prosperity abounded, when that peculiar part of north Africa had almost superceded Italy in becoming the great granary and storehouse of imperial Italy—when its rich fields, its abundant pasture, its beautiful woods, furnished to the mistress of the earth all that she needed for her luxury and pomp. And troubles began to come; and we can see now why they came. We can see that the belt of Africa was contented to be a belt; that she thought she had the light of the Gospel for herself, that she stood there and made no sign for the heathen down below her; that she did not try to gather them into the church; that she did not reproduce the church in the native church; that she was contented to be the Italian offshoot of the church; was contented with the Italian principle. A wall of darkness edged the light of Christ's truth, a wall of barbarians lying beyond the irrigated district of civilization which Christianity had so abundantly watered. And the earthquake began to heave the land, and there was darkness overhead, and there was rumbling beneath, and the people were terrified; but they did not read their lesson. They went on in their dream of having their churches for themselves, never seeing that God was waking them up as a nation to know that they received only to impart. And as they did not learn the lesson, the danger thickened, and the evil day darkened.

"And so, when the Mohammedan swept as God's avenger over the land, mark how the very neglect of duty became the instrument of vengeance. The colonist had no one to fall back upon; he had not a mighty Christian gathering in the natives which should have arisen around the Christian teachers, and rolled back from them the fierce Mohammedan invasion. They were but the tenants of the soil, come from a distant land, and began to think at once of going back to their own shores. And the wave of judgment swept on. It uprooted church after church, city after city, episcopate after episcopate, until the billows of darkness grew up like the sands of the neighboring desert, where the light of the Cross had, but a little while before, beamed for the healing of the people. And can we doubt that all this was God's uniform way; that it was no exception; that it was no sudden, no unusual manner of dealing? Is it not His universal way to give trust? And if the trust be undischarged, after warning, after forbearance, after clemency infinite, to remember judgment, and to hand over to another the opportunity that had been trusted to him who would not perceive the day of his visitation?"

SPEED ON RAILROADS.—An English capitalist makes the following remarks upon the question of fast running on railroads:

It is a question vital to the American people and their railway system—the subject of utilizing your railroads to the fullest extent, by running slow and frequent trains of freight at greatly reduced rates of shipment. You know, I suppose, that very many of your railways are in use not more than four hours out of twenty-four. You know that in geometrical progression, almost, the cost of railway carriage increases with the rate of speed. It costs half as much to run a train at ten miles an hour as at twenty. The fuel, the wear and tear, accident, cost of rolling stock, make the difference. An engine, to run forty miles an hour, as some of ours do, costs an extravagant sum of money. It must weigh sixty tuns to insure safety. This sixty tuns pulverizes the rails. The speed shakes the extravagant engine speedily to pieces.

We have found, in England, that no railway train pays anywhere in the kingdom which exceeds thirty miles an hour. The Royal Holyhead mail, which makes a mile a minute, exclusive of stoppages, has to be subsidized extravagantly. The same applies to fast ships. Behold only yesterday, the French steamer Pereire, built to outstrip the Scotia, puts back to Havre with her engine-room full of dead men. High rate of speed! This was the matter. That destroyed your Collins line of vessels. But for the mail subsidy and the extraordinary competition in England between railways, we should not have a train to make over thirty miles an hour. Our island is hardly longer than the State of New York, but in this country, where you have so vast distances between your grain and cotton districts, and the sea, the subject of low speed for the sake of cheap freights is of vital importance.

MY OX OR YOURS?—A correspondent of the Frankfort Commonwealth, writing in defense of his conference, says: "There were colored persons belonging to it, and to a limited extent participated in it." Again he says: "The colored persons occupied a portion of the house to themselves."

We may charge the Northern Methodist bishops with taking our churches and parsonages in the South; their General Conference with breaking the covenant of a former General Conference with their Southern brethren; their book agents, with withholding, in violation of a solemn compact, our part of the book and publishing interests and chartered fund, till the all-powerful arm of the law wrenched it from their grasp and gave us our rights; their annual conferences with approving all these iniquities, and transforming their convocations into political conventions; their preachers with making their pulpits political rostrums, and converting the church into a great political organization; their "carpet bag" missionaries down South with inciting mobs of "loyal East Tennesseans" against our unoffending preachers; may expose the trickery and deception which characterized the conduct of the "Loyal Eighteen" in Kentucky at the Conference which witnessed their begira northward, and the iniquity of their subsequent endeavor to overthrow our church in Kentucky, by appealing to the political views and feelings of a large portion of our people; and this Cincinnati editor submits to it all with a quietness that almost persuades one of its religious principle that influences him instead of stubborn facts that he cannot deny; but when we accuse his pot "Loyal Eighteen," their white associates and negro confederates of the Kentucky Conference with rebellion, his wrath knows no bounds.

GREATNESS OF THE CHINESE EMPIRE. Mr. Caleb Cushing, who is, perhaps, the best authority in the United States on Chinese affairs, tells us that China contains single provinces, each of which—in population, wealth, civilization, education, and all else that gives power to State—is superior to France, England, Prussia, or any of the first powers of Europe; that the empire has five hundred million inhabitants (more than all Europe combined;) that this inconceivably vast population is governed by the strongest, brightest intellects; that education is universal, even more general than with us, there being absolutely no classes of people who cannot read and write; that the great body of the Chinese are intelligent, industrious, apt to learn anything and everything, frugal, pre-eminently patriotic, and more profoundly attached, perhaps, than the people of any other nation in the world to their own laws and institutions; that China was a great nation ages before what we call the ancient nations of Greece and Rome had been founded, and has remained a great nation, while its earliest contemporaries, Egypt and Assyria, are only known imperfectly in the most ancient of the earliest records of our race; that the Rothschilds, the Astors, and Stewarts, among the millionaires of Europe and America, are but pigmies in wealth compared to some of the great capitalists of China.—Vicksburg Herald.

OVER ninety per cent. of the rays issuing from most kinds of artificial lights are, according to the German chemist, Landsberg, calorific or heat rays, and as such non-luminous. Sunlight has only fifty per cent. of heat rays. He attributes the painful effect of artificial light upon the eyes to this large amount of heat rays. By passing artificial light through alum or mica, the heat rays are interrupted and the light is rendered much more pleasant and less injurious.—Scientific American.

LIFE IN THE DEEP SEA.—A curious experiment is said to have been recently performed in France to ascertain whether fishes can live in great depths of water. The fish were placed in vessels of water made to sustain four hundred atmospheres, under which they lived and preserved their health. It is therefore concluded that fishes may penetrate to very great depths in the ocean with impunity.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

QUARTERLY MEETING at Honma, June 13. J. C. KEENER.

FAIR AT MONROE.

A letter from Rev. C. F. Evans announces his fair as a great success—$1,200 clear. The "castle" was at a discount—hardly paid for transportation, excepting in the way of sensation.

PERSONAL.

At the Mobile convention we met, among many old friends, the Rev. E. V. Levert, looking about as he did twenty five years ago. The war period seems to have renewed some men. He preached at St. Francis street on Sabbath with eloquence and power.

The Rev. Dr. Mitchell was in fine health, and looked as much our beau ideal of a presiding elder as he used to be of a college president.

The Rev. Dr. Hamilton was getting rapidly out of his recent attack of asthma. He went through the work of presiding without exhaustion, and gave us the benefit of an excellent talk on the control which every pastor should have and take of his Sabbath school—a point of much importance, and upon which we would gladly have heard more.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas W. Dorman had just returned from a short trip, and we were glad to see that he was able to be present at the convention, and also at the service on Sabbath. He contemplates visiting the mountains of Virginia, which, we hope, will reinvigorate and brace him up for many years.

We insert the following from the Memphis Advocate:

The Rev. Dr. L. Pierce preached, Sabbath last, at Central church in the morning, and at Second street in the evening. His sermons, we learn, gave, as before, very great satisfaction to his hearers. The next day he left for his home in Georgia, and many prayers follow him.

The Rev. Bishop Wightman, of Charleston, South Carolina, a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, preached on Sunday, both morning and evening, at the Church of the Strangers, in the New York University Chapel, on Washington square, of which the Rev. Dr. Deems, formerly of North Carolina, is pastor.

Father McMahon writes from Smithland, Kentucky, on the 17th ultimo, that his health has much improved—was about starting for Nashville, where he expects to remain some time, perhaps during the summer. His friends should address him at Nashville, care of W. R. Elliston, Esq.

OPEN DOORS.

These are opportunities of usefulness in the service of God. They represent all occasions for activity and devotion in the church, and all circumstances which invite effort and promise good results. The genuine toilers of the divine kingdom are always seeking and entering them. It is the prerogative of God to open the doors of opportunity. This He does in many ways, in the order of His providence, and by the operations of the Holy Spirit. Paul says that at Troas "a door was opened unto me of the Lord;" and again he solicits the prayers of the godly, "that God would open unto us a door of utterance." This divine prerogative must not be confounded with the Christian's qualifications for the work of the Lord. Whilst Christ fits him for entering, He is also engaged in opening doors for his admission Whilst the instrument is being "indued with power from on high," this objective process of pulling down and clearing away is going on at the same time.

Means of usefulness of some kind are in the hands of all, and there is, to every one, some humble opening which calls for immediate exertion. God opens doors, but the Christian must recognize and enter them. One important office of religious vigilance is to discern the providential indications and omens of gracious promise, and to interpret the signs which encourage bold and immediate action. For want of this vigilant discernment, and prompt improvement of the day or the hour, many are doing nothing for Christ, and are at the same time stupidly wondering how it is that they are so useless. Some are dissatisfied with their idleness and unprofitableness, and wishing that they could do something, whilst every avenue of religious activity appears to be closed against them. The open door is there, however; not, it may be, "a great door and effectual," but in some form of humble benevolence, or lowly labor in the field of the world. Thinking about great and impossible things, that which we could do, and which we are called to do, has been overlooked. The Christian's way may be blocked up in one direction, whilst it is particularly clear and hopeful in another. Much time and effort are often vainly expended on what is impracticable, to the neglect of such enterprises as promise success. We batter and thunder at the closed door and keep aloof from the open one. Anything may be better than stagnation, but Christian effort should always look to the best thing, and this is undoubtedly that which God's finger most clearly indicates. We can recall instances of the misdirected exertion of individuals whose lives have been wasted upon objects in themselves impracticable, or which they were unfitted to undertake. The same is true of religious organizations. They need to scan the field and to search for the marks of the divine preparation. Sad mistakes are sometimes made in the location of churches, in the direction of missionary men and means, and in the inception of new plans and measures for the advancement of religious enterprises. Prudence and wisdom, and not a reckless enthusiasm, are enjoined. The seed is not to be sown in the desert sand, nor upon the barren rock. Although commanded to sow beside all waters, it is yet upon the waters that our bread is to be cast.

Neither individuals nor churches can afford to squander anything upon objects which do not warrant the expectations of the largest results. It is certainly desirable to be sure of the open door when we move. There are closed doors as well as open ones; and open doors that may be shut after awhile. Our efforts to do good are sometimes necessarily tentative. We may have to try, in order to ascertain the actual situation. To conclude against the providential opportunity when it exists, is an error to be deplored. Our natural timidity and unbelief tend in this direction, and we need, above all things, "the Spirit of power, of love, and of a sound mind." Christians require the vigilant eye to see, and the courageous heart to enter the path which preventing providence and grace have combined to open.

There is a tide in the spiritual affairs of men which must be taken at the flood. The church may be ripe for a revival, and the pastor fail to recognize the fact. A neighbor is now seriously wrought on, and only needs the helpful word of advice and invitation, but that word is not spoken. The child is already awakened, and waits only for the guidance of parental love to be introduced into the kingdom, but the golden moment is allowed to pass. We can look back now and see how, as individuals, our lives have been comparative failures, because we have not improved the conditions which have been made ready to our hands. Thus many a personal blessing has been forfeited, and incalculable good to others has been lost. These open doors were passed before they were seen, or our faith and courage failed us when they might have been entered—a comfortless and tantalizing retrospect of opportunities which we were too dull to appreciate, or too fearful to improve! The memory of them haunts and saddens the soul, and follows us with its voices and shapes of bitterness. In our church organizations and societies we now see past improvidences and fatal omissions. Missions, church extension, Sunday schools, all contribute to swell the volume of painful regret.

For the present and future let us be wiser. A heavy responsibility rests upon the chief pastors and others in authority; but also a great responsibility upon every individual believer. "Behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it." It remains that each shall recognize the divine hand as it assigns to him his lot in the work of Christ; and that he resolutely follow where the Captain of our salvation leads. The open door of duty promptly and heartily entered, is for us now the path of safety and happiness; and that also which shall finally enable us to "enter in through the gates into the City."

*

THE MOBILE CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Agreeably to the resolution of the Mobile Conference, a fine representation of both ministers and laymen assembled, on Thursday evening, in the St. Francis street church of Mobile. After the appointment of a temporary chairman, Dr. Hamilton, a voluntary by the choir and prayer, the audience listened for more than an hour to an address by Hon. Joseph W. Taylor, of Eutaw, on "The Aim and Objects of the Sunday School and its Instructions." The manner of the speaker was most felicitous, and the address abounded in polished, rich sentences, which both delighted and instructed the hearers. The importance of the Sabbath school to the country and the church was impressively set forth. It was a good key-note and an admirable introduction to the occasion. The auditory was brilliant and large, and did credit to Mobile, as well as to the orator.

On Friday morning, after devotional exercises, the convention was regularly organized by the election of the Rev. Jefferson Hamilton, D. D., president; Hon. J. W. Taylor, first vice president; Hon. H. W. Foote, second vice president; Hon. Stephen A. Brown, secretary, and Mr. Edward T. Fowlkes, assistant secretary. An essay was then read on "The Qualifications and Prerogatives of Superintendents, and the Qualifications Necessary for a Teacher," by Dr. W. L. Lipscomb, of Columbus, Mississippi. The doctor was evidently at home in his theme. No one but a living superintendent, who had seen much service, could have analyzed as he did the essential requisites to a good superintendent and an efficient teacher.—This paper was vigorous and sprightly in its style, comprehensive and exact in its thought, and brought the convention directly to the work in hand.

Immediately upon the conclusion of an essay or address, its theme was discussed, and a free exchange of views was had, which cannot be gathered up in resolutions or a report. The light thus thrown upon the duty and art of training children for the Lord will doubtless be reflected in the minds and in the various charges of those present for many a long day. As some one remarked that he could wish for a convention without a resolution, the main effort was to enlarge the conception and to heighten the interest of all in the noble cause rather than to give verbal shape to a few general propositions. At 3 P. M. of Friday, after singing and prayer, Judge P. G. Wood read a paper on "The Propriety and Utility of Uniform Lessons, and the Necessity of Teachers' Meetings to Prepare the Lessons." Unfortunately for us, we did not hear the judge; but his discussion of the theme was pronounced excellent by everybody who heard it. Either his paper or his theme made a great impression, for the convention spent more time in considering the value of the "uniform lesson system" than upon any other subject. "Uniform lessons" mean simply that the whole school study the same chapter or passage of Scripture on the same day. The Mobile teachers and superintendents were enthusiastic in its praise, attributing to it something marvelous in molding a school. They spoke of it as a "new era" and most admirable discovery in the art of training children and teachers for piety and usefulness. That all should be inquiring into the same thing, at the same time, was of itself a stimulus. And on motion of Prof. N. T. Lupton, "The superintendents of the Mobile schools were requested to conduct their schools on Sabbath as usual, that the members of the convention might see the practical working of the system."

At night, after religious services, the Rev. J. S. Moore addressed the convention on "The Claims of the Sunday School upon the Church, and the Importance of Adult Classes." The speaker's heart, as well as mind, was earnestly enlisted in the treatment of his subject. The address was impressive and suggestive. In considering it afterward there was but one opinion as to the importance of retaining young men and young ladies in the Sabbath school. It was the only way to secure an adequate supply of teachers, and such classes gave tone to the whole school.

On Saturday the convention was opened by prayer, and an address by the Rev. Thomas C. Weir on "The Importance of Infant Class Instruction, and the Necessity and best Method of Preparing to Teach." We did not hear it, much to our loss and regret. It was highly appreciated by those who did hear it. The discussion brought out nothing new—only, the blackboard was represented as a valuable aid to this department of the school. At 12 M. two addresses were delivered, one by the Rev. J. L. Cottea, the other by the Hon. H. W. Foote, on "The Opening and Closing Exercises of the Sabbath School." This theme, which we had supposed a very barren one, became very interesting under their discussions. It was impressed upon us that the beginning and the end are the two parts of school exercises, as of a discourse, to be carefully guarded. They are the important positions in a sentence. Expectation lends its force to the one, and reflection its impress to the other. A school thoughtfully, fitly opened, and then, at its close, wound up for the week as for eternity, cannot be other than a good one. During the discussion which followed, the Rev. A. S. Andrews offered this important resolution: "That in the opinion of this convention the pupils in our Sabbath schools should be taught that it is their imperative duty, when possible, to attend the public preaching of the divine word in the great congregation, and that the parents of the children are earnestly requested to aid in so important a work." It was brought out very clearly that a very large proportion of children who attend Sabbath schools in the towns and cities do not attend preaching—a most lamentable and weighty statistic of this cause, and one that should have immediate remedy. The correction lies within the control of parents. If the choice is to be between Sabbath schools and preaching, there can be but one decision, for children are to be saved mainly by the preached word—"the foolishness of preaching"—as well as adults.

On motion of Rev. T. Y. Ramsay, it was "Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to prepare an address on the subject of Sabbath schools, to be read by the pastors of the Mobile Conference to their congregations." Said committee consists of Revs. A. S. Andrews, J. L. Cotten, Thomas C. Weir, James A. Heard, and J. S. Moore.

At night the convention listened to an address by the Rev. A. S. Andrews on "The great Hindrances of the Sabbath School Cause." This address was ably conceived and admirably delivered. The apathy of Christian parents in securing the salvation of their children was placed in strong contrast with their all-controlling care and labor to secure for them wealth, honor, and position. The end of all this worldly solicitude was depicted in burning words. The immediate audience was not large, but the preachers who were present will be able to make a larger one hear its stirring appeal to the church for greater activity in this holy work of saving the young.

Thus far we have in effect copied from the abstract of the excellent secretary, and now give his concluding items:

On motion of Rev. J. Barker:
Resolved, That it is the duty of every member of the church to attend the Sabbath school, whenever it is practicable to do so.

On motion of Prof. N. T. Lupton:
Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be extended to the citizens of Mobile for their generous hospitality extended to its members.

On motion of Rev. A. H. Mitchell:
Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be extended to the captains and officers of the steamboats, and to the railroad companies, for their liberality to the members of the convention.

The convention then adjourned sine die. Doxology and benediction by Dr. Keener.

S. A. BROWN, Secretary.

On Sabbath morning there was preaching in the several churches to full houses, and the several schools were addressed by the members of the convention. In the afternoon all the children were gathered at the Franklin street church, where several short addresses by the Rev. T. C. Weir, Dr. Lipscomb, and the ADVOCATE were enlivened by most delightful songs from the school. The weather and the house were something less than 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Preaching again at night.

The convention was a movement in the right direction, and strongly impressed its members with the paramount importance of co-working with the Saviour and the Holy Spirit in trying to save the children. From these "waters" we expect to gather precious sheaves not many days hence.

RYLAND CHAPEL, GALVESTON.—A communication in the Texas Christian Advocate, from Rev. L. M. Lowis, pastor of this church, speaks of great prosperity. We give a brief extract:

We but lately closed a protracted meeting which resulted in great good. While there were no wonderful and astounding manifestations, yet there was a subdued feeling working in all who attended the service, which brought forth much good. We have had, within a very short time, forty-eight additions to the church, of the very best material—some of our first citizens and some of the children of our Sunday school.

PROF. AGASSIZ says that fish is a kind of food which refreshes the system, especially after intellectual fatigue. There is no other article that supplies the waste of the head so thoroughly as fish diet; and the evidence of it is in the fact that all the inhabitants of the seashores the world over are the brighter population of the country. Fish contains phosphorus to a large extent, a chemical element which the brain requires for growth and health.

VISIT TO MOBILE.

THE ASSEMBLY.

Arriving in Mobile on Wednesday, the 26th, we found the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church in session. Dr. Stewart Robinson, moderator. This body answers to our General Conference, only it meets annually. Representatives were present from all the Southern synods. The body is an able one. The moderator portly, of a ruddy complexion, sanguine temperament, and good natured, as if he had never crossed swords with mortal Presbyterian in all his life. I was glad to see such noble a champion thrive upon what would have made most any other man lean as Casius; because there is no telling what yet lies before Southern churches. There were other notable men present, and we were glad to know that the Synod had all these strong brains and true hearts at work in His heritage.

We found the Assembly discussing that everlasting and inevitable negro—his ordination, relation, etc. Every society, church, State, or other organization, in this country is attempting to control and shape this race into such forms of religious and civil association as unusually beneficial to the white man—a task, we fear, destined to prove in the end as practicable as would be an attempt to train Gipsies to an honest livelihood. The discussion confirmed the wisdom of our General Conference disposition of this kinky subject. The sooner the negro is set off to himself the sooner will he demonstrate, in the sight of the world, his total incapacity for standing alone.

The next time we visited the Assembly it was discussing how to aid worn-out clergymen and the families of deceased pastors. Some one had introduced that now universal panacea for poverty, a life insurance scheme. It reminded me of my last visit to the Mobile and the Montgomery Conferences. To both those bodies the agents of several companies for the relief of perishing humanity presented their cards, and with much moral argument set forth the capital stock upon which, in the event of death the brethren might safely rely. One of them bored his way into the bishop's cabinet, and for a while was in the bishop's room, on Sunday not talking, but merely by his solemn presence keeping the subject still before the mind. The scheme of the Assembly required that each pastor should pay $30 per annum. Some excellent speeches were made upon the theme of the Christian grace of liberality, and one speaker affirmed, what we believe, that the church has not yet accepted the doctrine of her stewardship, nor yet learned the true uses of "the mammon of unrighteousness." Judging from what was said, Presbyterians find as much trouble in working the ore of covetousness as do we. On Thursday this body of divines adjourned. Their preaching, we understand, fully sustained the great reputation of the church for pulpit ability.

We extract the following reports as among the most important of those made to this Assembly, and as indicative of the very prosperous condition of Southern Presbyterianism:

1. The report of the Committee of Publication shows that the whole number of books, tracts, tract volumes, and papers issued during the year is as follows, viz:
Bound volumes, 35,860.
Tract volumes, 25,000.
Catechism, 31,000.
Tracts, 2,250 copies, or 584,000 pages.
Seventh Annual Report, 2,000.
Systematic Benevolence Envelopes, 67,000.
Church blanks, 6,500.
The aggregate number of pages printed was 17,833,500.

The circulation of the Children's Friend has increased steadily, and has now reached the number of 20,000 copies for the semi-monthly edition, and 3,500 for the monthly edition—making the total circulation 23,500 copies. The aggregate number of copies issued during the year was 480,000.

2. The report on education says

Your committee, to whom was referred the report of the Executive Committee on Ministerial Education would respectfully submit the following report to the General Assembly, to wit:

Upon examining that report we find that there is a deficiency, in the treasury, of $1,069, to meet the immediate demands made upon the Executive Committee; that there has been, during the past year, an unparalleled increase of candidates for the ministry; that one-half of the churches, mostly vacant churches, have done nothing for this cause, and that some of our presbyteries have acted independently in this matter, and when pressed for want of means to sustain their candidates, some of these presbyteries have called for aid from your committee.

We therefore recommend to the Assembly the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That it is a just cause of devout and heartfelt gratitude to God that He has, to a gratifying extent, supplied the committee with the means necessary to prosecute their work.

Resolved, That we urge upon our churches to consecrate themselves and their property more entirely to God, and to contribute more largely of their substance, not only to supply the present deficiency in the treasury, but also to meet the increased demands made upon the Executive Committee by the unusual increase of candidates for the ministry; and resolved further, on this point, that those churches which have contributed nothing to this cause during the last year, are urged to take up a collection as soon as practicable.

Resolved, That those presbyteries which have acted independently are requested to co-operate with the Executive Committee, and it is recommended to that committee to withhold their aid from presbyteries which neglect to do so, until those presbyteries which act in unison with them have their wants supplied.

Resolved, That in view of the increased numbers of those who are seeking the ministerial office, and the necessity of prudence and caution in this important matter, it is enjoined upon the presbyteries to exercise great care, and to encourage none to go forward who do not give satisfying evidence that they are moved by the Holy Spirit to seek the sacred office, and to this end resolved further, that it is enjoined upon our presbyteries to maintain and preserve a high standard of ministerial qualifications.

Resolved, That the last Thursday in February next is hereby appointed as a day of prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the youth of our churches, and of our institutions of learning, and for God's blessing upon this cause.

Resolved, That it is hereby recommended to our Christian people to unite with this General Assembly in returning thanks to God for the manifestation of His presence among our young men, in leading so many of them to consecrate themselves to the ministry of the Gospel.

The Election of Delegates to the General Conference.

The bishops have decided that the law regulating this election requires it to be conducted on the following plan:

The two delegates referred to in the second Restrictive Rule are construed to be ministerial. As there must be, in the General Conference, an equal number of each order of delegates from each Annual Conference, it follows that the smallest Annual Conference will be entitled to four delegates, two ministerial and two lay.

The clerical members of the Annual Conference, and the lay members of the Annual Conference, added together, make up the basis of constituency to be represented in the General Conference. To ascertain the number of delegates any Annual Conference is entitled to, divide this sum of clerical and lay members by twenty-eight. This gives the number of clerical delegates; these must be elected by the clerical members of the body. There is an equal number of lay delegates who are to be elected by the lay members of the body. There are, virtually, two independent electoral colleges. Thus:

There are, in an Annual Conference, clerical members	80
There are eight districts, and therefore lay members	32
Total of Conference members	112

This sum divided by 28 gives the number of clerical delegates as 4. There must be an equal number of lay delegates, consequently the representation of that Annual Conference in the General Conference is 8.

As to the fraction of two-thirds; this works as follows:

Clerical members of Annual Conference	92
There are ten districts, and therefore lay members	40
Total of Conference members	132

This sum divided by 28 gives a quotient of 4, and a remaining fraction of 20. This fraction being equal to two-thirds of 28, is entitled to representation according to the second Restrictive Rule. The delegation of such an Annual Conference would stand thus: 5 clerical delegates and an equal number of lay delegates, that is 10.

H. N. McTYEIRE, Soc'y.

—Nashville Christian Advocate.

MARRIED.

On the 25th of April, by the Rev. J. T. M. Gregory, at the residence of the bride's father, Captain B. McKINEY to Miss REBECCA GILLEYLEN, both of Athens, Monroe county, Mississippi.

On the night of the 13th of May, by the same, at the residence of the bride's father, Dr. J. H. POWELL to Miss JNEIE COWEN, both of Monroe county, Mississippi.

OBITUARIES.

W. CURRY WOOD was born in Florida, August 22, 1821—where he was partly brought up—and died in Lauderdale county, Mississippi, March 16, 1869.

He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in early life, of which he was a devoted member until death, and for many years a zealous class leader and an efficient steward.

The following is a tribute of respect from the quarterly conference of which he was a member:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our heavenly Father to remove from our midst, to the church triumphant, our worthy brother, W. Curry Wood, an efficient member, and for a long series of years a steward of Bethel church, Marion circuit, Mobile Conference; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we, as a quarterly conference, deplore our loss of so worthy and efficient a member from our board of stewards, we yet rejoice with his immediate friends and relatives, feeling assured, by his holy life, that our loss is his everlasting gain.

Resolved, That the above be spread upon the minutes of this quarterly conference and that a copy be forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

J. C. BROGAN,
T. Y. ARMSTRONG,
W. S. GRACE,
Committee.

May 24, 1869.

Died, at his residence in Caddo parish, Louisiana, WILLIAM J. OGILVIE, in the fifty-ninth year of his age.

He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church when quite young, but never felt satisfied of a change of heart until some years after, at a camp meeting near Cherokee Corner. He was there made to rejoice in the pardoning love of his blessed Redeemer. No doubt many now in the world of bliss, and many more still striving for the eternal shore, will thank God forever that they were permitted to attend that camp meeting.

A short time after his conversion, and putting on the whole armor of God, he was married to Miss Patterson, of Kentucky, who has most faithfully held up his hands and participated in all the joys and sorrows that befall the Christian life.

In 1857 he moved, with his interesting family, to Louisiana, and settled in Caddo parish, where, during and since the war, he waded through deep waters of affliction. Several of his children were taken from him by death, while property seemed to take to itself wings. Yet in all this he was enabled to say, "The Lord gave, the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." Through all his faith failed not. The Bible was his daily companion. Upon its promises he rested his soul's salvation. "Truly it was a lamp to his feet through the dark valley of the shadow of death. Being questioned, during his last illness, of his prospects for eternity, he replied that "All is well with me. I have no fears for my soul's salvation."

In the death of this good man the church and neighborhood have suffered greatly; while to his devoted wife, a patient though suffering invalid, and four young children, the loss is irreparable. May God have them in His holy keeping!

A FRIEND.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

Died, on the 18th of April, 1869, Mrs. L. A. OGILVIE, wife of the late Colonel William J. Ogilvie, of Caddo parish, Louisiana.

Thus in five short weeks a family of dear children saw the cruel grave close over their last earthly stay and protectors; yet their young hearts are cheered in remembering the many lessons of love and wisdom learned from these Christian parents, which, if they appropriate and follow, will happily reunite them an unbroken family in heaven.

Mrs. Ogilvie had been an invalid from the effects of rheumatism for three years, often suffering very acutely, yet never indulged a murmuring spirit. During all these heavy afflictions she was the same cheerful friend, affectionate and wise counsellor for her husband and children, as when in health.

The sad event of her death occurred at the house of a relative in Shreveport, whither she had gone for medical attention, where she received from a large circle of Christian friends, and the skill of physicians, every attention that love and sympathy could suggest.

But God's ways are above our ways. Her work was finished, her mission ended, and she seemed only to linger a few days that her children and friends might have the precious privilege of knowing from her lips more of heaven, and the Christian's faith that leads trembling mortals across the cold waters of death. Being perfectly conscious until almost the last moment of her life, she was enabled to leave messages and words of comfort for her friends. Those absent she remembered with most fitting messages, and with remarkable clearness of mind directed and planned the future of her children. Such a life as hers is strengthening and encouraging to Christians, and such a death another glorious proof of the power of religion to support and comfort the dying. "By grace she was made perfect through suffering."

A FRIEND.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchoupitoulas street. my29 3m

FOR $100 PER LINE WE WILL insert an advertisement in One Thousand Newspapers, one month. The list includes single Papers of over one hundred thousand circulation weekly, more than one hundred Daily Papers, in which the advertiser obtains twenty-four insertions in the month, and the leading Papers in more than five hundred different towns and cities. Complete files can be examined at our office. Send stamp for our circular. Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., jc5 tfr Advertising Agents, New York.

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. my29 tfr

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO., my29 tfr 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART,
my22 President.

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three-cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, my22 tfr Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address SPIRIT PICTURE CO., my22 tfa 31 Liberty street, N. Y.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S

ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.,) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
my15 tfn 40 Park Row, New York.

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO., my15 tfa Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens FEBRUARY 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00

For circular address jn2 1m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

That the American Watch is superior in accuracy as a time keeper, and in substantial value, to its imported rivals, is now generally conceded by the intelligent. It is so made as to render imperfection a physical impossibility.

The question now is, "Which is the best American Watch?" Then follows, "Which thoroughly good Watch is really the cheapest?" We answer:

"The Waltham Watches have stood the test of time. Waltham is the original seat of American watch-making. The idea of making our own watches, and making each piece by machinery specially adapted to it, so that a piece lost or broken may at once be replaced exactly by another of its sort, originated here; and here it has been carried to perfection. Every year since the start has witnessed improvements in machinery, processes, and workmanship, until watches are now made at Waltham as cheaply as anywhere, as the vast and ever-widening demand for them abundantly proves.

The success of the American Watch has incited several attempts at rivalry, which we are nowise inclined to disparage. All of these are hopeful, and will doubtless improve with experience and the lapse of time. But buyers must feel greater confidence in the time keeping of a watch from this pioneer concern than in one manufactured by any of its young rivals. If any do not, we urge them to inquire of their friends who have bought and carried the American Watch. Every purchaser may have a guarantee, if he will, that this Watch shall give entire satisfaction.

So constant and signal have been the improvements in machinery at the Waltham manufactory that the Company have not only been enabled to make better and better Watches, but they now sell them for fewer dollars in greenbacks than they cost in gold before the war.—But they wish no one to buy their Watches because of their cheapness. They commend them as better time-keepers than any other which are or can be sold at prices so moderate. They ask purchasers not to be persuaded by importunate dealers, who may be governed by considerations of profit into buying watches of doubtful accuracy, when, by buying a Waltham they may be sure of getting a first rate time-keeper at a moderate price.

An illustrated description of the different styles of Watches now manufactured by the Company sent to any address on application.

No watches retailed by the Company.

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
my15 3mr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

CABINET ORGANS.

QUALITY BEST—PRICES LOWEST.

1. That the quality of the MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS is the very best is not questioned by unprejudiced and well-informed persons.—These Organs have uniformly been awarded the highest premiums at Industrial Exhibitions to the number of seventy-five, including the First Class Medal at the Paris Exposition. They are recommended as the standard of excellence, the best, by several hundred of the most eminent musicians in America and Europe, whose testimony is printed, and will be sent to any one desiring it.

2. It is the fixed policy of the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company to sell their Organs always at the least remunerative profit. They are now very much the largest manufacturers of these instruments in the world. With increase of business they have been able to make corresponding increase and improvement in machinery and facilities for manufacture, by means of which they are now producing yet more perfect work than ever before, and this at increased economy in cost. Accordingly they are now selling the best Organs they have ever made at prices which are as low, or even less than would be the cost of manufacture of inferior instruments without the advantage of such facilities.

Four-octave Organs, $50 each. Five-octave Organs, with Knee Swell, $100. Five-octave Double Reed Organs, with five stops, Tremulant and Knee Swell, $125. The same, six stops, with addition of one octave of Sub-bass, connected with the Manuals, $150. The same, seven stops, with Sub-bass and Octave Coupler (each key commands four separate reeds, giving this style nearly twice the power of a Double Reed Organ, with much greater variety) $175. Five-octave Double Reed Cabinet Organ, with five stops, Automatic Swell and Improved Vox Humana, the finest instrument of its size which can be made, $170. Many other styles at proportionate prices, up to $1,000 each.

Lowest prices printed, invariable, and alike to all.

Circulars, with full particulars as to styles, prices, peculiarities of construction, etc., sent free to every applicant. Address the

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO.,
154 Tremont street, Boston;
my15 4tr 596 Broadway, New York.

"A WORD TO HORSEMEN."

Dr. TOBIAS' celebrated VENETIAN HORSE LINIMENT has been tested by the first Horsemen in this country, and proved to be superior to any other. The late Hiram Woodruff, of "trotting fame," was never without a bottle in his stable. It is also used by Colonel Bush, of the Jerome Park Course, at Fordham, New York, who has over twenty running horses under his care, among which rank some of the finest stock in America. It is warranted to cure Lameness, Sprains, Scratches, Bruises, Galls, Cuts, Wind Galls, Colic, Sore Throat, Nail in the Foot, and Over-heating, when used according to the directions.

All who own or employ Horses are assured that this Liniment will do all, if not more, in curing the above named complaints. No Horse need die of Colic, if, when first taken, the Liniment is used according to the directions. Always have a bottle in your stable.

Price, in pint bottles, $1. The genuine is signed S. I. Tobias on the outside wrapper.

For sale by the Druggists, Saddlers and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. my15 51r

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address W. A. HENDERSON & CO., my1 tfa Cleveland, Ohio.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo. Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each	15 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	1 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Moshcim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Moshelm, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Dinturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Guston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nils Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols.	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS,

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
my1 New Orleans.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold
Surplus, - - 1,200,000, Gold

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. np10 3mp

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO., Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. my15 tfr

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists.

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures; attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE, my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER.

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States: ao7 1y

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 53 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON, W. H. DAMERON. je23 1y

GEO. W. HACK. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

HACK, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE

sep15 1y New Orleans.

F. HATHORN, ALF. H. PIERSON: Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street, oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address DR. S. S. FITCH, mh13 9mp 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mp Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street, New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2, $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above. my29 tfr

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price. A. WILKINS, my29 tfr Detroit, Mich.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO CO., New York. ap10 tfr

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

A SUMMER SHOWER.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

The dust is flying here and there
In funny little whirls;
The leaves are turning upside down—
The breeze among them swirls.
The cows are lowing in the lane,
And window shutters creak;
Rumble, rumble, rumble,
The clouds begin to speak.

A shiver runs along the brook,
And leaden grows the sky;
The sunshine fails a mile away,
Then shuts up like an eye.
You couldn't find a bird or bee
In upland, vale, or plain;
Patter, patter, patter,
The bulging drops of rain.

The chickens hide beneath the shed,
And wear their ruffled capes;
The very weather, this, for ducks
To show their waddling shapes.
From yonder farm a rooster gives
A dull, despairing crow;
It's raining, raining, raining,
Over there, we know.

The grass has grown a deeper green,
The sky a darker blue;
And, O, we little know the good
A summer shower can do!
The birds are singing loud and clear,
And this is what they say:
"Come out, come out, come out again!
The clouds are gone away!"

—Little Corporal.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

SHANGHAI, CHINA, March 18, 1869.

MY DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS OF FELICITY STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL: The $20* you have kindly forwarded for the mission work in China has arrived. I thank you for your kindness and the earnest desire which you have manifested for the heathen around us. There are millions here who know not God, and live in darkness. They never heard of Jesus as a Saviour from sin. It is true we have told some, and many have heard the glad news of the Gospel; but how few compared to the great mass, the millions around us. The Chinese are a people who believe anything but the truth. Just now, in one of the crowded parts of the city of Shanghai, there is a company of men who are exhibiting a small live alligator, and state at the door, so that passers by can see, that it is a live dragon, the first ever exhibited in Shanghai. They state it was caught up in the mountains, in the interior of China. Many go in to see it and come out in great terror at seeing a live dragon. But it is nothing more than what every one of you have seen, a small alligator. It was in a small tub of water, and seemed to be in a constant stupor, as though life had nearly ceased. And yet the Chinese believe it to be a live dragon. They have great dread of what they call the dragon, and yet they, the wisest and most learned of the Chinese, cannot tell what a dragon is. The Chinese dragon is something of the imagination, but which they believe to be real. But what I want to tell you more particularly about is the little children of China, and how they are taught to worship idols. Two Sabbaths since I was in the city, and passing a large temple I went in to see what all the noise I heard could be about. I found the temple filled with smoke from burning paper money, such as I send. The temple was crowded with well dressed women with their little children, and they were bowing to the hideous looking idols all around the room, and making their little boys and girls bow down to these idols of wood and stone. I had the Bible in my hand, and many, as they passed, said, "he is a missionary," and as the priests would pass they would bow to me, and seemed much delighted to think the people were paying them so much money, for as every one came to bow down before the idol they must pay a few cents for that privilege. If they refused to pay then the priest would soon shut up the temples, and they would have to go and do some other kind of work for a living. I thought of the little children of our own country and then of these poor heathen children. The Sabbath before this I had taken my little daughter, who is now nearly six years old, to see the great ugly idol. The temple was so crowded with people we could scarcely get to the door. As soon as little Nora had seen the great ugly idol with great glaring eyes, and many little children bowing down before him, she said, "Pa, pa, I want to go; I do not want to stay here, and I never want to come in this city again." She had never seen one of those large idols before, although she had been here more than four years. Now I want to take the money you have sent and teach some of these children who do not know God, and who do not know how to love Jesus as you do. I send you a piece of their paper money, made of tin foil, which they burn for the dead. This piece represents about $30, if it was true silver. The yellow paper is what their priests have the people put over the door to keep out the evil spirits. Almost every door has one. It is an order which the evil spirits are supposed to obey with trembling! Of course the priest gets his pay for all this, and makes a handsome living. I want you all to pray for the missionary among the heathen, that we may do much good while here. Pray for me, and remember God has a work for you all to do. Good-by for the present, and may God bless you.

J. W. LAMBUTH.

I send you some A B C's used in our schools in China. I will write on each what they mean. To be a perfect scholar you must learn forty thousand!

* This is the second remittance direct by the school to the China mission, the appropriation being $56 in United States currency—exchanged on China for forty Mexican dollars. The other half is acknowledged by Rev. Y. J. Allen, associate missionary.—EDITOR.

FARM AND GARDEN.

CHARCOAL IN THE MILK ROOM.

The fact that milk will absorb noxious gases to such an extent as to greatly impair its excellence as well as its healthfulness, is known to every dairyman. This power of absorption is not confined to the milk itself, but it extends to all the products that naturally form, or are artificially prepared from it, whether they are cream, or butter and cheese. The ill favor, as well as the disagreeable odor of much of our butter and cheese are imparted to them from substances that existed in the milk when it was drawn from the cow, but which were taken up while the milk was setting in pans or tanks, during the manufacture into butter and cheese, or while these products of the dairy are awaiting sale. Hence it is that cleanliness is always reckoned as "akin to godliness" by dairymen, if it is by no one else. Others may reason on neatness in a general way "as a thing to be desired," but he almost alone of manufacturers, knows the money value of having everything about his establishment kept scrupulously neat and clean. Perhaps the Dutch are not from disposition more cleanly than people of other nationalities: butter and cheese making has made them thus. Cleanliness becomes an absolute necessity to them. It is as natural for a Dutch housewife to have her person and milk room clean and tidy as it is for a sailor to have long sight, or a woodchopper to have strong arms. Now soap and water and the scrubbing brush can do much toward keeping the dairyhouse in order, at least as far as the various utensils, floor, and shelves are concerned. But there are many things that they cannot perform. They cannot purify the air. And herein lies the great source of all our ills in the milk room. The eye can detect small particles of dirt in a milk pail, or on a cheese shelf, and it takes little trouble to remove them, but substances in the air are not thus easily detected or disposed of. They cannot be distinguished by the eye, being too small to be discerned by our sense of sight, and, if this were not the case, many of them are of the same color as the air, and cannot be distinguished from it, even when they are collected in large quantities. They exist, although their presence may be unknown to us; they glide into crevices so small that water and ordinary fluids can find no passage. They perform, too, some things that are quite miraculous; they will enter pans of milk, crocks of butter, and boxes of cheese, in quantities much larger than are these vessels themselves, notwithstanding they do not cause the milk to overflow, or the crocks or boxes to burst. Water at fifty degrees of temperature is capable of absorbing six hundred and seventy times its volume of ammonia, and then its greed for noxious gases is by no means satisfied, for it will then take up two or three times its bulk of sulphurated hydrogen.—Now, as not only the water in milk, but the butter, sugar, and caseine, as well, take up and retain these and other gases, it is plain that we must protect them against those substances that are constantly passing in the air. But how shall the air that enters our milk room be purified? The answer is easily made—use charcoal. This common and inexpensive substance, when freshly prepared, is capable of taking up and securely holding ninety times its volume of ammonia, and a proportionate amount of other gases. Not only does it tightly hold the portions of noxious matter that pass through its meshes, but it seems to have the property of attracting them from the surrounding air. Where the charcoal should be placed in the milk room, and the amount that will be necessary to use to render the air comparatively pure, must be learned by experience, as nearly everything has been learned that pertains to dairy matters. In the employment of this agent for purifying rooms, we can use a considerable amount of it at a slight expense, as the first cost of it is but small, and by repeating it after it has become partially saturated with gases, we drive them off, and render the charcoal as effectual in action as at first.—Maine Farmer.

HINTS FOR GARDEN PREPARATION.—One of the first things to be considered in the choice of a garden plot is exposure. This is of far more importance than its size or external appearance. If there is a chance for choice, select by all means a plot with a gentle slope toward the sun at his meridian. An exposure toward the midday sun is as good as being several degrees farther south. Where a garden lies away from the sun, the hoar frost will sometimes remain nearly all day, which should be melted off in an hour. On no account should a house, wall, or trees prevent the full rays of the sun; for even in winter the ground, as well as the few remaining vegetables, is greatly benefited by it.

The soil of the garden is next in importance. No trouble should be considered too great to bring it into good condition. The soil should be deep, rich, and easily penetrated. If shallow, it should be trenched; if still and clayey, sand and vegetable manure should be well mixed in. If too sandy already, alter with slough soil. No garden can be conducted with the least degree of satisfaction without a thorough manuring. There is truth in an old English saying: "Hunger a garden and it will hunger you." Composts from old pastures, brick earth, seasand, decayed loaves, and lime rubbish are all excellent in their place.

The soil should be thoroughly pulverized. Every spadeful, as it is turned up, should be dashed down, that no hard lumps come against a tender root. Every particle of dirt should be made to do its duty in feeding plants; therefore every stone should be removed, if no bigger than a marble. If it is a small garden, and the gardener have leisure, a very nice method is to put every spadeful through a large coarse sieve.

The same kind of vegetables should not be planted in exactly the same spot from season to season, if you desire an abundant increase and freedom from insects. Fine sand and coal cinders, also salt, are good remedies for many infecting insects. Coal cinders scattered upon the walks, or paths, intersecting garden beds, are excellent to keep down weeds, grass, and worms.

If you have an ailing son, or daughter, by all means prepare a nice garden plot, and set them to work in it this spring. There is nothing that will induce finer spirits or better health. Animate them with good tools and some nice work on gardening, and see if the roses do not grow.—New York News.

MANAGEMENT OF INCUBATING HENS.—A correspondent writes: "On no account allow your hens to incubate in the room in which your fowls roost. It is surprising what a great quantity of vermin are generated in warm weather, in the nest of a sitting hen, and any one who has ever paid the least attention to his fowls knows what a pest said vermin are, and uses every precaution to keep them out of the poultry house. Some may use portable boxes, but even these do not answer, for although they can be taken out and burned, still some of the vermin will find their way out of the box, and, like as not, the head of one of your fowls will be their harbor. The other fowls will greatly annoy those incubating, and they also take up nests that the other hens should have to lay in.

"Before I had any experience whatever in the poultry line, I once set a hen in the chicken house. About ten days before her time had expired, I noticed that she had become exceedingly thin and weak, and that she was scarcely able to walk; also that she came off her nest five or six times a day. She grew weaker and weaker, until at last one morning on going into the hen house I found her dead on her nest, the eggs cold, and she, poor thing, was completely covered with lice, the eggs and nest also full. This accounts for her coming off so often. She would go on her nest and stay there until fairly driven off by vermin.

"Set your hens in some place where they will not be disturbed, and give them plenty of food and fresh water. Some say that the eggs should be turned by hand daily, and also that some days before hatching the eggs should be washed, but this is all moonshine. The hen, in getting off and on her nest, turns them as much as is needed, and what possible good can washing do them? It is far more apt to prevent them from hatching. Sometimes a hen may want to sit when you are not of her mind. In such a case put her up in a coop and feed very sparingly for a week or ten days, and she will be effectually cured of her incubating desires."—New York News.

SCIENTIFIC.

WELDING COPPER.

M. Philip Rust, Bavarian Inspector of Salt Works, writes to Dingler's Polytechnic Journal as follows: "The great obstacle heretofore experienced in welding copper has been that the oxide formed is not fusible. Now, if any fusible compound of this oxide could be found, it would render such a weld possible. We find in mineralogy two copper salts of phosphoric acid, viz, libethenite and pseudo-malachite, each of which melts readily before the blow-pipe. It was therefore natural to suppose that a salt which contained free phosphoric acid, or which would yield the same at a red heat, would make the weld easy by removing the oxide as a fusible slag. The first trial was made with microcosmic salt (phosphate of soda and ammonia,) and succeeded perfectly. As this salt was dear, it was found advisable to use a mixture of one part phosphate of soda and two parts boracic acid, which answered the same purpose as the original compound, with the exception that the slag formed was not quite as fusible as before. This welding powder should be strewn on the surface of the copper at a red heat; the pieces should then be heated up to a full cherry red or yellow heat, and brought immediately under the hammer, when they may be as readily welded as iron itself. For instance, it is possible to weld together a small rod of copper which has been broken; the ends should be bevoled, laid on one another, seized by a pair of tongs, and placed together with the latter in the fire and heated; the welding powder should then be strewn on the ends, which, after a further heating, may be welded so soundly as to bend and stretch as if they had never been broken."

Mr. Rust states that as long as 1854, he welded strips of copper plate together and drew them into a rod; he also made a chain, the links of which had been made of pretty thick wire and welded. It is necessary to carefully observe two things in the course of the operation: 1. The greatest care must be taken that no charcoal or other solid carbon comes into contact with the points to be welded, as, otherwise, phosphide of copper would be formed, which would cover the surface of the copper and effectually prevent a weld. In this case it is only by careful treatment in an oxidizing fire and plentiful application of the welding powder that the copper can again be welded. It is, therefore, advisable to heat the copper in flame, as for instance a gas flame. 2. As copper is a much softer metal than iron, it is much softer at the required heat than the latter at its welding heat, and the parts welded cannot offer any great resistance to the blows of the hammer. They must, therefore, be so shaped as to be enabled to resist such blows as well as may be, and it is also well to use a wooden hammer, which does not exercise so great a force on account of its lightness.—Scientific American

THE USE OF ZINC IN THE REDUCTION OF GOLD ORES.—M. D'Henrense has been for some time experimenting in the use of zinc as a substitute for quicksilver in gold mining. According to the Scientific Review, he now finds that in the amalgamation process only about half the gold is extracted from the rock. Melted zinc appears to take up all the gold, allows slag and rubbish to float at its surface, requires little heat to keep it melted, and from its volatile nature can be distilled in a retort to separate the gold and re-collect the zinc itself. The mode of operating is simply to introduce gradually the gold-bearing rock, in a pulverized state, into a bath of melted zinc. This metal immediately attacks and dissolves nearly every particle of gold, while the debris rise to the surface of the bath, and can be skimmed off. When sulphurets are present, the rock must be previously roasted. Surely nothing can be more economical and effective than this when plenty of zinc ore is at hand.—Scientific American.

NEW METHOD OF PILE DRIVING.—At a recent meeting of the Franklin Institute, a new method of driving piles was described. It substitutes gunpowder for steam in working the drop weight. A charge of powder is used to elevate the weight, and another charge throws it down again with greater force than it would acquire by falling alone. Ordinary musket charges are said to be sufficient to work a four hundred pound hammer in this way, and the strokes are made with greater rapidity than in the old method.—Scientific American.

ONE of the most forcible sayings that has ever emanated from the pen of Horace Greeley is the following: "The darkest day in any man's earthly career is that wherein he fancies that there is some easier way of gaining a dollar than by squarely earning it."—Scientific American.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for those reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE OF THE CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
del2 6m 97 and 99 Julia street.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Smut Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. ja16 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. del2 6m

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS A year. Address FOX & CO., my15 tfu Saco, Maine.

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delhondlo,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,

Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON,	President.
W. S. PIKE,	Vice President.
W. P. HARPER,	Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING,	General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nichols.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,

OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre,	W. S. Munnt,
John Davidson,	L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier,	William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks,	William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt,	T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper,	Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike,	Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard,	John C. Sinnott
J. Caulfield,	C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith,	W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON,	President.
W. S. PIKE,	Vice President.
R. W. YOUNG,	Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER,	Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST., (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Roshorough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

A. EYRICH,

(Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL AND RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and
Heating Stoves of all kinds.
je13 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

F. M. ECKFORD, New Orleans. GEO. ALPH. CAGE, Columbus, Miss.

ECKFORD & CAGE,

COTTON FACTORS AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 42 Union street, New Orleans.
oct10 3m

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,
JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER,
77 Megezine street, corner of Poydras, nov1 New Orleans, La.

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea,
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & CO., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS.—MUNN & CO., EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 100 pages of law and information, free. Address as above.
my1 tfa

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. my22 tfa

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Jul6 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUATE of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,

AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, ... $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, ... 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address

REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
je2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
jn16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, bedware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

REV. J. C. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

CHURCH OF THE STRANGERS, New York.—Visitors to the city of New York are informed that they will find divine service every Sunday, in the large Chapel of the University, Washington Square, at ten and a half A. M. and at seven and a half P. M. The evening service in summer is at eight o'clock. Waverley Place, immediately north of the New York Hotel, out of Broadway, runs west to Washington Square, on the east side of which is the University. The entrance to the church is the main door of the University. University Place cars run from the door of the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the door of the church. From the St. Nicholas and Metropolitan, take the cars corner of Broadway and Broome, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. At the Astor House take University Place cars, leave at Waverley Place, and go west one block. Strangers will find cordial welcome and polite attention.

The pastor is Rev. Dr. DEEMS, who devotes himself to the spiritual interests of strangers. If any be sick, let them address him a note by mail, as "Pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York," and it will reach him. The ladies who compose the "Society of the Sisters of the Stranger" procure medical, legal and spiritual help for strangers in perplexity, distress or sickness. Address "Sisters of the Stranger," care Rev. Dr. Deems, New York.

If you are coming to New York soon, cut this out and paste it in your memorandum book.
mar6 2m o

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY,

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument, $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President:

J. M. BONNELL,
sep5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty-seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, ESQ., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. LYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1868.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.
p22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio,

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

GEORGE H. VINTEN,

PAPER WAREHOUSE,

137.....Poydras street.....137

Between Camp and St. Charles streets,
New Orleans.

Agent for the sale of R. Hoe & Co.'s Printing Presses and James Connor's Sons Type.
no7 3m

JAMES MACLENNAN,

ATTORNEY AT LAW AND SOLICITOR IN CHANCERY, ETC.,

Greenville, Mississippi.

Refers to Governor B. G. Humphreys, and many others in Mississippi, and to R. L. Walker, 190 Common street, Rev. J. C. Keener, D. D., and Rev. J. B. Walker, D. D., 112 Camp street, New Orleans, La. oct31 3m

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term.....$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term..... 30 00
Contingent fee, per term..... 2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circular to

O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,

No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july8 1y

J. H. MASSEY,

Formerly of the firm of J. H. Massey & Co., having formed business relations with

McSTEA & VALUE,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN DRY GOODS,

98.....Canal Street.....98

will be pleased there to receive his old friends and acquaintances. He is satisfied he can offer such inducements as will be satisfactory to all wishing to make investments in his line.

Orders addressed to him from parties not wishing to visit the city will receive his personal attention. oct17 3m

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug8 0m

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages.....$215 00
Music.....50 00
French or one Modern Language.....20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address

WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE, SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages.....$80,00
Incidental Fee.....5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course.....$75,00
Incidental Fee.....5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
J'NE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
NOV		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current,

The general market continues inanimate. Wholesale dealers, in most branches of trade, meet only a limited demand from country merchants and city dealers. At the same time their stocks are ample for the season, and are offered at unusually low prices. On Tuesday, as is usual at the commencement of the month, there was some little revival. Sugar has been in moderate request, and the receipts have been disposed of from the landing, as well as a limited amount from store, at about previous rates. The bulk of the stock, however, is held higher. Nothing of any moment has been reported in molasses. We have but little movement to notice in Western produce. The 12,500 sacks corn sold last week, to arrive, have come to hand, and, having been bought by speculators and dealers, have been reselling from the levee, in lots to suit purchasers, at easier prices. Oats and bran have declined under more liberal supplies. There has been some increase in the stock of flour, but the market has been characterized by the inactivity usual at the close of the month, until Tuesday, when it showed more animation. The bulk wheat, noticed in our last report, was forwarded per steamer to New York at 14c. freight.

Our accounts from the country are more encouraging, but still we hear frequent complaints of the crops having been seriously retarded by unpropitious weather. We do not see that the general aspect is materially changed.

The river has fallen five inches since our last report, and is now one foot below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 28th ultimo:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	1831
Mobile	617
Texas	10
Total	2458

On Saturday, notwithstanding some improvement in foreign exchange, the demand continued limited, and the sales were confined to 600 bales, at prices showing no material change. On Monday, under the influence of decidedly encouraging accounts from New York, buyers for the North came forward with much more spirit, and 2,200 bales changed hands at about previous rates, the advantage, if any, being on the side of the factors. At the same time a decline of 1 per cent. in foreign exchange checked the demand for export. On Tuesday the market opened with a very good inquiry, and the demand being stimulated by new orders, and decidedly favorable telegrams from Liverpool and New York, the movement became quite animated, buyers for Great Britain and the North coming forward with increased spirit, and the business comprised the comparatively large amount of 6,250 bales. Early in the day some sales were made at previous rates, but the subsequent transactions were mostly at an advance of ¼c. In fact, at the close, the last dispatches from New York being still more encouraging, factors were inclined to ask still higher rates.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 9,050 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 776,523 bales, against 579,089 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 112,664 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 21,380 bales to France, and a decrease of 276,478 to Great Britain, and of 1,650 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary	23½ to 24½
Good ordinary	25½ to 26½
Low middling	27 to 27½
Middling	28 to 28½
Strict middling	— to 29

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....		1959
Arrived past three days	2458
Arrived previously	811228	—813686
		815645
Exported past three days	5462
Exported previously	766044	—771506
Stock on hand and on shipboard....		44139

Sugar.—The demand has continued only moderate, and the receipts, though light, have not brought any better prices. The sales on Saturday and Monday were confined to 210 hogsheads at 11 to 12¼c. per pound for molasses sugars, 12¾c. for good fair, 13 to 13¼c. for prime and 15¾c. for white.

Molasses.—Louisiana molasses has continued very dull since our last report.

Flour.—As usual, toward the close of the month, buyers held off on Saturday and Monday, and the market exhibited very little animation.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, June 1, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head.	25 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head...	10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	8 to 9c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$5 to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head	2½ to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to 3
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	6 to 10
Calves, per head	6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky	23½	24
East India	24½	..
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb	..	8
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs	1 20	1 25
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50	.. ..
Crackers	6 00	.. ..
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fire	65 00	70 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N. Bedford	..	..
Tallow	..	..
Adamantine	15	21½
Star	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl	.. ..	.. ..
Northern	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton	9 50	10 00
Western ₱ barrel	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	14	17½
Havana	..	..
Java	..	..
St. Domingo	nono	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb	37	38
Sheathing	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow Metal	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23½	24½
Tarred, American	..	21
Russia	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	4 25	4 50
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	24
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western	18	20
Feathers, ₱ lb	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₱ box	1 70	.. ..
Herrings	70	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl	.. ..	28 00
No. 2	.. ..	22 50
No. 3	.. ..	16 50
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	5 37½	5 50
Extra	5 75	11 00
Fine	4 50	4 62½
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	..	..
Currants, Zante	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell	25	..
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
Layer	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₱ box	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 10	2 40
Canada	2 40	2 60
Oats	75	76
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	90	95
Beans, ₱ bbl	9 00	13 00
Hops, ₱ lb	12	13
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	27 00	30 00
Northern	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	8	12
Kip Skins	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country	17	18
Polls ₱ piece	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6½	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₱ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana	40	65
Muscovado	..	..
Refinery, Reboiled	60	80
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	2	3½
Black do	5	6
Select, water rotted	7	8
Nails, Am.: 4 a 8d. ₱ lb	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German	14	16
English	14	16
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	2 00	4 00
Pitch	2 50	.. ..
Rosin A No. 1	3 00	4 50
No. 2	2 25	.. ..
No. 3	.. ..	.. ..
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon	40	42½
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 40	.. ..
Coal Oil	34	36
In cases	44	48
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₱ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed	35 00	.. ..
Meal	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	19 00	20 00
" North half bbl	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₱ lb	..	..
Tongues ₱ doz	..	..
Pork, Mess	.. ..	33 00
Prime Mess	28 00	.. ..
Hog, round, ₱ lb	.. ..	13
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	17½	18
Do., canvassed	19½	20
Sides	17½	18
Shoulders	14	14½
Green Shoulders	12½	13
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	18½
In kegs	19½	.. ..
Fair, in tierces	.. ..	17
Butter, Northern	40	45
Western	25	37½
Cheese, American	18	19
Potatoes, ₱ bbl	1 50	2 00
Onions	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	7	10
India	..	..
Carolina	..	..
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	25
Crude	..	..
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₱ bushel	..	..
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	8	12
Southern	6	10½
Castile	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	8	15½
Havana, White	15½	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters	—	—
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	9	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refused	7	10
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb	—	—
Bailing	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	32	40
Barry	12	15
Louisiana, Native	24	27
Texas, ₱ Merino	24	27

SPECIAL NOTICES.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. Wilson, P. E.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo	July	17, 18
Montevallo ct., at New Salem		24, 25
Dadeville circuit, Dadeville		31
Lafayette ct., Sandy Ridge	Aug.	7, 8
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, Standing Rock		14, 15
Arbacoochee ct., Hurricane		21, 22
Marble Valley circuit		28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit	Sept.	4, 5
Pinckneyville ct., McGuire's Chapel		11, 12
Lineville ct., Mt. Pleasant		18, 19

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville	June	19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove		26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara	July	4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon		17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington		24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer	Aug.	8, 9
Meadville		15, 16
Buffalo		22, 23
Percy Creek		28, 29
Liberty	Sept.	4, 5

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs	May	29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit	June	5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station		12, 13
Brookhaven station		19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandywine	July	3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard		10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val:		17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground		24, 25
Bartenton ct., at Tabernacle		31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda	Aug.	7, 8
Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst		14, 15

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

New Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers	May	9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.		10
German churches: at Craps st		16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st		21
Jefferson City		23
Plaquemine		30
Felicity street	June	6
Thibodeaux		13
Carondelet street		27
Baton Rouge	July	18
Moreau street		25

J. C. Keener, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita circuit	Apr.	17, 18
Monroe circuit		24, 25
Vernon circuit	May	1, 2
Farmersville circuit		15, 16
Homer circuit		22, 23
Haynesville circuit		29, 30
Bossier circuit	June	5, 6
Minden circuit		12, 13
Sparta circuit		19, 20
Mount Lebanon circuit		26, 27

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion	Apr.	10, 11
Macon station		17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill	May	1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville		8, 9
Cooksville, at Hebron		15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew		22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville	June	5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn		12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb		26, 27

S. H. Cox, P. E.

Union Springs Dist., Montgomery Conf.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Troy, at Bethel	Apr.	3, 4
Braudidge, at Williams'		10, 11
Pine Level, at Orion		17, 18
Union Springs		24, 25
Rocky Mount, at Athens	May	1, 2
Mt. Hilliard, at Mt. Hilliard		8, 9
Line Creek, at Line Creek		15, 16
Fort Deposit, at Letohatchie		22, 23
Mount Ida, at Emmans		27, 28
South Butler, at Ebenezer		29, 30
Greenville circuit, at Union	June	4, 5
Greenville station		6, 7
Sandy Ridge, at Spring Hill		9, 10
Millville, at Rogers' chapel		12, 13
Elba, at Elba		19, 20

J. W. Shores, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul and City M'n	Mar.	27, 28
Mobile, Franklin street	Apr.	3, 4
Mobile, St. Francis street		10, 11
Whistler		17, 18
Eastern Shore and Fish river, at Daphne		24, 25
Citronelle, at Escatawpa	May	1, 2
Pascagoula and Bay Shore, at Zion		8, 9
W. Pascagoula, at Ocean Spg's		15, 16
Cottage Hill, at Allen's	June	5, 6
St. Stephen's, at St. Stephen's		12, 13

Jas. A. Heard, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia	Apr.	17, 18
Franklin, at Pattersonville		24, 25
Calcasieu	May	1, 2
Bellevue		8, 9
Bayou Mallet		15, 16
Vermilionville		21, 22
Opelousas		29, 30
Grand Cheniere	June	5, 6
Washington		12, 13
Plaquemine Bulee		19, 20

J. D. Adams, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, ... 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, ... 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, ... 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

CIRCULAR TO ADVERTISERS,

SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS,

CONTAINING

A list of Seven Hundred and Fifty choice Advertising mediums, subdivided into more than fifty small lists, with Price Cards showing the cost of any advertisement from one line to one column.

A list of the leading Daily Papers in all the large towns and cities of the United States and Canada.

A list of Two Hundred leading Weekly and Monthly publications, with estimates showing the cost of an advertisement of from five to twenty-five lines, from one week to two months.

A list of prominent Advertisers who have patronized this Advertising Agency, and letters showing the opinions of such men concerning the advantages it offers.

Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
my22 tfn 40 Park Row, New York.

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IRON COTTON TIE AGENCY.

THE PATENTEE OF THE

ARROW TIE,

Which is now universally known and approved throughout the Cotton States, has made arrangements with the owner of other Patents for the manufacture of

THE BUCKLE TIES,

and will supply the trade, as required, with either the Arrow or Self-Fastening Buckle Ties, all made of the

BEST QUALITY OF ENGLISH IRON,

with Bands of any desired length, all of which I am prepared to furnish on the most liberal terms. Address

H. T. BARTLETT,
General Agent,
oct24 3m 43 Carondelet st., New Orleans.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Chartres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans. oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS,

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street; New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months	$150 00
Fuel	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department	40 00
Music	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel. de12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans,

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....169

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....74

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes:

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

no14 1y HILL & VEAZIE, No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street. oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
de12 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one-hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of SEPTEMBER, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON, President.
sep5 2m

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The BEST INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to HYGIENE. LOCATION VERY HEALTHY.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans. oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja26 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Mattings, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar11 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sep1

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 21.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 765

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The disgraceful scenes during the election on Monday are still the subject of much comment here, and in the North. The negroes and carpet baggers now have complete control of the city. The New York Herald of to-day says all that was wanting in the scene in Washington, around the nigger fights and bonfires, was that the triumphant niggers should have eaten the man who was killed.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Hoar decides that no cable can be landed connecting the United States with a foreign country without the special consent of Congress.

The house of the Conservative negro whom the police rescued from the mob was gutted and the furniture smashed. The family was absent. Several small outrages and robberies have occurred.

The New York Herald says this morning: The Attorney General is said to have hesitated a long time before he furnished his recent opinion sustaining a Texas court martial in the trial of a citizen for the murder of a freedman, and that his actual view of the law at first suggested an entirely opposite decision, but that General Butler said he would offer a resolution on the subject in the next session if he (Hoar) did not make an example of some of these fellows, and under this pressure the recent opinion was made.

Information from a reliable source in Havana has been received here, asserting that the Cubans are engaged in an active offensive movement, and were never in better spirits or more sanguine of success. Telegrams from Havana deny that any number of Cubans or any officer of the Cuban forces surrendered to Valmaseda. The excitement in Cuban circles in New York on Sunday night originated by a report telegraphed by the Spaniards, that Cespedes had surrendered. Subsequent dispatches from Cuban sources prove the report entirely unfounded.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The steamer Tybee, detained on suspicion of intention of carrying aid to the Cubans, cleared to-day, carrying the Dominican flag.

EUROPE.

LONDON, June 8.—The Times, discussing the Lords' action on the disestablishment bill, says the experience of the past two days reaffirms the truth that in a direct issue the Lords must yield to the national will, and the present aspect indicates that the bill will pass to a second reading by a small majority.

Discussing the French election, the Times says the fact is that three and a half millions of Frenchmen are voting in opposition to only four millions who support the government. Whatever the reactive strength of the parties may be in the Corps Legislatif, this is a significant result of universal suffrage, and is bound to influence the entire policy of the government.

PARIS, June 8.—Additional elections by ballot show seven official and eight opposition candidates elected. At midnight to-night great crowds gathered in the District Montmartre. The police dispersed them, hurting and arresting many. The same scene, with the same result, occurred in front of the Hotel de Ville. Total arrests, one hundred and twenty.

MADRID, June 8.—The Duke of Genoa is a prominent candidate for the Spanish throne. The regency bill was read for the first time yesterday.

BERLIN, June 8.—Bismarck and King William have gone to Bremen.

VIENNA, June 8.—The Austrian government refuses action regarding the neutrality of the Suez Canal, without consulting with France.

MADRID, June 9.—Opposing Castelar in the Spanish Cortes, who favored a republic, Senor Rosan alluding to the United States government, said it was outside the law that all the States of the South were held under the sword of military government. Individual rights were all confounded; there was no liberty; it was dictation—sword dictation. The government of half of the States had characters for iniquitous tyranny; for the interests of the conquered countries were sacrificed to the egotism of the North. They enslaved the whites to give liberty to the blacks. This slavery would be prolonged for years and years, for the Federal legality and the autonomy of the States were completely abolished. Was that the sort of a constitution they wished to give their country? [No! no! and great applause.]

PARIS, June 9.—Official returns in this department show thirty official, twenty eight opposition, and one member status unknown. General result, two hundred and thirteen official, fourly-two independent, and thirty-five Radical. Quite serious riots occurred at Nantes and Bordeaux yesterday.

MADRID, June 9.—The Cortes debated the regency bill at great length and finally referred it to a committee. Olozaga said the present election of a king would be impossible.

LIVERPOOL, June 9.—Eight thousand emigrants left here for America last week.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HAVANA, June 7.—Later from Mexico City: Senor Moriscal has been confirmed minister to Washington. Congress has adjourned. Negrete hovers about the capital.

MEMPHIS, June 8.—A private dispatch from Jackson, Mississippi, says Colonel J. G. Crane, United States army, acting mayor of Jackson, was shot and killed by E M Yerger to-day. The affair grew out of the action of Colonel Crane in seizing the property of Yerger for taxes. Yerger was arrested by the military.

JACKSON, Miss., June 8.—Brevet Lieutenant Colonel J. G. Crane, commanding fourth military district, and acting mayor of this city, was killed to-day by E M. Yerger, in a difficulty occasioned by an official order of the mayor levying on property of Yerger in default of corporation taxes. The affair had no reference whatever to politics. Colonel Crane entered the volunteer service from Dayton, Ohio, in 1861. He was held in high esteem by this community. Yerger is arrested and confined at the barracks.

The Conservative Republicans of Mississippi have issued a call for a convention on the 23d instant, signed by Jefferds, Wofford, Fisk, Warner, Moorman, and others.—They claim to be the true exponents of Grant's policy, repudiate the Executive Committee and organization of the extreme Radicals, and declare their advocacy of reconstruction strictly in accordance with the Congressional plan, and advise such a course as will promote harmony and fraternal feelings between men of all sections and colors.

They say: We can and must live together as friends.

The movement seems to be favorably received.

AUGUSTA, June 8.—A letter to the Chronicle says the editor of the Warrenton Clipper and other citizens were arrested at Warrenton, Warren county, to-day, at the instance of the sheriff, who arrived there from Atlanta yesterday with two companies of infantry. The citizens are in jail surrounded by a strong force of military. The excitement is very great. The arrests are presumed to have grown out of political difficulties.

RICHMOND, June 8.—The Republican city and county convention to-day nominated for the Legislature one black and two whites for the Senate and seven blacks and one white for the House.

BOSTON, June 8.—The Presbytery of the Old School has unanimously adopted the reunion.

HALIFAX, June 8.—In the Assembly to-day annexation resolutions were introduced and indefinitely postponed, without discussion.—Vote 26 to 7.

MEMPHIS, June 9.—There was a horrible tragedy at Jackson, Mississippi, yesterday morning. The victim, Colonel J. G. Crane, of the United States army, was chief of the subsistence department of Mississippi and acting mayor of Jackson. E M. Yerger, who killed him, was one of the principal movers in the Immigration scheme at the recent convention here.

The following are the particulars: During Yerger's absence from Jackson his piano was seized and sold for unpaid taxes, Colonel Crane being the purchaser. Yerger met Crane on the street yesterday, when the latter made an explanation in regard to the sale, during which Yerger grew furious, and seizing Crane, whirled him around, using the grossest language. Crane resented this and struck him with a light rattan. Yerger instantly drew a thug knife and stabbed Crane three times, the wounds severing the heart and producing instant death. Yerger was immediately arrested, put in heavy irons and carried under guard to the military camp, where he now lies.—Times.

NOT EVEN A FLOWER.

The following account of the Arlington shame, by the New York Herald's Washington correspondent, will cause every honest man, whatever his politics or nationality, to blush for his species, and to wonder at the cowardice which prompted such a disregard for the noble impulses of humanity.

Even in the cold embrace of death, with nothing but the green grass to embellish their lowly graves, the heroes of the Confederacy must still be the objects of a spite so little, of a hatred so intense, that time cannot assuage it, nor a sense of decency check its manifestation. What a sight for men and angels! "Six marines, under the command of a fierce looking lieutenant," detailed to bayonet, if need be, any sorrowing mother, any noble man or woman who, forgetting the dreadful strife which had passed, might desire to offer the simple tribute of a flower to the memories of men whose deeds of heroism have shed an unfading lustre upon the American name.

"The departments were all closed, and but one subordinate official was in attendance at the White House. The President, accompanied by Mrs. Grant and Mr. Dent, her father, left in his private carriage shortly before noon to attend the decoration ceremonies. All the heads of departments were also at Arlington, paying tribute to the honored dead."

The man who uttered that meaningless sentence, "Let us have peace," the President of this nation, and all the heads of the departments, stood by and, without remonstrance, permitted this insult to a brave though unfortunate people.

General B. F. Butler was there also, and it was meet that he should witness a shame scarcely second to those which have made his name notorious.

The following is the article from the Herald, of the 30th:

"An incident that occurred during the decoration services at Arlington to-day, not set down in the programme, is worth mentioning. It will be remembered that a portion of the cemetery is appropriated to hundreds of the Confederate dead, and that, according to the arrangements of the Grand Army, no flowers were to be strewn upon the graves of the poor defunct rebels. One of the Washington divisions of the Grand Army had even adopted resolutions declaring that to throw flowers upon the Confederate graves would be a desecration of the graves of the loyal Union soldiers. It seems that notwithstanding these resolutions and the grand programme, some people who went to view the ceremonies to-day carried flowers with them and quietly dropped them over the earth covering the Confederate dead. The fact becoming known, six marines, under the command of a fierce looking lieutenant, were dispatched to that part of the cemetery to prevent any further desecrations. The marines marched up and down, three on each side of the plot appropriated to the rebel dead, and prevented all who came that way from dropping any more disloyal offerings. I mention this little incident, as it possibly will not appear in the general dispatch about the ceremonies to-day.—Picayune.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Times says:

The only events of any importance which occurred here were the decoration ceremonies of the soldiers' graves at three or four of the smaller national cemeteries, and the religious observances in most of the churches. The sermons had more or less reference to the same subject. Considerable bitter feeling and animosity appears to have been aroused by the distinction made between the Union and the rebel dead in the solemnities. The unkindness, to give it a gentle term, finds vent in newspaper communications, church sermons and general conversation. The members of the Grand Army of the Republic, in maintaining their side of the case, and one or two of the city clergymen, have expressed themselves in strong terms in reference to it. Rev. Mr. Newman, chaplain of the Senate, in his oration, hold that the representatives of this nation could never sanction the decoration of the Confederate soldiers' graves until it had been first decided by the Christian church to pay honors to Judas Iscariot, and until we had ourselves agreed to commemorate Benedict Arnold. In Alexandria no distinction was made in the matter of decoration; flowers were strewn on Union and Confederate alike, and at Arlington a few flowers were thrown on rebel graves. In more than one instance the military interfered and ordered them to be removed. The Grand Army of the Republic intend to issue an order on the subject in a day or two, defending their action and replying to the criticisms which have been made thereon.

M. BARBARIN, of this city, of whose ingenuity we have often spoken, has been awarded a patent for his invention of lighting gas. Several other applications for patents, from the same party, are now in Washington. His latest invention is a gas apparatus by which every family may be its own gas company.—Times.

Wesleyan Missionary Anniversary.

The English Wesleyans began the celebration of their annual mission anniversary on the 27th ultimo. On the evening of that day Rev. F. W. McDonald preached a sermon concerning the conversion of St. Paul, which, English papers say, was characterized by great ability and eminent fitness for the occasion. On the next evening Rev. John H. James preached in City Road chapel. On Thursday morning, 29th, Rev. S. Romilly Hall, president of the conference, preached in Centenary Hall, and on the next morning Rev. Alexander Raleigh, Congregationalist, preached in Great Queen street chapel. Dr. Raleigh, whose sermon is published in full by the Recorder, said: "Giving, therefore, is not only the duty and the privilege, but it is the life necessity of the Christian state. If you do not give you cannot live."

The annual Breakfast Meeting of the China mission was held on Saturday, May 1, at which J. Napier, chairman, Rev. Luke A. Wiseman, Rev. Richard Grecu, Rev. W. Muirhead, Alderman Ross, and Sir Francis Lycett made speeches. Mr. Muirhead said that when he went to China, in 1847, there were not more than forty converts throughout the whole empire, and now there were nearly five thousand. The advancement of Christianity in China had far exceeded anything of the kind in India.

The missionary theme was, with real English persistence, kept before the people on Sunday, May 2, in seventy-four London pulpits.

The anniversary proper began at Exeter Hall on Monday morning, 3d instant, William McArthur, member of Parliament, in the chair. The chairman, in his opening speech, said that Wesleyans contribute four shillings and five pence annually per member for missions. The national income is £810,000,000, and of that £325,500,000 are contributed by the working classes, "yet we do not contribute to all the missionary societies in England more than £600,000 a year." He said, also, that the "recapitulation" showed seven hundred and four mission stations, five thousand seven hundred and one preaching places and chapels, nine hundred and eighty-seven missionaries, one hundred and seventy-four thousand papils in mission schools, and twenty thousand unpaid agents.

The report was read by Rev. G. T. Perks. The total home receipts for the year were £109,661, the foreign receipts were £36,588, a total of £146,249. Expenditures were about the same. Accumulated deficiencies of former years amount to about £19,000. Mr. Perks, at the close of his report, said:

"At a missionary anniversary in 1869 it is scarcely possible to forget that it was at the conference of 1769 that it was said: 'We have a pressing call from our brethren at New York (who have built a preaching house) to come over and help them. Who is willing to go? Answer, Richard Boardman and Jos. Pilmoor.' After the lapse of a century we may point to the sanctuaries, worshipers, members, ministers, local preachers, colleges, literature, and foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and exclaim with grateful wonder, 'What hath God wrought?' The committee rejoice to know and to feel that whatever differences there may be between the Methodists of England and those of America in minor matters of detail, they are all one in maintaining the essential principles of Protestant Christianity, and in an earnest purpose to evangelize a fallen world."

Other speeches were made by Rev. S. Romilly Hall, Dr. Raleigh, Captain William B. Smith, Rev. Dr. W. Crook, William S. Allen, member of Parliament, Rev. John Walton, Rev. J. A. Armstrong, Dr. Jobson, Samuel D. Waddy, Rev. William Shaw, and Rev. Thomas Jackson.

The weather during the week was superb, and the occasion itself a continued jubilee. The English Wesleyan press are warm in congratulations.

The Recorder closes an editorial on the subject by the remarks that "It was thoroughly and characteristically a missionary meeting, yet other reflections could not but be suggested by the proceedings. Of those the most prominent, to our apprehension, was a vivid and almost startling impression of the wonderful power and vitality which, by the grace of God, Methodism possesses at the present time.—There have been times of division, there have been times of declension, there have been times of languor, but, thank God, it is not so now. With a more rapid external development and a greater intellectual activity than at any former period in the history of our church, there is an elasticity, a unity, a spiritual force, a toleration of small differences while holding tenaciously by first principles, which, crowned by the yet more abundant effusions of the Spirit from on high, will prove, we trust, harbingers of brighter and more glorious days than any which our churches have yet experienced, whether at home or abroad."

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

GREENSBURG, LA., June 1, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: By request of Rev. D. P. Bradford, the preacher in charge of the St. Helena circuit, Mississippi Colored Conference, I attended a quarterly meeting at the Day church on the fifth Saturday and Sunday of May, and during the illness of Brother Willis, the presiding elder, assisted in organizing a quarterly conference. At the close of the war our colored congregations, with but very few exceptions, left us, and some went to the Northern and some to the African Church. But the reaction commenced about two years ago; a few returned and humbly asked that the Conference send them a preacher. The Rev. B. Pipkin, one of the oldest members of the Mississippi Conference, served them last year. Their numbers continued to increase, and now such crowds attend that none of our houses can hold them. Brother Bradford is the step-son of Rev. B. Pipkin; his own father was a local preacher, his grandfather also was a local preacher, and his great grandfather was the Rev. Bevel Tabor, formerly of the Mississippi Conference, who died last fall in his ninety-fourth year, in full assurance of a blessed immortality. I do not know whether his fathers further back were preachers or not, but you see he belongs to the Methodist succession. But better still, he is in the spiritual succession which God has always kept up in the world; he is doing a great and good work for these people, and for our oppressed country. Although politics is not permitted to be spoken of in our pulpits, ecclesiastical or social meetings, yet there seems to be embraced by those few who remained with us, and by those who come back to us, the idea of full identification with Southern interests, and an entire renunciation of Radicalism, both in Church and State. And it is astonishing that our people are so slow to comprehend or to discern these signs of the times. But I began to tell you about the meeting. We had a great and good time. On Saturday the official board was fully installed. One colored man, Ben. Chandler, who is of fine natural sense, and prays like a bishop, was licensed to preach on Sabbath.—Quite a number who had joined this year were confirmed by baptism into membership, while several others were also received, amounting to twenty-six. They all, I believe, had their children baptized, but there was no room for altar work. We had a solemn time at the Lord's Supper. I had to leave for an afternoon appointment.—Brother B. preached after dining on the ground, and was then to close. There are as yet but two churches; others are in contemplation. Thus there is formed a nucleus around which I feel assured many will gather. They remember the days when in their slavery the Southern ministry preached to them a Gospel spiritual, under which they were converted and continued to grow until decoyed away; and now resolving to return to the old church and ministry to see if we retain the same spirit, O how happy are they to find that their old friends and former owners, although stripped of earthly riches, are still in possession of the same spirit of olden times, and they ask to be received back again into the fold of better days. Oh, if I had the strength of twenty-five years ago, and means of support, I should love to spend my life in imparting that Gospel teaching that fully instructs man as master, servant, parent, child and in every relation of life.

Yours in the Gospel of Christ,

J. NICHOLSON.

JUNE 8, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Having occasion to write on business, I would state that there is a meeting of much interest now in progress in the Greenville station, Montgomery Conference. It is the occasion of the second quarterly meeting, and services have been held for more than a week, and still continue. The church is crowded at night to overflowing, penitents are coming to the altar at every service, and six persons have been converted and joined the church.

J. W. SHORES.

Deepening the Water on the Bar.

The plan patented by Messrs. McClintock & Scott possesses features which cannot fail to attract popular attention, and if the reasoning of the patentees thereon prove sound, it will be a most effectual aid to the natural current in removing obstructions to navigation. The patentees propose to employ forcing pumps, thirty inches in diameter, which could discharge three million of gallons per hour, at a velocity of thirty-six feet per second. This water, conveyed through a hose attached to an adjustable frame, and discharged just above the surface of the bar, would arise to the fresh surface current of the river, from which it was originally taken freighted with the sedimentary matter which it had displaced, and both together would move on toward the gulf. It is evident that a large amount of earthy matter would be removed seaward every time a boat, properly supplied with machinery, passed across the bar, assailing it perpetually with a liquid battery of the kind described. The attack may be made directly or obliquely, as would be found most effectual, and every time the sediment was raised its course would be onward toward the all-embracing sea.

Extensive experiments, made by a French engineer, show that a velocity of three inches per second at the bottom of a river will tear away the bottom, if composed of fine clay or sand; a velocity of eight inches per second will remove particles as large as flax seed; twelve inches per second will sweep away gravel; twenty-four inches per second will move round pebbles, and thirty-one inches per second will carry angular stones as large as an egg along the bottom. The power of such a current will be the more readily understood and appreciated when it is remembered that the actual weight of a stone, pebble or grain of sand, under water, is diminished to the exact extent of the weight of the water which it displaces.

The patentees, with a twelve-inch rotary pump, removed eighteen feet of sand from the wreck of the Bio Bio, destroyed by fire at the head of St. Joseph street in 1863, thereby recovering boxes of goods and barrels of pork which were stowed away in the vessel's lower hold; and this, though the wreck was lying at a depth of fifty feet below the surface. If under such circumstances results so great were accomplished, what may not be expected from well directed appliances, with sufficiently powerful machinery, when directed toward the removal of a deposit which would be swept away by the natural current of the river, but for the centralizing action of the denser mass of sea water which stretches beneath. it as an inclined plane to be ascended?—New Orleans Times.

BISHOP WHITEHOUSE has notified Rev. Mr. Cheny, of Christ church, Chicago, that if he omits hereafter the word "regenerate" from the baptismal service he will be degraded from the ministry.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1869.

GOD'S MESSENGER.

Adown the slowly creeping years,
Well laden with their hopes and fears,
I gaze a long and weary way,
And see myself approach the time
When I, like all things past their prime,
Am slowly tending to decay.

I note how surely fades away
The beauty from this house of clay;
I mark full well the eyesight dim,
The tottering step, the withering cheek,
The faltering hands, now all too weak
To do their bit of work for Him.

I see the soul shrunk, grown with years
Too weak for joy, too dull for tears;
The butterfly turned chrysalis,
In some small corner closely curled,
Forgetting there the noisy world,
Hath scarcely less of life than this.

And then, in that great strait, I see
God's messenger come down to me:
A child leaps lightly to my breast,
A "little darling" fresh from bliss,
And on these lips, unused to kiss,
As once of old, are kisses prest.

So close and warm the loving grasp,
So tight around my neck the clasp,
Once more with joy the dull heart thrills,
And to the dim and faded eyes
The sunny paths of youth arise,
A brimming tide the desert fills.

And at that touch the bonds give way,
The pent soul bursts its fettering clay,
Up springs from dust and darkness here,
Its quickened powers with life expand,
And fresh and young, they, hand in hand,
'Mid boundless worlds their course may steer.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

SHANGHAI, CHINA, April 12, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: During my sojourn among the heathen I have seen much in the actions and impositions of this people that are discreditable, repulsive, and exceedingly disgusting. But there are some who, by their devotion and humility to some unknown god, (and it may be the true God; who will say it is not?) command respect from even the Christians. I have seen just such cases of devotion until I was compelled to hide my face and weep for my own want of devotedness to my God. We cannot help, in such cases, from looking with a degree of sympathy and respect upon those among the heathen who are feeling after truth in midnight darkness. There is a something—they cannot tell what it is—urging them to seek happiness hereafter; and thus thousands are living in blindness, and are seeking by good works to counterbalance all the evil works they may have been instrumental in bringing about. On the other hand, there are impostors, and they know it, deceiving the people, creating confusion, and making the way doubly dark and intricate. I will give instances of each.

Of those to all appearance truly devoted, I will mention one who has frequently come under my notice. He is a Ningpo man, now of about seventy, and at present stoops very much. I knew him ten years since, when he was a fruit seller. He then lived in a room four feet by six, where he slept, kept his fruit, cooked his meals, and had his devotional exercises. He always spent two hours in the morning praying, in an audible voice, to some unknown god, and in the afternoon the same length of time and in the same devotional manner. His door would be nearly closed, but nothing from without could interrupt his devotions. He had no idol in the room that I could discover, but during his devotions incense would be burning over the door. He was always without a hat, and had simply straw sandals on his feet. Often when on my way to church I would stop to talk with him, and try to induce him to go to church, but he said he felt his god was very good to him, and that he had blessed him, and he could not think of giving him up for a new god. Often during his devotions he would have a large crowd around his door, amazed at his devotion. Three or four years passed and I had lost sight of him. I supposed he had gone to try the realities of an unseen world. He was no longer to be seen in his accustomed place. One day, while passing through one of the small streets in the city, about a stone's throw from his old place, I heard the same voice of prayer. On opening the door I found the same poor old man in earnest prayer. But how changed! He was now nearly double, poorly clad, nearly blind, with straw shoes on his feet, no bed except a little straw in the corner, upon which he would sit and sleep a few hours, and then rise and pray. There is now a great knot upon his head, caused from beating it against a candle box, often making the blood flow. This he has of late years commenced. He has given up fruit selling and is supported by some of the people, who, having great confidence in his piety, have employed him to pray for them and to bless their incense for them. Now he has three or four idols, but he says they are for the people who brought them to him. He always says, "I worship the heavenly idol." He is glad to see me, and is ever willing to sit down and listen to me when I talk; but he is immovable in his determination. I have just succeeded in getting him to come with me and have his photograph taken for me. But it is not good, on account of the constant moving of his head. I hope to send you a copy of it. He is not a priest, either Touist or Buddhist. The devotion of this heathen man is enough to cause the Christian to blush and mourn over his coldness and want of life and activity in his devotions.

I will now give an instance of hypocrisy and imposition. About one hundred and twenty-five miles from Shanghai there is a large city called Changtser. It was once a thickly populated city, but now a desolation and heap of ruins. There was a man in this city about twelve months since, a professional gambler, who on one occasion lost the sum of $10, and not having wherewith to pay, feigned madness. He conceived the idea of placing himself on a pile of old brick, the ruins of some one's former dwelling. He continued in this position for two days, when he attracted the attention of the neighbors, who brought him some food. He refused to speak to any one, but continued to repeat something in a low tone of voice. A stool was then brought for him to sit on, and large crowds of people continued to flock to see him. In a short time they began to erect a shed over him, and finally a small house. His food was daily brought to him. One of the Christians in Shanghai, who formerly lived in this city, was on a visit to his friends, when he began preaching against the worship of dumb idols. One of his audience remarked to him, "If you do not believe in dead and dumb idols, do you believe in live idols." He replied, "I have never seen a live idol." They said to him, "If you will go with us we will show you a live idol." When he reached the spot he found the idol referred to was a man. He told the people he was a man, and either a hypocrite or an impostor, or he was not in his right mind. He then began to preach the truth to the people, and although before this he could not get this man to take any notice of him, he found that as he began to preach louder this impostor began to repeat his words louder, when the native Christians denounced him as an impostor and a hypocrite. Since then this impostor had so deluded the people of this city that all the sick and diseased were brought to him to be healed, until the doctors and apothecaries cried out against him. The native officials had him seized and imprisoned for several months. During the whole time he feigned to be deranged. When he was released he returned to one of the temples, and is now acting in the capacity of priest.

I could mention other instances of the same kind of imposition, which easily delude these ignorant people, who prefer to believe a lie rather than the truth. But let this suffice for the present. I may at some future period mention others.

I remain yours in the bonds of Christian fellowship,

J. W. LAMBUTH.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

HERALDSBURG, CAL., May 13, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: In your excellent paper of March 27th I find a letter from my pen. Several errors in orthography are noted. "Lnisnn" should have been spelled Suisun; "Nopa," Napa; "canyon," canyon. I make these corrections to prevent wrong impressions.

Many difficulties always attend the settlement of new countries.—One of the greatest attending this has been the uncertainty of land titles. Many of the early settlers have paid for their land three or four times; and had not timely legislation interposed in their behalf, they would still hold them by an uncertain tenure. A settler, fencing and holding peaceable possession of a tract of land for ten years, cannot be dispossessed by any prior claim. In the older settlements no apprehension is now felt of any further trouble; but in the southern part of the State, to which emigration is now directing its course, the investment of capital is a great risk, as very few of those who hold grants are able to make warrantee deeds. These troubles, originating almost entirely with old Spanish grants, have been great drawbacks to the prosperity of the country.

The climate in the valleys is much milder than in the same latitudes in the Atlantic and Gulf States. I am ninety miles north of San Francisco, in the same latitude of St. Louis, and during the winter we had only a few light frosts; ice two or three times, an eighth of an inch thick; no snow, except on the distant mountains. But it is said to have been milder than usual. The rainy season consisted of alternate spells of rainy and fair weather. The rains fell for a few days at a moderate rate, sometimes in torrents, then it cleared up as quietly as a May morning, and remained so for as long, if not a longer period of time. The change from winter to spring has been so gradual that I have not fully realized it, except through the unmistakable indications of vegetable life. February resembled your April, but ours was as cold as January. At this late date in the season fires are comfortable both night and morning.—Wherever the fogs and coast winds have free access there is very little difference, if any, in the temperature during winter and summer. At San Francisco, for instance, the people do not find it unpleasant wearing winter apparel during the summer months; and, what is still more surprising, that in Bodega, a part of this county (Sonoma) lying on the coast, laborers in the harvest field are compelled to wear it for their comfort and protection. A cold and warm climate may be found within a few miles of each other. The hills and mountains afford more or less protection against these winds, while the valleys and canyons open an unobstructed channel for their passage. This is the probable cause of these differences in such close proximity. Back in the interior, for instance at Sacramento City, though the winter is very mild, yet in the summer the thermometer stands at one hundred and fifteen degrees. But the heat is not so oppressive as indicated by the mercury. Sunstroke is of rare occurrence.

It has been truly said that this is a dry climate, but experience alone can make a proper impression of the reality. The earth becomes parched and dried beyond anything which has ever come under your observation. The dust, not gold dust, is abundant, almost intolerable. Along the public highways it is from one to twenty inches deep. A perfect cloud rolls around the head of the traveler from the beginning to the end of his journey. It gets into his eyes, nose, ears, hair, and mouth if he opens it. It is quite an effort within doors to keep the apparel clean—without utterly impossible. Uncleanly habits may be charged to the dust with perfect impunity. The doors of dwelling houses are everywhere closed against this unwelcome visitor. The air seems never to be free from it, for a single day, during the summer and fall. Of course vegetation suffers much; for all that which the drought affects to any considerable extent—such as grass and weeds—apparently dies, though in reality it is thoroughly cured, affording very fine grazing for stock of all kinds. Vegetables for table use are raised, mostly after spring has passed away, by irrigation. Agricultural interests are rendered more or less contingent, for, if the usual winter rains do not fall, crops are a partial or total failure. As small grain is the only crop of any value which can be raised, a failure would necessarily produce the greatest distress. Our physician says that these long droughts are attributable to the great amount of ammonia in the air. Let the cause be what it may, it is exceedingly dry. The question has risen in my mind which is most disagreeable, the rain and mud of the Mississippi swamp, or the dust and dry weather of California. It is rather difficult to decide.

Under the genial influences of spring, vegetation puts up with astonishing vigor. The earth has been green since the last week in February. Gardens and yards are adorned with rare specimens of flowers and shrubbery. Many of these I never saw before. One of the most interesting things is the variegated cabbage. The leaf is corrugated, and, in its younger stage, the edge is tinged with green, while the inner part displays every shade of red from the deepest crimson to the pale pink. The stalk grows several feet high, and, to preserve its beauty, the bud should be pinched out. The flower is not pretty.

The forest has very little growth in it, so familiar to my sight. The fir, redwood, matheron, manzineta, and laurel are the most valuable for furniture, building, and fencing. The oak, in the valleys, is low and thick, with heavy branches putting out a few feet from the ground. So complete is the change that one involuntarily asks questions until he becomes a nuisance to his friends. We have, in addition to peaches, apples, pears, and plums, the apricot and almond. Fruits and vegetables grow enormously large. Apples and pears sometimes measure five inches in diameter, plums three long by one and a half in thickness. I saw a pear that weighed one pound and three-quarters when preserved. Vegetables are also very large. I saw a beet, not long since, twelve inches in diameter. The market furnishes carrots ten inches long by three and four in thickness, cabbage from ten to fifty pounds in weight; Irish potatoes weigh from one to three and a half pounds. Sweet potatoes are inferior, but Irish superior to anything in the States. What we gain in size we lose in quality, especially in fruits; for it is evident that the flavor of yours excels anything we have.

The culture of the grape and making wine are now attracting much attention. There are many kinds of the grape, several of which I have seen and eaten. The mission or native, the white sweet-water, muscat, and raisin are the most common varieties in cultivation. The best wine is made out of the native grape. The bunches are very large, though they do not usually weigh more than two or three pounds. In this county (Sonoma) one man has one hundred acres in a vineyard, and in Sonoma valley there is another of three miles in extent, belonging to several persons, each man's possession being set off by a turning-row. The vine will grow in any kind of soil and climate. Six hundred and fifty are planted to the acre, and at seven years of age a healthy one will yield thirty pounds, sometimes fifty pounds. Fifteen pounds will yield one gallon of wine; at the rate of thirty pounds of grapes to the vine, one acre will yield one thousand three hundred gallons of wine. Then allowing it sells at $1 per gallon, the owner will realize $1,300 per acre. Although vineyards are growing everywhere the prices do not justify the poorer classes in cultivating them on a large scale. Very few persons know how to make good wine, notwithstanding the immense quantities manufactured. A few individuals have invested capital on a large scale in the profitable enterprise. At no distant day a ready sale can be had of these capitalists. The prospects of this, and the hope of a ready and increasing demand in the Eastern cities, will give additional impulses of energy and prosperity to the country. The quality of the grape is said, by competent judges, to be equal to any in France, Italy, or Germany. But I fear the moral results of all this. There is a growing disposition to use wine to an excess. Already the habit is beginning to display its results in the faces and health of many.

The mineral resources of the country are very great, but of this I need not say anything, as you have ample information as to their variety and value. In this county there is a soap mine, and a soda spring in the one lying north of this. But the greatest curiosity on the Pacific coast is the Geyser, twenty-five miles from this village, whose salt, saltpetre, sulphur, etc., can be obtained. These will prove greater sources of wealth than the gold mines of the present day.

The health of the country is not lost sight of in the multitude of other subjects. There are apparently very few causes for diseases, yet people sicken and die even in California. Diseases of a bilious type are uncommon. Chills are frequent on Sacramento river—perhaps one or two others. The most prevalent are the bronchitis, hemorrhage, congestion of the lungs and brain, and consumption. The fatality of disease is very marked, for a larger proportion of deaths occur among afflicted people than in any other State with which I am acquainted, or perhaps in any other, either North or South. The climate is fearful on weak or diseased lungs, either sowing the seeds of a speedy decline or giving new impulses to the fatal work already begun. No climate gives any one cold so readily or so constantly, and this has a strong tendency to consumption. This disease makes rapid work upon the system of the sufferer, sending him to the grave in a few months. Its prevalence is accounted for in two ways: 1. That great numbers of persons afflicted with it come here to enjoy a mild climate. 2. That the climate produces the disease. Figures will show the ratio of deaths to the number of inhabitants. I give the statistics of San Francisco as an example by which to judge of the State. In that city three thousand five hundred deaths occurred last year. Supposing the population to be one hundred and thirty thousand, the per cent. was thirty-seven and one-seventh of the population. New Orleans has a population of one hundred and seventy thousand. Supposing the mortality to be eighty a week, or four thousand one hundred and sixty during the year, the per cent. would be forty and nearly one-fourth. This calculation will show that New Orleans, with the exception of epidemics, is healthier than San Francisco.

Earthquakes sometimes visit us, to the great injury of property and the consternation of the inhabitants. On the 21st of last October we had a very heavy one. It damaged the city of San Francisco $3,000,000, besides the loss of many lives.—Their visits are sometimes confined to single districts of country, not extending beyond the circumference of a few miles. They are more severe at the great city of the Pacific slope than anywhere else. But brick houses are now being built with an eye to these visitations. They stand remarkably well, while others built in the ordinary way are disjointed, twisted, and unsettled, thereby endangering the lives of the inmates, and of those in the streets. I fear that they will ultimately bring as great destruction and misery on our towns and cities as on the South American coast.

With all the objections this is a great country—not exactly what it has been represented by speculators, travelers, and men of superficial observation. And yet it is not quite a paradise, with its perpetual spring, blooming flowers, and ambrosial fruits. The South has more natural advantages and agricultural resources. While we excel in small grain, you make it up in corn, cotton, and sugar. But "distance lends enchantment to the view." The good country with our people, as everywhere else, is just in advance. There are as many opinions as there are localities; for wherever you go some other place has greater character for fertility, climate, and prosperity. These lead to dissatisfaction and indecision of purpose, and wield a blighting influence over society, church, and State.

J. F. SCURLOCK.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

A SUGGESTION.

MR. EDITOR: The Sunday school convention adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That the best method of securing teachers is to keep up, in connection with the Sunday school, an well-conducted Bible class for the adult members of the church.

I will not controvert the above, but I think it very doubtful if the establishment of a Bible class in the Sunday school is sufficient inducement to get "the adult members of the church" interested and to become teachers. My observation leads me to a different conclusion: that it is more difficult to get their attendance than to teach them their duties as teachers. I am glad to know that the Methodists of New Orleans are so well methodized as to be so prompt in the discharge of this all-important duty.

But I started out to make a suggestion in regard to carrying out the plan proposed in the resolution. Let this class be instructed, in addition to lessons in the Bible, with a view of their becoming teachers, and therefore distinct from the ordinary Bible classes. Have them supplied with the many good works published for the benefit of teachers, and let their teacher or the pastor lecture them once a month on such subjects as are intimately connected with their training. Make them ex officio members of the teachers' meetings, and require their presence at them as of regular teachers.—They will be a reserve corps, from whose ranks the superintendent may supply the places of regular teachers who may be temporarily absent. If they will thus "bear the yoke when young" they will become efficient teachers. An earnest, faithful corps of teachers will soon fill up our benches with children desiring to be taught.

METHODIST.

THE trade of Russia with foreign countries has increased to an immense extent during the last ten years. In that space of time the value of the exports by the Baltic have increased by 10,000,000 roubles, and the value of those by the southern ports and the western land frontier has nearly doubled; while the imports have doubled in the Baltic ports and in the ports of the White sea. Great Britain heads the list of States importing Russian goods, taking nearly four times as much as Prussia, which is the next largest customer of the empire. The imports from foreign States in 1867 exceeded those in 1866 by no less than 54,369,867 roubles, the largest share of which falls to Prussia. The entire value of the exports and imports of the empire to and from European countries (including Finland) amounted in 1867 to 450,000,385 roubles. During the same year 11,047 vessels were entered in Russian ports and 11,090 cleared, showing totals respectively of 1,385,788 and 1,400,522 tons.—New York Bulletin.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1869.

THE BRICK TOWER.

The Brick tower stands on the northern wall, a little to the west of Martin tower, with which it communicates by a secret passage. This tower overlooks the lines from Brass Mount to Legge Mount, and sweeps the opposite slope and ditch. The men who held the Tower were gunners; and the captain of these troops was the real master of the Thames, and of the approaches to London. Hence the master of the ordnance was generally a man of rank, and always a man of trust. In the reign of Elizabeth that office was filled by Charles, Earl of Devonshire, to whom succeeded George, Lord Carew, Raleigh's cousin, who held his post during the whole of James' reign.

The rooms being good, and the master seldom in residence, this house was placed at the disposal of any person of rank to whom the government wished to show favor. Thus, when Raleigh was committed for his amour with the maid of honor, he was lodged in the master's house. Raleigh had the liberty of the Tower within the walls; he kept a great table, had a crowd of servants, and received the visits of many friends. The small upper room was filled by his domestics, and the brilliant seamen, looking on his recall from sea as a royal jest, could hardly have dreamed that in his wan and premature age that upper room, into which he would not have willingly thrust a dog, would become his own miserable home.

Northumberland, who had hired the Brick tower from Lord Carew, for his son Algernon's use, kept his tenancy until he was thrust out of his lodgings by Sir Thomas Wilson, with a view, as it would seem, to some such crime as that by which his grandfather had been done to death in the Bloody tower.

When Raleigh was brought back to the Tower, after his disastrous voyege, his old rooms in the Bloody tower and the Garden House being occupied by Lord and Lady Somerset, he was lodged for a few days with the lieutenant, Sir Allan Apsley—a man who admired and loved him—until the spacious Wardrobe tower could be furnished and arranged for his use. In that pleasant chamber, looking on the queen's garden and across the Thamee, into which Cottrel had thrown the apple, he took up his abode, with his books, his globes, his phials, and his plants. Beginning his life anew, he set about the great experiments on which he had already spent his time to such noble ends. His rooms were large, and he had the free use of a garden. In the Wardrobe he kept his health, until Wilson came down from court on what was seen from first to be a bloody purpose.

James was in a strait. The Spanish agents who were promising him an Infanta for his son, were yelling in his ear for Raleigh's blood. The king, though willing enough to yield, was not daring enough to face the consequences of murdering Raleigh by legal means. In fact, while he did not scruple to do wrong, he shrank from the infamy which he felt would fall upon his name. If Raleigh would kill himself all would be well. Even if he could be taken off privately, so as to leave the case in doubt, it might be better than a public murder. Secretary Naunton, who knew the king's secret wishes, found Wilson in his pay, and thought him the man to repeat Bailiff's work. Naunton brought Wilson into James' presence, and from that secret interview with the king, the wretch came down to the Tower and surveyed his ground. The moment he was seen a whisper ran about the Tower that he had come to murder Raleigh, on which the honest lieutenant, Sir Allan Apsley, stood upon his guard. Apsley not only admired his prisoner, but wished to avoid his forefather's fate.

Wilson had brought down to Sir Allan a most unusual warrant. This order from the council authorized Wilson to take charge of Raleigh; to remain constantly in his company; to keep him a close prisoner; to prevent any one from speaking with him, or even coming near him, except in case of necessity, and only then in his presence. Apsley, though he must have been surprised, was not cowed. A lieutenant of the Tower, he was responsible to the law for what took place within the gates; and though he admitted Wilson into the Wardrobe by day, he turned him out at night, and resolutely objected to give up his keys. Wilson complained to Naunton that he could do nothing in that place and in that way. The Wardrobe tower, he said, was a big house, with two windows, from either of which letters might be thrown into the queen's garden, and through which nearly everything passing in Raleigh's chamber might be seen. He wanted a place, he said, less open to observation; one in which his prisoner would have to sleep in a room either above or within his own. Such a place, he said, after searching the Tower from end to end, he had found in the house then occupied by Lord Percy. These rooms he must have. But the Earl of Northumberland, having hired these lodings for his son, refused to give them up, just as Sir Allan Apsley refused to give up his keys. Wilson went back to his employers. Not give up the keys? Not give up the Brick tower? A peremptory order came from court which showed Sir Allan who was now to be master in the Tower. Apsley was ordered to give up Raleigh into Wilson's charge: to allow him the Brick tower as a lodging; to deliver up the keys; to send away Raleigh's servant, and replace him by one of Wilson's men. Sir Allan was forbidden to let any doctor see his prisoner, except in Wilson's presence and by his consent.

Naunton wrote to Wilson that the king was pleased with what was done; that he waited the ripening of his prescription; that he hoped Wilson would get the better hand of the hypocrite; and that he felt much comfort in the knowledge that he should not be troubled with Raleigh long.

If Secretary Naunton's words do not imply the intention to murder Raleigh, language has no meaning.

With the cunning of his black purpose, Wilson lodged his captive in the topmost room of the Brick tower, while he appropriated Lord Carew's comfortable chambers to himself and his men. "I have been employed," he wrote to the king's secretary, "in removing this man to safer and higher lodging, which, though it seems nearer heaven, yet is there no means of escape from thence for him to any place but hell." In the Wardrobe Raleigh had kept up his chemical experiments, the value of which he had tested in his late voyage, when he put his copper furnace on board his ship, and gave out to each of his crew of two hundred and forty men several quarts of fresh water every day. Wilson took away his drugs and phials, under the absurd pretense that he might poison himself. "Why," said Raleigh, with contempt, "if I want to kill myself I can dash my head against that wall." The ignorant apothecaries who seized his jars and spirits say they could not answer for the effect of swallowing his stuff unless they knew what it was made of; and through the violence of these mountebanks the great secret of distilling salt water into sweet was lost to mankind.

Yet the mysterious hint which had given the king such comfort bore no fruit. If Wilson meant murder he found no opportunity to carry out his plan. Indeed, to assassinate such a master of fence as Raleigh would have been no easy work, and a mean and brutal coward like Wilson was hardly the man to try. Raleigh would have spurned him like a dog, or felled him like a slave. Nor could Wilson draw his prisoner to the point of suicide. Day after day he put a knife, as it were, into his captive's hands, by talking of men who had killed themselves to escape a shameful death. Raleigh would not take his hints. Once, when he praised the old Roman senators, Wilson hoped that something would ensue; but his prisoner gave no sign of following the and when Wilson renewed the subject another day, Raleigh spoke very gravely against self murder, saying that for himself he would die in the light of day, and in the face of his countrymen.

High Roman fashion,

The Spaniards could not wait. They clamored for his death; the King of Spain declaring, under his own hand and seal, that Raleigh must be instantly put to death. To the last moment there was doubt and strife at court. The queen was for saving Raleigh; and the queen was supported in her efforts by all those persons who leaned toward the policy of a French alliance for the Prince of Wales. Spain tempted the king with a larger dowry than France. Queen Anne said she did not care for money, and would prefer a French princess for her son to an Infanta with all her gold. But gold tempted James, and the profligate minion of James. Finally, the order for his execution—the end for which he had waited long—was signed.

Wilson, who had failed in his infamous mission, was sent away; the Brick tower was restored to the honorable custody of Sir Allan; and the last ten days of Raleigh's life were spent in peace. The bitterness of strife was passed; he knew that he must die; and with the certainty of his fate came back to him, not only his high spirit, his ready wit, and his gay demeanor, but in some degree his physical health.

The warrant for his death reached the Tower at eight o'clock on a dark October morning. Raleigh was in bed; but on hearing the lieutenant's voice he sprang lightly to his feet, threw on his hose and doublet, and left his room. At the door he met Peter, his barber, coming in. "Sir," said Peter, "we have not curled your head this morning." Raleigh smiled: "Let them comb it that shall have it." Peter followed him to the gate, while Raleigh kept on joking in his usual vein. "Peter," he asked, "canst thou give me any plaster to set on a man's head when it is off?"

Next day it was off in Palace Yard; the proudest head that ever rolled into English dust.

That day was thought to be a very sad day for Englishmen. The partisans of Spain went mad with joy.

Yet the victory was not to Spain. A higher power than man's directs the course of a nation's life; the death of a hero is not failure; for the martyr's blood is stronger than a thousand swords. The day of Raleigh's death was the day of a new English birth. Eliot was not the only youth of ardent soul who stood by the scaffold in Palace Yard to note the matchless spirit in which the martyr met his fate, and walked away from that solemnity—a new man. Thousands of men in every part of England who had led a careless life became from that very hour the sleepless enemies of Spain.—The purposes of Raleigh were accomplished in the very way in which his genius had contrived. Spain held the dominion of the sea, and England took it from her. Spain excluded England from the New World, and the genius of that New World is English.

The large contest in the new political system of the world, then young, but clearly enough defined, had come to turn upon this question—Shall America be mainly Spanish and theocratic, or English and free? Raleigh said it should be English and free. He gave his blood, his fortune, and his genius to the great thought in his heart; and in spite of that scene in Palace Yard, which struck men as the victory of Spain, America is at this moment English and free.—W. H Dixon, in Her Majesty's Tower.

THROAT DISEASE.

Some years ago a poor young man hired a small room in Boston for the purpose of selling old and new books at auction, in the long winter nights. He understood his business, the wants and tastes of the people, and was successful; his little room began to be crowded, while the heat of the stove, the smoke of cigars, the fumes of tobacco saliva, and the emanations from a motley mob of human beings, made the apartment a poisonous hole. The audience was different every night, and was continually changing, by individuals coming in and taking the places of those going out, but the auctioneer remained the whole time, not only breathing a vitiated atmosphere, but over-straining and overheating the voice-organs.

In this heated and exhausted condition he would go out into the cold air to his home. His mouth being open in walking, his throat and neck unprotected against the winter air, the voice organs became diseased; presently they began to lose their power of throwing off the effects of the little colds taken from time to time, which invariably settled in the throat. Meanwhile slighter causes gave colds, and longer time was required to get rid of them, and all at once he noticed that he was frequently hacking or hemming or clearing his throat; then a little tickling in the throat; next over so slight a cough on rising in the morning. But while all this was going on he was making a fortune, and he retired from business with a hundred thousand dollars and a consumptive cough, of which he died in less than a year after he gave up business.

This narration applies to clergymen, some of whom die every year long before their time, from simply exposing themselves to the outdoor air too soon after preaching. Some get on a horse or into a vehicle to fulfill an appointment miles away, and in the quiet condition of the body, while thus riding, and there being more or less wind in motion, the tender voice-organs are chilled in a few seconds, inducing, sometimes within an hour, more or less of clearing the throat by hemming.

In some constitutions, naturally feeble from age or a too sedentary life, pneumonia is induced by such an exposure, followed by death in a few days. One of the most eminent and able clergymen of this generation thus perished not long ago. If men do not learn and obey the laws of our being, a miracle will not be wrought to save them from the penalty. Even in summer time it is dangerous to ride immediately after delivering an address; take an hour to cool off slowly, and eat something first—for instance, a good warm dinner.—Hall's Journal.

The Low Church Episcopalians call an anti-ritualistic convention at Chicago in June.

THE HAWAIIAN DIVERS.

Sometimes the native children fix a long pole so as to project from a bank over deep water; along this they chase each other to the extremest end, leaping, in regular succession, into the water. Leaping from high, perpendicular cliffs is a favorite and daring sport with the men. They choose a place where the water is not less than fifteen or twenty feet in depth at the foot of the cliff; then taking a rousing run, to get fairly under way—like Washington Irving's Dutchman, who started to jump over the mountain—they bound far into the air from the edge of the cliff. As the leaper falls from that dizzy height—sometimes a hundred feet by measurement—toward the water, he bends himself almost double, as in wanton muscular play; but just before striking the water he partially straightens himself, so that his whole body is slightly curved forward at the moment of the plunge, and the feet are, perhaps, a foot in advance of a perpendicular line let fall from the head. He strikes the water without a splash, entering it with a quick dull "chuck" that a smooth pebble makes when thrown forcibly into water, and at an angle with the surface so nicely calculated that he is actually brought to the surface again by the momentum of the fall. With his body curved as I have described, he shoots through the arc of a circle under the water, and after two or three seconds comes up, feet foremost. The first thing you see of him is his toes, emerging from the water fifteen or twenty feet in front of the place where he went under. No athletic feat is more daring and beautiful than this.

The sensations experienced by one who falls from a height have not, I think, been described in print. A singular good fortune having made the writer of this article an expert in the Hawaiian manner, he is able to give some account of them. Until you are thoroughly practiced in the leap, you have a decided inclination to think twice about the matter before you risk it. You first dive at the foot of the cliff, and satisfy yourself that there is sufficient depth of water. You watch one after another of your companions as they bound away in long, parabolic curves from the edge of the cliff; but it requires some nerve to throw yourself from a high precipice into mid-air. The solid ground seems a much more comfortable place. At last nerving yourself, you run and leap. Instantly you have a feeling of floating rather than of falling—such a feeling, I suppose, as a bird has when rapidly alighting from an elevated flight. There is no sense of accelerated motion as you fall; but you feel your hair blown upward by a fierce current of air. This does not, however, in the least embarrass your breathing. The notion that people have "their breath taken away" in falling from a height is erroneous. In an instant comes the plunge; and you must enter the water in exactly the right position, or it will hurt you almost like the solid earth. If you enter it with a splash, you meet its resistance too suddenly, and may be lamed or stunned. The great leaper, Sam Patch, lost his life thus. Had he possessed Hawaiian skill and a sober head, he would never have lost his position while falling, as in his last leap at Genesee Falls. Could an Islander have taught him how to come out toes foremost, he might have been alive and leaping at the present day. You, wiser than he, come safely to the surface, swim ashore, and prepare for another leap.

Valuable Appropriated Property Brought to Light.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, under date of Washington, May 28, says:

In June, 1865, there were received at the Treasury Department three wooden boxes, said to contain valuables, turned over by the War Department for safe keeping. These boxes have since laid in the vaults of the Treasury, but were to-day opened by the efforts of a United States Senator, some of whose constituents were supposed to be interested. A committee, composed of officers of the War and Treasury Departments, witnessed the carrying out of the joint order of the two departments. The boxes were found to contain exceedingly valuable invoices of diamonds, of pearls, necklaces, watches, ear-rings, rings, brooches, chains, seals, and all manner of rare and expensive jewelry, to the value of many thousands of dollars. The most valuable property, however, which the boxes contained was a very large amount of solid silverware, consisting of pitchers, salvers, spoons, knives, urns, cups, and all kinds of plates, some of which were thought to be more than a hundred years old. One of the boxes contained some very rich wearing apparel for ladies, silks, velvets, laces, etc, besides an incredible amount of Confederate notes and bonds, and notes of State banks. There was also a small amount of specie, both gold and silver. The boxes were about the size of ordinary dry goods boxes, and the value of their contents is seriously estimated at from twenty thousand to one hundred thousand dollars. Many of the articles contained the family crests, initials, or monograms of the owners, and all were of the finest and most costly description. The boxes were sent by the Provost Marshal General of the Army of the Tennessee to the War Department in this city, and Secretary Stanton turned them over to Treasurer Spinner, subject to future action. The valuables are supposed to have been taken possession of by Sherman's men in Georgia and other States, where they had been abandoned by the fleeing inhabitants. In some cases they were taken from banks which had ceased to do business upon the approach of the Federal army. The officers of both the departments are uncertain of their duty in the matter of the disposition of the property. Some hold that it should be returned, under proper restrictions and proof, to the owners, if they can be found. Others believe that the articles belong to the government, under the laws of Congress, and that they should be sold and the proceeds deposited in the Treasury. Still others affirm that neither the War nor the Treasury Department has any authority in the premises, and that a special act of Congress should be called for. Nothing has yet been done, and the valuables are returned to the vault of the Treasury

DECLENSION.

The Presbytery of New Orleans, in session at Franklin, Louisiana, says:

What we have to deplore, what we are peremptorily called upon to account for, and to remedy, is not great outward disaster, nor visible declension, nor neglect of external duty. Congregations are as large or larger than before; Bible classes, Sunday schools, prayer meetings, all proceed with pleasant punctuality and interest. But the fruits diminish; the apparent efficiency of these labors is impaired. There seems to be a lack of real life among the symptoms of life; a drought upon the secret springs of prosperity. * * * * *

It is the clear conviction of this presbytery that the secret of our declining efficiency is to be found in the fast-growing prevalence of worldly amusements and worldly practices among the members of our churches. The fact cannot be disguised. More frequent and more general indulgence in these pleasures which were once peculiar to the world; a lower standard of Christian purity; greater complaisance to those who go astray; a ceasing to be very jealous for the Lord of Hosts; these facts, and such as these, appear on every hand. And the danger with which such conditions threaten us can hardly be overrated.

A Truth for History.—At the dedication of a monument erected in memory of the Confederate dead, Colonel Breckinridge, of Kentucky, lately delivered a very eloquent address, from which the following passage is worthy of being preserved, not only in memory of the Confederate dead, but in perpetuam memoriam of the dead Confederacy:

The contest was a most unequal one—the South fought at every disadvantage. With a white population of less than five millions and a half; with an arms-bearing population of less than nine hundred thousand; Maryland, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Virginia divided; without a regular soldier or a military organization; without a ship or a navy yard; with but few guns, and they of inferior quality, and not a manufactory where any part of a gun or any part of its ammunition could be made; without money or organized credit; cut off from all the world, in whose market she was not allowed to purchase even the medicines for the sick; isolated from all mankind, and even thrust out from all sympathy; encompassed with vastly outnumbering foes, whose armies, daily recruited from every nation under the sun, were supplied with every appliance of warfare and every possible comfort, as well as necessary; every harbor closed by watching war vessels, and every stream occupied by hostile gunboats; her soldiers hungry, ragged, and barefooted, she yet fought with such tremendous power, and was wielded with such skill, that the expenditure of money to conquer was more than would have purchased every foot of her land, every house in her cities and villages, every slave on her plantations, and all her property of every kind; and the killed and permanently disabled of her enemies amounted to more than her entire armies during the whole struggle. You may search history in vain for a parallel.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Wetumpka, Ala., June 3, 1869.

Mr. Editor: Our district meeting—for Wetumpka district—has just closed a most interesting and profitable session at Autaugaville. It was a success—a glorious success. The Holy Ghost was poured out upon the pulpit and the pew. In our business sessions the presence of the Master was felt and enjoyed. What a wonderful means of grace is the district meeting! We hope our next General Conference will receive it into full connection and make it a permanent institution of our church. The secretary will furnish you an epitome of our proceedings.

Yours, etc.,

W. S. Turner, P. E.

Conference Boundary Lines.

Canton, Miss., May 27, 1869.

The subject of Conference boundary lines was considered at the last sessions of the Tennessee, Memphis, and Mississippi Conferences. They each appointed committees to consider the subject and report to their respective bodies. As chairman of the committee in my Conference, I have been paying the subject some attention. In our quarter it was thought best to wait and see what steps would be taken by the committees in the Tennessee and Memphis, as their action might seemingly offset ours. And I was glad to see that at their joint meeting in Athens, Alabama, 30th of April last, they recommend a suspension of final action until the next Conference sessions, and then the raising a joint committee from several neighboring Conferences to harmonize action for the benefit of all. The geographical relation of the Louisiana, Mobile, Montgomery, Tennessee, Memphis, and Mississippi Conferences require harmony in this action, to be probably satisfactory to any. Our Conference is too large, but we cannot divide until we know where our outside lines are to be.

The fact of the great advantages, too, of making State line Conference lines, as far as practicable, is attracting attention. That our committee may be the better prepared to discharge its duty, when it shall be called together, I solicit the views of brethren in the Conferences interested, that the subject may be as well prepared for the action of the General Conference as may be practicable.—R. Abbey, in Memphis Christian Advocate.

The Peace of God.—Perfect harmony of feeling prevails throughout the vast extent of our church. The near approach of the General Conference has elicited a little discussion and controversy with regard to questions of church economy, but there is no excitement and not the least trace of ill feeling. This happy state of things indicates a general satisfaction in the church with things as they are. It also indicates that the church is earnestly at work in carrying out its great commission to save souls. Our preachers take more interest in revival meetings than in controversies about church economy. Our church organs record the progress of the Gospel, in accounts of gracious and glorious revivals of religion; and where is the Christian who would not prefer to read the details of a great work of grace to a discussion concerning the number of bishops? God be praised for the harmony and spiritual prosperity with which He has blessed the church! Our people have caught the idea that holy living and earnest labor are more needed than "tinkering" at church polity. And verily they are right. Methodism never had any trouble about suitable machinery for her work when she was alive to God. When she is all right within, all is right without. The "peace of God" reigns among us—for which God be praised.—San Francisco Spectator.

The Greenville Advocate of the 22d, reporting the discovery of iron in Covington county, says:

"We have long regarded Alabama as one of the richest in mineral resources of any of the United States. Yet it has been the general opinion that most of the mineral wealth in Alabama was to be found in the northern portion of the State; and but little noise has ever been made about deposits of any kind found in southern counties. Yet there are, as little as it is known, rich deposits of iron, and probably some other metals, in south Alabama. We have now in our possession an average specimen of ore taken from a hill in Covington county, that contains at least fifty per cent. of pure iron. There is an abundance of this ore at the place from which this was taken, above the ground; how much there is under it God himself only knows. The same may be said of other portions of that county, as well as of Crenshaw and of Butler."

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JUNE 12, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. Keener, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

Agents—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

To Subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, draft, or by express. If this cannot be done, register the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

TO OUR AGENTS.

There is a great tendency in all Southern streams to run dry during hot weather. We hope to experience an exception in the constant flowing in of subscribers to the Advocate during July, August, and September. Our stream of papers and expenses pours steadily out, nor abates one drop to cold or heat, health or sickness. During these months send the money forward as it comes in hand, whether in small or large sums. The expense is ours.

The camp meeting and the district meeting are the places for canvassing the merits of the Advocate. Whenever the head of a family joins the church put on the rivet by introducing him at once to the Advocate; put him in connection with our part of the religious world; lay the wires forthwith, and thus tie him on to the whole Conference, as well as to a single society. He will need it all to strengthen his budding faith. Call in the Advocate to help you to train the new member.

The Texas Christian Advocate.

This sprightly sheet comes to us this week greatly enlarged. It is now large enough for any one, and indicates great enterprise and prosperity. We hail its brightened front with hearty wishes. There's no place like Texas for spunk, and our brethren there have as much of it as any other Texans.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

The examination at Whitworth College will begin on the 22d of June.

The concerts will come off on the nights of the 25th and 28th. The commencement sermon will be preached on Sunday, the 27th, by Rev. W. M. Linfield, of Vicksburg, Mississippi. The senior class will be examined on the 28th. The degrees will be conferred on the 29th, at which time the seniors will read their compositions, and Dr. J. B. Walker, of New Orleans, will deliver the annual address.

The Koran and the Sword.

The Zion's Herald says: "The object of this advance of our bishops was probably to give our ministers in that section an advantage in prosecuting their work, showing larger catholicity on our part than on theirs."

The Western Christian Advocate says: "If this offer shall be spurned by the General Conference of the Church South, absorption and disintegration will become the order of the day."

WHISKY AT HOME AND ABROAD.

The disease engendered by alcoholic drink is greatly on the increase in this country. Where so many flood gates of Acheron have been lifted, we may be sure this one is pouring forth a strong current. Not the world only, but the church also is maintaining an army of drunkards. Reverend men and devoted Christians, whom we thought secure for heaven, years ago, beyond the possibility of failure, have yielded to the insidious appetite for strong drink. Beginning at the first sources of this evil with all innocence of purpose, they have been beguiled step by step to a point from which their return will be only less than a miracle. Believing, may be arguing, that wine is good now for nourishment and now for medicine—that only excess in it, as in other innocent things, was to be carefully avoided—they at length find themselves in the grasp of the most fearful disease incident to mortal man.

For our part, we are willing to admit all that can be said in favor of wine, brandy, etc., either as food or physic; but we are opposed to pea soup, to chicken broth, or to any other innocent sop if it can be shown that it very occasionally makes men kill themselves, abuse their wives or murder their children; that it undermines the religious nature of a man; that it will destroy his self-respect, his good habits, his mental powers, and gradually shape him into a fiend as unfit for dwelling among men as was the "Legion" of Gadara. We say, just show that any vegetable stirred into the pot, or any broth when served out, produce such a mania in some of those who partake of it, and we will for our own sake, in wholesome fear, and for the sake of others, never eat any "while the world standeth."

As a church we are too lax upon this evil of habitual drinking, and the greater evil of selling whisky. We have had such a detestation of "fanaticism" that we have furnished an occasion to the Enemy which he has not failed to improve. When our Conferences shall have been disgraced by the trial of a few more drunkards, and when our societies shall have become notorious for harboring and retaining men who go to bed drunk every night, then we may awaken to the effects of this vice. Let us begin now and preach against it; let us banish the mildest forms of this evil from our sideboards and tables, that we may rescue our friends and our families from a consuming fire. We will not care to argue with men who are willing to go to hell if they may only have the strength of the argument with them, but in the simplicity of a good conscience, and from a natural desire to avoid a great danger, we will, by personal example and by associated effort, do what we may to stay this widening stream of sorrow.

Mr. Wesley gave a few searching blasts from his trump that still echo along the aisles of Methodism. We give one of them upon the liquor traffic:

Neither may we gain by hurting our neighbor in his body. Therefore we may not sell anything which tends to impair health. Such is eminently all that liquid fire, commonly called drams or spirituous liquors. It is true, those may have a place in medicine; they may be of use in some bodily disorder, (although there would rarely be occasion for them were it not for the unskillfulness of the practitioner.) Therefore, such as prepare and sell them only for this end, may keep their conscience clear. But who are they who prepare them only for this end? Do you know ten such distillers in England? Then excuse these. But all who sell them in the common way to any that will buy, are poisoners general. They murder his Majesty's subjects by wholesale; neither does their eye pity or spare. They drive them to hell like sheep; and what is their gain? Is it not the blood of these men? Who, then, would envy their large estates and sumptuous palaces? A curse is in the midst of them; the curse of God cleaves to the stones, the timber, the furniture of them. The curse of God is in their gardens, their walks, their groves; a fire that burns to the nethermost hell. Blood, blood, is there; the foundation, the walls, the floor, the roof, are stained with blood! And canst thou hope, O thou man of blood! though thou art "clothed in scarlet and fine linen, and farest sumptuously every day," canst thou hope to deliver down the fields of blood to the third generation? "Not so; for there is a God in heaven; therefore thy name shall be rooted out." Like as those whom thou hast destroyed, body and soul, "thy memorial shall perish with thee."—Sermon on the Use of Money, vol. 2, p. 121.

In his journal of March 12, 1743, he records that while on a visit to Newcastle, he excluded seventeen persons for drunkenness and two for retailing spirituous liquors. If there be a member in the church who habitually or occasionally gets drunk, let the preacher or class leader, "who is without sin" in this direction, affectionately seek and promptly talk with that erring soul, and by prayer and sympathy try to effect a cure of the habit, with all long suffering, but let not the church continue bowed down with such a weight of scandal. Cure him or get rid of him. And forget not the solemn direction of St. Paul to Timothy, whom he had just put over a congregation: "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom: Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine."

MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

In our last issue we published an address from the Board of Managers of the Ministerial Educational Association of the Mississippi Conference. This association was formed by the lay members of the Conference exclusively. Governor Humphries is its president. The address calls upon the district meetings to organize auxiliary societies, with the single restriction that they be required to fix the fee of $5 for an annual membership.

This is a practicable and, as it seems to us, most admirable plan for subserving a vital interest.—Many young men, who would now be in college, are, from the losses of the war, at work in the field. The church has derived from her colleges heretofore a fair share of educated men for the pulpit. If she would maintain the standard of her ministry she must aid these young men, who, while impressed by the spirit of God with a desire to preach, are yet awaiting some providence to fit themselves, measurably at least, for entering upon the work of the Saviour. These societies are the providential opening for which they are so anxiously looking.—Help! Those of you who owe so much to Methodism, help! Come to the help of the Lord, and present to God the richest offering that can be laid upon His altar. At the recent assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, in Mobile, there was reported a large number of young men as ready to enter the ministry. It was a glorious symptom of God's presence with that church. And it was doubtless attributable very much to the liberality which provided for their training. What a rich harvest awaits that man who aids in sending forth a laborer into the vineyard of his Lord!

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

The commencement exercises of Centenary Institute, Summerfield, Alabama, will begin on Sunday, June 27th, and end on the Wednesday following.

Friends of these schools are invited to attend all the exercises.

It is ordered by the president of the Board of Trustees that the board shall meet on Monday, June 28th.

John Massey.
W. J. Vaughn.

HOMER COLLEGE.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees takes place on Monday, July 12. A full meeting is earnestly requested.

The following ministers were appointed members of the board by the last Annual Conference: Revs. Samuel Armstrong, N. A. Cravens, John A. Miller, S. S. Scott, T. B. White, Thomas J. Upton, W. C. Haislip.

H. T. Lewis,
President Homer College.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.

We have in hand a few excellent articles that we should publish, but they are too long, and we have neither the genius nor the time to shorten them without at the same time spoiling them. Then we have some serials, number one to number six. Who is sufficient for these things? One or two obituaries we have entitled "Biographical"—interesting but fatally long. Length is a dreadful evil in preaching, praying, or in writing for the public. It is a mistake to suppose that you have so much to say; you have not one-half that much; and if you will carefully revise the paper you will see your mistake. You are smothering those few really good things you have to say with words, mere words; and you are increasing a tide that threatens to submerge the whole world, ideas and all, with that subjoined other Christian papers will please copy. Don't you know, if they were all to "copy," that in less time than it took to bring the waters above Ararat, we should all disappear in an ocean of words, and there would not be a man left to tell the tale! Have a care how you insist on this thing. If one good paper publishes it let that suffice; a man should not wish to launch the same boat on a dozen streams at the same time.

We have nothing to say on the subject of punctuation; we class that among the tail-board items about which nothing can be said.

We are glad to believe that on the whole the Advocate is steadily improving in its contributed matter. This includes communications from China, South America, Central America, the Pacific slope, as well as from many cities, towns, and circuits of the Southwest. Let no man be discouraged because his "article," which had so much time and thought spent upon it, has not seen the light; for it has not been lost; it has benefited the writer, and prepared him to write something yet worthier of the light and of himself.

THE MOMENTOUS ITEM.

One single piece of good fortune, if judiciously managed, may be enough to secure success throughout life. The most striking illustration of this is, perhaps, that personal attack which Mr. Sumner so heroically survived. Added to his other qualifications, it has ever since secured for him a most controlling influence in the government. The scars of a Waterloo or a Bull Run could not have been worth a tenth as much. But then he worked the affair admirably: absented himself a long time in Europe, was attended by distinguished physicians, who almost despaired of his recovery, and whose health bulletins kept Mr. Sumner's friends, political and other, in this country in an excited suspense. When he did get back his fortune was permanently made. He has ever since only had to allude, no matter how dimly, to the South to find himself surrounded by a host of admirers and backers. It has been the heroic vindication of a temper that can secrete and discharge more hate than an Indian's spleen.

The next illustration of a well worked item is perhaps one that occurs in the experience of the Rev. Dr. Newman. We do not refer to his visit to Jerusalem, though that has yielded him no small return; but to his narrow escape in this city during the celebrated "July riot." It is not going too far to say that it has yielded him the highest realization of his somewhat aspiring nature; in fact lauded him in the chaplaincy of the United States Senate. Wherever he may appear at the North he is regarded as the great almost martyr of the Stanton-Amos missionary corps. This illustration, perhaps, has additional weight from the fact that the doctor, it so happened, was not in the city at all at the time of the "riot," but was safely on his way to New York; still he escaped.

We cannot forbear adding to this one other most admirably worked real event in the life of that successful and distinguished man—the Rev. Dr. Curry. With a great many fine qualities, and much signal ability he might, like many another man of good parts, have shared the fate of "some village Hampden," but for that great item of his having once lived in the South. His memorable decision for principle and his summary departure from Georgia, what he there and then suffered, all no doubt highly illustrative of marked qualities in him, and of strong prejudices against him, constituted an item which was destined to form the staple of a life-time success. This was henceforth to prove his unfailing reserve which might be always counted upon to secure victory. And it has borne him on, and up, until he now stands where one or two more timely allusions to it will land him in the episcopacy. For, notwithstanding the twenty-five years' service which he has had out of this Georgia item, it still abides—its force has not abated. In the course of some ill-natured remarks upon that very judicious and well-tempered reply of our bishops to the Northern episcopal overture, he ventilates once more the same momentous item. Well, we cannot, we must not forget it; for it constitutes the precise differential quality which distinguishes the doctor from many his equals.

The man of one item, who knows how to work that item well, cannot fail to prove "a great success."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

We have received from Mr. Geo. Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee:

Woman in Prison. By Caroline H. Woods. New York: Hurd & Houghton. Cambridge: Riverside Press. 1869. 12mo, pp. 187.

This book is written by one evidently well acquainted with the horrible details of prison management. The writer professes to have actually served as a matron in such an establishment from philanthropic motives. Possibly true. In these days of fanatical experiment and performance we are prepared for any freak of man or woman. However, we welcome any contribution to the solution of that great problem, how to reform criminals, and we deeply sympathise with those unfortunate creatures who by one act seem to have forever forfeited the pity of mankind.

The Unforgiven. By Berriedale.—New York: George S. Wilcox. 1869. 12mo. For sale by A. Eyrich, 130 Canal street.

A book not to be commended—not fit to keep, to read, or to give away.

The Southern Review. The second number (April) for 1869. Baltimore: A. T. Bledsoe. Pp. 240, 8vo.

Of its contents we mention three articles, either one of which is worth the full subscription price of this quarterly: What is Liberty? Positivism in England; The Sun. We take this occasion to express our acknowledgments to the writer of the second for clearing up so lucidly a very difficult subject. Only a mind of high power could explode the fallacy upon which this overshadowing folly professes to build. The sense with which the adroit theories of M. Augusto Comte, Henry T. Buckle, and John Stuart Mill can be dissipated surprises the reader; as he follows the iron door opens of its own accord, and lets him out of the prison house into the free air of divine truth.

The Positivist, while attempting to consider only the phenomena of nature, refuses to consider the greater fact of nature's origin. He thus takes for granted that nothing can produce something. He insists that philosophy must be built on facts; but while attempting to resolve all mental states into sensations, he overlooks the mind itself; though without its consciousness of self, as distinct from all sensation, it could take no knowledge of a sensuous object. "We must be first conscious of self in order to perceive the not self."

Positivism despises, or professes to, all abstract ideas. It claims mathematics, the science of quantity, as the basis of the positive philosophy, because it is the most exact of all sciences. Yet this science is made up of invisible and intangible magnitudes. The point, the line, the surface, etc., are things too subtle for the human eye to see, or human hand to draw; how foolish then to talk of the phenomena of mathematics! In the sense of M. Comte this science has no phenomena. Those lines of the geometrician which demonstrate the mecanique celeste, the magnitude, the motions, and the distances of the heavenly bodies are pure abstractions which have no existence outside of the mind. And as M. Comte discards spirits because the acting of spirit can never be phenomena, he should for the same reason discard the prescience of astronomy, because its basis is that of which the senses can take no cognizance.

Positivism assumes that the human mind moves from the supernatural to the metaphysical, and then from that to positivism. This is not true of races or individuals. "Bacon, Kepler, Sir Isaac Newton, Leibnitz, Cuvier, were not the less devout believers, because each made splendid additions to the domain of science. The sixteenth century was equally remarkable for its intellectual and its religious activity. And M. Comte himself, at this late day, winds up his positivism by constructing a religion of which the central figure is the apotheosis of his dead mistress!

We give a very rough and hasty sketch of this masterly article.

This number is fully up to any of its predecessors, and we repeat what we have said before, that every Southern man should be glad to sustain a review which reflects such credit upon the genius and scholarship of the South. Price $1. 31 Lexington street, Baltimore.

The Old Testament History, from the Creation to the Return of the Jews from Captivity. Edited by William Smith, L.L.D., classical examiner in the University of London. With maps and woodcuts. New York: Harper & Brothers. 1869. Large 12mo, pp. 715.

This is well named the "Student's Scripture History." It is full of instructive, accurate, and reliable information, most compactly and attractively set forth. It is exactly the book for a Sabbath school teacher who is carrying a class through the Old Testament. It contains the result of biblical scholarship and research brought down to the present day; and apart from the transcendent quality of its subject matter, the style of this book is worthy of much study. Ministers can find in it many valuable suggestions, and able analyses of the principal Scripture characters. For sale by George Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street.

We have received from the same publishers a copy of Vanity Fair. By William Makepeace Thackeray. Harper & Brothers, New York. 1869.

Of this well known novel we need not speak. It is probably the most enduring contribution to the world of fiction made in the last twenty years. It is one of the few books that we have read through. The artistic power of the author is seen in it to the best advantage. The whole drift of the work evidences the impatience of literary and other successful men who belong to the middle class in Great Britain—dissatisfied, as they are, with those artificial conditions of society which admit to its highest places, not brains but blood. For sale by George Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street.

OMISSION.

Greensburg, La., May 15, 1869.

Mr. Editor: I have waited till this late day in hope that some other, who frequently writes corrections, would have an omission in our minutes corrected, viz: The name of Andrew Day is not found in the minutes of the Mississippi Conference. My remembrance is that he was granted a superannuated relation on account of ill health. He has been an effective member of our Conference for thirty years. I feel well assured it was altogether an oversight. I have not seen or heard from Brother Day since Conference, but I think this notice is due to him and his friends. If I am mistaken in reference to his relation, let the Conference secretary set it right.

Yours in Christ Jesus,
J. Nicholson.

LETTER FROM REV. J. A. PAULY.

JEFFERSON, TEXAS, May 25, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: As you are aware, I left New Orleans on the 20th of April, on board the Selma. I was very kindly treated by the captain and passengers, and enjoyed myself very much. The captain brought me to Shreveport free of expense. Found Brother Trippett in fine health, and doing a good work. His congregation is large, and everything is moving on with the blessing of our common Master.

The prospect for my enterprise at first was gloomy, but God gave me power with the people. They showed me much kindness, and finally gave me $102. I also raised about the same amount in Marshall. On the 13th of this month I came to this place, and found Brother Thompson and wife in rather bad health. The righteous, you know, have their afflictions, and this family are receiving their portion. Brother Thompson is a very pious man, and beloved and honored by the whole community. I never heard a better report of a preacher and his family than of this pastor and his. His wife is an exception. She is extolled by all—saints and sinners. Brother Thompson's work shows his ability as a Methodist preacher. He not only has a big church, but a large congregation and a spiritual membership—the best I have seen since the late terrible war. I had the pleasure of preaching once to them in their language, and several times to the Germans in their own tongue.

Jefferson and Marshall are promising fields for a German preacher, and our church will lose much if one is not sent to them. It is one of the best openings for Methodism among the Germans which I have seen. They not only want a preacher, but they are willing to pay for his services. They are crying scriptorally, "Come over and help us."

Although this people are terribly oppressed by the military, and many of the leading citizens are suffering in confinement, and intense anxiety is manifested for them, yet they contributed $170 to my enterprise, for which I thank them heartily. This people threw open their doors to me, and gave me a home in almost every house. Their persons and their wants have taken such fast hold on me that I cannot give them a final good-by. I promise, with the blessing of almighty God, to see them again.

My health is good, and I leave to-day for Greenwood. Pray for me and our church.

Yours in Christ,

J. A. PAULY.

The Mobile and Selma Railroad.

Important steps have been taken, both in Mobile and Selma, for connecting the two cities by a direct line of railway; and the action of the City Council of Mobile, should it be ratified by the people of Mobile, of which there is no doubt, with the aid that Selma will give, insures the building of the road within two or three years at farthest.

The interests of Selma demand direct connection with the gulf, and we are not only willing, but prefer to make it at Mobile, and will give the enterprise all the aid we can.

The advantages that Mobile will derive from a connection with us are ably set forth in an extract from an article in the Mobile Register of the 21st.

It is proposed to adopt the line of the Selma and New Orleans road for about two-thirds of the distance, and an equitable and satisfactory arrangement can be effected with the latter company for this purpose.

The line, if the present survey is adopted, will pass through some of the richest and most productive country in the State, and where the local traffic, in time, will become immense, and of itself yield a handsome revenue to the company. And a large portion of this country is as yet unsettled, and there are now thousands of idle acres within its limits as productive as any in Alabama, and which in time will be settled up.

A near and direct outlet to the gulf will be obtained by us, which, with the deepening and improvement in the harbor of Mobile, now set on foot, will give us ample seaboard facilities.

A proposition is now pending in the City Council of Mobile to enter into contract with Colonel Albert Stien, to open, and keep open for ten years, "a clear, deep, and open channel, for the free navigation of vessels drawing from fifteen to twenty feet of water between the city of Mobile and the Gulf of Mexico," and when this is done all objections to Mobile on the score of shallow water will be done away with.

Our City Council met on last Saturday evening, and resolved to fully co-operate with Mobile. The report of that meeting appears elsewhere.—Selma Times, June 1.

"THE NEW SOUTH."—Six hundred thousand dollars' worth of manufacturing stock has been subscribed for a cotton mill at Columbus, Georgia, and seventy-one others are in process of creation at Savannah and other points of the State, for the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods. One factory at Augusta has a capital of six hundred thousand dollars, and last year turned out nearly six and a half million yards of cloth. The Arizona Cotton Factory, established in Claiborne parish, Louisiana, since the war, is now paying a net profit of twenty four per cent. per annum. This income is realized on a capital of eighty thousand dollars, and with a part of the machinery counted in the capital, not yet at work. New Orleans is soon to have a cotton mill with ten thousand spindles.

THE PROPOSED NEW ROUTE TO TEXAS. It is understood that the Mobile and Chattanooga Railroad Company have selected Donaldsonville as the point at which the western extension of their road from New Orleans shall leave the river. Supposing Houston to be the first objective point of this project in Texas, Donaldsonville, although nearly due west from this city, will be off direct line to that point, it being some miles above the thirtieth parallel, and Houston being considerably below. Nevertheless, it claimed for the proposed route via Donaldsonville, that it has an important advantage over that of the Opelousas railroad via Brashear City, in point of distance as well as in natural facilities of construction.—Commercial Bulletin.

THE quarterly meeting services at the Methodist church on Saturday and Sunday were of an unusually interesting character—Rev. T. A. Mood, president of Soule University, the presiding elder and pastor, Drs. Alexander and Kavanaugh. President Mood preached three most excellent discourses, with which the congregation was delighted and edified.—Tri Weekly Telegraph.

THE American Watch Company, of Waltham, Massachusetts, has a card in our columns, to which we invite the attention of our readers. This company is the pioneer in watchmaking in the United States, and thus far has been steadily growing, until they have become the largest watchmakers in the world.

THE American Stock Journal for June contains the usual amount of interesting articles, which we commend to the careful perusal of our rural readers. Send your name and address to the publishers, N. P. Boyer & Co., Parkesburg, Chester county, Pennsylvania, and they will send you a specimen copy free.

MARRIED.

By the Rev. J. L. Wright, on Wednesday evening, May 26, 1869, Mr. M. S. HUNTER to Miss S. OLIVE MCCRORY, all of Morehouse parish, Louisiana.

At Brookhaven, Mississippi, on the evening of the 5th of June, 1869, by the Rev. L. R. Redding, WILLIAM W. WALKER, Esq., of New Orleans, to Miss JENNIE GOURLEY, of Fayette, Mississippi.

Times and Picayune please copy.

OBITUARIES.

DANIEL C. HAYS, aged about sixty-two years, died at his residence in Lauderdale county, Mississippi, on the 11th of March, 1869.

He was a devoted Christian, and died in great peace with God. He was the father of the Rev. John D. Hays, of the Mississippi Annual Conference.

J. C. BROGAN.

J. G. Y. RAYNES was born April 15, 1805, in North Carolina, and died in Lauderdale county, Mississippi, March 20, 1869.

He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in early life, of which he was a consistent and faithful member until death; and though called from the walks of men to enter suddenly the house appointed for all the living, we mourn not as those who have no hope, having the testimony of his upright and religious life upon which to found fond anticipations of reunion with him in heaven.

J. C. BROGAN.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

At the second quarterly meeting held for the Enfaula station, May 15, 1869, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the providence of almighty God our esteemed and much-beloved brother, CHARLES D. LANEY, a steward of this church, has been removed by death from among us; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is with a sense of the deepest regret that we have to part with our brother in Christ—one who had a high sense of honor, justice, and integrity—a genial soul, with social qualities of the highest order—a Christian of unwavering piety and integrity to his God and to his church.

Resolved, That the members of this quarterly conference feel that they have lost a prompt and efficient steward, and the church one of its most faithful and devoted members; but we rejoice to feel that our loss is his eternal gain.

Resolved, That we tender our sympathies and condolence to Sister Laney and her children in their sore affliction.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and a copy of the same be furnished the family of our deceased brother.

WM. A. MCCARTY, President.

A. A. WALKER, Secretary.

EUFAULA, May 15, 1869

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TEACHING.

WANTED.—ENGAGEMENTS TO Teach by the 1st of October next:

1. For a young lady qualified in the usual branches of a polite education, music, etc., and with five or six years' experience.
2. For another, fully qualified, but without experience in teaching. A comfortable home in some private family would be preferred.

Apply, if by letter, to

REV. JAMES MACLENNAN,
jel2 1m Greenville, Mississippi.

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold.
Surplus, - - 1,200,000, Gold.

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, } Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho, and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,

And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. jel2 4tp

THREE INDISPENSABLE BIBLE HELPS.

I.

Mimpriss Gospel Treasury and Treasury of the Four Evangelists. Having the text in parallel columns, with Scripture Illustrations, Practical Reflections, and Addenda, geographical, biographical, topographical, historical, and critical, illustrating manners, customs, opinions, and localities of the Sacred Narratives, with analytical and historical tables, and a very copious Index, and a chart with every event numbered and localized.—One volume, 12mo. Over 900 pages. Cloth, extra, red edges, $1 50. Quarto edition, large type, $12.

"It is not easy to state in a few words the merits of this extraordinary book. It is in all respects a most unusual book, and the labor in its preparation must have been immense. It is in its own department without a parallel in the language, and stands many degrees at the head of its class."—Primitive Church Magazine, England.

Strongly recommended as a help to Sunday school teachers by Rev. Drs. Tyng and Alfred Taylor, and Messrs. Ralph Wells and Pardee, the Sunday School Times, and many others.

II.

Simmons' Scripture Manual. Alphabetically and systematically arranged. Having the texts bearing upon the important subjects of Scripture arranged and printed in full, under their appropriate heads. One volume, 12mo, cloth, extra, $1 75.

"Far more copious and reliable than any work of the kind. A better help to the study of the Bible is not accessible."—Congregationalist.

More than fifty thousand copies of this book have already been sold.

III.

Cruden's Complete Concordance. A Dictionary and Alphabetical Index to the Bible. The Unabridged Edition, having the various meanings of the most important words as they occur in the different parts of Scriptures. Concordance to Proper Names, Definitions of Proper Names and Concordance to the Apocrypha. 8vo, sheep, $5; cloth, $4.

"Cruden's Concordance, in its unabridged and complete state, is invaluable to the biblical student, and the abridgments which have been made of it furnish no idea of the thoroughness and fullness of the original and complete work."—Rev. Thomas DeWitt, D. D.

"It is a low view of such a book to consider it merely as an expedient for finding a certain verse. It is in reality a Bible Lexicon. As managed by Cruden, it is also an explanatory Dictionary, and his definitions are, in every instance remembered by me, sound and evangelical."—Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D.

A descriptive catalogue of all our publications mailed to any address.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
jel2 4tR 506 Broadway, New York.

WANTED, AGENTS.—LADIES or gentlemen to sell our popular allegorical engraving, entitled "From Shore to Shore," suggestive of Life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem.

B. B. RUSSELL,
jel2 4tp 55 Cornhill, Boston.

ONE THOUSAND MEN WANTed.—Wages, $5 per day. Send for circular to M. L. BYRN, jel2 4tp No. 80 Cedar street, New York.

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three-cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, jel2 4tR Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address SPIRIT PICTURE CO.,
jel2 4tR 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price.

A. WILKINS,
jel2 4tR Detroit, Mich.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SOMEBODY TELLS LIES.

Who is it?
Dr. WOLCOTT or the old school?
Wolcott reasons well,
Else whence this instinctive
Horror of Doses,
This opposition to Drugs
Implanted in every child?
Proof so positive
Convinces every reason
That the whole system
Of Drug treatment
Is and must be wrong,
When all humanity
Possesses a secret dread of them
Yes, when every soul
Shrinks back and startles
At the approach of each Dose
That Ignorance mixes for the stomach.
'Tis our very instinct
That stirs within us,

and Nature points out to us the dreadful folly, causing such loathing that, before the vile compounds are presented to our averted gaze, the stomach often recls at the disgusting potions! Is it right? Can it be right when every human instinct condemns it in the strongest language; when even the brute creation shun it with abhorrence; when a power within ourselves, when all Nature cries against this most besotted and dangerous practice? Stop! Let us reason, and see how it looks. Perhaps you are costive!—Will Pills produce moisture or cure the complaint? Pills will rob the stomach of moisture, and never add a drop; for they are dry and have none to give. No one swallows them but is weaker and more costive afterward from the loss of the vitalizing fluids and gastric juices! Reader, have you a garden, a spot of earth, or a single blade of grass? If the soil becomes dry, will you sow it with gravel-stones or sand?—Nay, verily! But you sprinkle it with water! The human stomach and its health are better than "many gardens!" Will not common sense lead you to a watery and cooling diet? Don't your stomach ask for more vegetables? Where are the apples, oranges, and any or all kinds of fruit she longs for? Where the spinach, beets, turnips, and the hundred varieties? She will accept of some of them. Where the brown or corn bread, oatmeal pudding, etc., waiting for you to eat, that will be agreeable to your palate and will prove to be exactly what you need? 'Tis a thousand times more sensible to drink a pint or quart of oat or corn meal porridge once or twice each day, for a week or two, or use warm water injections, than ever be guilty—yes, I mean guilty, for no person swallows Drugs but commits a sin against themselves, and punishment will certainly follow, sooner or later.

What makes that once strong man now weak and faltering? What drives the roses from the cheeks of that woman? What takes the fire and brightness from the eyes of that child? It is Drugs in nine cases out of every ten. Hundreds of people every day that throng Dr. WOLCOTT'S place, at 181 Chatham Square, suffer from Drug treatment. Thousands, when they return home, make a bonfire and burn them up. Most of the middle aged who read this paper to day will live to hear Drugs as universally condemned as bleeding has already become. And they will wonder how it was ever possible that intelligent beings could live and have their senses, and yet submit to such a transparent farce in filling their own bodies with Drug poison year after year, while their whole nature rose up and condemned, in the most eloquent language, this most absurd and health-ruining practice. For every person, without a single exception, who has swallowed most of these abominations, will ratify by their experience the truth of every word. Dr. Wolcott must be right or wrong. Dr. Wolcott is publishing truth or falsehood to the world. If his sentiments are false, why is it that he gains the patronage of the most shrewd and critical men, including many of our leading physicians, and retains their custom year after year? How is it possible for him to offer free tests of his Remedies in open daylight, before the world, unless it accomplished results? How is it that he has a larger practice and patronage than any Hospital in the world? How is it that he has more Certificates of Cures, with genuine names attached, from every city, village, and almost every neighborhood, than would fill the largest printed volume, and many of these cases pronounced hopeless before they used his Remedies? Who tells the truth—this is the question—Dr. Wolcott or the old school.

We leave the readers of this paper to decide for themselves whether to continue in the old heathenish custom of dosing or adopt ideas founded on natural law, which cannot be otherwise than safe and in the highest degree conducive to sound health.

Every letter written to Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT is opened with his own hands, and practical advice is given to all who ask for further information, free of cost, besides pamphlets and circulars. He uses no Narcotics, and a child can drink anything he prepares with impunity. His Remedies, PAIN PAINT for Pain and ANNIHILATOR for Catarrh, Consumption, Colds in the Head, Weak Nerves, etc., are on sale at all first class Drug Stores in the Union, or sent directly from Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT'S office, 181 Chatham Square, New York, free of Express charges, on receipt of $5 or upward at each order. All who come treated free of cost. No charge for medical advice. Extreme pain removed instantly. Private rooms for ladies. We cannot speak too highly of his safe and successful mode of treatment for the last ten years in the city of New York. jel2 4tr

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Farmers, families, and others can purchase no Remedy equal to Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT for the cure of Cholera, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Croup, Colic, and Sea Sickness.—Taken internally (it is perfectly harmless—see oath accompanying each bottle) and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Musquito Bites, Old Sores, Pains in Limbs, Back, and Chest. The Venetian Liniment was introduced in 1847, and no one who has used it but continues to do so, many stating if it was $10 a bottle they would not be without it. Thousands of Certificates can be seen at the Depot, speaking of its wonderful curative properties. Price, Fifty Cents and $1. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, No. 10 Park Place, New York. jel2 5tr

THE NEW GRADED

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BOOK.

Mimpriss Lessons on the Life of Christ. Harmonized from the Four Evangelists, with Manual for the Teacher.

Three grades. A Uniform Lesson throughout the school, but adapted to the various capacities of the different grades of scholars.

The most complete, thorough and attractive series of Lessons. Containing many important new features, and calculated to meet the urgent demand for improved methods of Sunday school instruction.

A circular, with specimen pages and full description, sent to any address on application.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
jel2 4tR 506 Broadway, New York.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchoupitoulas street. my29 3m

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, SCROFula.—A lady who had suffered for years from Deafness, Catarrh and Scrofula was cured by a simple remedy. Her sympathy and gratitude prompt her to send the receipts free of charge to any one similarly afflicted. Address

MRS. M. C. LEGGETT,
jel2 4tR Hobokon, N. J.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers.

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The substitution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time-keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In conjunction with enlarged power of production, it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place.—Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance each to its pattern; they are perfect in their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them.

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade, and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and ample—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtleties of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose expertness and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishment in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially so since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For further and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
jel2 6tr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

"A WORD TO HORSEMEN."

Dr. TOBIAS' celebrated VENETIAN HORSE LINIMENT has been tested by the first Horsemen in this country, and proved to be superior to any other. The late Hiram Woodruff, of "trotting fame," was never without a bottle in his stable. It is also used by Colonel Bush, of the Jerome Park Course, at Fordham, New York, who has over twenty running horses under his care, among which rank some of the finest stock in America. It is warranted to cure Lameness, Sprains, Scratches, Bruises, Galls, Cuts, Wind Galls, Colic, Sore Throat, Nail in the Foot, and Over-heating, when used according to the directions.

All who own or employ Horses are assured that this Liniment will do all, if not more, in curing the above named complaints. No Horse need die of Colic, if, when first taken, the Liniment is used according to the directions. Always have a bottle in your stable.

Price, in pint bottles, $1. The genuine is signed S. I. Tobias on the outside wrapper.

For sale by the Druggists, Saddlers and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. my15 5tp

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address

SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. jel2 4tR

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to

NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. MCLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. jel2 4tR

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
jel2 4tR 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address

W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
jel2 4tR Cleveland, Ohio

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE
sep15 1y New Orleans.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
mhl3 9mp 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. Yon wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mp Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2 $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above. jel2 4tR

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal Inducements to Agents. Address

AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
jel2 4tR Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO CO., New York. jel2 4tR

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

BY THE BEE HIVES.

Thou cheerful bee! come, freely come
And travel round my woodbine bower,
Delight me with thy wandering hum,
And rouse me from my musing hour.
O try no more you tedious fields,
Come, taste the sweets my garden yields;
The treasure of each flowering vine,
The bud—the blossom—all are thine!

And, careless of the noontide heat,
I'll follow as thy rambie guides,
To watch thee pause to chafe thy feet,
And sweep them o'er thy downy sides;
Now in a flower-bell nestling lie,
And all thy busiest ardor ply;
Then o'er the stem, though fair it grow,
With touch that spurns it, glance and go.

O taught of Heaven! O laborer wise!
That roam'st along the summer ray,
And feel'st the bliss that God supplies,
Prepared to meet thy wintry day;
Go, joyful go; with crowded gates
The hive thy rich return awaits;
Bear home thy store in triumph gay,
And shame each idler on thy way.

—Children's Magazine.

FLOWERETS.

FROM THE GERMAN:

III.—THE TWO GOATS.

Two goats met each other midway on a narrow bridge which led across a creek. "Make way for me," said one. "Indeed!" replied the other, "it seems that you are slightly presumptuous. Make way for me; I am the oldest." "But I was on the bridge first," retorted the former; "if you are so old you ought to know that it is your duty to return and let me pass first." Thus they talked on till both were very angry, commenced to fight, and fell headlong down into the creek, which was at the time swollen: It was only with great difficulty that they saved their lives.

IV.—OLD BLIND GRAY.

In the last century there lived in Warschaw, Poland, a very wealthy merchant. He kept four fine horses to draw his carriage, and beside a fine gray saddle-horse. Gray was the fastest horse in the whole country. Once, when his master, in a dark forest through which he traveled, was attacked by robbers, he saved his life by his fleetness.

But when Gray grew old, and his sight failed him, he could serve his master no longer. Another horse filled his place. After a while the ungrateful merchant told his servant to turn old blind Gray out of the stable; that the times were too hard to feed a horse that could render no more service.

Being turned out, poor old blind Gray for some time refused to go. For several days and nights he stood near the gate with drooping head. Hunger finally drove him away. But where must he go? He was blind. Accidentally he entered the open door of the belfry which was built on the market place, and where it was the custom for the people to come, and, if they had any complaint, to ring the bell as a signal for the judges immediately to assemble in order to investigate the case. Being very hungry, poor old blind Gray attempted to eat the grass rope which was attached to the bell. While Gray was thus pulling on the rope the bell rang louder and louder. It did not take long for the city fathers, the judges, to assemble. And lo! behold! as plaintiff they found the old horse. They recognized him, called for the merchant, fined him $10 for cruelty toward the helpless brute, and required him to take Gray home and feed him till he should die.

V.—CORN STALKS.

A farmer, accompanied by his son Willie, visited his farm in order to see whether the corn was ripe for the garner. "Father," said Willie, "how is it that some of these stalks so humbly bend down to the ground, while others stand so proudly erect? Are these latter superior that the former must do them homage?" Then the father pulled a few ears from these stalks, and said: "Behold this ear which I pulled from the stalk which is so humbly bowing down! How full of grains! How heavy! Now see this ear from the stalk which so proudly stands erect; it is almost all spike, with only a few shriveled grains."

Worth, conscious of defects, is never elate;
While emptiness vaunts—no doubt it is great.

J. B. A. AHRENS

FARM AND GARDEN.

BLIND STAGGERS.

ROSE BANK, Yazoo River, May 22.

MR. EDITOR: Seeing from your valuable paper you are in the habit of publishing recipes, etc., and believing it to be the duty of every one who makes a discovery that will benefit the community to make it publicly known, I will give you a recipe for a very dangerous disease in horses or mules, viz, blind staggers: Take of coal oil and spirits turpentine one tablespoonful each, mix and pour in each ear Then take of lime and home-made soap and salt and make a paste, and blister the forehead, and around the ear and on the back of the head.

Very respectfully,

SAMUEL MORROW.

The Best Arbor for the Scuppernong.

To a person engaging in a business new to him, it is important that he be properly posted in regard to it. Without knowledge he labors to great disadvantage, and after much toil, and expense, and years of anxiety, which end in disappointment, he finds it too late in life to begin anew. The above facts are exemplified in the case of arboring for the Scuppernong. As it cannot, like other grape vines, be taken down at any time and the arbor reconstructed, it is important to begin right. All writers recommend wood; none directly recommend wire. It is evident that wood serves only a temporary purpose and requires a great deal of labor to keep it up. The vine is increasing in size and weight every year and, if it should fall, would be difficult to raise. Wire is far more durable and more economical for a term of years. It costs more at the ontset, but will it not pay? We invest in guano for cotton; does not the Scuppernong promise to pay more than cotton? If it will not pay for a wire arbor it is not worth raising for wine. I have a plan by which any one may proceed with confidence. Supposing the vines to have been set thirty-two feet each way, begin by setting posts six feet high, in squares of sixteen feet, which would give to the first square of vines nine posts; after that it would give to each square six feet. Set end posts for tightening the wire upon, twelve or fifteen feet from the end vines, in a line with the row of posts. They should be set three feet in the ground, and braced on the inside braces, extending from the tops to a stake driven in the ground a few feet distant. Then take No. 7, 8, or 9 wire and fasten to one end post, and stretch across the vineyard and through a hole in tops of the opposite end post. To tighten the wires, prepare sticks, one and a half inches thick, and six or eight inches long, bore a small hole in one end and square the other end to fit into a wagon or buggy wrench. By turning the wrench a powerful tension can be gained; after which drive a nail through the stick into the post. In this way proceed until the vineyard is checked with wire sixteen feet apart, the wires crossing on the tops of the posts. To secure the wires on the tops of the posts, take a small staple, which may be made of wire, and drive into the top of the post embracing both wires. Then take No. 13 or 15 wire and check those squares, reducing them to squares of eight feet, and on these lay slats to support the vines while young. By the time the slats rot the vines will have extended across the wires. At the crossing of those small wires set up a prop which will be as good as a post. If the wire is annealed, or galvanized, or covered with coal tar, it will last a long series of years. When a post rots it will be an easy matter to take it out and put in a new one. If any one has a better plan for arboring I would be pleased to learn it.—J. M. Palmer, M. D., in Southern Cultivator.

HOUSEKEEPER'S DEPARTMENT.

COMMON HARD SOAP.—Seven pounds of soda, three of lime, and four gallons of water. Boil together till dissolved; let this stand to settle; then pour off as long as any remains clear, and add water to make four gallons; boil this, adding four pounds of grease and two tablespoonfuls of borax; boil till thick; take up, and put away to cool; when it is cold, cut the pieces rather larger than the size you want, as it shrinks in drying.

CREAM CANDY.—Take about three pounds of white sugar; add one pint of water and an eighth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar; boil until by trying in cold water it will form a hard ball. Then pour on a greased tin or slab of marble. As it cools, "pull" between the hands or with a hook, until very light and white. While "pulling," flavor with extract of lemon or vanilla Let it stand in a warm place for a few hours until it grains.

TIMBALE OF MACARONI.—Boil pipe macaroni in water until tender enough to cut into pieces about an inch long; line a mold with these bits, putting them so that the hollow parts shall be at the top and sides of the mold; they must fit close together all round the mold. Make a mince of any kind of meat, with a couple of yolks of eggs; fill the mold with this, and boil twenty minutes; serve with white sauce poured round.

SCIENTIFIC.

A STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.

In the last report from the United States Department of Agriculture there is presented a vast amount of information and statistics of the consumption of wood in our country, and the effects of the wholesale destruction of our American forests. From facts and figures of too accurate a character to be disputed, the conclusion is reached that, unless measures are taken immediately to replace, by new plantations, the supplies withdrawn by the destruction of our old forests, there will be an actual famine for wood in this country within the next thirty years.

Few are aware of the reckless waste of timber going on; and yet they ought to know, for the change of climate and the extremes of temperature which we now endure were not formerly known, and are a convincing evidence of this fact. It is true that coal or peat may be substituted for purposes of fuel; but in the mechanical arts, in building houses or ships, or innumerable other purposes, we must have wood, good, sound, and strong.

The black walnut is rarely found now in the Eastern and Middle States, where once it was plenty. Our pine comes more than a thousand miles, from Michigan and Wisconsin, and beyond, to the value of tens of millions of dollars, to supply our demands.

In the single State of New York, from 1850 to 1860, there were reclaimed from the forest and brought into cultivation no less than one million nine hundred and sixty-seven thousand four hundred and thirty-three acres of land. All these acres will never again be devoted to timber growing; and still the destruction goes on.

If the present demand for lumber continues in proportion to the increase of population, in twenty years from now we shall need $200,000,000 worth of sawed lumber annually. And whence are we to obtain it?

It is estimated that from 1850 to 1860 no less than fifty million acres of new land in the United States were brought under cultivation, of which two-fifths were timber land, and in the decade ending 1870 there will be no less than one hundred million acres so reclaimed.

We do not see here the wild cherry or cucumber tree; the hard maple and hickory are almost entirely gone, while entire sections have been denuded of hemlock and pine.

The sleepers used on the railroads of our country from 1850 to 1860 cost $23,063,957, and their number was sixty-five million eight hundred and ninety-seven thousand and twenty, and when it is remembered that these are almost entirely hard wood, and last but two to five years, it will be seen that the annual supply for this purpose is enormous, and increasing as fast as new railroads are built.

A NEW INVENTION.—G. W. Ballantine, a soldier in the engineer battalion at Yerba Buena island, has hit upon a simple and ingenious plan for collecting cream from milk, which he styles a "Patent Milk Strainer." It is described as follows: It consists of two pans, one bottomless, a piece of fine, light cloth or flannel, and a movable circle or rim, by which the cloth can be fitted tightly (something after the manner in which a drumhead is secured) to the pan without a bottom. This is placed in the pans of milk. The cream rises and forms on the cloth, and when the proper time arrives the cloth is removed, carrying with it all the cream that has been formed. This saves the tedious process of skimming, besides saving all the cream. The invention is exhibited by Frank V. Scudder, No. 611 Montgomery street. We are inclined to foster every invention which lightens the labor of the housewife, therefore we advise our country friends to look into this matter. It is simple and complete.—San Francisco Spectator.

THERE was a muster of the old soldiers of the Grand Armee in Paris, the first week in May, to attend mass in the chapel of the Invalides. The number present was about thirty. A correspondent says:

Among them were several artillery men, one of Marceau's hussars (still wearing the orthodox pigtail,) one naval officer, one of the famous Old Guard, together with a drummer of the Guard, who beat the assembly on the occasion. Almost all had white mustaches, and all, with the exception of the Old Guard, were exceedingly little men, showing that the military standard of height had fallen extremely low under the first empire. With the drummer playing at their head, they marched off two and two to the Invalides, their little spindled legs keeping military time, and their drawn swords gleaming in the bright sunshine. The rear was brought up by an old invalid with a wooden leg, who was allowed the luxury of a vehicle to conduct him to the tomb of his great captain, under the dome of the Invalides.

THE TIDE OF TRAVEL OVER THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.—From the Daily City-Central (Colorado) Register we take the following:

On the 1st of May fifteen thousand people in California were booked for an overland trip by rail. The tide of travel has fairly commenced, and the time is now come when tourists will make a trip to the Rocky mountains before climbing the Alps or indulging in a sail on the Rhine. For an American to visit Europe for pleasure before he has seen our own magnificent landscapes or mountains, waterfalls, waving pines, and broad green parks, is ridiculous, and justly subjects him to unfavorable criticism abroad. Our mountain scenery is as wild, beautiful, romantic, and sublime as any Europe can present, with the advantage that it is on a much larger scale. No brooks sparkle brighter or are better filled with trout than ours, and no climate on earth is more invigorating, clear, and beautiful than ours. One might spend a dozen summers in exploring our mountain chains, and still the half would not have been seen. Let those of the East who have the leisure and money, but are lacking in health and vigor, come and camp awhile in our beautiful nooks, bathe in our hot and cold mineral springs, and regain youth, vigor, and health. No portion of the world offers so much variety of scenery, and it is time that Americans understand it. If they want further testimony, let them read Samuel Bowles' book and follow his example. Our artists already appreciate our importance, and have been flocking here in great numbers to transfer a portion of our beauties to canvas, but they ought not to be left alone in the enjoyment of its pleasures.

CURIOUS DETECTION OF A CRIMINAL.—Not long ago there occurred in Prussia one of those cases of detection of crime by scientific means which interest a large and intelligent class of readers. A quantity of gold, packed in boxes, was dispatched by a railway train. On arrival at its destination it was discovered that the gold had been stolen from some of the boxes, which were refilled with sand to make up the deficient weight. Measures were at once taken for the discovery of the thief; and, that no chance might be lost, Professor Ehrenberg was requested to make a microscopic examination of the sand. The professor, who is a member of the Academy of Sciences at Berlin, well known for his researches into minute objects, and his comparisons of volcanic dust from all parts of the world, asked that a quantity of sand from every station by which the train had passed should be sent to him. Examining these one after another, he at last came to sand which was identical with that found in the gold boxes. The name of the station whence this sand had been collected was known; inquiries were set on foot at that station, and among the persons there employed the thief was arrested.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. jn16 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. dec12 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.

oct3 1y

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS A year. Address FOX & CO., Saco, Maine.

my15 tfs

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

In addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Beugel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each.	45 50
Wesley's Notes on the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS,

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes:

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
my15 New Orleans.

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,
Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nichols.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,
OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre,	W. S. Mount,
John Davidson,	L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier,	William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks,	William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt,	T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper,	Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike,	Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard,	John C. Sinnott
J. Caulfield,	C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith,	W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
R. W. YOUNG, Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER, Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner.
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST., (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of
16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of.....15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of.....20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of.....25 00
which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

JAMES L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

No.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

☞ Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Rosborough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us: ja2 1y

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Smut Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every house keeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE

OF THE

CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
97 and 99 Julia street.
dec12 6m

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and uneonly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS.—MUNN & CO., EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above. my1 tfs

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. my22 tfs

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Tooth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,
AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, . . . $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, . . . 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address
REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottmon Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Holt Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEANS

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,
MISSISSIPPI,
LOUISIANA AND
TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

REV. J. O. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument, $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
ap5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed: Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages	$215 00
Music	50 00
French or one Modern Language	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address
WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty-seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENEKLB, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1868.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.
ep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.
Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio, Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE,

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

A. EYRICH, (Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 street, New Orleans.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,
No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july6 1y

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER.

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
nov1 New Orleans, La.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.,
aug8 6m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term	$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term	30 00
Contingent fee, per term	2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $15 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circulars to
O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.
SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80 00
Incidental Fee	5 00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75 00
Incidental Fee	5 00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20 00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust.
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY						1	2
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has shown less apathy since our last issue, country merchants having come forward rather more freely, and the plantation and local demand evincing increased spirit, but as a general thing there has been very little activity, and [illegible] two branches of trade we [illegible] complaints of increasing dullness. The sales of sugar have been mostly confined to the moderate current receipts, without [illegible] table change in prices, and [illegible] of any moment has been reported in molasses. Western produce, [illegible] ruled dull, with no supplies to [illegible] for export.

The weather has been clear and pleasant, and our [illegible] from the country are decidedly more encouraging. The chief obstacle to a liberal yield of our leading staple appears now to be the backwardness of the [illegible] which may be followed by a serious curtailment and waste at the close of the season, and notwithstanding the forebodings of Mr. Sprague, who recently visited the northern belt of the cotton region, and predicts a crop of only two millions to two and a quarter millions, we think the indications are that it will not be less than in 1868-69. The intelligence in regard to sugar is less encouraging. The plant cane in many localities has been so much injured that planters place their principal reliance upon the ratoons.

The river has fallen five inches since our last report, and is now one foot seven inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 4th instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	1145
Mobile.....	218
Texas.....	20
Total.....	1383

On Saturday the movement was animated throughout the day, and the reported sales summed up 2,350 bales, while under the influence of rapidly diminishing supplies, and favorable telegrams from New York and Liverpool, prices advanced ⅛ to ¼c., good ordinary closing at 26½ to 27c., and low middling at 27½ to 28c. On Monday, under further encouraging dispatches and a more earnest demand from the Northern spinners, factors were enabled to establish an additional improvement of ¼c., a portion of the business, however, early in the day, being at about previous rates, and prices stiffening toward the close, when good ordinary was quoted at 26¾ to 26¾c., and low middling at 27¾ to [illegible]c. The sales at the same time were of liberal extent, comprising 3,500 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with [illegible]ened demand, and, although with diminishing supplies and favorable telegrams from New York, factors raised their concessions on all desirable lots, yet 1,850 bales changed hands, which was regarded as a very full business compared with [illegible] The prices paid exhibited some irregularity and extreme figures; a fraction above our outside quotations was occasionally given for even running lots, but on the whole the average improvement may be set down at ¼c.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 7,900 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 787,519 bales, against 579,552 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 107,923 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 22,654 bales to France, and of 2,450 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 274,414 to Great Britain.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary.....	25 to 26
Good ordinary.....	27 to 27½
Low middling.....	28 to 28½
Middling.....	— to 29
Strict middling.....	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....	1959
Arrived past three days.....	1383
Arrived previously.....	814698—816079
	820191
Exported past three days.....	8390
Exported previously.....	773462—827150
Stock on hand and on shipboard....	45298

Sugar.—The market has exhibited very little animation during the past three days. There is a fair demand for fresh lots as they arrive, but the old stock is almost entirely neglected. On Saturday and Monday 150 hogsheads were sold at 6¾c. per pound for inferior, 11 to 11½c. for fair, 11½c. for good fair, 13¼c. for prime, and 15¾c. for white.

Molasses.—Louisiana molasses has continued very dull since our last report. The receipts are light and have generally been sold at previous prices.

Pork.—The market has been quiet, but firmer since our last review.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, June 8, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head.....$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head. 26 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head... 10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross.....	8 to 9c
Sheep, first quality, per head.....	$5 to 8
Sheep, second quality, per head.....	2½ to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head.....	— to 3
Milch cows, choice, per head.....	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head.....	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves.....	— to —
Yearlings, per head.....	6 to 10
Calves, per head.....	6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows.....	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers...	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers.....	6 00	6 50
Sweeps.....	6 00	6 50
Cultivators.....	10 00	11 00
Shovels.....	10 00	17 00
Spades.....	11 00	18 00
Axes.....	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky.....	23½	24
East India.....	..	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb..	..	8½
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs.....	1 22	1 25
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot....	5 50	.. ..
Crackers.....	6 00	.. ..
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M.....	8 00	16 00
English, Fire.....	85 00	100 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford.....	..	..
Tallow.....	..	21½
Adamantine.....	15	21½
Star.....	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb.....	38	55
Sweet and Spiced.....	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Northern.....	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton.....	9 50	10 00
Western, ₱ barrel.....	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb.....	14	17½
Havana.....	..	..
Java.....	..	..
St. Domingo.....	nono	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Brasiers' ₱ lb.....	37	38
Sheathing.....	..	.. ..
Copper Bolts.....	37	38
Yellow Metal.....	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb.....	23½	24½
Tarred, American:.....	.. ..	21
Russia.....	80	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl.....	4 50	4 75
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y.....	4	4½
St. Domingo.....	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico.....	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₱ lb.....	1 75	1 85
Madder.....	22	24
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western.....	14	17
Feathers, ₱ lb.....	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₱ box.....	1 70	.. ..
Herrings.....	70	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl.....	.. ..	29 00
No. 2.....	.. ..	22 50
No. 3.....	15 00	18 00
Flaxseed, ₱ lb.....	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine.....	.. ..	6 00
Extra.....	6 20	11 50
Fine.....	4 75	.. ..
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb.....	14	15
Figs, Drum.....	20	21
Dried Apples.....	..	..
Currants, Zante.....	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell.....	26	..
Raisins, M R, ₱ box.....	none	here
Layer.....	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₱ box.....	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000.....	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₱ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10.....	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12.....	3 50	3 75
12 x 18.....	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western.....	2 20	2 50
Canada.....	2 60	2 75
Oats.....	72	75
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel....	1 00	1 10
Beans, ₱ bbl.....	8 00	12 00
Hops, ₱ lb.....	12	13
Gunpowder, ₱ keg.....	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag.....	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₱ ton.....	25 00	27 00
Northern.....	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican.....	17	18
Wet salted, city slaughter.	8	12
Kip Skins.....	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country.....	17	18
Pelts ₱ piece.....	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₱ ton.....	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₱ lb.....	5	6
English, ₱ lb.....	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb.....	6	8½
Sheet.....	6½	9
Boiler.....	8	10
Nail Rods.....	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties.....	6	7
Castings, American.....	6½	7
Lime, Western ₱ hhl.....	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime.....	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c.....	2 00	2 25
Cement.....	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana.....	45	65
Muscovado.....	..	..
Refinery, Rebpiled.....	60	80
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country.....	2	3½
Black do.....	5	6
Select, water rotted.....	7	8
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb.....	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German.....	14	16
English.....	14	16
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar.....	1 50	3 50
Pitch.....	2 50	.. ..
Rosin A No. 1.....	3 00	5 00
No. 2.....	2 25	.. ..
No. 3.....	.. ..	2 00
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon.....	..	42½
Varnish, bright.....	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon.....	1 35	1 40
Coal Oil.....	34	36
in cases.....	44	48
Cotton Seed, Crude.....	70	75
Refined.....	95	1 00
Tanners' ₱ gallon.....	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton.....	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed.....	35 00	.. ..
Meal.....	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern.....	none	here
" Western.....	19 00	.. ..
" North half bbl.	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₱ lb.....	..	..
Tongues ₱ doz.....	..
Pork, Mess.....	.. ..	33 50
Prime Mess.....	28 00	.. ..
Hog, round, ₱ lb.....	.. ..	13
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb.....	17½	18
Do., canvassed.....	19	20½
Sides.....	18½	18½
Shoulders.....	14½	14½
Green Shoulders.....	12½	13
Lard, Prime, in tierces....	19	19½
in kegs.....	19½	20½
Fair, in tierces.....	.. ..	17
Butter, Northern.....	35	40
Western.....	25	35
Cheese, American.....	18	19
Potatoes, ₱ bbl.....	1 50	2 00
Onions.....	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples.....	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana.....	7	10
India.....	..	..
Carolina.....	..	..
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb.....	14	25
Crude.....	..	..
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store.....	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo.....	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse...	2 15	2 20
from store.....	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₱ bushel....	..	..
Soap, ₱ lb, Western.....	7	7½
Northern.....	8	12
Southern.....	8	10½
Castile.....	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city.....	8	15½
Havana, White.....	15½	16½
Yellow.....	13½	14½
Brown.....	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Bakers & Cutters.....	—	—
Choice and Selections...	15	19
Fine Leaf.....	12	15
Medium Leaf.....	9	11
Fair Leaf.....	10	12
Common Leaf.....	8	10
Good Refused.....	7	10
Common Refused.....	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb.....	—	—
Bailing.....	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb.....	32	40
Burry.....	14	18
Louisiana, Native.....	24	27
Texas, {Cl Merino.....	28	31

SPECIAL NOTICES.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Starkville district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Valden, on the Central railroad, embracing the fourth Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before, at eleven o'clock.

The official members of the district are invited to be at their post at that time. The good people of Valden will take care of all. Visiting brethren are invited to come and help us.

K. A. Jones, P. E.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. Wilson, P. E.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

Jackson Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson station.....July	3, 4
Terry, at Forest Hill.....	10, 11
Clinton, at Chapel Hill.....	17, 18
Canton station.....	24, 25
Camden, at Forest Grove...	31, Aug. 1
Sharon, at Thornton.....Aug.	7, 8
Vernon and Livingston, at Vernon.....	14, 15
Chartlage, at Conway.....	21, 22
Madisonville, at Pearl river..Sept.	18, 19
District conference, Raymond.Aug.	26

R. Abbey, P. E.

Wetumpka Dist., Montgomery Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wetumpka.....June	12, 13
Prattville.....	19, 20
Autaugaville and Ivy Creek, at Ivy Creek.....	26, 27
Lowndesboro, Hayneville and Union, at Union.....July	3, 4
Pleasant Hill ct., at Elwood.	10, 11
Tallassee ct., at Oak Valley.	17, 18
Socopatoy ct., at Socopatoy.	24, 25
Carolina ct., at Rehoboth...Aug.	7, 8
Autauga ct., at Pine Level..	14, 15

At the request of the district meeting I will preach on the Support of the Ministry, and solicit contributions for foreign missions at these quarterly meetings.

Wm. S. Turner, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville.....June	19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove.....	26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara.....July	4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon.....	17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington...	24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer.....Aug.	8, 9
Meadville.....	15, 16
Buffalo.....	22, 23
Percy Creek.....	28, 29
Liberty.....Sept.	4, 5

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo.....July	17, 18
Montevallo ct., at New Salem	24, 25
Dadeville circuit, Dadeville..	31
Lafayette ct., Sandy Ridge..Aug.	7, 8
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, Standing Rock	14, 15
Arbacoochee ct., Hurricane.	21, 22
Marble Valley circuit:.....	28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit.....Sept.	4, 5
Pinckneyville ct., McGuire's Chapel.....	11, 12
Lineville ct., Mt. Pleasant...	18, 19

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

New Orleans Dist. Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers. May	9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.	10
German churches: at Crape st..,	16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st....	21
Jefferson City.....	23
Plaquemine.....	30
Felicity street.....June	6
Thibodeaux.....	13
Carondelet street.....	27
Baton Rouge.....July	18
Moreau street.....	25

J. U. Keenle, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs.....May	29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit.....June	5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station.....	12, 13
Brookhaven station.....	19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandyw'o.July	3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard.....	10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val:	17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground.....	24, 25
Burtenton ct., at Tabernacle.	31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda. Aug.	7, 8
Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst.	14, 15

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Brooksville, at Mount Zion..Apr.	10, 11
Macon station.....	17, 18
Marion ct., at Pleasant Hill..May	1, 2
Gainesville, at Gainesville...	8, 9
Cookaville, at Hebron.....	15, 16
Crawford, at Mayhew.....	22, 23
Summerville, at Summerville.June	5, 6
Trinity circuit, at Woodlawn.	12, 13
De Kalb, at De Kalb.....	26, 27

S. H. Cox, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, - - - - 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, - - - - 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, - - - 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART,
my22 President.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,

Mebaneville, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens February 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00

For circular address

ja21m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 52 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, O. W. Huntington, W. H. Dameron.

je23 1y

F. Hathorn, Late of Shropshire & Hathorn. Alf. H. Pierson.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,

oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS,

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. ao7 1y

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and
Heating Stoves of all kinds.
te13 6m

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Chartres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 CRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

FKUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 87 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months,	$150 00
Fuel,	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department,	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department,	40 00
Music,	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each,	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

R. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM,
ja9 2m Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.

de13 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. P. ERLINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....74

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes;

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. ja30 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—186 and 190 Dolhrd street.
oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
del2 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE Academy.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $18 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Demeron, 61 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker, BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja26 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Mattings, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sept

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 23.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 736.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—There is a movement in Pennsylvania to nominate General Hancock for Governor of the State. The Reading Eagle concludes an article in these words: "Wheel into line, Democrats of the Keystone State, and let your war cry be Hancock and Victory."—Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Internal Revenue Department has directed the suppression of some illicit distilleries in Lee county, Virginia. The military are to be employed, if necessary, to enforce the law.

Brownlow publishes a letter in favor of universal suffrage. He says, "For the Republicans of Tennessee to continue the restrictive policy, when the party everywhere else opposes it, is mischievous and ridiculous."

Judge Paschal has demanded $165,000 of George Peabody & Co., of London, realized by them on Texas indemnity bonds, covered by the recent decision against White, Childs & Co.

Bontwell orders the purchase of an additional half million of bonds next week, to comply with the law requiring one per cent. of the entire debt to be purchased each fiscal year.

CUBA.

HAVANA, May 27.—The expedition which landed in the Bay of Nisse comprised a large steamer (name not given) and the steamship Perit from New York. The steamer transferred her cargo to the Perit, which made several trips to the shore, landing men, arms, artillery, ammunition, provisions, and clothing for the insurgents. Immediately upon landing, the fillibusters threw up intrenchments and mounted eight guns, sweeping the bay.

The steamer Salvador successfully landed her men and munitions at the port of Neuvas Grandes, on the north coast, not far from Neuevitas. A British war steamer and two Spanish cruisers failed to catch the Salvador, which departed immediately after her men and cargo had been disembarked.

On the 16th instant the Spanish war steamer Marsella entered the Bay of Nisse and was received with a sharp fire from the artillery. Two shots took effect in her hull, compelling her to withdraw. She then went to the port of Manati, and obtained a force of soldiers, and in company with the Spanish gunboat Africa returned to the Bay of Nisse. After several shots had been exchanged between the steamers and the shore batteries several hundreds of Spaniards were landed, and making a detour to the rear, took possession of the guns which the fillibusters had been compelled to abandon. The insurgents, meantime, had only retired for the purpose of reforming. That done, they returned in force, made a brilliant charge with the bayonet, retook all the guns, and compelled the Spaniards to retreat in disorder with a loss of forty-five killed and one hundred wounded.

Shots from the Spanish steamer having set fire to a building filled with war materials, the fillibusters did not pursue the routed enemy, they having to remain and extinguish the flames and save the arms, which they succeeded in doing.

The Spaniards saw ten cannon unmounted in addition to the eight pieces already in position.

Foreigners led the attack, and composed a large part of the insurgent force. The Spaniards captured a Prussian and instantly shot him.

EUROPE.

LONDON, June 15.—The Times says the speeches of Stratford de Radcliffe and the Archbishop of Canterbury leave no doubt as to the result of the disestablishment bill. While they dislike it, and are unable to persuade themselves that it will have a beneficial effect, they advise the House of Lords to assent. The practical good sense and patriotism of these speeches contrast strongly with the tone of Bright's hasty effusion.

The Telegraph says after the first night's debate on the Irish Church bill, the issue cannot be doubted.

The Star says since the speech of the Archbishop of Canterbury, everything appears immediately favorable to the bill.

Bright has written a letter to a meeting in Birmingham, in which he says if the House of Lords delay the passage of the Irish Church bill, they will stimulate the discussion of subjects which might slumber for years. The value of a constitution which gives a majority of one house in favor of, and in another house against a given policy, may be questioned. "Why is it that when the Crown and Commons are in harmony with the nation, the Lords are in direct opposition? As long as the House of Lords act in harmony with the country, they may go on for a long time, but when they thwart its course they may meet with an unpleasant accident." He hopes the course of good and wise men in the Lords may prevail.

LONDON, June 15.—The Times today says the restoration of tranquility in Paris was the only event which could reasonably be expected where the citizens were indifferent and the military force immense. It rejoices that the result was attained without bloodshed. Nothing now hinders the Emperor from adopting the constitutional course which the elections invite. Another battle in the streets might be made cause for an indefinite postponement of the public liberties. Paris, on second thought, chose the more moderate among the Liberal candidates for the Legislature, and, by her indifference, rebuked violence. There can be no excuse now for holding the city too hostile for conciliation.

SPAIN.

At length, says the Madrid correspondent of the Daily News, writing on the 7th, the religious question is settled, and Spain has enrolled her name in the list of nations which admit the great principle of religious liberty. The Republicans en masse abstained from voting for the clause prescribing toleration; after an explanation from their great orator, Castelar. He said, in the name of the Republicans, they would vote against the State Church, and though they were of one mind, and that strongly in the affirmative, on the freedom of worship clause, yet they would abstain from voting on it owing to its placing the privilege of that freedom to foreigners first and to Spaniards afterward. The scene, says the correspondent, was very interesting:

"Though religious liberty has not been accorded with that spontaneity one would like to see, the great fact remains that it is accorded. Protestantism in future will neither be a forbidden thing nor a thing to be exercised by sufferance. Senor Castelar, in the course of Wednesday's debate, again distinguished himself by a powerful and brilliant speech, in which he opposed Catholic unity. He made, at the same time, his own profession of faith. He said he was no Protestant, and never could be. It was too cold a religion for him. But it was evident he was no Catholic either. He said he belonged to the world of philosophy and reason, not of theology and faith. If, however, he had to change his views or his practices, it would be to the church of his infancy, to prostrate himself before the Holy Virgin, who soothed his first passions, and to seek an asylum under the arms of the cross, which extended themselves over the spot he held most dear in all the earth—the tomb of his mother. If he had any predilection at all, it was in favor of Catholicism. He, however, went on to deal the Catholic Church so many hard blows that it does not seem very likely she will ever see his brilliant genius return to her bosom."

In concluding, Senor Castelar said that, by the nature of some of the questions discussed in the Cortes, the Chamber seemed to be converted into a temple, and the Deputies into worshipers; and he called on Canon Manterola and the other clerical Deputies to pray to God in these words:

"O Lord, bless those legislators who seek to establish religious liberty, which is part of thy love. Bless those legislators who seek to reconcile all classes and all people. Bless those legislators who have not before them, as there is not before thy power, either Jews or Gentiles, but men. Bless those legislators who seek to realize the grand ideas which emanate from thee, and to establish on the face of the earth those two essential principles of thy being, incommunicable and perfect—thy love and thy justice."

The Roman Catholic clergy, the writer goes on to say, are greatly incensed at the legalization of freedom of worship. Prayers have been offered up in the churches to avert the "wrath of God" from the people, and sermons have been preached against the liberty now established. At several of these religious functions the clergy have made their flock swear to die in defense of Roman Catholic supremacy.

In the closing sitting of the debate another great oratorical repntation was made. Senor Echegaray is a younger man than Senor Castelar, but he has exhibited equal enthusiasm and almost equal eloquence on the same side. During the course of the discussion some opportune revelations were made in Madrid itself, which Echegaray turned to very excellent account. In the course of some excavations which were being made in a street which ran across the old Quemadura, the Smithfield of Madrid, where the autos da fe took place in the times of the Inquisition, some relics of ancient intolerance turned up. There were the ashes of a fire, and in them human relics, burnt hair, calcined bones, charred rags. Senor Echegaray made most effective use of this discovery in his speech. He said to the Cortes:

"Go to the Calle Anche de Sao Bernardo, turn to the right, and there, near the statue of Daoiz and Velarde, you will see the Quemadura of the Cross. I could have wished that these discussions should have taken place over that horrible spot, so that those who defend religious unity might see it. The Quemadura of the Cross is a grand geological cutting. Nature is a grand book, and it opens its pages to us in the geological strata. The Quemadura is a grand book, and it opens its pages to us in the strata of calcined human bones, earth, coal, then earth, bones, coal again, and so on. Not many days since I saw a boy turning over that rubbish with a stick, and he drew from it three grand discourses in defense of religious liberty, three objects of great eloquence—they were a piece of oxydized iron, a human rib almost all calcined, and a plait of hair, burnt at one of its extremities."

According to the Times' correspondent, Senor Olozaga, "one of the most conservative and retrogradist members of the commission," expressed so little confidence in the efficiency of Spanish constitutions that in respect of religious liberty he wished to strengthen the disposition enacted in favor of foreign residents, by placing it under the safeguard of special international treaties of reciprocity:

"It was important, he said, to guard against the chance of Spain hereafter disgracing herself by a bigotry which denied an alien the right of worshiping God in his own fashion, and even grudged him six feet of ground for a burial. As to the Spaniards themselves, Senor Olozaga did not think there would ever be any dissenters among them. Protestantism, he said, is a religion fit for highly civilized, free, and prosperous people. For his own countrymen the idea of God the Father was almost incomprehensible; that of God the Son was also vague and misty. The real object of the Spaniard's worship, and even idolatry, was the Virgin Mary, and she, not as an abstract being, but as typified in the various images which were looked upon as endowed with miraculous powers in different localities."

It was while leveling the ground for the new square of the Dos le Mayo that laborers hit upon the vestiges of the old Quemadero de la Cruz, the place where the bodies of heretics and other public enemies by hundreds were burnt in olden times by the tribunals of the Inquisition:

"Layers of black dust with remnants of bones and other relics turned up at every stroke of his spade, and the whole scroll of that darkest record in human history stood unfolded and broadly revealed before the astonished gaze of the present generation. People repaired to the spot as in a pilgrimage, and the grim Quemadero, with its ghastly 'diggings,' became the theme of the world's talk. Senor Echegaray, a young man of genius, whose voice was heard for the first time in the Chamber on Tuesday last, took hold of the fearful topic, and dwelt upon it with a vividness and minuteness which brought the very crackling of the grilled bones and the stench of the singed hair to the ears and nose of his startled audience. The lucky discovery of that heretical dust has struck a heavier and more decisive blow upon intolerance in Spain than could come from any argument founded on mere reason."

MISCELLANEOUS.

JACKSON, MISS., June 16.—The military commission in the case of Yerger is progressing slowly in the examination of witnesses; about thirty are yet to be examined. Nothing new elicited.

SOUTHERN SETTLERS IN BRAZIL.

RIO JANEIRO, April 24.—We hear that two hundred Southerners are on their way from New Orleans under the Nathan contract for settlement in the province of Rio Janeiro. I trust they will be more fortunate than the majority of the previous comers have been. Those that settled in the coffee and cotton region of San Paulo appear to be the most hopeful, if published letters are to be relied on. Another Southern planter on a large scale, Dr. Dansereau, has just added himself to those who have given up sugar planting in this province. The fact appears to be that the calculations they founded on the advantages of the climate caused them to buy large plantations on time, and that their calculations on the time and cost required to reorganize them into plantations on the American system were far below the reality, so that they became unable to meet their engagements. In fact Brazilian farms and Brazilian slaves are not to be calculated by the measures applicable in the United States, and this fact nothing but personal experience will, it appears, convince a new-comer of.

LOST IN A CAVE IN MISSOURI.

We find the following in the Hannibal (Missouri) Courier:

A few days ago a man named William Ascratt went on a visit to a cave lately discovered in the Granby lead mines. He commenced his explorations and soon discovered a small aperture which led from the main chasm. He crawled into it, and found that it opened into wider apartments. He continued following up the chasm he does not know how long, it breaking into different directions. He finally became fatigued, and his candle being burnt out, he started to return.

The labyrinths were many and so mixed that he became confused, and after wandering hither and thither for a long time, gave up all hopes of finding his way out. He sat down to await his fate. The remnant of candle soon burnt away, and he was left in darkness more profound and oppressive. Unable to stand the horror of his own thoughts as to his prospective fate, he resolved to make another attempt to escape. He commenced crawling along the chasm or fissure, and after working for hours, as it appeared to him, suddenly discerned a light which he soon discovered came from an old deserted shaft. Coming to that, where he could see daylight, he sat down. He soon heard persons talking above and yelled with all his power, but the wind was so high they did not hear him. Daylight soon disappeared and the stars came out. Ascratt continued to sit there on the edge of the chasm, far down in that old deserted shaft, looking up yearningly to what he considered the last of earth. In the meantime the news of his being lost became known and parties came down to search for him.

All chasms leading from the cave were thoroughly explored. About ten o'clock at night some of them got on his track and followed it up until he was discovered. He had already become partially crazed from confinement, and it was some time before he recovered his right mind.

The place where he was discovered was over three hundred yards from where he entered. The noise that he heard in the old shaft came from some sawyers at work above.

ADVANTAGES OF YEARS.—You are getting into years. Yes, but the years are getting into you—the ripe, rich years, the genial, mellow years, the lusty, luscious years. One by one the cruditues of your youth are falling off from you—the vanity, the egotism, the insultation, the bewilderment, the uncertainty. Nearer and nearer you are approaching yourself. You are consolidating your forces. You are becoming master of your situation. On the ruins of shattered plans you find your vantage ground. Your broken hopes, your thwarted purposes, your defeated aspirations, become a staff of strength by which you mount to sublimer heights. With self-possession and self-command of all things, the title deed of creation, forfeited, is reclaimed. The king has come to his own again.

THE Boston Zion's Herald says: "The Methodists of New York have determined to raise half a million dollars for purchasing sites and erecting chapels. One-fifth of it, one hundred thousand dollars, was at once subscribed. The balance will be raised. Within three years they have started fourteen mission schools, with about four thousand pupils, gathered one thousand two hundred converts into churches, erected four chapels, and raised $175,000.

QUARTETTE CHOIRS.

The revolt of Christian good taste against quartetto choirs of opera singers who have no more reverence for church service than operatic performances, if as much, has grown to such a stature that belligerent rights cannot long be withheld. The quartettes are doomed, unless better people take hold of them than such as the Musical Independent pictures below. It says:

It is astonishing how soon the devil gets into the best set of folks, when they are organized into a choir. Still there is some excuse for quartette singers, for they do not pretend to come to church to worship, but to be worshiped.

In a church in a remote city the leader of the choir reads the Sunday Times or Tribune during the sermon time. With an amount of cheek truly sublime he sits upon his chair, in plain view of the expounding preacher, his feet comfortably perched upon the gallery rail, and in this edifying way he unites "business and religion."

In another church it was long the custom for the bass and tenor to go behind the organ to "kiss the book," as Trinculo has it, until the sermon's end would often find them "indisposed," and unable to sing. The chosen piece would then be changed for a duet for soprano and alto.

In another church the organist was often knocked out of his closing voluntary by the vigorous discussion of bonnets carried on at his elbow.

In another case the organist sometimes writes letters to friends, and sometimes sits on the floor and sleeps the sleep of the innocent, her head comfortably pillowed on the leader's shoulder. At other times these two "babes in the wood" sit holding each other's hands, and so in mute sympathy beguile the tedious hours.

In another the congregation are wont to come in and reverently bow their heads in devotion, as a preparation to the solemn service about to begin. The choir come in smiling, sit gaily talking during the opening voluntary of the organ, and have, in general, an air quite removed from painful devotion.

My brethren, ought these things so to be?

On the same topic the editor of the National Baptist says:

There is solid comfort in one aspect of the "music question" in some of our prominent city churches. The "performances," vocal and instrumental, are rapidly becoming so abominable that sober Christian people will not much longer endure them. This growing state of mind is highly satisfactory, and we hope nothing will occur to hinder its increase until it shall fully ripen and bear abundant fruit.

We never heard any gratings of discord or bungling awkwardness in a backwoods congregation, that were not infinitely preferable to some of the fantastic and vulgar mockeries of praise that are inflicted upon long-suffering worshipers all around us. A few years ago we happened to be preaching, one Sunday evening, to a city congregation. Toward the end of the services we were requested to omit the closing hymn—the reason being, as we afterward learned, that the organist was too drunk to remain, and had been taken off by his friends; and the choir, thus abandoned, fearing to be called upon, had also left the house. Such things seemed to be comparatively rare then; they are more frequent now, if we may fairly judge from statements in our exchanges.

Why any church should be unable to praise God for itself is to us a marvel. When it becomes a necessity for a church to transfer this large part of its service to ungodly hirelings, it is high time to discontinue it, duly acknowledging the calamity before the Lord, and solemnly entering it upon the official records. It is also a marvel that those who lead or join in the praise of the church should be paid for it, while those who lead or teach in the Sunday school find their labor its own blessed compensation. We speak plainly because the indecency has gone so far that soft words are inappropriate. Not to speak plainly would be to wink at an iniquity.

CONVERSION OF A WHOLE ROMAN CATHOLIC COMMUNE TO PROTESTANTISM.—A Roman Catholic commune in Dauphiny have almost to a man embraced the reformed faith, and signed a document of adherence to the reformed doctrine, order, and worship, after which they received (October 27, 1868) the sacrament of the Supper after the manner of Protestants. The movement began on their own part in 1860, when they had quarreled with the diocesan authorities, but Pastor Fermand, president of the Grenoble Consistory, for five years discouraged their advances, and exhorted them to seek redress from the bishop, paying no attention to their urgent request that he would visit them or send an evangelical preacher. In the beginning of 1868 he sent a suffragan pastor, whose labors have resulted as above. The mayor and nine of the ten councillors acquiesce in the change.

UNITED BRETHREN IN CHRIST.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The quadrennial General Conference of the United Brethren in Christ met at Lebanon, Pennsylvania, on May 20th. The bishops' address to the Conference showed that the church, during the last four years, had made considerable progress. The number of members has been increased by about twenty-five thousand; the number of churches by one hundred and fifty-two; the number of Sunday school scholars by about forty thousand.

The bishops of this church are elected for the term of four years; and the General Conference resolved to elect four bishops for the next four years. The salary of the bishops will be one thousand dollars and traveling expenses, and house rent in case there is no parsonage. A proposition from the Committee on Discipline to abolish the present plan of dividing the church into episcopal districts, and give to the bishops the care of the whole church jointly, requiring them to arrange the plans of visitation, and to visit several Conferences alternately, was rejected by a close vote.

A long and animated discussion took place on the prohibition of secret societies. The majority of the committee denied the rule of the church which excludes members of secret societies to be maintained; the minority proposed to substitute for it a warning against secret societies. Finally the majority report was adopted by a vote of 71 to 26. The church law, as it now stands, is as follows:

"We believe that secret societies are evil in their nature and tendency (a secret society is one whose initiatory ceremony is a secret,) and any member or preacher of our church who shall be found connected in any way with such a society shall be admonished to sever said connection. If the offender be a lay member he shall be so admonished by the preacher in charge; if a preacher or exhorter, by the presiding elder; if a presiding elder, by the bishops; if a bishop, by the presiding elder of the district in which such bishop may reside.

"If such offending person fails to comply with this admonition within six months after it is given, he shall be reported to the class, quarterly, or annual conference, as the case may be, and his name erased from the record and he be no longer considered a member of our church: Provided, That should the accused deny said connection, the case shall be tried according to sections 19 and 20 of Discipline."

A LIE STICKS.—A little newsboy, to sell his paper, told a lie. The matter came up in Sabbath school. "Would you tell a lie for three cents?" asked a teacher of one of her boys. "No, ma'am," answered Dick very decidedly. "For ten cents?" "No, ma'am." "For a dollar?" "No, ma'am." "For a thousand dollars?" Dick was staggered. A thousand dollars looked big. Oh, would it not buy lots of things? While he was thinking, another boy roared out, "No ma'am," behind him. "Why not?" asked the teacher. "Because when the thousand dollars is all gone, and all the things they've got with them are gone too, the lie is there all the same," answered the boy. It is so. A lie sticks. Everything else may be gone, but that is left, and you will have to carry it round with you, whether you will or not; a hard, heavy load it is.

MISSIONARY INTELLIGENCE.—A clergyman of the Church of England, in the province of Tinnevelly, India, which has about fifty thousand Christians, gives an interesting account of a recent ordination by the bishop of Madras. There were assembled some sixty clergymen, all, with the exception of the bishop's chaplain, engaged in mission work. Of these, fourteen were Europeans and the remainder natives, including twenty-two candidates for the deaconate, and twelve for priests' orders. The examination was mainly conducted by two native clergymen.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1869.

A MAY MELODY.

BY MRS. J. SOMERVILLE DUNDAS.

At the call of the glad May morn
The wild bird, answering, singeth;
At the touch of the gentle rain
Upward the green blade springeth.

From the pine woods over the hill
The odorous west wind bloweth;
The brook down the echoing glen
With a louder murmuring floweth.

Out in the bare brown woods,
Where latest the frost sprite lingers,
The leaf-buds awake from their sleep
At the bidding of fairy fingers.

At the voice of the balmy spring,
'Neath the sun-king's melting glances,
The fauns and the dryads old
Awake from their ice-bound trances.

All the night of the winter long,
Hid in the earth's brown bosom,
The flower roots creep to the light,
And burst into leaflet and blossom.

Soft are the mists of the morn,
Veiling the face of the mountain,
Hiding the clefts of the rocks
Where the silver springs have their fountain.

Upborne by the winds o'er the wave
Again are the white sails flying;
Like a fleet on an azure sea,
Above are the white clouds lying.

Thus Spring, with her dulcet voice,
Comes piping the old, sweet story
That she sang in the days of old
To the earth in its youthful glory.

Awake, silent heart, and rejoice,
Rejoice with the earth in singing
To the fountain of life and light,
As flowers to the sun, upspringing.

For the love that is better than life,
For the love that flows on like a river,
For His love who hath loved us alway,
We would bless Him and praise Him for ever.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

MR. EDITOR: Every organization is directed by some congenital law. The Sabbath school is not an exception to this rule.—When we ask, therefore, which way does the current of Sabbath school life set, the answer is, to make of the Sabbath school a church for the children. This may not have been the motive of those who have labored most to build up the institution, but the necessities of the Sunday school have proved stronger than the motives of those who founded or who now conduct it. The tree is known by its fruit, and there are certain well defined facts which go to show the real place of the Sabbath school in the present plan of Christian culture.

1. The day selected for the exercises. The effect is to give the school the benefit of the sanctity of the day, and thereby to raise it in the general esteem far above the secular school.

2. The subjects adopted both for instruction and exercise.—These are of the class used in the pulpit. The slight difference in the method and style of enforcing Gospel truths, and illustrating Christian principles and duty, are not sufficient to create any well taken exceptions to that kind of nurture for children.

3. The absence of children from the congregation of worshipers on the Sabbath. The general acquiescence in such an arrangement shows that the conscience of the church is satisfied with the Sabbath school exercises as proper worship for children. There is no necessity for requiring children to attend church service after attending Sabbath school worship. Children are not worse sinners than the parents. It is not right to tax the patience and disposition of children with a longer attendance upon Sabbath duties than is required of adults. Children are not better Christians than their parents.

4. No one would so abuse his own mind as to deny the evidence of genuine pastoral influence and authority exercised over Sunday school children by a popular superintendent. The pastor of the church enters the superintendent's school under his patronage, and gains access to the affections of the children in proportion as their confidence is encouraged by the superintendent; but too much freedom in the pastor breeds distrust in the other.

The Sunday school for children is a substitute for the church, and the superintendent a substitute for the pastor.

More than this it is not desirable to make of the Sabbath school; less, it is not possible to make and have an efficiently conducted school.

If, therefore, "W. B. L.," in a late issue of the ADVOCATE, or any other preacher, desires to "feed the lambs over which the Holy Ghost has made him an overseer," let him become the superintendent of the Sunday school of his church. By that means he may manage to carry a few more than do go of the Sabbath school worshipers to the service of the church. Otherwise, when past age to attend school, many of them will cease to worship for want of a congonial place, or go where the forms that impressed them in their Sunday school training are perfected in a more highly symbolic worship of the church.

W. E. M. L.

A North Alabama Conference.

CHEROKEE, FRANKLIN COUNTY, ALA., June 4, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: An article in the Nashville Christian Advocate of May 29, and a private letter from a member of the Montgomery Conference, have called my attention to the subject of forming a new Conference out of the counties of north Alabama belonging to the Tennessee, Mobile, and Montgomery Conferences.

At the close of the last session of the Tennessee Conference a committee was requested to report an equitable line of division of the Tennessee Conference. A prominent member of the committee visited the Memphis Conference, and a similar committee was appointed, which met the committee of the Tennessee Conference in Athens, Alabama, April 30. A suggestion had been made to form a new Conference out of the portion of the Tennessee Conference situated in Alabama, and that part of Mississippi belonging to the Memphis Conference. But there was opposition to the measure from the preachers of north Alabama and north Mississippi. I think they acted wisely and well. There are two tiers of counties of Alabama connected with the Tennessee Conference, forming a territory one hundred and fifty miles from east to west, and fifty from north to south. This strip, added to the part of Mississippi belonging to the Memphis Conference, would make a territory two hundred and seventy-five miles long, and only fifty broad for more than half the length of the Conference, and about one hundred broad across the Mississippi portion.—We do not admire a Conference in the shape of a short lot with a stub handle.

But a division of the Tennessee Conference may be effected. If the preachers and people of the upper portions of the Mobile and Montgomery Conferences desire it, there may be a very compact Conference formed in north Alabama, extending to the northern or southern lines of Talladega and Tuscaloosa counties. A railroad may soon extend from Decatur to the Alabama and Tennessee River railroad. Then there will be communication by rail, near the centre, through the entire proposed Conference. But we learn from the report of the committee of the Tennessee Conference "that the idea of making Conference boundaries conform to State lines seems to prevail generally." Now, in the event of northern Mississippi being detached from the Memphis Conference, the tier of counties in Mississippi belonging to the Mobile Conference may desire connection with north Mississippi to form a new Conference in Mississippi.

Is there territory enough in Alabama to form three good Conferences? Would it not be better to extend the line, near the centre of the State, and have two Conferences, only in Alabama, about one hundred and fifty miles square? I believe the State is about three hundred miles long and one hundred and fifty broad. Tuscaloosa and Talladega, I think, should belong to the North Alabama Conference.

S. M. CHERRY,
Tennessee Conference.

The Pulpit as Viewed from a Pew.

NUMBER FOUR.

AUTAUGAVILLE, ALA., April 30, 1869.

If we are not at fault in referring to the character of our preaching as a cause of the want of denominational progress, you will agree with us that reform should be instituted. But is the task one of easy performance? The practice of writing sermons, and then reading or memorizing them, has rapidly increased of late years, and its foundation is too deeply embedded, we fear, in our church policy to expect or hope for an early change.

Under the idea that we must elevate the standard of ministerial qualification, our system of educating young men for the ministry is in conflict with the spirit of aggressive action. At our colleges and high schools they are taught, or at least learn, to rely too much upon mental culture, too much upon self, and are too little impressed with the duties and obligations incident to their high, their holy calling.—Their course of study assimilates to that of those whose purpose is to engage in law, physic, or the field of letters. Conformity to a prescribed rule is required. Precision in utterance, gesture, motion, all are held as necessary to pulpit success; and the consequence is that ritualistic religion has made rapid inroads upon the old-fashioned, direct method of preaching. Even while they are under Conference probation, and in direct contact with their superiors, is it not to be feared that too much stress is laid upon a conformity to the rules of Whateley and Quackenboss, to the neglect of those spiritual attainments that give success to preaching. In support of our views upon this point, we invoke the testimony of one whose opinions, in Methodist circles, are entitled to the greatest consideration.

"So many instances have come under the notice of our people," says Dr. Hamilton, "in which men who have enjoyed advantages superior to many of their brethren, have fallen into the folly of leaning to their own understanding, and regarding the Gospel as half obsolete and a thing capable of improvement, and then, instead of the soul-stirring, convincing outpourings of the Holy Spirit, have given their hearers their dilutions of morals and philosophy—that this accounts for, if it does not justify, the distrust with which many of them look upon all such, and the indifference with which they have regarded ministerial education. On this subject we have not been true to ourselves; for while we have professed to hold spiritual endowments as all-important, candidates for the sacred office are examined but once, and that briefly, upon this point, while the examinations upon mental qualifications extend through four years, and are far more protracted upon each occasion than that upon spiritual attainments." As one of the results of a ministry thus trained, he regards the want of a proper appreciation of the pastoral office and work. The tendency is to make mere preachers, any number of whom is not worth one good pastor, and the best one of them will destroy the best church in the country. "It is an unfortunate thing," he says, "for a minister and his charge for him to come to the conclusion that his first and principal work is preparation for the pulpit. That day his charge begins to suffer, for then he begins to neglect his duty. He sinks the pastor in the preacher, and soon the preacher in the man."

Far be it from our purpose to under-estimate the importance of mental culture; but we can but regard the power with which knowledge invests its recipient as one so easily made to subserve bad ends, that in its acquisition we should constantly aim to make it tributary to the accomplishment of good.—Any knowledge acquired without a specific purpose to achieve is of uncertain value. Its aim should always be utility. The duties and obligations of life can best be discharged when we are thoroughly taught their nature and extent; and applying this view to our denominational education, mental cultivation should subordinate itself to our moral, our religious natures. The mind should be trained with reference to a better appreciation and practice of religious impressions.—Without we keep in view the aim and make all else secondary to it, the pulpit—the pastoral office—will soon, in its means and requirements, accommodate itself to the demands of the world. The outcroppings of this tendency are already too visible, and its increase may be apprehended without we look well to our system of denominational education.

A CHURCH STEWARD.

DE SOTO CORRESPONDENCE.

MANSFIELD, LA., May 29, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: On Saturday, May 29, 1869, the corner stone of our new church in Mansfield was laid with imposing Masonic ceremonies. The Masons formed a procession at the Lodge at ten A. M., and marched in order to the place of the building, where there had assembled a large audience to witness the scene. The usual ceremonies were efficiently performed by the respective officers of the Lodge. A neat corner stone had been provided by some of the officers of the Lodge, in which were deposited, first, a new Bible, a copy of the Discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, a copy of the minutes of the last Louisiana Annual Conference, a list of the names of the trustees of the church in Mansfield, and a copy of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of the 15th May, 1869. Then there were sundry other deposits made, such as Confederate money, the photographs of the Confederate generals, silver coins, and then a very handsome likeness of Rev. H. C. Thweatt, D. D. These were enclosed with a stone covering and cement, and the corn, oil, and wine poured upon it with the usual ceremony of signification. The audience dispersed and the fraternity returned to the Lodge.

On the third Sabbath of February last we proposed to the members of the church to have a meeting on the ensuing Friday evening, at the time of the regular weekly prayer meeting, for the purpose of devising ways and means of building a new church. One said, "Better have a meeting to-night." Another said, "Not on the Sabbath night." Here began the difference of opinion, so prolific with regard to such an enterprise. But we had the meeting that night, Sunday as it was, and after an interchange of a variety of plans and views on the subject, we concluded to build a frame house forthwith. A committee was appointed, consisting of three persons, including the pastor, to solicit subscriptions. First they ascertained that it would require $3,400 to build the church; and after thoroughly sifting and investigating the subject, and adopting the plan of operation, they commenced the task, and I know you think it a Herculean one; but soon, and with less trouble than we anticipated, we raised three-fourths of the amount necessary, and proceeded at once to let out the contract to efficient mechanics. One-third of the amount was to be paid when the foundation was laid. Now, sir, to-day the foundation is laid, and the amount for the first payment collected and paid over. The new church will be sixty-four feet long by thirty-six wide, to be finished in workmanlike manner, and according to the latest improved style and the most exquisite taste. It won't be pitched together neither.

Tell Dr. Walker the people are safe out of that old church which he so emphatically compared to a sardine box jammed and crammed with sardines.

We are a few hundred dollars behind yet, but believe the good people about here will help us out, seeing we are so willing to help ourselves.

J. P.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

REMINISCENCE OF REV. BEVERLY TABOR.

"While the multitudes go by
You can sing in happy measures
As they slowly pass along;
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song."

I would fain here record some things about a dear old friend of my parents and myself—a quiet, unobtrusive Christian gentleman, one who stood firmly in his appointed lot, doing the duties of his day well, keeping his armor bright with the oil of divine grace. The Lord has various forces by which to carry on the wonderful works of nature and grace. There are winds and storms, earthquakes and volcanoes obeying His word; then there are the gentle dews, the subtile frosts, and the mild south winds. All are efficient agents in their appointed work. In the church there are various workmen, but one work and the same Master—"A diversity of gifts, but the same Lord, who is rich toward all."

BEVERLY TABOR was no intellectual giant, but a sensible, judicious Christian man. The law of kindness was on his tongue. "Peace" was the word I thought of when in the company of this good old man. He was a believer in perfect love, and professed to enjoy it for many years before his death. My pen is powerless to express the gentle "loving kindness" of his manners. I remember him among the earliest friends of my parents. "The man who sung so well, who taught my father to sing anthems." I thought papa knew almost everything, and one who could teach him stood high in my opinion. Father Tabor had a singing society, composed of about forty of our best citizens, near old Midway, about 1820.

Beverly Tabor was born September 17, 1777, in Lincoln county, Georgia. In 1795 he married Miss Rachel Kelly. About 1808 he came to Mississippi or Louisiana. About the year 1812 he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and soon found peace in believing. His house was one of the homes for the itinerant Methodist preachers, and fondly did he love his brethren. Dearly did he love the church of his choice, giving his warm affection and unqualified admiration to any minister who was an honor to the church by reason of extraordinary gifts. Envy or detraction did not seem to find any place in his nature. Beverly Tabor never merited a reproof for thinking of himself "more highly than he ought to think." His feelings were deep, and his nature rather reserved than demonstrative. But you could see his soul leap to his eyes when he spoke of one whom he admired or loved. The words were few, but they were "feeling full." He loved and admired my father and Bishop McKendree, perhaps, more than he did any other creatures of God.

Mr. Tabor was licensed to preach, and traveled four years under a presiding elder—I suppose from 1818 to 1823. His throat became affected, and he was obliged to cease traveling. He told a friend that his first sermon was preached about eight miles from Jackson, Louisiana; that he "never knew what he said, but at the close of the services he opened the doors of the church and twelve persons joined;" that in the course of his life he took in one thousand eight hundred persons to the church. May the number of the faithful be found to be not a few when the old man carries in his sheaves.

Mr. Tabor was always welcome in his rounds, because he was good, and prudent, and gentlemanly, and he was a pretty good physician. Why he did not get a diploma to practice I do not know. But I remember he was considered a very prudent, skillful nurse, and a good physician. Methodist preachers took "physic" into their course of study. They were obliged, by the nature of things, to do so. In their extended rounds they met so many suffering and ignorant persons, they were called on for advice and help. Medicine was not at all conservative forty-five years ago. A doctor rarely gave less than ten grains or a teaspoonful of any medicine.—Methodist preachers did study the healing art for the body as well as the soul.

What a long time it seems to live—ninety-one years and nearly eight months! But death came at last to the good old Christian. He was living with two of his grand-children, who, I hear, nursed him very kindly. In St. Helena, September 14, 1869, Beverly Tabor's discharge came. He was sure that he heard some one singing his favorite hymn:

"Oh, thou God of my salvation,
My Redeemer from all sin," and asked his grand-daughter if it was she who sang it. He sung it himself on his death bed. When persons came to see him, toward the last, he would say: "I don't know you, but we will know each other in heaven."

The last words he was heard to utter were, "Lord, I am thine, entirely thine;" and so calmly entered into rest.

MARY S. WALL.

MRS. MATTIE DEVAN, wife of John Devan, deceased, and daughter of Mr. C. Moore, of Marengo county, Alabama, was born March 3, 1841, and died in Wilcox county, Alabama, January 19, 1869.

While at school in Summerfield, during the year 1859, she embraced religion and joined the Methodist Church, in which she lived a consistent member until called, just fourteen months after the death of her husband, to join him, as we trust, in the general assembly and church of God above.

By her maiden name, Miss Mattie Moore, she was known and will be long remembered by many of the members of the Alabama Conference, especially by those who were present during the commencement exercises of Centenary College in 1858 and 1859, where she exhibited the natural and acquired endowments that afterward made her a woman of much more than ordinary intelligence and force of character.

She was educated. She not only went through the text books, but studied them, as was evinced by her successful career as a teacher for several years before her marriage, as well as in the social circle, for which she was eminently qualified by her genial nature and fine conversational powers.

She was eminently practical, having but little use for superficial adornments, either for mind or body. Taking a sober, common-sense view of life as it is, she was well fitted for almost any station to which a woman is called.

Her devotion to her husband during his life, and especially during his last illness, was truly remarkable; and it was the happiness of the writer to witness in her case, during the funeral solemnities of her dear husband, the most complete triumph of the grace of God in affliction he ever beheld. The same grace made her triumphant over the last enemy. For days and weeks before the close of life she waited calmly and patiently for the final summons, arranging her temporal affairs and giving directions concerning her burial with all the composure of one about to take a journey.

After making various gifts to different members of the family, she bequeathed her dear little boy, Johnnie, to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Devan, and Earnest Moore, her brother. May God bless the gift and the receivers of the precious trust, so that when the final account is rendered both may appear worthy of the confidence reposed in them by one who now rests from her labors, and whose works follow her.

G. F. E.

LOCKJAW from a rusty nail in the foot was entirely cured in four cases reported by Dr. Hinkle, by applying to the whole spinal column cloths saturated with chloroform, just at the approach of the spasms, always inducing sleep, and finally perfect recovery.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19 1869.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

NEAR RINGGOLD, BIENVILLE PARISH, LA., May 31, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Last night we closed a two days' meeting, held at Liberty Chapel, a few miles south of the village of Ringgold, in which the Spirit of Grace manifested himself in great power. For a long time the people in this part of Sparta circuit have, through various causes, been deprived in a great measure of regular preaching and other means of grace, and consequently religion had, with many, sensibly declined.

Your unworthy servant—licensed to preach last fall—was sent here this year by our presiding elder to supply the several unsupplied appointments west of Black Lake.—Since my arrival we have been holding weekly prayer meetings at Liberty Chapel—near which I board and teach school—with a special view to revival.

At our appointed time, last Saturday, we met, Brother C—— and a local brother being with us. The Lord was with us from first to last. Without any special effort on our part the work of revival went on. The surrounding groves rung again with the shouts of new born souls, rejoicing with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

On Sunday morning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to many, to the joy and comfort of their souls. In the afternoon and at night baptism was administered to the children and adults.

The meeting was continued till a late hour last night, and as one after another received the Holy Ghost, and came forward to receive its symbol, the scene was strikingly calculated to bring to memory the nocturnal baptism of the jailor and his family.

The results of the meeting were such as we had not dared to pray for. There were fifteen accessions to the church by application, and ten bright conversions. Backsliders were reclaimed, delinquent professors brought back to their first love, and faithful Christians confirmed and strengthened.

Among the conversions were four dear little girls, who seemed to glide so easily over the low grounds of repentance that with them it seemed scarcely a step from nature to grace. O what a rebuke was it to our weak faith, as from their young hearts, almost bursting with joy, came forth loud praises to the God who had created them anew! To Him be all the glory, and honor, and praise forever! May the little flame kindled here leap from heart to heart, and from house to house, until the whole circuit—nay, the whole church—bursts forth into a blaze of holy fervor!

Yours in Christ,

J. G. MILLER.

BROTHER OFF-OX.

Brother Off-ox is a member of the church, and a man who has a great many good qualities. He is prompt and punctual at meetings, and liberal in support of the Gospel. He is a very useful man, too. If it were not for one habit—it has now become fixed and inveterate as a habit, I fear—he would be a very useful man, both in the church and in society. The truth is, he is on the opposite side from almost every body in almost everything.

"The masses are always wrong," says Brother Off-ox, "and majorities usually err. People who wish to be right, and to do right, must act for themselves, and not go with the multitude."

And this rule he carries to such an extent that if others take the affirmative, he is sure to take the negative, for no other reason. He seems to think he must. It is not because he is obstinate, or really contrary in spirit; though it must be confessed that this course, so long pursued, has affected the whole man, and, to appearance, he is much less genial and kind-hearted than formerly. Habits will change the entire nature of people sometimes.

So much has our brother become subject to the control of this habit that he does not seem aware of its influence over him. Nor does he stop to consider whether others may not be right, and he wrong; but almost instinctively, when an opinion is expressed of a course proposed, he turns the other way, like a ship obeying its helm, but always turning in the contrary direction.

If any one proposes a change in the services, or any new order of procedure, likely to be beneficial, at once Brother Off-ox says:

"I shall be opposed to that; it will have a very injurious effect, I am satisfied. I don't see, for my part, how any one can seriously think of such a thing."

And to make it all the worse, he will usually add:

"I am conscientious in this thing. It don't make any difference to me, but I do it for the good of the cause."

And yet, though he certainly means to be an honest man, it is hardly to be supposed he had really thought of the case, but took his ground merely from the force of an evil habit. The church generally yield to Brother Off-ox, not because they are convinced that he is right, nor out of any special personal respect for him, but to avoid contention. Men who suppose themselves conscientious do not readily yield their position, and are seldom convinced by reasoning.

Even the darker phases of life have their amusing side. This unhappy trait of the brother is so well understood that advantage is taken of it occasionally, and the brethren sometimes carry their points by means of this perversity. Not long since the deacons thought the church ought to make a collection for a certain special object, not provided for in the usual order of benevolent efforts. It was proposed to bring the matter up at the next church meeting.

"But," said one of them, "Brother Off-ox, you know, will oppose it, and there are always some that will fall in with the opposition. Such things make jars and strifes, even if they do not prevent the object."

"I'll arrange that," said Deacon Brown, a man of good sense, as well as of an abundance of humor. "I'll arrange that, and carry it through without opposition, if you will leave it all to me. Only, when we come into the meeting, you must follow me; do as I do."

The meeting came, and at the proper time Deacon Brown arose and said they had been requested to make a collection to aid a certain object, (mentioning it,) but for his part he thought they had about enough on hand already. They could not give to everything; they must attend to their own affairs. He thought the church would agree with him on that. Moreover, however good the proposed object was, there were causes that lay nearer to his heart.

He sat down and Deacon Jones rose and said he could adopt the language of Brother Brown; he looked upon the matter in the same light.

Brother Off-ox was on his feet in a moment. He didn't agree with the brethren. He thought it one of the best and noblest they had been called upon to aid. He did not believe in restricting their benevolence to a few objects. Let it be world wide. He thought the church imperatively called upon to aid this cause—especially just at this time. He was conscientious in it. He was willing to give for it. And before sitting down he moved that a collection be made for this object one week from the next Sabbath, and the pastor be requested to call especial attention to it in a notice next Sabbath, so as to secure as large a collection as possible.

Immediately Deacon Brown seconded the motion, and said he believed Brother Off-ox, on the whole, was right, and he should vote for a collection.

Deacon Jones said he should go with them most heartily. And the vote had no opposition.

Brother Off-ox seemed nonplussed by the turn things had taken, held down his head, and appeared to be considering how he could flank the movement. But the motion was put before he had time to form an opposition.

I am sorry to say this habit carries its sad influence into the family circle, and is as unlovely there as it is in the church. If Mr. Off-ox's wife or children propose or desire anything, he is sure to oppose, if not the thing itself, the time and manner of doing it. Many a sad hour, too, his good and amiable wife has in secret on account of his unreasonable and obstinate opposition to his plans—often in things the most trivial, and of no possible consequence to him. It has been a root of bitterness to his family, springing up into alienations and wretchedness. And yet he does not seem aware of it. He is made unhappy by it as well as others. The children have come to take the view of the matter which the deacons did, and when they wish to gain a point, propose something in the opposite direction. If skillfully managed, this usually succeeds.

Whether Brother Off-ox will be reformed in this world is very doubtful. The habit is too inveterate, and he is too old to allow of such a hope. How unlovely it makes his piety appear! How it reproaches his religion in the estimation of the world! How unhappy it makes his family! How wretched it makes himself! How it makes the church contentious! How it grieves the Spirit from his own heart, and hinders his growth in grace! How it makes usefulness almost impossible to him! Poor Brother Off-ox!—Exchange.

HORRORS OF THE INQUISITION.

THRILLING DISCOVERY AT MADRID.

The 2d of May was celebrated in Madrid as the anniversary of the expedition of the French invaders of Spain. A new square, called the Plaza of the 2d of May, was formed by tearing down many buildings. The Madrid correspondent of the New York Tribune writes concerning it under date of May 8:

It has also a history, which adds to the interest one feels in visiting spots hallowed by patriotic deeds. Immediately adjacent is an area of high ground, measuring some three hundred meters in length by nearly the same in width. In order to connect two nearly projected streets, a cutting was made through one end of this raised ground, which in fact presented the appearance of a field varying in level. It bore—still bears—the lugubrious name of Tit Quemader, which cannot be translated save by a paraphrase. It signifies "a place where convicts are burned." When the workmen had laid bare the cutting, perpendicularly, a peculiar stratification presented itself. Throughout its entire extent three distinct layers were observed of what appeared to be black, grassy earth, at irregular distances apart. Upon closer examination, charred substances were discovered, which turned out to be calcined human bones. Further search brought to light lumps of adipose substance in various stages of conversion, according to the strata in which they were found. The searchers also lighted upon iron rings, burned and oxydized; an iron gag; bands of iron much corroded, but bearing marks of fire; quantities of charcoal; portions of craniums, and other osseous remains; a tuft of hair two feet long, frizzled, as by flame, at the end nearest the head, and evidently having belonged to a female. A full cart load of these relics was taken from one spot. They told of the awful scenes of which this field of blood retains the record. Here were burned the victims of the Holy Inquisition. After the ghastly horror had been perpetrated the spot was covered over with earth; and as these horrible sacrifices to superstition and priestcraft were celebrated with some kind of regard to order, in course of time a first layer of dead men's remains was formed, then a second, then a third. It is demonstrated beyond dispute that the field of the Quemadero has been artificially elevated to its present level, because the soil is composed of rubbish mixed with earth; and old wells have been discovered, the walls of which have been built up as the surrounding ground was raised. From these wells, it is supposed, water was drawn to give to the victims of the stake. The last auto da fe on this lugubrious spot took place in 1669, on the 10th of May, when eighty-three human beings suffered this awful death. The discovery has created a great sensation, and it has been made at a moment when the clerical party are struggling to enforce the unity of the Catholic Church, and when it is strenuously denying the horrors of its past history, and asserting that Rome has always been the most tolerant of all other creeds. On this two hundredth anniversary of the last human sacrifice in Spain, a procession is to start from the Plaza Mayor, where similar public burnings used to take place, to the Quemadero, and here a Protestant religious service will be held, if not prevented. This is just possible, and it may be prudent on the part of the Protestants not to make the projected demonstration, in order to deprive the priest party of an opportunity of creating a disturbance. These people desire nothing so much as to commence a war of religion, for it would be associated with Carlism. They are mortified to find their influence so rapidly passing away. Education being now free, they are excluded from the schools except upon certain conditions. Last Wednesday the religious liberty question was decided by a large vote in favor of the twentieth and twenty-first clauses of the new constitution, as originally presented.

The discovery above described contributed greatly to the victory of the friends of religious liberty in the Cortes. Senor Echegary, in a speech not less than that of Castelar, already printed in our columns, said:

"In those alternate layers of the Quemadero de la Cruz you will see a stratum of coal impregnated with human fat, and after that the remains of calcined bones, and after that a layer of sand which has been thrown there to cover up these remains; and then another layer of coal, and another of bones, and then another of sand, and so continues the horrible mass! Not many days ago, and I vouch for the fact, a boy with a stick happened to be poking into this mass, and drew forth from these layers three objects full of eloquence—three grand discourses in favor of religious liberty! These were a piece of oxydized iron, a human rib almost calcined, and a braid of hair burned at one extremity! [Sensation.] These constitute three very eloquent arguments! I wish the Deputies who defend religious unity would submit them to a severe interrogation. I would like them to ask that hair braid how the cold sweat oozed from its roots, and how it stood erect on the head of the victim as the flames crept up to it. I would like them to ask that poor rib how the heart of the unhappy Jew palpitated against it. I would like them to ask that piece of iron, which perhaps was a gag, how many dolorous ejaculations, how many cries of anguish it stifled, and how it became oxydized by receiving and retaining the blood-impregnated breath of the victim, so that even the hard iron had more bowels of compassion and was more human and tender-hearted than the infamous executioner of that infamous theocracy."

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.

* * * Popery is virtually effete—it is mediæval, and cannot, without sacrificing its fundamental ecclesiastical, if not its fundamental theological principles, coalesce with modern life. A few generations since it swayed the diplomacy and legislation of western and central Europe; to-day even Spain, Austria, and Italy itself, are practically hostile to it. France holds an equivocal relation to it. The pontiff retains his throne only by French tergiversation. It seems but the other day, in history, when the papal excommunication sent trembling through senates and armies, and shook the foundations of thrones: to-day Victor Emmanuel is actually under excommunication, but the world seems hardly aware of the fact. The document, when bulletined in Rome, only excited laughter, and Italian nationality and unification were not retarded one minute by the once potential fulmination. The times have advanced, then, but the Italian ecclesiastics are dreaming while Europe is on its march forward.

The coming council is a venture. Inevitably it must render itself absurd by attempting to affirm the obsolete claims of popery, or abortive by evasive measures. * * *

The London Times' correspondent, at Rome, says that "some of the most exalted prelates," in that city, have "from the first considered the appointment of the council both impolitic and dangerous." They are wise men, but they are not such as the puerile pope will heed. The perilous measure can be attributed solely to him. His allocutions have proved him incapable of comprehending the times. He has denounced the most salutary rights and blessings of modern civilization and liberty. He has done so with a boldness which has shown an utter lack of prudence, not to say of conscience, for conscience is fallible; and if any disproof of the Ultramontane doctrine of his infallibility were needed, it could be found in his conscientious errors and follies. He has forced this dangerous council on the church, and it may turn out to be the worst directed of his disastrous reign. * * * *

Of one result we have pretty sure anticipation, for it has been distinctly enough intimated by an immediate authority. The Roman newspaper, called the Civita Cattolica, is the organ of the papal court, as also of the Jesuits; the pope has sanctioned it by a special "Brief," and we can hardly suspect it of grave error on so important an occasion as this Ecumenical Council. It has declared that the personal, official infallibility of the pontiff will be asserted by the assembly. This is a favorite doctrine of the Ultramontanish ecclesiastics, who now really have the control of the church. Their papal opponents deny the doctrine, and hold that not the decisions of the pope, but those of a council and the pope, jointly, are infallible. The Civita Cattolica, in referring to the council, lauds the personal, infallible authority and glory of the pontiff. The prelates are to assemble from the ends of the earth to do him honor. "The convocation of a council can belong only to the pontiff." "They recognize him," it continues, "as father, pastor, master, guide, in everything infallible, and to him they subject their intellect, their will, their words, their acts, even themselves. They profess (as was seen in a solemn act recently signed by five hundred bishops assembled in Rome) to believe what he believes, to feel what he feels, to speak as he speaks, to reject what he rejects, to not willingly deviate one inch from what he shall be pleased to prescribe," etc. What language is this to be uttered respecting any man, in the face of the enlightened Europe of the nineteenth century—especially of a man who has opposed every progressive and liberal principle of the age? Yet no one who knows the character, education, and humility of the Italian clergy, can doubt that they really mean all this. Writers from Rome, however, predict that the infallibility of the pontiff will hardly receive, from the council, a dogmatic affirmation; but will be sufficiently implied and sanctioned by measures which shall inevitably involve it. The Times' correspondent says: "I give you this as the impression of well informed, far seeing Roman Catholics."

Such is the prospect of this probably last of papal Ecumenical Councils. We repeat, the papacy is too much out of joint with the age to be able successfully to attempt this venture. Nearly everything momentous which it has attempted in the present century has failed, or reacted against it. It must reform or die. If it reforms, it dies as papacy; though it might live as a renovated church. But it is determined not to reform, therefore must it die. It is now dissolving, like a huge iceberg which has got into the gulf stream. It has no longer political importance in Europe, except as a local impediment to the Court of Florence. We may reasonably expect that, by the end of our century, it will be stripped of its last vestige of civil sovereignty, and that even long abused Italy will have a free church, in a free nation—the long delayed wish of Cavour, her greatest modern statesman.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

RECENT RIOTING IN PARIS.

Rioting in Paris is a serious business. Election riots, especially in that city, are portentous. Malakoff, the correspondent of the New York Times, who is well acquainted in Paris and thoroughly informed, writing on the 14th of May, says:

"What must be the despair of the Emperor after twenty years of manipulation of the position, to find himself obliged, as he is at present, to double and treble the protective force about his person to prevent assassination? And this time they are not Italians, seeking the life of the 'murderer' of their country, but Frenchmen, the men he thought he had taught better things.

"Little by little the excitement has increased until for two nights past bands of three or four hundred sans culottes have been able to march through the streets singing the 'Marseillaise' and the 'Lampions,' breaking windows and street lamps, and threatening to hang the policemen who offered resistance, to the lamp-posts. Such is the state of effervescence in the dangerous classes that the readers of the Republican party are in turn getting alarmed, for they see the bourgeoisie looking on with indifference, if not accepting the terrible propositions of the dangerous classes."

The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing on the 13th, says:

"Yesterday evening the electors of the third circumscription were bidden to the Theatre Chatelet to hear M. Emile Olivier, who was announced to speak at half past eight P. M. As early as three o'clock the doors began to be besieged, and at six the theatre was enveloped by a dense mass of people. It was a long time before M. Emile Olivier and his friends could penetrate the crowd, and it was past ten when the candidate first attempted to speak. A happy allusion to the fable of Jupiter and the peasant enabled M. Olivier to obtain a hearing. He related the services he had rendered the State, and expressed himself in favor of those liberties desired by the country. He ably defended his conduct in respecting the oath which he had taken to the empire, and said courageously what he thought of the man capable of taking the oath with the intention of violating it. His ideas on political morality were very little relished by the ultra Democrats, who manifested their feelings by creating an uproar and interrupting the orator. When M. Olivier at last alluded to the empire as founded on universal suffrage, the storm became so violent that the commissioner of police declared the proceedings closed. Whilst M. Olivier was addressing a favored few inside the theatre, the crowd outside had been gradually on the increase, and by eleven o'clock it is estimated that from fifteen thousand to twenty thousand persons were gathered round the building. Most of them were under the impression that the doors had never been opened. For a long time order was maintained, and if now and then a gentleman mounted on the shoulders of a friend and harangued the multitude, the people chaffed till the platform gave way, and the orator was swamped; but an hour later the "Marseillaise" and other popular songs, disagreeable to the authorities, were sung, and a strong reinforcement of police having arrived, some fighting took place, and serious damage was done. Four killed and a number of wounded are spoken of today, but where street fighting takes place in Paris it is next to impossible to learn casualties.

"When the crowd dispersed it was in bad humor, and there were cries of 'To the Tuileries!' but no attempt was made in that direction. One strong group contented itself with marching to the Bastile and paying a tribute of respect to the Column of July. This is the most serious disturbance which has yet taken place in Paris, and one hears today that it has caused serious alarm to peaceable citizens, who are beginning to think that it will be playing a dangerous game to support Radical candidates. There were several arrests made last night for resisting the police, and as an officer of the force and several men were desperately wounded with glass beer jugs, the prisoners will be severely dealt with. To-day all is quiet, except in the Quartier Latin, where the medical students have been rioting."

THE MASTER'S FACE.—A great artist called together his friends to view a magnificent work, on which he had been long engaged.

"Tell me," he said to the friend on whose judgment he most relied, "what do you think is the best point in my picture?"

"Oh, brother," said the enraptured artist, "it is all beautiful; but that chalice! that is a perfect masterpiece—a gem!"

Sorrowfully the artist took his brush and dashed it over the toil of weary days, and turning to his friends he said:

"Oh, brothers, if there is anything in my piece more beautiful than the Master's face I have sought to put there, let it be gone!"

Christian teacher, is there anything which you seek to portray, which you make more beautiful to your listeners than the Master's face? Oh, dash it out then! Represent Him as He is, "the one altogether lovely."

St. Bernard once preached an eloquent sermon, which all great and learned men went away applauding. But he walked sadly home, with downcast eyes, while occasional sighs revealed a mind deeply dejected.

The next day he preached a plain but earnest discourse, which touched the hearts of many, but elicited no applause. That day his heart was glad and his countenance glowing. On being questioned why he should be sad when so applauded, and yet so cheerful when he received no praise, he answered:

"Yesterday I preached Bernard. To-day, Jesus Christ."

So we shall have most comfort ourselves, in our teachings, when we have most of Christ in them. Then, too, we shall do most good to the souls of others.—Sunday School Times.

AMBERGRIS.—The Honolulu Advertiser reports that recently a New Bedford whaler struck a large and old sperm whale, near the Island of Madagascar, and on cutting into the fish secured two hundred and eighty-five pounds of pure ambergris, worth $20,000. This amount is the largest ever obtained from one whale, the quantity usually varying from twenty to one hundred pounds. Ambergris is a hard, waxy, and flatty substance, of a light gray, streaked with yellow or brown, and is secreted in the liver of the whale. It is found in sickly, diseased, or dead whales, and, according to the sailors, is caused by the whale having dyspepsia. The ambergris was originally found floating on the surface of the water, and its source was not discovered till long after it had been used as a perfume and a medicine. Its properties are analogous to those of musk.

MR. GOMEZ, a native of Ceylon, has for about fifteen years been laboring among the Dyaks of Borneo, a race whose rank in society used to be measured by the number of human skulls gathered as trophies of their prowess. From this people he has collected about three hundred converts to Christianity. He labors under the patronage of the English Episcopal Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

A SUCCESSFUL book is often a greater event than a successful campaign. There are noiseless events in the history of the human mind that do not sear the forehead of the world as battles do, yet change it not the less.

WHEN once infidelity can persuade men that they shall die like beasts, they will soon be brought to live like beasts.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. S. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying he Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by EXPRESS. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

HOMER COLLEGE.

A letter from the president of this institution gives a very encouraging view of its state and prospects. It has now one hundred students. During the year there have been $1,000 raised for the repair of the buildings. Its most valuable philosophical and chemical apparatus was destroyed during the war, which we hope will be shortly replaced. On the 11th of July the commencement occasion begins, with a sermon from Rev. Dr. A. R. Winfield, of the Little Rock Conference. How we should delight to accept the invitation and be there to drink in a full portion from that sermon! But we expect to be at Greensboro, Alabama, on the 4th of July, and at Jackson, Louisiana, on the 19th. To be with our friends at Homer will therefore be out of our power. We hope that there will be such a gathering of the Methodism of north Louisiana at that commencement as will set forward the cause of education in Louisiana fifty years. Let the preachers arrange their regular work, and the brethren theirs, so as to meet and sustain the labors of a Randle and other sainted men, who laid the foundation of that college in tears and prayer.

Centenary College of Louisiana.

The commencement exercises of this college will take place on the third Monday and Tuesday (19th and 20th) of July. The Board of Trustees will meet at Jackson on Monday, the 19th. A full attendance of the trustees is earnestly requested, and also of the preachers of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences, and of all the friends of this important and venerable institution. We wish to rally to its support every Southern Methodist who stands by the cause of education in the Southwest.

J. C. KEENER,
President of the Board.

The Church at Washington.

Our brethren will keep in mind the fact that the 4th of July next is the day appointed by our bishops for a simultaneous collection in behalf of our Washington city Southern Methodist Church. We see by the telegram that on last Sabbath the house was dedicated by the Rev. Dr. Muasey. The pastor, the Rev. Mr. Tudor, has done a noble work, and deserves the hearty cooperation of every Southern Methodist.

PRIESTS—FOREIGN AND NATIVE.

Some few weeks ago we gave an instance of a Catholic priest in Carrollton who attempted to force his way into the house of a Methodist family in order to baptize a child. It seems that was not an exceptional instance of priestly arrogance. On the 6th of June an Irish priest, who has charge of the Catholic church, school, and nunnery on Dryades street, by the name of Moynihan, forced himself into a Presbyterian mission Sabbath school near the Jackson Railroad depot, a little before the time of its opening, and, finding no teachers present, began to cuff the children, and in true Killarney style to frighten and scatter them. Just at this moment a mother came in who was bringing her little ones to the school. The priest then began on her, and shaking his finger in her face, said, "You and your associates deserve to be tied to the stake and burnt." (He belongs to the order of St. Domiafe.) "You are training these boys to be thieves and infidels, and the girls for prostitution." At this juncture a male teacher arrived and found the doors locked, and the priest and some of the children inside. The teacher asked him what he was about. "I want my children," said Moynihan, "to whom you have been holding out all sorts of indacements to proselyte and make thieves of them." The teacher advised him to leave.

He, and a man he brought with him, ought to have been pitched into the same pile. And we hope that our Presbyterian friends will hereafter have male teachers on the ground early enough, every Sabbath, to curb the Irish of this priest, and protect ladies and children from his insolence. It is difficult for these priests to get an adequate idea of religious liberty, because scarcely any of them are natives of this country. They come over here and attempt the airs and authority which they have practiced upon the half-starved, ignorant masses of Ireland, Spain, or Italy. They are not only not fit to teach the children of our people, but they are absolutely fatal to the freedom and intelligence of any people. This driving a flock with a horse-whip, as Irish priests sometimes do in their own country, may be practiced here for a while with a parcel of ignorant immigrants and their children, but they soon find out that America is not Ireland, and that there is a spice more of freedom in this Protestant atmosphere than they used to have in the ould country.

By the by, why is it that after being an hundred years in America the Roman Catholic Church can show scarcely a single American priest? Why has it to still import all its clergy, nuns, and "brothers?" Is not this church adapted to a purely American population? If it is, why cannot we be delivered from these uncouth specimens of exotic growth, and be served by equally good Catholics who at the same time understand how to demean themselves creditably.

French priests for France, Spanish priests for Spain, Italian priests for Italy, Irish priests for Ireland, German priests for Germany, and why not American priests for America? There will be but little chance for reform in the Catholic Church of this country until it shall be undertaken by a native priesthood. Father Hyacinth, the celebrated French Catholic priest, in a late address at Lyons, said: "The day is gone by for preaching up monasticism, austerities, retreats, and celibacy. There was a time when all that might have been necessary; but at the present hour the want of France is Christian households. * * * I have trodden English soil on two occasions, and I have come to the conviction that the strength of that country is from the Bible." And American priests and American nuns might also learn how to breathe the atmosphere of the Bible, and permit their people to read it without the fear of having their authority undermined or the faith of the church corrupted. If there be not hope in native Catholics, there is none at all. And recent events have shown that the reaction in the Catholic Church, for which all good men are waiting, is being brought about rapidly by Catholics themselves. Catholics have driven the Jesuits out of Austria; Catholics of Italy would, if permitted, thoroughly reform the Roman States; Spanish Catholics, who, in the language of Castelar, consider "Protestantism the eternal enemy of his race, his country, and his religion," have by the Spirit of God been led to forbid the assemblings of the Society of Loyola, and to proclaim Christian liberty in Spain; and now, marvelous to tell, we have news of a reaction among Mexican Catholics against the corruption of their own church. Mr. Riley, an agent of the American Bible Society, now in Mexico, writes home: "There is a perfect hurricane of Protestant feeling raging against the Roman Church, and that he feels as if he had suddenly found himself in the times of the Reformation. The government has secularized the property of the Roman Church, amounting to $200,000,000; and brands it with the name of traitor for having brought in the French intervention to prop up its falling power. The convents are all emptied and abolished; the monks and nuns scattered to the four winds; ecclesiastical robes and processions forbidden in the streets, and Church and State entirely dissevered."

There is some hope in a native priesthood. But where priests are shifted about, and never permitted either to naturalize or to become identified with a people or a country, it bodes no good to either the Church or the State. They are an agitating element, whose esprit de corps is stronger than religious principle or sound patriotism. This foreign origin sufficiently accounts for the dissatisfaction of the Catholic clergy with everything that is peculiarly American. They denounce themselves as at war with the State in its efforts to diffuse education among the people. They clamor for the public money for all their church institutions. They insist on being paid by the State for the training of every child they may pick up, in Roman Catholic ideas, and hope to force the people of Louisiana to do it. They act in this country not as a church merely, but as a political party, and subject every Catholic to a party drill, meanwhile violently crying out against persecution of Catholics. They vote in solido in the School Board, in the Council, and in the Legislature. Every interest, every political principle is subsidized by them to the advancement of Catholic asylums, Catholic schools, and Catholic churches. They were used to a support from the governments in Europe, and they clamor for it here. They are only repeating the acts by which they have drained Italy, Spain, Mexico, and every other State, of untold millions, until the beggared people have, after long patience, risen and confiscated the enormous gatherings of these ravenous and remorseless celibates. De Tocqueville prophesied that Catholicism would succeed in this country because it was thoroughly organized. It would find the people disorganized, and therefore an easy prey. If these ghostly "fathers" were a part of us, if they spoke our language, were related by blood ties to our people, if their parents, or brothers, or sisters, or wives, or children were here, as a pledge of their real interest in the country, we might imagine them capable of the sentiment of patriotism; but, as it is, they feel about as patriotic as an American priest might be supposed to feel in Spain, or France, or Austria, or Italy. Their love of country, of home, and of relations, of their church, of heaven, of earth, of self, body and soul, all, all is merged and lost in the one controlling desire to advance some Catholic order.

OF SEVEN young men accepted the present year by the American Board, all but one go as missionaries to China. One, a son of Dr. Riggs, of Constantinople, goes to western Turkey. Several others at Andover, one of them the son of a missionary, are expecting to go abroad.

COLLEGE COMMENCEMENTS.

We approach this month of examinations and commencements with much greater elasticity than the one which a year ago introduced these eventful passages in the lives of our literary institutions. And if the friends of Southern Methodism will venture to look back to that gloomy period they will see how much hitherto the Lord has helped them. A pall of despair had then well nigh settled upon every industrial interest of the South; the crops had been destroyed two years successively, with only one year intervening after a war that wiped the platter and turned it upside down. Colleges and schools had to contend with fences and ditches, and hungry, demoralized freedmen, and discriminating, devouring taxes, which threatened to drain the last drop of life from farmer and merchant. But few students were in attendance; professors were as poor as old-field school teachers, they as poor as preachers, and the preachers were poverty itself, dressed in an ante-bellum suit of black! No wonder trustees and all were about going into bankruptcy.

Well, a year has gone. The gracious rains, the generous earth, and the wealth-giving sun have conspired to fill our barns with food and our houses with comfort. Grim hunger has been driven from our doors as a wolf into the deep forest. We can now contemplate our children and our future, and we can afford to endow them with a large share of what God has so graciously given us. The halls of our schools are being filled with the youth of our people; our presidents, teachers, and trustees are already so far recovered as to be calling out for repairs and endowments; our crops are hopeful, and the prospect is that we shall have enough and to spare.

Let us thank God and take courage. Devise liberal things—do not be afraid. Last year we exhorted the trustees of the Southern University, the East Alabama College, and our own Centenary to walk by faith, not by sight. They did it, and have not as yet been confounded. True, we have an immense work yet to accomplish, and we believe that our bishops should take the field themselves, and put able men in it as college agents to awaken all the South upon this vital matter—vital both to Church and State—vital in an ecclesiastical, in a Southern, and in a Protestant point of view. We must not give up the brains and scholarship of the country into the hands of either bondholder or Catholic. The Lord will help those who help themselves, but "whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE FIRST SIX BOOKS OF VIRGIL'S AENEIS. With explanatory notes, a lexicon, and map; together with Dr. Taylor's questions on Virgil, and a metrical index. Illustrated. By Edward Searing, A. M. Boston: A. S. Barnes & Co. 1869. Small 8vo., pp. 417.

We have received this work from the house of Mr. H. D. McGinnis, Camp street. It is the finest copy of Virgil we have ever seen. The print, paper, and presswork are most admirable. The lexicon is adapted to this work only. To the lovers of the Latin tongue and all students we can most heartily commend this edition of the great poet.

QUERY.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The suggestion of "Methodist," in your issue of the 12th, is apt. But what would he do where a superintendent, elected to his position by the teachers, declines, neglects, or refuses to call the teachers together in exclusive meeting, as is the case in one of our Sabbath schools in this district?

Yours, very respectfully,
A BIBLE CLASS TEACHER IN FELICITY ST. SCHOOL.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

The commencement of this institution will take place on the first Wednesday (the 7th) of July.

EXTINCTION BY ABSORPTION.

The subjoined article from the Independent is, we suspect, the literary offspring of that musky brother, the editor of the Zion's Herald. He will no doubt feel complimented by the imputation, even if not responsible for the bitter "perhaps" with which the writer tenderly consoles. It gives us the "humorous side" of the matter, and shows the cool estimate of the diplomacy which did not "dream of making a single backward step." The "little probability of a bench of fire-eating bishops accepting such an offer" was indeed a very tempting opportunity to call sinners to repentance, which the "magnanimous" and "venerable" brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church could not suffer to pass unimproved. Notwithstanding the "greater advantage" which this "movement" is supposed to give the "loyal branch," we exhort the writer to be patient, for the time of figs is not yet.

METHODIST RECONSTRUCTION.

The recent overtures of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South start some curious questions. Since the stormy General Conference of 1844, when the Methodist Church split into two parts, not very unequal in numbers, the old body has increased as steadily as the pro-slavery body has waned. And, now that the Methodist Episcopal Church numbers a million and a quarter members—nearly four times as many as the Southern Church—there is something Christian and magnanimous in the mission of the venerable Bishop Morris and his associates, Janes and Simpson, to the Southern bishops, at St. Louis.

Of course, neither the one board of bishops nor the other could do more toward such a union than to use their personal and official influence to promote it. But as soon as the movement was whispered among the Methodist people it started some grave questions. What shall be done with the blacks? Will the rebellious Southern divines sit on an equality with "niggers" in an annual or general conference? Or will the loyal church surrender again to the spirit of caste? Do Simpson, and Ames, and Janes, and their associates, who threw the whole weight of their influence upon the side of loyalty, intend to surrender it all now? We do not think that the Methodist bishops dreamed of making a single backward step. Of course, there was little probability of a bench of fire-eating bishops accepting such an offer. But the Methodists believe in free grace, and are accustomed to preach the Gospel of reconciliation to the hardest sinners, "whether they will hear or whether they will forbear;" and so with words of kindness and conciliation they approached the bishops of the Southern Church, suggesting that, as slavery was out of the way, a union might now be effected. Beneath the diplomatic courtesy of the reply which the Southerners make growls the old bitter hatred—a treason none the less venomous for its defeat. Evidently the Southern bishops were not only guilty of treason toward the government, but also toward their own better natures; and, if loyalty is ready to forgive them, they can never forgive loyalty.

Time enough has elapsed now to show that the movement, which has resulted in a failure so far as union is concerned, will yet have the effect to give the loyal branch a still greater advantage among the moderate people of the South; and, if the Southern Methodists will not unite, they must take the other alternative of extinction by absorption.

The humorous side of the correspondence is the charge which the Southern bishops make that the Methodist Episcopal Church is a political body. Loyalty, in their estimation, is a sinful meddling with politics; but combined treason against God, humanity, and country is a religious abstinence therefrom. Wedded to their sin, they blindly stumble on to their ruin with the ever-increasing odium of their crime driving their children from their fold. Perhaps God means that no half-way retribution shall fall upon a body so guilty; and that, like the Egyptian slaveholders, they march to the Red sea of their own destruction.

BOSTON COSSACKS.

The New York Independent brings to notice an important fact in the religious status of Boston. The preponderating weight of Massachusetts in the councils of the nation, and the incredible amount of gold-bearing bonds she managed to secure while the rest of the country was fighting, have created in the public unusual interest in her. It seems while she has increased in goods that she has not increased in faith.

Napoleon used to predict the day when Europe would be either Republican or Cossack. Old Dr. Beecher, the Napoleon of polemics, used to predict that Boston could not remain in a condition of reputable, moderate Unitarianism; but would end in being Evangelical or Rationalistic.

Nobody can read the newspapers without perceiving that during the last year, at least, religious radicalism has held high carnival in Boston. Twenty years ago the city had one Theodore Parker. He stood alone; and his great congregation included many who merely pardoned his theology for the sake of his philanthropy. Now there has sprung up in Boston a whole generation of religious radicals; among whom it is a common criticism on Theodore Parker that he clung too much to the skirts of Unitarianism, and to the Christian name and forms. They control pulpits, conventions, parlors, and periodicals. Their discussions and assertions are spread widely through the newspapers. The Boston Post, the Springfield Republican, the New York World, and the Anti-Slavery Standard give full reports of their operations. They have a thriving monthly periodical of their own, the Radical. A movement so strong and established cannot be winked out of sight. The Independent, at least, is not given to an ostrich policy; but is always ready to look facts in the face.

Response to the $60 Proposition in New Orleans.

The following names are added to the list of those who have responded to the request of the agent to aid the Publishing House by investing to the amount of $60 in our own publications, and have purchased at the Publishing House Depot, in this city, to that amount or more since the last report was published:

Rev. B. F. Alexander, Louisiana Conference.
Rev. C. F. Evans, Louisiana Conference.
Rev. J. M. Franklin, Louisiana Conference.
Rev. T. B. White, Louisiana Conference.
Rev. Richard Jones, New Orleans.
Rev. R. W. Thompson, Trinity Conference.
Rockwall Quarterly Conf., Trinity Conf.
Rev W. W. Caulker, Trinity Conference.
Rev. G. W. Cottingham, E. Texas Conf.
Messrs. Seaton & Holt, Garden Val'y, Texas
Rev. J. G. Jones, Mississippi Conference.
Rev. P. A. Johnston, Mississippi Conference.
Rev. J. A. Ellis, Mississippi Conference.
Rev. H. M. Booth, Mississippi Conference.
Rev. J. D. Newsom, Mississippi Conference.
Mr. Daniel McRee, Mississippi.
Rev. A. R. Winfield, D. D., Little Rock Conf.
Rev. W. Moores, Little Rock Conference.
Rev. Samuel Morris, Little Rock Conference.
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D. D., Mobile Conf.
Rev. J. Hamilton, D. D., Mobile Conf.

ROBERT J. HARP, Agent.
NEW ORLEANS, June 5, 1869.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

FORT JESSUP, SABINE PARISH, June 5, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: I would say to you that the Lord has commenced a glorious work on this circuit. The spiritual condition of the circuit is improving day by day. We have had a number of accessions to the church; and, best of all, some have been converted.

We had a Sunday school celebration at Pleasant Hill, on the 23d of May, that would have done even our city brethren good to have witnessed. It would have made you glad to have seen the interest that was taken by the citizens of Pleasant Hill.

You need not be surprised if you hear of a camp meeting on this work this year. If the good Lord blesses us with a good crop we will have the camp meeting; and this, I think, He will do. Our prospect is brightening at this time. Pray for us, dear brother.

Yours in Christ,
J. M. FRANKLIN.

Mississippi Conference Claimants.

I desire to be able, at the next session, to furnish the Board of Finance with an authentic list of the claimants upon the Conference funds. This I can do if the presiding elders will do me the kindness and the Conference the service to make a note of this in their memorandum, and inquire at each quarterly meeting if any of the widows or orphans of the Conference reside within their bounds, and obtain correct information concerning their pecuniary circumstances, and the exact age of each orphan.

W. E. M. LINFIELD,
Chair. Joint Board of Finance.

WE ARE requested by Dr. A. H. Mitchell to give notice that there will be a meeting of the managers of the Ministerial Education Society of the Mobile Conference during the commencement week at Greensboro.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

The commencement exercises of Centenary Institute, Summerfield, Alabama, will begin on Sunday, June 27th, and end on the Wednesday following.

Friends of these schools are invited to attend all the exercises.

It is ordered by the president of the Board of Trustees that the board shall meet on Monday, June 28th.

JOHN MASSEY.
W. J. VAUGHN.

HOMER COLLEGE.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees takes place on Monday, July 12. A full meeting is earnestly requested.

The following ministers were appointed members of the board by the last Annual Conference: Revs. Samuel Armstroug, N. A. Cravens, John A. Miller, S. S. Scott, T. B. White, Thomas J. Upton, W. G. Haislip. H. T. LEWIS, President Homer College.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

The examination at Whitworth College will begin on the 22d of June.

The concerts will come off on the nights of the 25th and 28th. The commencement sermon will be preached on Sunday, the 27th, by Rev. W. M. Linfield, of Vicksburg, Mississippi. The senior class will be examined on the 28th. The degrees will be conferred on the 29th, at which time the seniors will read their compositions, and Dr. J. B. Walker, of New Orleans, will deliver the annual address.

THE POPE has made the important announcement that anybody's sins shall all be forgiven who shall, between June 1st and the meeting of the Ecumenical Council, go to church twice, and there pray devoutly for some time for the conversion of sinners and the triumph of the Catholic Church, and shall fast three days, confess his sins, receive the Holy Eucharist, and give some alms to the poor, according to his power. "This indulgence is applicable to souls in purgatory."

OPELIKA HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATION EXERCISES.

JUNE 24TH TO 29TH, 1868.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY.

Examination of classes.

SUNDAY.

Ten A. M.—Annual sermon, by Rev. J. Boring, D. D., Atlanta, Georgia.

Half-past three P. M.—Annual lovefeast, conducted by Rev. J. F. Dowdell, LL. D., Auburn, Alabama.

Half-past seven P. M.—Sermon by Rev. E. L. Loveless, Lafayette, Alabama.

MONDAY.

Ten A. M.—Meador's Prize Declamation, by nine young gentlemen. Prize delivery address, by Colonel R. J. Moses, Jr., Columbus, Georgia.

Half-past seven P. M.—Exhibition: Dramas and dialogues.

TUESDAY.

Ten A. M.—Compositions, by fourteen young ladies. Annual literary address, by Captain J. F. Turner, Selma, Alabama.

Half-past seven P. M.—Exhibition: Juvenile dramatic entertainment.

E. D. PITTS, Principal.

OBITUARIES.

WILLIAM GEE, born in Virginia, April 3, 1801, and married to Nancy Ragedale, December, 1827, died at his residence in Carroll county, Mississippi, May 25, 1869.

A few years after his marriage he removed to Tennessee, whence, after some ten years, he removed to Carroll, Mississippi.

A member of the Methodist Church from early life, Brother Gee was for thirty years a steward and class leader. He loved the house of God, where he regularly filled his place. He rejoiced in experimental religion, which was often his theme. He was zealous for the church, and liberal with his means to forward its interests. His absence from quarterly meeting occasioned the remark, "Brother Gee must be sick." In the transaction of business he was an upright man.

For some months his health had been failing rapidly. He said he would soon be gone, and was happy that he had not now to get ready.

He was the father of three sons, who had gone before him to the spirit world. Five grand-children, whom he had been caring for, gave him solicitude. He wished to live a few years more to assist them. These, with their mother and Sister Gee, must feel the loss which is his gain. God care for them!

J. A. E.

Sister MARY J. MILLER, long a member of the Methodist Church, died in Yazoo city, April 30, 1869. At the time of her death she was in the sixty-sixth year of her age.

She was a member of the church—a professor of religion—for a period of forty-eight years. She was among the number who aided in the organization of the first church in this place. Of that number but one or two others survive.

The first religious services held here were in her house. She was thus identified with the church here from its beginning. She felt the greatest interest in its welfare and prosperity. Nor did this feeling abate, but seemed rather to increase during the protracted period of her last sickness. She entered zealously into all plans for the benefit of the church.

The highest praise of all may be given her, in that it may be said that she led a useful life. Her Christian course was consistent, while her acquaintance with the doctrines of the Scriptures was very thorough.

Her last sickness was long and her suffering great. The estimation in which she was held by the community was manifested by the universal and tender sympathy of which she was the object. Her afflictions were borne with Christian fortitude, and they seemed sanctified to her spiritual good. She attained to more of faith and resignation, and learned more of the wisdom and grace of God's dealings with her.

The close of her life was peaceful, as in full possession of her mental faculties she met the last enemy. There was no uncertainty, but strong confidence. Hope was bright, and her last utterance in the supreme moment of death was joyful—"I am almost home." Life's duty was done, and she was entering into rest. This fact is enough to heal the sorrow of those who here or elsewhere mourn her departure.

E. H. MOUNGER.

My sainted mother, Mrs. RUTH RUTER, of precious memory, died March 22, aged eighty years.

She had been a follower of the Saviour from early youth. She was but nineteen years of age when married, and was then in connection with the Methodist Episcopal Church. For more than sixty years she retained regular membership in the church, for many years past being connected with the Church South. She was free from bigotry, and gladly worshiped with Christians of every name.

In 1809 she was united in marriage with my father, Rev. Dr. M. Ruter, and for thirty years shared the vicissitudes of an itinerant minister. She was indeed a helpmeet for him, not only sharing household cares and family duties, but taking the burden mostly upon herself, that thereby her husband might be left free to devote his time and energy to the church. For thirty years more she wended her lonely pilgrimage to the heavenly Canaan, and as she neared its shores seemed more and more ripening for her inheritance.

She came to my house in July, 1867, intending to make it her home during the remainder of her earthly stay; and such were her zeal and interest in the cause of God—such her gentle, quiet, Christian life—that I often felt reproached that I was so much less absorbed in heavenly things. She was more prayerful, during her stay with me, than almost any one I have ever known. I constantly felt, while she was with me, encompassed with an atmosphere of prevailing prayer, and felt that the blessing of heaven would the more rest upon my household for the sake of her dear presence. She read during a considerable portion of her time, chiefly standard theology or kindred subjects.

She was unselfish in a remarkable degree, and very self-denying, always preferring the advantage or happiness of others to her own. She well fulfilled the divine injunction, "In honor preferring one another."

Last spring the debility consequent on her advanced age seemed to require the invigorating influence of a more northern climate during the heat of summer. She also felt a desire to visit relatives, friends, and scenes of former years, and it was accordingly so arranged, we hoping she would return with renewed health and vigor. She left here in May, but instead of improving she declined, slowly at first, but rapidly as the cold weather came on, until death closed the scene. For nearly three months her sufferings were very great, but she bore them with the utmost patience and resignation, never murmuring, but only afraid of giving trouble to others. When passing through the cold river of death she was asked by one at her bedside, "Is the Saviour with you?" "O, yes," she replied, and added, "Hold my hands"—thus passing to her heavenly rest.

She died at Danville, Pennsylvania, being thus far on her journey south. Here she was taken worse—too ill to travel farther. She was among dear relatives, and most kindly and lovingly cared for. But the summons had gone forth, "Come up higher." Her remains were taken to Cincinnati and deposited in her brother's burying lot in the Spring Grove Cemetery. He writes, "A more lovely spot the sun never shone upon—fit resting place for such a woman." There she awaits the second coming of the Saviour she so loved and honored.

"For I know that, however long to me
The slumber of the grave may be,
I shall see her again, 'mid that radiant throng
Who bear their part in the seraphim's song."

S. R. CAMPBELL.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

"THE TIMES,"

THE IMPROVED LARGE OVEN

COOKING STOVE,

with extended Fire Chamber and Feeder Top—one of the best Baking and most economical Stoves made.

The Flues are constructed so as to insure the most perfect draft. The heat of the Oven is so equal that when baking there is no need for removing anything until done.

"The Times"

is made of a superior quality of iron, very heavy, of neat design, and fine finish. The Top Plate is put together in sections, to permit of the greatest expansion without cracking.

We invite the attention of Housekeepers to the advantages of this Stove. Remember, we guarantee them to give entire satisfaction. Duplicate parts can be had at all times, at small cost, by which repairs can be made which will frequently save the price of a new Stove.

ZABLE & DALTON,
No. 115 Poydras street.

A large variety of MANTLE GRATES, House Furnishing Goods, Tin and Japanned Ware. Agents for the celebrated Osborn Field and Animal Cages.

ZABLE & DALTON,
jel9 1y No. 115 Poydras street.

TEACHING.

WANTED.—ENGAGEMENTS TO Teach by the 1st of October next:

1. For a young lady qualified in the usual branches of a polite education, music, etc., and with five or six years' experience.

2. For another, fully qualified, but without experience in teaching. A comfortable home in some private family would be preferred.

Apply, if by letter, to
REV. JAMES MACLENNAN,
jel2 1m Greenville, Mississippi.

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold.
Surplus, - - 1,000,000, Gold.

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, } Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho, and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of Californoia in New York. jel2 4tr

THREE INDISPENSABLE BIBLE HELPS.

I.

Mimpriss Gospel Treasury and Treasury of the Four Evangelists. Having the text in parallel columns, with Scripture illustrations, Practical Reflections, and Addenda, geographical, biographical, topographical, historical, and critical, illustrating manners, customs, opinions, and localities of the Sacred Narratives, with analytical and historical tables, and a very copious Index, and a chart with every event numbered and localized.—One volume, 12mo; Over 900 pages. Cloth, extra, red edges, $3 50. Quarto edition, large type, $12.

"It is not easy to state in a few words the merits of this extraordinary book. It is in all respects a most unusual book, and the labor in its preparation must have been immense. It is in its own department without a parallel in the language, and stands many degrees at the head of its class."—Primitive Church Magazine, England.

Strongly recommended as a help to Sunday school teachers by Rev. Drs. Tyng and Alfred Taylor, and Messrs. Ralph Wells and Pardee, the Sunday School Times, and many others.

II.

Simmons' Scripture Manual. Alphabetically and systematically arranged. Having the texts bearing upon the important subjects of Scripture arranged and printed in full, under their appropriate heads. One volume, 12mo, cloth, extra, $1 75.

"Far more copious and reliable than any work of the kind. A better help to the study of the Bible is not accessible."—Congregationalist.

More than fifty thousand copies of this book have already been sold.

III.

Cruden's Complete Concordance. A Dictionary and Alphabetical Index to the Bible. The Unabridged Edition, having the various meanings of the most important words as they occur in the different parts of Scriptures, Concordance to Proper Names, Definitions of Proper Names and Concordance to the Apocrypha. 8vo, sheep, $5; cloth, $4.

"Cruden's Concordance, in its unabridged and complete state, is invaluable to the biblical student, and the abridgments which have been made of it furnish no idea of the thoroughness and fullness of the original and complete work."—Rev. Thomas DeWitt, D. D.

"It is a low view of such a book to consider it merely as an expedient for finding a certain verse. It is in reality a Bible Lexicon. As managed by Cruden, it is also an explanatory Dictionary, and his definitions are, in every instance remembered by me, sound and evangelical."—Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D.

A descriptive catalogue of all our publications mailed to any address.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
jel2 4tr 506 Broadway, New York.

ONE THOUSAND MEN WANTED.—Wages, $5 per day. Send for circular to M. L. BYRN, jel2 4tr No. 80 Cedar street, New York.

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three-cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, jel2 4tr Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address
SPIRIT PICTURE CO.,
jel2 4tr 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price.
A. WILKINS,
jel2 4tr Detroit, Mich.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. PIANO CO., New York. jel2 4tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SOMEBODY TELLS LIES.

Who is it?
Dr. WOLCOTT or the old school?
Wolcott reasons well,
Else whence this instinctive
Horror of Doses,
This opposition to Drugs
Implanted in every child?
Proof so positive
Convinces every reason
That the whole system
Of Drug treatment
Is and must be wrong,
When all humanity
Possesses a secret dread of them;
Yes, when every soul
Shrinks back and startles
At the approach of each Dose
That Ignorance mixes for the stomach
'Tis our very instinct
That stirs within us,

and Nature points out to us the dreadful folly, causing such loathing that, before the vile compounds are presented to our averted gaze, the stomach often reels at the disgusting potions! Is it right? Can it be right when every human instinct condemns it in the strongest language; when even the brute creation shun it with abhorrence; when a power within ourselves, when all Nature cries against this most besotted and dangerous practice? Stop! Let us reason, and see how it looks. Perhaps you are costive!—Will Pills produce moisture or cure the complaint? Pills will rob the stomach of moisture, and never add a drop; for they are dry and have none to give. No one swallows them but is weaker and more costive afterward from the loss of the vitalizing fluids and gastric juices. Reader, have you a garden, a spot of earth, or a single blade of grass? If the soil becomes dry, will you sow it with gravel-stones or sand?—Nay, verily! But you sprinkle it with water. The human stomach and its health are better than "many gardens!" Will not common-sense lead you to a watery and cooling diet? Don't your stomach ask for more vegetables? Where are the apples, oranges, and any or all kinds of fruit she longs for? Where the spinach, beets, turnips, and the hundred varieties? She will accept of some of them. Where the brown or corn bread, oatmeal pudding, etc., waiting for you to eat, that will be agreeable to your palate and will prove to be exactly what you need? 'Tis a thousand times more sensible to drink a pint or quart of oat or corn meal porridge once or twice each day, for a week or two, or use warm water injections, than ever be guilty—yes, I mean guilty, for no person swallows Drugs but commits a sin against themselves, and punishment will certainly follow, sooner or later.

What makes that once strong man now weak and faltering? What drives the roses from the cheeks of that woman? What takes the fire and brightness from the eyes of that child? It is Drugs in nine cases out of every ten. Hundreds of people every day that throng Dr. WOLCOTT'S place, at 181 Chatham Square, suffer from Drug treatment. Thousands, when they return home, make a bonfire and burn them up. Most of the middle-aged who read this paper to-day will live to hear Drugs as universally condemned as bleeding has already become. And they will wonder how it was ever possible that intelligent beings could live and have their senses, and yet submit to such a transparent farce in filling their own bodies with Drug poison year after year, while their whole nature rose up and condemned. In the most eloquent language, this most absurd and health-ruining practice. For every person, without a single exception, who has swallowed most of these abominations, will ratify by their experience the truth of every word. Dr. Wolcott must be right or wrong. Dr. Wolcott is publishing truth or falsehood to the world. If his anti-medical doctrines are false, why is it that he gains the patronage of the most shrewd and critical men, including many of our leading physicians, and retains their custom year after year? How is it possible for him to offer free tests of his Remedies in open daylight, before the world, unless it accomplished results? How is it that he has a larger practice and patronage than any Hospital in the world? How is it that he has more Certificates of Cures, with genuine names attached, from every city, village, and almost every neighborhood, than would fill the largest printed volume, and many of these cases pronounced hopeless before they used his Remedies? Who tells the truth—this is the question—Dr. Wolcott or the old school.

We leave the readers of this paper to decide for themselves whether to continue in the old heathenish custom of dosing or adopt ideas founded on natural law, which cannot be otherwise than safe and in the highest degree conducive to sound health.

Every letter written to Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT is opened with his own hands, and practical advice is given to all who ask for further information, free of cost, besides pamphlets and circulars. He uses no Narcotics, and a child can drink anything he prepares with impunity. His Remedies, PAIN PAINT for Pain and ANNIHILATOR for Catarrh, Consumption, Colds in the Head, Weak Nerves, etc., are on sale at all first class Drug Stores in the Union, or sent directly from Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT'S office, 181 Chatham Square, New York, free of Express charges, on receipt of $5 or upward of each order. All who come treated free of cost. No charge for medical advice. Extreme pain removed instantly. Private rooms for ladies. We cannot speak too highly of his safe and successful mode of treatment for the last ten years in the city of New York. jel2 4tr

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Farmers, families, and others can purchase no Remedy equal to Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT for the cure of Cholera, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Croup, Colic, and Sea Sickness.—Taken internally (it is perfectly harmless—see oath accompanying each bottle) and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Musquito Bites, Old Sores, Pains in Limbs, Back, and Chest. The Venetian Liniment was introduced in 1847, and no one who has used it but continues to do so, many stating if it was $10 a bottle they would not be without it. Thousands of Certificates can be seen at the Depot, speaking of its wonderful curative properties. Price, Fifty Cents and $1. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, No. 10 Park Place, New York. jel2 51r

THE NEW GRADED

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BOOK.

Mimpriss Lessons on the Life of Christ. Harmonized from the Four Evangelists, with Manual for the Teacher.

Three grades. A Uniform Lesson throughout the school, but adapted to the various capacities of the different grades of scholars.

The most complete, thorough and attractive series of Lessons. Containing many important new features, and calculated to meet the urgent demand for improved methods of Sunday school instruction.

A circular, with specimen pages and full description, sent to any address on application.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
jel2 4tr 506 Broadway, New York.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchonpitoulas street. my29 3m

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, SCROFULA.—A lady who had suffered for years from Deafness, Catarrh and Scrofula was cured by a simple remedy. Her sympathy and gratitude prompt her to send the receipts free of charge to any one similarly afflicted. Address
MRS. M. C. LEGGETT,
jel2 4tr Hoboken, N. J.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers.

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The substitution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity, but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In conjunction with enlarged power of production, it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place. Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance each to its pattern; they are perfect to their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them.

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade, and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and simple—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtleties of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose experience and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishments in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially as since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For facts and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
jel2 6tr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address
SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. je12 4tr

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to
NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
myl 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had of any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. je12 4tr

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
jel2 4 r 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address
W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
jel2 4tr Cleveland, Ohio.

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE

sep15 1y New Orleans.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 52 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON.
je23 1y

P. HATHORN. ALF. H. PIERSON:
Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address
DR. S. S. FITCH,
mhI3 9mr 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mr Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2 $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above.
jel2 4tr

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents: Address
AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
jel2 4tr Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED, AGENTS.—LADIES or gentlemen to sell our popular allegorical engraving, entitled "From Shore to Shore," suggestive of Life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem.
B. B. RUSSELL,
jel2 4tr 55 Cornhill, Boston.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

PLAY.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

Play you were a princess,
And this was your diamond throne;
Play I was a fairy—
"That is the truth, my own!"

Play you were a giant,
And I was a poor lost girl;
Play this was your castle:
Think I could harm one curl?"

Play this was my carriage,
And I was a lady grand;
Play that was a ball room:
"Lady, I kiss your hand!"

Play the sun was a kite,
And this was the yellow string;
Play I was a robin:
"Sing, little birdie, sing!"

Play you were a shepherd,
And searching with weary foot;
Play I was your lambkin:
"Come to your fold, my sweet!"

Soon eyelids are drooping,
And that was a sigh, so deep;
Play this was the night, ma;
And play I had gone to sleep!

—Little Corporal.

DON'T KILL IT.

One day I heard a little girl say to another, with a scream, "Kill the nasty spider!"

"Nay," answered I, "don't kill it, for all things were created by God, and He made the spider to feed upon flies as little girls live upon bread and beef." Furthermore, spiders live "in kings' palaces," and are very industrious and instructive insects.

Take a single thread of the spider's web, and you will scarcely be able to see it; yet it required from one hundred to one thousand spinning tubes to form that twisted bit of almost invisible silk. Then look at the elegant network of the garden spider, and ask yourself if you know any knitter, little or big, who could make one like it. Then the spinner of it is so beautiful that he is called the "diadem spider," because, when viewed under a microscope, his body looks jeweled like a king's crown. But his web is not his house, which is generally made a little way off, under a leaf, and is connected to one of the threads of the web, acting like a telegraph wire, and telling him if any breakfast or dinner is at hand.

But the houses of other spiders are more singular than his. Another makes a tube in the earth sometimes two feet long. He generally selects a clay bank, and lines it with web until it is as soft as silk. But even then it is not complete, for he has to make a door to keep out the rain. This is formed of very small bits of clay attached to a web, the bits of clay being outside, and looking like the rest of the bank, with the web inside. More wonderful yet, this door is made with a hinge, and after being opened, shuts of its own accord, and is as circular as compasses could make it. It also falls against a ledge, which prevents its coming too far in. In this house often live mother and father spider, with as many as thirty young ones. It is lined from top to bottom with threads, which warn the inhabitants if any harm is near; but, as these spiders catch their prey by night, it is not used for entrapping anything.

There is another spider, which lives and feeds most of his time under water. This spider forms a kind of framework of web, and then smears it all around with a varnish as clear as glass. This he fills with air, and descends into the water as in a diving bell, his house looking as beautiful as a globule of quicksilver.

Another species makes a raft, and steers it about to save drowning insects, but only to fill his stomach, and not to save their lives.

I could tell you other curious things of these interesting insects; but all I shall add is, Despise nothing that the good God has made, and never kill any of his creatures unless they are wanted for food, or are injurious to it or to you. For, like man, they are "fearfully and wonderfully made," and "in wisdom" God has "made them all."—J. C. F., in Children's Magazine.

A KIND IN HIS OLD AGE.—When a young lion reaches the age of two years he is able to strangle or pull down a horse or an ox; and so he continues to grow and increase in strength till he reaches his eighth year, and his talons, teeth, and mane are perfect, and he grows no more. For twenty years after he arrives at maturity his fangs and talons show no signs of decay; but after that he gradually becomes feeble, his teeth fail him, and he grows "cubbish." He is no longer a match for the tremendous buffalo; he is overmatched even by the peaceful ox; so he prowls around the cattle kraals, and snatches a lamb or a kid, just as he did when he set out with his parents nearly thirty years before. A woman or a child at night shares the same fate. His strength and sight now decline more and more, till the mighty lion grows lean and mangy, and crawls about from place to place eating any offal he can pick up, and despising not even so small an animal as the field mouse. So he starves and dies, or is fallen on and slaughtered by a few cowardly hyenas; or discovered unable to move beneath a tree, and knocked on the head by some wandering hunter.—South African Paper.

FARM AND GARDEN.

CUT the black warts off the plum trees. They are the favorite breeding place of curculio.

IF YOU want small potatoes, hoe them frequently, so as to cause new tubers to set. If you don't, don't.

IT IS said that passing a red hot iron over old putty will make it so soft that it may be readily removed POWDERED charcoal will deepen and improve the color of almost any flowers excepting yellow ones. The coal is to be placed around the roots.

ABOUT eight or ten days before the time of farrowing give your sow a slice of salt pork each day, and she will not trouble you by eating her pigs.

IN LAYING out a garden for fruit and vegetables place everything in drills or rows, so that they may be cultivated by a horse, and thus save the expense of hard labor.

THE cabbage requires a very rich soil, and careful culture from the time the seed is sown until the crop is harvested; without good soil and careful culture it is useless to expect a good crop.

MUCK should never be taken to the field direct from the swamps. It should be exposed to the atmosphere for six months or more, the longer the better, and composted with lime or unleached ashes.

THE ordinary mode of churning in Chili is to put the milk in a skin, tie it to a donkey, mount a boy on him with rowels to his spurs about the length of the animal's ears, and then run him about four miles.

THE disease known as diptheria in chickens may be cured easily by the following method: Take a small wooden paddle and remove the yellow matter from the tongue, and then apply lard and black pepper to the diseased parts. A single application is generally sufficient, and a second is always sufficient. We get this from a large grower of fowls.—Farm Journal.

HOW FEW avail themselves of the great benefit they could derive from domestic manures. The barn yard, the rich guano of the poultry yard, the leached ashes, wood piles, fence corners, where manures have been accumulating for thirty years, ditch banks, the rich virgin soil in close proximity to the hills from which it slid, the rich muck on the creeks in contiguity to their farms, daily come under our observation and yet we will not profit by their use. How promotive of health if these things were removed to the fields to contribute to our wealth, instead of being a nuisance.

NO MAN who cultivates the earth need expect remuneration without preparing his land properly. If level, and likely to suffer from wet, it should be effectually drained; if rolling, or hill land, it should be encircled with ditches to retain the soil, and plowed horizontally. No vegetable matter allowed to be burned, but turned under. Both hill and level land may be made productive by deep plowing. Mere surface skinning will not pay—will not make a support. The best level land will soon tire, and yield but moderately from shallow plowing, and even with good plowing will tire by continuous cropping.

TO MAKE CUTTINGS GROW.—I used to have a great deal of trouble to make currant and gooseberry cuttings or slips grow, until I tried the following plan: I boiled some potatoes until they were nearly done, and then stuck one on each slip and put it in the ground. Every slip sprouted and grew well all summer, with one or two exceptions. The idea of putting the boiled potatoes to the end of the cuttings was to furnish and keep moisture enough for them to grow, until the roots became large enough to gather this moisture and substance from the soil. I never tried it on grape cuttings, but do not see any reason why it would not do as well with grapes as with anything else.—Wisconsin Farmer.

TEMPERATURE OF CREAM.—The Iowa Homestead, in answer to an inquiry as to the proper temperature of cream for churning, says: "Careful experiments have demonstrated that while cream should never be lower than fifty degrees, it should never be higher than fifty-five degrees, for the operation of churning will raise it from five to ten degrees. In a long series of experiments conducted in an English dairy, the best temperature was found to be fifty-three degrees when the cream goes into the churn. By far too many keep the milk and cream at the same temperature, or at least in the same cellar or vault. Either the cream or the milk will suffer, one being too warm or the other too cold."

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INJURIOUS INSECTS.—The insect enemies of the fruit crop are multiplying so fast, notwithstanding all that has been written about their habits and the best modes of destroying them, that the greatest vigilance will be necessary in order to check their ravages The cocoons of the apple worm moth may now be found in the crevices of the bark of those trees on which worms have been most destructive. Scraping and washing the bark and digging into the cocoons are good means of checking the increase of this troublesome insect. If borers have penetrated the wood at the base of the apple or peach tree, they should be dug out, and bandages of some kind placed around the collars to prevent the parent moth from depositing its egg on the bark in summer. Lime or ashes placed around the trees outside the bandage will be an additional precaution.

COVERING SEEDS.—Great care should be taken not to cover seeds too deeply, and especially small seeds. With potatoes, though not seeds, it does not make so much difference, for the strong sprouts will push their way through even two or three inches of earth Some seeds are so very small and delicate that they will scarcely bear to be covered at all. Much depends upon the nature of the soil and the condition of it. If the weather is wet, then a much lighter covering should be given than in dry weather. It often happens that seeds are condemned as worthless because they do not come up, when the trouble is with the planter, who has covered them so deep that they cannot do so. With most seeds, and we scarcely know an exception, the finer the earth that is put over the seed the better. Let close attention be given to this subject and less loss and disappointment will follow.

CELERY AS MEDICINE.—I have known many men, and women too, who from various causes have become so affected with nervousness that when they stretched out their hands they shook like aspen leaves on windy days—and by a daily moderate use of the blanched foot stalks of celery leaves as a salad they became as strong and steady as other people. I have known others so very nervous that the least annoyance put them in a state of agitation, and they were almost in constant perplexity and fear, who were also effectually cured by a daily moderate use of blanched celery as a salad at meal times. I have known others cured by using celery for palpitation of the heart. Everybody engaged in labor weakening to the nerves should use celery daily in season, and onions in its stead when not in season.—Practical Farmer.

SCIENTIFIC.

THE Boston Journal of Chemistry gives the following amusing and instructive experiment: "Procure four glass tumblers or common glazed teacups, and having wiped them dry as possible, hold them over the fire to evaporate any moisture that may still adhere to their surface; for if there is the least moisture, it makes a connection and spoils the experiment. Place them upon the floor in a square, about one foot apart; place a piece of board on the tumblers, and have a person standing upon the board. This person is now completely insulated, the glass being a non-conductor of electricity Now take a common rubber comb, and having wound a piece of silk round one end of it, rub it briskly through your hair, and draw the teeth parallel to the insulated person's knuckles, leaving a little space between the comb and the person's hand. The result will be a sharp, crackling noise, and if dark, there will be seen a succession of sparks. Repeat the process until the phenomena cease. The person is now 'charged' with electricity, the same as a Leyden jar. To draw off the electricity, approach your knuckles to the person's hands or his nose (being careful not to allow any portion of your body to come in contact with his,) and there will be a loud snap, and the sparks will be very brilliant."

THE current year will largely add to our facilities to communicate with the Old World by cable. In addition to the French cable which will soon be laid, we now have a duplicate line from London to Valentia, which will be exclusively used for transmitting cable dispatches. Of the two Atlantic cables, both of which are now in good working order, one will, in future, be exclusively used for sending dispatches from Valentia to America, and the other for receiving American dispatches. Thus the telegraphic communication between New York and London will now be instantaneous.

A SAVAGE PROCLAMATION.

For the benefit of those who have expressed such holy horror of the alleged savage manner in which the Spaniards wage war against the Cubans, we would state that the following is the translation of a proclamation issued by Cespedes, on the 18th of February last, five weeks previous to the issuance of a similar one by Valmaseda:

Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, President of the Republic of Cuba, etc., decrees:

Article 1. Every prisoner who has taken up arms of his free will against the Republic will be executed after the proclamation of this decree, irrespective of his nationality or responsibility.

2. The soldiers of the regular army, who may be taken prisoners, may expect such indulgence as they are entitled to under the circumstances.

3. The property of the enemies of our independence will be turned over to the treasury of the nation, and will be cared for immediately to the best advantages of the Republic.

4. All soldiers who may join the forces of the Republic will be entitled to the same rights and privileges as those forming the armies of the Republic, and will retain the rank they held in the Spanish army.

5 As the present war of independence does not recognize any neutrals among the inhabitants of the island, as all those who are not with us will be considered enemies, any person who may allege neutrality will be judged and punished, taking into account the antecedents of the person, and excepting foreigners, who have behaved as such since the beginning of the revolution.

6. Any person who may voluntarily render any service to the Spanish government, or to any of its officials, of whatever kind the service may be, will be executed immediately after his capture.

Take heed and circulate this decree among the military authorities

Patria y Libertad! Headquarters at La Larga, 18th February, 1869, the second year of the independence.

C. M. CESPEDES.

The Chief of the Foreign Department, Fornaris y Cespedes.

CONCERNING DIVORCES.—The Arabs have a wise practice. When married people seek a separation, the Cadi orders them to live a short time with a discreet and wise man of the tribe, that the latter may examine their lives to see on which side the blame lies. This man makes a report at the expiration of the time, and this report is the foundation on which the Cadi builds his judgment of divorce. Experience has demonstrated that there is no better method of restoring peace in families. The husband and wife, putting on their good behavior, resume the manner of courting days. Each strives to be more amiable than the other, and it is often a puzzle to ascertain where the fault lies, and difficulties come to a comfortable and natural settlement. A very sensible custom! What a pity these "semi-barbarians" have so many customs superior to those of the civilized, Christianized nations of Europe.

THE London Punch thus happily disposes of the Alabama question:

Mr. Punch himself has paid Mr. Sumner's bill. The handwriting of the latter being indistinct, Mr Punch is not quite sure whether he asks for two hundred and fifty millions or billions, and therefore has sent over the latter sum. If there is a balance, Mr. Sumner can keep it for himself, or lay it out in building a lunatic asylum, into which, if the quarrel should really arise, the people of the United States will do well to insert every public man they have, from sober Sumner down to drunken Chandler.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. ja16 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. de12 0m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans.

oct3 1y

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Bengel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols.	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each.	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Groto, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols.	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (now)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
New Orleans.

my15

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION,

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS.

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Mayer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,

Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Mose,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nichols.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,

THE ARTISAN,

THE CLERK,

OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT

LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION

OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre,	W. S. Mount,
John Davidson,	L. B. Pothier,
H Zaberbier,	William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks,	William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt,	T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper,	Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike,	Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard,	John C. Sinnott
J. Caulfield,	C. Cavaroc,
Gerard Stith,	W. O. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

JOHN DAVIDSON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
R. W. YOUNG, Secretary.
L. A. FOURNIER, Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 CARONDELET ST. (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association, at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

JOHN L. DUNNICA. OKO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleens.

Consigaments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Rosborough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Savoy Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

EXTRINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana,

VICTOR CANE MILLS, COOK'S EVAPORATORS,

All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.

VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS, For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES, With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Cora and Cob Croshers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Gutlett's Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Reel Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
jl4 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE

OF THE

CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
97 and 99 Julia street.
de11 6m

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wondorful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS—MUNN & CO. EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents. Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above. je12 4tn

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALogue of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. je12 4tn

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
jn16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,
AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENCES.

Tuition, Spring session, - - - $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, - - - 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address
REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE,

The great number of points to which]

THE NEW ORLEAN

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, floor, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

REV. J. O. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE THIRTY FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev O W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Loak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
se p5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all surpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTItute, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev. William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages	$215 00
Music	50 00
French or one Modern Language	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Fluy; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address
WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE
Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, nug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, ESQ., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetable Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. I. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HENSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1868.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.

p22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio,

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESsor to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

A. EYRICH, (Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL

AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct2 6m 130 Street, New Orleans.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62 CAMP STREET. 62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak, The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue, The Torchlight,
The American, The Brilliant,
The Magnolia, The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian, The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans, The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend, The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,

No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.

july6 1y

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras, novl New Orleans, La.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

nng8 6m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term	$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term	30 00
Contingent fee, per term	2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circular to
O. F. CASEY,
nng15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE, SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $60,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31					1	2
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

To AGENTS—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have but little change to notice in the general market. In some branches of the wholesale trade, especially in dry goods, we notice a moderate degree of activity in supplying country orders and the plantation demand, but from others we hear reiterated complaints of dullness. A limited business has been done in sugar and molasses, at about previous rates, and we have only a moderate movement to notice in Western produce, although, with more liberal receipts, the local trade has shown increased animation, but generally at easier prices. We learn that in addition to the small amount of wheat in the elevator, 25,000 bushels are in transit from St. Louis for account of the Grain Association, for sale in this market. This expected arrival is reported to consist of No. 1 and No. 2 spring. We presume the latter will readily command $1 20 per bush., but will probably be held higher, in which case we presume it will be stored in the elevator to await further instructions. We also hear that the same association will soon forward an invoice of choice wheat, and intends to keep our market stocked with at least 50,000 bushels, of various grades.

Our accounts from the country are generally encouraging, but from some points we still hear complaints of ungeniai weather, which has seriously retarded vegetation. In fact, the chief obstacle to a liberal yield of our leading staple appears now to be the backwardness of the crop, which may be followed by a serious curtailment and waste at the close of the season. Nothing special has been reported of the growing cane, the previous accounts in relation to which were rather unfavorable.

The river has fallen two inches since our last report, and is now two feet below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 11th instant:

Louisiana and Missis-sippi	bales..	1134
Mobile		814
Florida		1
Texas		89
Total		2038

On Saturday, although operations were checked by moderate supplies, yet the movement exhibited considerable spirit, and 850 bales changed hands at fuller prices, low middling closing at 29 to 29½c., showing an improvement of ¼c., and middling, from its scarcity, being entirely nominal. On Monday, under further encouraging dispatches from New York and a more eager demand from the Northern spinners, factors were enabled to establish an additional improvement of ¼c., a portion of the business, however, being at about previous rates, and prices stiffening toward the close. The sales were of liberal extent, comprising 1,400 bales. On Tuesday the market opened with a very good inquiry, and the demand being subsequently stimulated by favorable telegrams from New York, the movement continued animated throughout the day, and resulted in sales of 2,950 bales at a further improvement of ¼ to ½c., to which we have conformed our quotations. Prices, nevertheless, showed considerable irregularity, factors occasionally realizing, toward the close, ⅛c. more than they were willing to accept early in the morning.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 5,200 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 789,108 bales, against 580,016 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 83,260 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 22,664 bales to France, and of 5,955 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 258,119 to Great Britain.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary	26	to 27¼
Good ordinary	28¼	to 28¾
Low middling	29¼	to 30
Middling	30½	to 31
Strict middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales		1959
Arrived past three days	2038
Arrived previously	816947
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc	0112	828097
		830056
Exported past three days	8352
Exported previously	787234	795586
Stock on hand and on shipboard		34470

Sugar.—The movement in this article continues on a rather limited scale. The light receipts of fresh have been mostly sold, but at rather easier prices, while the demand from second hands has not improved. The transactions on Saturday and Monday were confined to 75 hogsheads, at 5¼ to 6c. per pound for cistern bottoms, 10¾c. for good common, and 10½ to 11¾c. for good fair.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, June 15, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head	25 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head	10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	10 to 11c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$4 to 5
Sheep, second quality, per head	3 to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to —
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	8 to 12
Calves, per head	8 to 12

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Foot's Plows and Scrapers	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	23½	24½
East India	..	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	..	8½
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	1 15	...
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50	...
Crackers	6 00	...
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fire	85 00	100 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	..	..
Tallow	..	..
Adamantine	15	21½
Star	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl	....	....
Northern	13 00	....
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	9 50	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14	16¾
Havana	..	..
Java	....	....
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	37	38
Sheathing	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow metal	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23½	24½
Tarred, American	.. ..	21
Russia	30	....
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	4 50	4 75
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	18	20
Feathers, ₩ lb	90	95
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	1 70	.. ..
Herrings	70	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	.. ..	29 00
No. 2	.. ..	22 50
No. 3	15 00	16 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	....	4 6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	5 87½	6 00
Extra	6 12½	11 50
Fine	5 00	.. ..
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	..	..
Currants, Zante	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell	26	..
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
Layer	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₩ box	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 20	2 50
Canada	2 60	2 90
Oats	72	74
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	95	1 00
Beans, ₩ bbl	8 00	12 00
Hops, ₩ lb	8	12
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	26 00	27 00
Northern	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	17	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	8	13
Kip Skins	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country	17	18
Pelts ₩ piece	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	0
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6½	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	0	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	35	65
Muscovado	..	..
Refinery, Reboiled	60	80
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	2	3½
Black do	5	6
Select, water rotted	7	8
Nails, Am: 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German	14	16
English	14	16
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	1 25	4 00
Pitch	2 50	.. ..
Rosin A No. 1	3 00	5 00
No. 2	2 00	2 25
No. 3	.. ..	1 75
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	40	42½
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 35	1 40
Coal Oil	34	36
in cases	44	48
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed	35 00	.. ..
Meal	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	19 00	.. ..
" North half bbl	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₩ lb	..	..
Tongues ₩ doz	..	..
Pork, Mess	.. ..	34 50
Prime Mess	.. ..	.. ..
Hog, round, ₩ lb	.. ..	..
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	17½	18
Do., canvassed	19	20½
Sides	18½	19
Shoulders	..	15
Green Shoulders	13½	13½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	19	19½
in kegs	20½	21
Fair, in tierces	.. ..	17
Butter, Northern	35	40
Western	25	35
Cheese, American	15	19
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	1 50	2 00
Onions	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	7	10
India	..	..
Carolina	..	..
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	..	..
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	..	..
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	8	12
Southern	6	10½
Castile	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	6	15½
Havana, White	15	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters	—	—
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	9	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refused	7	10
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	—	—
Bailing	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	40
Burry	14	18
Louisiana, Native	24	27
Texas, @ Maine	26	31

SPECIAL NOTICES.

TUSCALOOSA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Tuscaloosa district, Mobile Conference, will be held in Marion, commencing August 5. Bishop Pierce will preside.

Jas. L. Cotten, P. E.

UNION SPRINGS DISTRICT MEETING

The district meeting for Union Springs district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Brundidge, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday, August 25. The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M., by Rev. S. F. Pilley.

J. W. Shores, P. E.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Starkville district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Valden, on the Central railroad, embracing the fourth Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before, at eleven o'clock.

The official members of the district are invited to be at their post at that time. The good people of Valden will take care of all. Visiting brethren are invited to come and help us.

K. A. Jones, P. E.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. Wilson, P. E.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Anson West, P. E.

Meridian District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Meridian	July 17, 18
Penree's Springs, at Bethel	24, 25
Shuhuta and Wayneshoro, at Shuhuta	31, Aug. 1
Clarke, at Salem	Aug. 7, 8
Gaston	14, 15
Butler	21, 22
Belmont, at Wesley Chapel	28, 29
Livingston	Sept. 4, 5
Bladon Springs, at Kizer Hill	11, 12
Enterprise ct., at Jacob's Ch'l	18, 19

Joshua T. Heard, P. E.

Jackson Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson station	July 3, 4
Terry, at Forest Hill	10, 11
Clinton, at Chapel Hill	17, 18
Canton station	24, 25
Camden, at Forest Grove	31, Aug. 1
Sharon, at Thornton	Aug. 7, 8
Vernon and Livingston, at Vernon	14, 15
Charthage, at Conway	21, 22
Madisouville, at Pearl river	Sept. 18, 19
District conference, Raymond	Aug. 26

R. Abbey, P. E.

Wetumpka Dist., Montgomery Confer'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wetumpka	June 12, 13
Pruttville	19, 20
Autaugaville and Ivy Creek, at Ivy Creek	26, 27
Lowndesboro, Hayneville and Union, at Union	July 3, 4
Pleasant Hill ct., at Elwood	10, 11
Tallassee ct., at Oak Valley	17, 18
Socopatoy ct., at Socopatoy	24, 25
Carolina ct., at Rehoboth	Aug. 7, 8
Autauga ct., at Pine Level	14, 15

At the request of the district meeting I will preach on the Support of the Ministry, and solicit contributions for foreign missions at these quarterly meetings.

Wm. S. Turner, P. E.

Lafayette Dist., Montgomery Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Montevallo	July 17, 18
Montevallo ct., at New Salem	24, 25
Dudeville circuit, Dadeville	31
Lafayette ct., Sandy Ridge	Aug. 7, 8
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, Standing Rock	14, 15
Arbacoocheo ct., Hurricane	21, 22
Marble Valley circuit	28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit	Sept. 4, 5
Pinckneyville ct., McGuire's Chapel	11, 12
Lineville ct., Mt. Pleasant	18, 19

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs	May 29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit	June 5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station	12, 13
Brookhaven station	19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandyw'e.	July 3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard	10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val	17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground	24, 25
Burtonton ct., at Tabernacle	31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda	Aug. 7, 8
Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst	14, 15

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville	June 19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove	26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara	July 4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon	17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington	24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer	Aug. 8, 9
Meadville	15, 16
Buffalo	22, 23
Percy Creek	28, 29
Liberty	Sept. 4, 5

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

New Orleans Dist. Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers	May 9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.	10
German churches: at Craps st	16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st	21
Jefferson City	23
Plaquemine	30
Felicity street	June 6
Thibodeaux	13
Carondelet street	27
Baton Rouge	July 18
Morenu street	25

J. C. Keener, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART,
my22 President.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
Mebaneville, N. C.

The Spring Session of 1869 opens February 3.

The course of instruction is Classical, Mathematical and Commercial.

Expenses for one year, including tuition, board, fuel, washing and clothing....$355 00
For circular address
ja2 1m COL. WM. BINGHAM.

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and Heating Stoves of all kinds.
le13 6m

H. P. BUCKLEY,

No. 8.....CAMP STREET.....No. 8

New Orleans,

WATCHMAKER,

And dealer in

WATCHES, JEWELRY, SILVERWARE AND SPECTACLES.

Also, Guns and Pistols, and everything in the hunting line.

Special attention given to Watch Repairing and Jewelry work.

Mr. Bailey, for many years Gunmaker of Chartres street, offers his services in every branch of Gun and Pistol Repairing at this house. no14 6m

JOHN O. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 37 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months	$150 00
Fuel	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department	40 00
Music	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.
For particulars apply to
B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,
Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
dc12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.
A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....74

New Orleans,

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes:

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Dowaer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflammable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—234 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street.
oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, Virginia.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
de12 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address
H. F. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE Academy.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Olimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.
mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sept

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 23.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 737.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The case of William T. Smithson against Edwin M. Stanton is expected to coms before the Supreme Court of this district to-morrow, upon a motion of the plaintiff to produce certain original letters. Smithson, who is a citizen of Washington, sues Stanton for damages, laid at $10,000, for trespass and false imprisonment. He alleges that Stanton, in 1863, while Secretary of War, caused him to be imprisoned at Fort Lafayette, where he remained four months, and was then released, there being no grounds for holding him; that afterward Stanton again caused his arrest as a spy; had him tried before a court martial, by which he was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and then sent him to the Albany Penitentiary, where he remained one year, and was then released by President Lincoln. In the meantims his property waa seized, and his family turned out of the house and dispossessed of their furniture. Plaintiff alleges that there were no grounds for the proceeding, and that the letters used on trial were forgeries got up expressly to make a case against him. He moves that the original be brought into court for inspection.

The defense sets forth that Smithson acted as a spy, gave information to the enemy, and advised an assault on the capital; that he wrote treasonable letters in 1861, under the assumed name of Charles R. Cables; that he acted as a financial agent for the enemy, and raised money on bills of credit; that he was so engaged before the time of the alleged assault and imprisonment; that at that time this district was under martial law, and he (Stanton) being then Secretary of War, and believing the above recited facts, caused the arrest, and by the advice of the Judge Advocate General and Solicitor of the War Department, had Smithson tried before a court martial on the 2d day of October, 1863, on a charge of holding correspondence with and giving intelligence to the enemy; that he was found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment for five years in the penitentiary; that the sentence was approved, and that Smithson was imprisoned in the Albany Penitentiary until November, 1864, when he was released, by order of President Lincoln, but not pardoned, the sentence being held against him as surety for his good behavior. As to the alleged breaking and entering the dwelling of the plaintiff, in the city of Washington, and ejecting, and putting out, and removing his family and servants from the possession and use thereof, and as to the seizing of the furniture, the defendant says that the plaintiff should not recover, because, by virtue of the act of Congress of July 15, 1862, to punish treason and confiscate the property of rebels, it was enacted that the property and effects of rebels should be seized. The act was done as Secretary of War, and he is protected by the fourth section of the act of Congress of March 3, 1863, that any order of the President or officers under his authority, during the rebellion, shall be a defense in all courts to any suits for any such seizure, arrest or imprisonment made, done or committed by virtue of such orders.

It is expected the trial will be a very interesting one, it being the intention of the plaintiff to make it a test case, and he will carry it up to the Supreme Court in the event of an adverse decision.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Commissioner Wilson has received, through the register of the Land Office at San Francisco, California, information setting forth the discovery of a valuable mine of cinnabar, about twenty five miles northeast of the city of San Francisco, in township north of range one, east of Mount Diablo meridian.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Haytien advices indicate the unfavorable reception of Bassett as the only minister resident. He outranks the representatives of England, France, and Spain, who are gentlemen of high social position, and are not at all pleased with the prospect of a colored confrere. Nor are the American consul and other officials delighted at having a colored chief. It is understood that Salnave is also displeased, and asked why colored men were not sent to represent the United States in England and France.

It is the general opinion that if the Democrats run General Hancock they will carry Pennsylvania.—Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The arrests of the friends of Cuba in New York and other cities by order of Secretary Fish were made to strengthen Minister Motley in the settlement of the Alabama question. The fact of the indictment and arrests was telegraphed to England by government officials before it was known outside the marshal's office in New York that any arrests had been made, and one or two English journals contained leaders on the subject simultaneously with the announcement of the indictment and arrests in the papers of this country.—Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Cuban affairs have never been the subject of consultation, though occasionally the theme of conversation in the cabinet, nor in the present aspect of affairs is official action probable. The government has no information that the opposing forces in Cuba ever met in open field, but that the little fighting that has been done amounts to nothing more than skirmishes, and operations are confined to a few inland points. In this view of the case no member of the cabinet has expressed any desire or hinted at recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cubans.

The Spanish minister has been informed that while the government will enforce the neutrality laws, it and the people sympathize with the Cubans.

The Spanish minister has been placed in direct communication with the United States attorneys and marshals, so that he may furnish them information enabling them to enforce instructions issued months ago to intercept the sailing of hostile vessels. The recent arrests were made on information furnished through Spanish sources, and are mainly attributable to the open boastings of the Cubans of their success in landing men and arms.

Webb has been telling Fish that the Brazilians have no more respect for us than for Hayti, and suggests that we thrash them.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Yesterday six important arrests of Cuban leaders were made by Marshal Barlow, comprising the following named persons: Ignatio Alfaro, general of the northern division of the Cuban provincial army; Colonel W. O'C. Ryan, chief of the recruiting service; Captain Felix Von Stonberg, Captain Ackerman, Captain Joseph Peters, and Captain Linderf.

Secretary Fish ordered active measures to secure all the leaders.

Ryan was to command an expedition of one thousand men, which intended to depart to-night or to-morrow morning with arms and ammunition, it is supposed, to join the Quaker City, which is believed to be lying off the coast. Ryan and Peters were first taken as they were entering a carriage from the Casino, their headquarters, on Houston street, near Mulberry. They offered no resistance.

Ackerman, Von Stonberg, and Linderf were afterward arrested at the Casino, where quite a row took place with the volunteers under their influence; whilst they were attempting to prevent the capture the marshal was obliged to use force. Bail was refused for Ryan, and he will be examined to-morrow.

It is understood that Secretary Boutwell will to-morrow appoint a successor to Assistant Treasurer Van Dyck, who tendered his resignation some months ago.

An order was entered in the Superior Court directing the Trust Company to pay alimony to Mrs. Forrest semi-annually hereafter, which obviates the necessity of special semi-annual orders heretofore granted.

All the Cubans except Ryan have been bailed.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Several cases of yellow fever and one death are reported on board the Saratoga.

EUROPE.

FRANCE.—The full accounts of the Paris election which we received by steamer show that the aggregate vote for the candidates of the opposition was much larger than it had been at any previous election. The official candidates together received only sixty-six thousand votes, while two hundred and twenty-nine thousand votes were cast for the candidates of the opposition. All the nine members for Paris, except Thiers, are Republicans, some of them of the most Radical school. Rochefort, the editor of the Lanterne, was, at the supplementary election, defeated. Altogether the opposition has polled a much larger vote, and it is said that the government thinks some concessions to the Liberal party indispensable.

SPAIN.—The Constituent Cortes finally adopted the constitution by a vote of two hundred and fourteen affirmatives against fifty-five negatives. Senor Figueros, in the name of the Republicans, declared they would support it.

The new Constitution of Spain was promulgated in Madrid, on June 5th, with great pomp. The members of the Executive Council and the deputies to the Cortes proceeded from the chamber to a platform which was erected in front of the halls of Congress. There the secretary of the Cortes read the Constitution. It was received with loud cheers by an immense concourse of people gathered in front of the platform. On retiring to the chamber, the deputies each took the oath to support and protect the Constitution. When the deputies were retiring from the platform some hisses were heard in the street, and a tumult ensued among the crowd. The disturbance was increasing and threatened to become serious in spite of the efforts of the troops to put a stop to it, when the military governor of the city appeared and with great presence of mind rushed among the foremost rioters, shouting, "Viva Soverania Nacional." This changed the feeling of the fluctuating mob, who joined in cheering the governor, and the tumult subsided. Only two men were killed, and several were wounded. The deputies subsequently returned to the platform and witnessed a grand military review. Over thirty thousand troops filed past. The enthusiasm manifested on all sides was very great. It was noticed, however, that none of the Republican deputies participated in the proceedings. The review terminated with a salute of fifty guns. A civic procession followed during the afternoon, and in the evening there was a grand banquet and exhibition of fireworks. At least one hundred thousand visitors from the country were in Madrid during the day to attend the celebration. The remains of several Spanish celebrities have arrived here for deposition in the Pantheon.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MEMPHIS, June 21.—The Richmond passed down yesterday with twelve hundred hogsheads of tobacco and a large miscellaneous cargo. She was also full of passengers.

The Virginia, coming up, broke her larboard shaft above Vicksburg. A few miles below here she broke her starboard shaft, and now lies tied to the bank at Island Forty.

The Magenta passed down this evening, loaded to the guards.

Governor Senter has ordered the withdrawal and will immediately disband the militia now at Brownsville, Humboldt, and Clarksville. He also has relieved Williams, the register of this county, and commissioned in his stead John S. Bonghner, a gentleman well worthy of the appointment. Surely the good work has begun in earnest.—Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Dates from the city of Mexico, to the 14th instant, have been received. Minister Nelson had arrived. The authorities at Acapulco had a difficulty with the United States steamer Pensacola. An order was served on the commander. Without paying attention to the order the Pensacola sailed the next day.

Troubles in Queretaro are increasing. The Federal troops in Michoacan and Guanajuato have been ordered to reinforce the troops at Queretaro.

Much excitement exists over the elections. The Two Republics newspaper predicts that the government will carry the day. Tejada allows the church many privileges and will gain its aid in the elections. A revolution is on foot at Guadalajara. General Placido Vega had arrived at Tepic. General Lozada has issued an order for the division of lands and haciendas among the Indians. This is looked upon as the beginning of a war of races. Owing to the vigorous measures of the government kidnapping is on the decrease. The latest news from Queretaro reports that the Federal party have displaced the State officers and are executing prisoners for treason.

ATLANTA, GA., June 22.—The Supreme Court of Georgia to-day decided that the code of Georgia, adopted by the new constitution, forever prohibits the marriage relation between white persons and persons of African descent, and declares such marriages null and void.

Also, that this section of the code is not repealed by nor is it inconsistent with that part of the constitution which declares that the social status of the citizen shall never be the subject of legislation. That clause of the constitution absolutely denies to the Legislature the power to pass laws in future regulating the social status of or compelling the two races to unite in social intercourse.

As the laws then in existence allowed churches, for instance, to determine for themselves who should occupy their seats and where they should sit; and permitted railroads, steamboat companies, and hotel keepers to classify and assign places to those using their accommodations, according to social status and grade, as they might think proper, the constitution puts it beyond the power of the Legislature ever to enact any law compelling them to make different classifications, or to group together in social intercourse those who do not recognize each other as equals. As the social relations are not proper subjects for legislation, the constitution has wisely put the matter at rest by denying to the Legislature the power to repeal or enact laws upon the subject.

FORTRESS MONROE, June 22.—A schooner from Matanzas for Baltimore put in here to-day with yellow fever on board. The captain and cook died to-day. The second mate is convalescent.

NASHVILLE, June 23.—Attorney General Tuthill called at the office of Mr. Grisham, editor of the Stokes organ, yesterday, and asked him whether he was responsible for an article which appeared in the first number of the paper, spanking of him in opprobrious terms. Grisham replied that he was, when Tuthill drew a repeater and fired at Grisham without effect. Grisham thereupon struck down the pistol, and grappling with Tuthill, beat him severely.

In the paper, this evening, he charges Tuthill with an attempt to assassinate him.

The affair creates no little excitement, but will not, it is presumed, lead to further difficulty.—Times.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD MEETING IN HOUSTON.—The Houston Telegraph, of June 15, says:

The representatives of the Chattanooga, Mobile and New Orleans Company, and the capitalists who constructed the Union Pacific Railroad from Omaha west, having reached Houston yesterday en route for New York, from a tour of observation in the western part of Texas, have, upon our personal solicitation and that of many other gentlemen, consented to remain over to-day and give our people a resume of their plans and purposes in the extension of the Chattanooga, Mobile and New Orleans Railroad from the Louisiana line through our State to the Rio Grande, at three P. M., at the court house in this city.

No DEMOCRAT'S life is safe in Jefferson City. The police seem to be an ungovernable body of men who at any moment may arrest and beat with their clubs any citizen, and will be held guiltless by their employers, as on former occasions fresh in our memory. They seem to consider themselves beyond the limit of all restraint, and do not hesitate to insult and abuse any one that they deem opposed to them. We submit it to Governor Warmoth if such a state of affairs is likely to create respect for him or his authority. If the Metropolitans are to be thrust forcibly upon Jefferson City, let them at least be controlled.—Picayune.

TEXAS POLITICS.—A prominent Texan in this city says all accounts from the Texas convention agree that delegates from only seventeen counties were present in the convention; that it was not called by the regular organization, but by holters. Flake's Bulletin, in a long leader, reviews the facts, and asserts that General Davis does not expect to be elected, but only means to defeat the constitution. The Bulletin, for the first time, declares for Hamilton, and says the good of the country requires his election.

MILITARY AID TO REVENUE OFFICERS.—General Sherman has directed the military, in all cases where the force can be spared, to render all the assistance in their power to the revenue officers, in their endeavors to enforce the revenue laws against the violators in Tennessee, Kentucky, and North Carolina—such assistance to be rendered only after the civil officers have been resisted in discharging their duty.

THE FALSE IMPRISONMENT SUIT AGAINST STANTON.—In the District Court, in the case of W. T. Smithson vs. Edwin M. Stanton, an action of $50,000 for false arrest and imprisonment, Judge Hughes filed a motion for inspection of orders, letters, and documents referred to in the pleas of defendant, and Judge Wylie reserved his decision.

RESOLVED.

It does not cost much thought, nor labor, nor time to write out and vote for a resolution in our annual Conferences. And, perhaps, because it is so we pass so many of them, and carry out the spirit and design of so few of them.

It seems to me it is time to resolve less and act more, especially so in the Mississippi Conference.

Several years ago a resolution that required every preacher to take up a collection to aid in the education of the sons of our ministers was passed, and it was thought every preacher would certainly carry out the letter of it; but when the call was made at the next session only two preachers had made the collection!

At our last session March was set as one of the months for lifting the missionary collections for foreign and domestic missions. We were also expected to try and support Brother Lambuth, who is laboring in China. It was expected that the first collection would be for him. The amounts collected were to be sent to me, that I might buy a bill of exchange and forward to him. But after all this, and all that has been said through the ADVOCATE on the subject by myself, Brother Lambuth, and Dr. Keener, I have received responses from but eight charges,* in amounts ranging from $1 50 to $87 60, and in all only $263 on his salary, which I have forwarded to him, and which he will not receive before the month of August. There are over ninety pastoral charges in the Mississippi Conference, and but eight have as yet responded to this call, while the most favorable time of the year for this collection has passed. Will the brethren try to carry out the intention of the resolution of the Conference on this subject, and forward to me at an early date, that I may be enabled to remit to Brother Lambuth? The Board of Foreign Missions is devoting all its means to liquidating the debt hanging over it, and have left the support of those brethren in China to themselves and their respective Conferences. They are doing hard work in China; and we ought to do our duty to Brother Lambuth.

I shall hope to get a response from every pastoral charge. Shall I be disappointed? Cannot you send me an average of $10 to $25 from every charge before Conference for this object? Try it.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

* Only seven beside my own charge.

FROM IOWA.

HAMBURG, FREMONT CO., IOWA, June 12, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: I write at a depot on the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs railroad, four hundred miles from St. Louis, northwest, in the midst of a rapidly thriving, prosperous country, where everything is moving ahead. How unlike the South. There the whole country seems to be falling back toward a state of nature. Sixty miles from here, at and about the newly located capital of Nebraska, lands in a state of nature sold, a few days since, (at a State sale,) at from $7 to $42 per acre, (none for less than $7,) with little or no timber within fifty miles; and in the South many of the lands can be bought for less than the value of the improvements. Here railroads are being projected, being built, and being run in every direction. Hamburg is fifty miles south from Omaha. There will be two railroads, running east and west, between this and Omaha, one nearly finished across the State three hundred miles, and the other just contracted for; and then at Omaha is the Union Pacific railroad, running from Chicago to California. This country is improving rapidly.

Why is the South just the reverse? Answer: There was the war and surrender and bad legislation. All this is true; but there is something worse still. What's that? It is drink and extravagance, and unless the South quits both she will enslave her posterity. I am informed the internal revenue returns show many millions expended for liquor since the surrender—enough to place the South in a very different position.

A SUBSCRIBER.

ARE we never to have done with the military? Must the gleam of the sabre and the glint of the bayonet meet us which way soever we turn? Are the people of Louisiana to have no further right to govern themselves, and are they expected to be content with a State government which accords them none of the few privileges left them? If we are to be ruled by the man on horseback, then it were as well to declare the fact and do away with the hypocrisy of "law."

On Tuesday, we are credibly informed, the military were again called into requisition by Warmoth for the purpose of resisting a force that had no existence save in the heated imagination of men who naturally feel insecure in their positions.

The frequent calling out of the military, especially when the material of the force is known to be antagonistic to the white people of the State, is an insult to all law-abiding white citizens, and proves how conscious the accidental occupants of State offices are that they represent no one but themselves and a very few political partisans.

It is a pitiable sight indeed to see the Governor of Louisiana, instead of executing the laws of the State, lending himself to a faction which is violating the mandate of a State court and all law. He is rapidly and effectually, by his course, estranging from himself the few friends he may have made.—Picayune.

BOYS TORN TO PIECES BY A PANTHER. The Louisville Courier-Journal relates the following circumstance:

A man living in Taney county, Missouri, recently sent his boy to mill, a distance of ten or twelve miles, and the boy not returning as usual, a neighbor sent his boy to see what had become of the lad, and the second boy not returning in due season, a party, consisting of the parents of the two boys and three or four other men, all armed, started to search for the youths. After traveling some four miles, a sight sufficient to chill the blood of the bravest was presented to their view. Right by the side of the road was a large panther deliberately tearing the flesh from the remains of one of the boys—the last sent out. The grief and horror-stricken parent raised his gun to his shoulder, and taking good aim, fired and killed the ferocious beast. After searching a mile or so more the mutilated remains of the other boy were also found.

A TOWN OF THREE MONTHS' GROWTH. The town of Corinne, the last of the mushroom cities that sprang up and vanished as the Union Pacific Railroad progressed, seems likely to become a permanent city. Though not more than three months old, it has upwards of ten thousand inhabitants, a municipal organization, several hotels, dry goods, auction, and commission stores, a banking house and a daily paper. The streets have been numbered as high as "thirteen," and municipal ordinances looking to the health and cleanliness of the city are enforced by efficient police. The daily paper is crowded with advertising, and indicates exceeding activity in business. Corinne must be set down as one of the wonders of the interior.

THERE is in England a South American Missionary Society, which last year raised and expended over $50,000. It was originated by a sea captain, who was greatly interested in an effort to evangelize the Patagonians, and whose tragic death by starvation on his last return to Patagonia only excited greater interest in the work. His son is now in Patagonia as a missionary.

NECESSARY QUALIFICATION FOR MARRIAGE.—In the far north of Scotland, not long ago, a man was required to repeat the Shorter Catechism when he applied for marriage. If he could not do it, the session demanded "cautioners," or sureties, to the amount of twelve pounds Scots, that he would acquire it within six months after his marriage.

TENNYSON has a printing office in his house, and sends his work to his publishers in type.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1869.

RIPE WHEAT.

We bent to-day o'er a coffined form,
And our tears fell softly down;
We looked our last on the aged face,
With its look of peace, its patient grace,
And hair like a silver crown.

We touched our own to the clay-cold hands,
From life's long labor at rest;
And among the blossoms, white and sweet,
We noted a bunch of golden wheat
Clasped close to the silent breast.

The blossoms whispered of fadeless bloom,
Of a land where fall no tears;
The ripe wheat told of toil and care,
The patient waiting, the trusting prayer,
The garnered good of the years.

We knew not what work her hands had found,
What rugged places her feet;
What cross was hers, what blackness of night;
We saw but the peace, the blossoms white,
And the bunch of ripened wheat.

As each goes up from the fields of earth,
Bearing the treasures of life,
God looks for some gathered grain of good,
From the ripe harvest that shining stood,
But waiting the reaper's knife.

Then labor well, that in death you go
Not only with blossoms sweet—
Not bent with doubt, and burdened with fears,
And dead, dry husks of the wasted years—
But laden with golden wheat.

The Pulpit as Viewed from a Pew.

NUMBER FIVE.

AUTAUGAVILLE, ALA., May 8, 1869.

Passing now from the consideration of the character of our pulpit ministrations proper, we bespeak your patience while we refer to one or two embarrassments under which the church labors from an improper administration of discipline.

Think you that a proper regard has been paid to the character of those admitted to her fellowship? Have not our ministry too often been inclined to estimate our strength by numerical superiority rather than by an elevated standard of individual piety? Within the pale of the church are there not a great many who ought to have been refused admission until better assurances were given of conformity to her requirements? The test of spiritual attainments which the church furnished by her class meetings seems now-a-days to be almost entirely ignored.—The probationary privilege is one of great value when associated with these tests, but disconnected from them is a dangerous, damaging provision in her economy.—During occasions of revival there are many persons, moved by the influences around them, who seek membership in the church, and soon, in their calmer hours, become impressed with the conviction that impulse, more than fixed conclusion, prompted the step, and would retrace it were it not for fear of the criticisms of the world. In the absence of any test, they are permitted to remain, and through the restraints of a nominal membership they pursue a course of conduct that in no wise exceeds the demands of the moral law. From this policy results the diminished standard of piety in the church. From it comes much of the difficulty in rendering the church aggressive. To it is attributable the seeming ground of compromise between the church and world—a ground upon which the church loses all and gains nothing. Not only do these nominal members reduce the standard of religion by their individual course of action, but their influence extends prejudicially to those who would aspire to higher attainments in the church, and to some, perhaps, who, but for their example, might unite with it and become useful members. The pulpit, it is feared, also feels the influence, and preachers adapt their discourses to the tastes of this class, and too often content themselves with the evidences of success which their approval affords. We repeat, without the test of qualification furnished by the class meeting, the probationary state and admission to membership should be more carefully protected. The church has suffered, and will continue to do so as long as the practice continues of estimating strength by numbers instead of qualifications.

The haste with which applicants are admitted to church privileges might be, in some degree, excused were our preachers better pastors, and more inclined to give their attention to those thus initiated. In some cases—in many, perhaps—they would be able, by their counsel, to enable them to take position above this nominal relation to the church. But unfortunately they are too much neglected. The ministry seem content with the partial duty of calling sinners to repentance, and fail to address themselves to the task of teaching and encouraging the members with a view to the development and growth of a more intelligent evangelical faith.

An editor of one of our Advocates has said that "the preacher may as well shut his Bible and end his mission if he attempts to call sinners to repentance when they can look around and see a score or two of church members as worldly, as covetous, as fond of pleasure, and as much under the influence of sinful passions and principle as themselves." And a bishop declares that "a carnal, prayerless, careless, whisky-drinking church will neutralize the labors of the most efficient ministry on earth."

To the idea inculcated here we cannot subscribe. We are taught that the Gospel is aggressive—that it seeks contact and conflict with sin; and while we are told that it wrestles against powers and principalities, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual wickedness in high places, we have the promise assuring us that it shall stand against all the wiles of the Devil. When Peter and John were brought before the rulers, elders, and scribes, together with the high priest and his kindred, for preaching the doctrine of repentance and conversion, they hesitated not to declare the whole counsel of God, but preached boldly, both to the rulers of the people and the elders of Israel; and the result was the presence and influence of the Holy Spirit in strengthening the church both in numbers and spirituality. Let our preachers divest themselves of the practice of sermonizing; let them approach the masses in the language of earnest sympathy and in the spiritual garb of apostolic simplicity, and let them exhort the people, by repentance and faith, to seek remission of their sins and salvation in Christ, and the time will speedily come when the membership of the church will no longer be regarded as stumbling blocks in the way of sinners, and when our ministry will be able to feel that the Gospel has an inherent power to overcome not only the apathy of the church, but to infuse into it a vitality that will render it aggressive in all its means and instrumentalities.

A CHURCH STEWARD.

THE following anecdote, from an old author, bearing, as it does, on the language of diplomacy, may be of interest to the masters of the department of modern languages in our public schools, and to their pupils also: "During the war between England and Spain, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, commissioners on both sides were appointed to treat of peace. The Spanish commissioners proposed that the negotiations should be carried on in the French tongue, observing sarcastically that the gentlemen of England could not be ignorant of the language of their fellow-subjects, their Queen being Queen of France as well as England. 'Nay, in faith, gentlemen,' replied Dr. Dale, one of the English commissioners, 'the French is too vulgar for business of this importance; we will, therefore, if you please, rather treat in Hebrew, the language of Jerusalem, of which your master calls himself King, and in which you must of course be as well skilled as we are in French.'"

KNOWLEDGE AND PEACE.

Without revelation man is ignorant of God—uncertain even of His existence. Man is totally ignorant of the Divine unity, and hence "Lords many and Gods many."—Man is also utterly ignorant of the moral attributes of God, His holiness and love, and of His claims upon us as His created, preserved, and redeemed subjects. But God has not left us to the starless night of unilluminated nature. He has given His creature a revelation of himself, so that we may know the great Being who has given us our existence—may know what we were when we came from His creating hand, and why we are now sinful, suffering, and dying—may know our duty, our privileges, and our destiny. Traditional reminiscences of this revelation are scattered over all the earth, but, like the "foolish virgins," whole nations and races have permitted "their lamps" to burn dim and almost expire.

With regard to the spiritual apprehension of God there is, even in Christian lands, a widespread and deplorable ignorance. How few comparatively know God as their Saviour, pardoning their sins and regenerating their natures, and comforting them by His love, shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto them.

This spiritual knowledge of God can only be had by means of God's word and the operations of God's spirit, and our reception of the truth—sincere repentance, and trust in Christ as our only and all-sufficient Saviour. This spiritual acquaintance with God is the privilege of all, and is an unspeakable blessing. There are few things more wonderful than that man, having it in their power to know God as He has revealed himself in His word, and is willing to reveal himself still more intimately in their hearts by His spirit, should be content to remain strangers to the greatest and best of Beings. To admire God's works without admiring Him is like admiring the binding and gilding of a volume of Homer or Milton without admiring or caring to know aught of the imperishable and glorious thoughts within. God is purer than light, more resplendent than the sun, better and more lovely than angelic natures, and, dearest and best of all, "our Father."

Acquaint thyself with Him and be at peace. No man who recognizes the fact that he is a sinner, and that God is holy, can ever be happy, ever be at peace with himself or with God, until his sins are pardoned. He must ever feel that there is a great gulf between himself and God. No man, no matter how prosperous or fortunate, can think of God, and feel that he is unprepared to meet Him, without at once feeling that all his imaginary peace and security have fled like the visions of a dream when the light of day has burst upon him. No matter how honorable or admired, if we have not peace with God, one sober thought of eternity, a deep shadow falls upon the brightness of all our earthly circumstances. No matter how strong in manly health or radiant in womanly beauty, one solemn thought of coming to that tremendous hour that comes to all, without peace with God, and in a moment all our happiness is gone.

We may try what plans we can, and put off the great business of life as long as Providence permits, but we shall find, after all, that peace with God is the grand necessity of our nature. While enemies to God we are out of harmony with all things in the universe—out of harmony with ourselves. Discord reigns everywhere. In such a state we can no more be happy than we can arrest the march of a planet or hurl the Eternal from His throne.

Peace with God is a most blessed condition. I am no longer an enemy—I am in harmony with God, with myself, with all things. Good shall come to me, for I shall escape the evils of sin, often crime and sorrow, and always unrest and fear. While in harmony with God all things shall work together for my good. I move on the same plane with Providence. There is no jar, no friction, no collision, but all is uniform, harmonious, and beneficent as a law of nature. Such a mind feels, in the contemplation of each event in life, "It is the Lord let him do that which seemeth Him good"—exclaims of all the ways of God, "Thy will be done." Such a mind is stayed on God, is "careful for nothing," need never fear, "though the earth be removed, and though the mountain be carried into the midst of the sea," for "the Lord of hosts is with him, and the God of Jacob is his refuge." Such a mind can say:

"Let cares like a wild deluge come,
Let storms of sorrow fall,"

God, my Father, "hath His way in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of His feet." Such a mind can say, like the holy woman of old in the day of deepest bereavement and sorrow, "It is well." Such is the happiness flowing from peace with God.

W.

To the Younger Members of My Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN: Another matter which is perhaps confessedly of great importance to our usefulness is that we carefully refrain from all strife and quarrel with other churches. This is at least dignified, maintains our self-respect, enables us to maintain the vantage-ground we reach, and is not liable to objections from those who differ with us.

The outside public have got the notion, gathered up from hasty, shallow sectarians, that preaching is arguing about isms. Let this notion be dispelled. Let them learn that preaching is expounding and enforcing the great divine constitution. Let them learn that ours is a higher work than mere defense of our church. Do not undertake to defend Methodism. Let it go to the dogs if it needs to be defended. Ours is a higher work.

The remark recently made, in the Nashville Advocate, by the Rev. Dr. Kelly, of Tennessee, about the worship which he witnessed in the Methodist church at Vicksburg, whatever might have been intended, was a doubtful compliment. The doctor said he should not have known, from what he saw, whether it was a Methodist church or not. Now, if this lack of knowing was from a lack of outside ear-marks, it was a compliment; but if because he saw only the average congregational piety, it was not.

Let our ministry and church be distinguished for its piety, for its zeal for God, for its labors, for its self-denial, for its leadership in apostolic holiness, because it don't seek its own nor strive to build itself, and not because of its peculiarities. Let us "leave disputes and strife to others."

What is Methodism? Analyze the word a little. But we use the term not philologically, but popularly. It ought to describe a structure reared upon the broad basis of the Gospel, occupying every inch of its surface, and not merely some of its surveyed departments. It ought to stand above controversies which are merely sectarian.

Many years ago I was upon a steamboat where no one knew me. A group of gentlemen were discussing the character of a book they were reading, which I chanced to see was a little treatise of my own on the Apostolic Succession. The point was, What church did the author belong to? One was almost sure he was a Baptist, another had him a Presbyterian, a third a Low Church Episcopalian, etc. That was the highest compliment I ever knew paid me as a writer. I hope they have not yet discovered the author's sectarianism.

"What!" says one, "not defend our doctrines?" Defend doctrines? Is that all? And is sectarian controversy for the defense of doctrines? There is little if anything else going on in this world but the defense of doctrine. That is not the question, whether doctrines shall be defended or not. The question is, How shall it be done? There are more ways than one to defend doctrines.

The best way to promote religious truth, by argumentation, is to specify nothing about the opposite errors. Do not even let it be known that you know of their existence. To approach our opponent with a challenge is to put him strongly on the defensive. Avow yourself his opponent, and that makes him such. Thus you have converted a neutral, or one at most only somewhat inclined to differ from you, into a staunch, wide awake enemy. Or however much he was opposed to you, or whatever may have been the character of his opposition, your challenge and attack strengthens it. Your arguments may be strong, but what does that signify with a man whom you have covered with a coat of mail? Increased logical power avails nothing, because you have increased the means of resistance in a far greater ratio.

I do not know which has done most in this country, and particularly in Kentucky and Tennessee fifteen or twenty years ago, to strengthen and propagate the peculiar immersion doctrines of Baptists, Methodist newspapers or those conducted by Baptists.

The way to propagate and disseminate doctrines is to state and explain them. Enforce them with as much argument as you may or as you can. For the most part, do this affirmatively. Negative arguments are seldom effective, and especially when leveled against such ones as are classified and appropriated by denominations of Christians. Men are far more jealous of their religious opinions and tenets than any others.

Doctrines adopted and appropriated by churches should therefore always be treated with the respect and consideration of silence at least; while the opposite doctrines, held to be true, should be affirmatively stated and enforced, leaving the readers or hearers to make the application. They may do it as you desire; but your attempt to force them directly into it will only drive them from it. In this world we should remember that others have opinions as well as ourselves; and it is at least courteous to pay a decent respect to them.

R. ABBEY.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

AUTAUGAVILLE, Ala., June 10, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: The district meeting for the Wetumpka district, Montgomery Conference, was held at this place May 27, 28, and 29, and was quite a success, considering the thin attendance. In the absence of a bishop, our young presiding elder, W. S. Turner, presided with dignity and decided ability. The pastors of the various charges were generally present, and the business was conducted with great harmony, and spirituality was the distinguishing feature of every sermon.

The meeting endorsed the agent of the East Alabama Male College, and pledged their support to him in his indefatigable labors to relieve the institution from debt; also to the support of all our educational enterprises.

The Sunday School Committee recommended the adoption of some uniform method of teaching throughout the district.

The meeting renewed its pledge to the support of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The Committee on Finance recommended no new measure, but that the stewards carry out the provisions in the report of the Financial Committee of the last Annual Conference.

The various reports from the district exhibit generally peace, but too much ease in Zion.

The following resolutions were recommended and adopted by the Committee on Missions:

Resolved, That we recommend the presiding elder to take up a missionary collection at all his third quarterly meetings on Sabbath.

Resolved, That the Friday before the fifth Sabbath in August be observed by fasting and prayer for the success of missionary enterprises, and a general revival of God's work.

WM. A. EDWARDS, Sec.

A SHOE STRING saved a little girl's life in New Haven the other day. It caught on a nail as she fell out of a third story window, and held her from death until assistance came.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

"Tell me, frighted nature, what is death?
Blood only stopped, and interrupted breath,
The utmost limit of a narrow span,
And end of motion with which life began?"

No strength of constitution can withstand the stroke of death. Brother A. P. Poor yielded to its mighty power on the 16th of March, 1869.

He was born April 25, 1794, in the State of Virginia. From thence, when quite young, he emigrated to Tennessee, where, in 1817, he married Miss Judith W. McGehee. In 1819 he moved to Alabama; and here began a very important epoch in his history.

At a camp meeting held at Cambridge, in 1825, he and his wife made a profession of religion and joined the church. On their return home the family altar was erected, and the morning and evening sacrifices were regularly offered up to the God of all true and living devotion.

In 1837 his wife died, and he was married to Mrs. Delia Freeman, who survives him.

In 1838 he settled in Claiborne county, Mississippi, where he died. Although he moved from place to place, yet he never lost his identity with the church. He was very uniform, and maintained a consistent Christian character. He often shouted aloud the praises of God in the assembly of worshipers. But his religion was not spasmodic. He lived in daily communion with his God.

Although he never occupied a higher station in the church than class leader, yet he was venerated by all who knew him, and in his sphere he was a great and good man—a man who had great unction and power in prayer.

He was conscious of his approaching dissolution. He exhorted those around his death-bed to live devotedly, and sing and pray, and be happy as children of the heavenly King.

W. WADSWORTH.

INTELLECTUAL ABILITY OF THE CHINESE.—In a recent public meeting at Boston, Dr. Hedge quoted a remark of Sir Frederick Bruce to Senator Sumner, to the effect that the Emperor's ministers at Pekin, when he was English embassador there, were the superiors in ability of any European cabinet. "What," said Mr. Sumner, "do you mean to say that Lord Palmerston, Lord Derby, and Mr. Gladstone have their superiors in the Chinese cabinet?" "It is not for me to make such a personal comparison," said Sir Frederick, "but I repeat what I said, that I have not met European statesmen who were the equals of the Chinese ministers." Dr Martin, professor in the college at Pekin, and translator of Wheaton's work on international law into Chinese, corroborated this anecdote by saying that Sir Frederick told him, in regard to the Emperor's prime minister, that he had never met a man that was fairly his superior in intellectual ability. As to the ease with which the Chinese acquire other languages than their own, it was creditable, but by no means remarkable. They could learn to pronounce English and other European languages correctly, though they generally did not. Dr. Proudfit said he had known a Chinese girl of sixteen who spoke English with precision and elegance. She was the daughter of a Chinaman who had put out her eyes in childhood, so that he might make use of her as a beggar; but, being brought to New York and educated carefully in a Christian family, she had learned music and the use of English with great perfection. Prof. Whitney said it was no more difficult for a Chinese child to learn foreign languages than for any child; but, after the vocal organs lost their flexibility and became accustomed to the limited range of vowel sounds in the Chinese tongue, it was not easy for a Chinaman to acquire the pronunciation of English.

THE largest room in the world—larger than the Boston Coliseum—is to be found in Lucknow, India. The great Imanbarra was built by one of the kings of Oudo as a citadel, and one of the rooms was set apart for the most solemn ceremonials of the Moslem worship. The architects were required, in presenting proposals for this building, to stipulate that it should be no copy of any other work, and that it should surpass every other building in the world in beauty and magnificence.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1869.

THE STATE OF THE DEAD.

Mr. Editor: The above is the title of a very readable book of two hundred and fifty-eight pages, just published by A H. Redford, Nashville, written by Rev. Anson West, of the Montgomery Conference. It is handsomely gotten up, and is another proof that Southern authors need not go to the land of philanthropy and wooden nutmegs to get their printing done. My purpose is not to criticise the book; but as the subject of which it treats is both curious and important, I wish only to call attention to it by presenting a general view of its contents, hoping the reader's interest in such inquiries will move him to procure n copy and digest it.

On opening the volume we see at once that the author thinks for himself. He claims to acknowledge but one authority—the Bible. This is what we like. The great names of past generations have always swayed too much influence over the minds of men. A quotation from Wesley or Calvin is sufficient to drive almost any dogma held by these great men into the heads of multitudes of even intelligent people. We would not subtract a tithe from the control which men eminent for piety and learning have legitimately over the opinions of others; but infallibility belongs to the written Word only, and to it every doctrine must be brought. The writer who turns away from the ore already worked over and over, and goes to mining for himself, deserves to be encouraged. And if, with the dirt and shale we may expect him to throw up, he brings a nugget of the precious metal to the surface, he is entitled to the approbation due one who contributes to the wealth of his race. The book before us is a laudable attempt of this kind. With what success the author has met every one will decide for himself; but the present writer thinks the labor far from having been in vain.

The author starts with a description of man in his pristine state.—He accepts the Mosaic cosmogony without the glosses of modern science; gives a glowing description of the new-born creation before its beauty was marred by sin; holds that temporal death, with all of life's ills, is the penalty of sin, to be followed by the decay of the body, and finally the resurrection.

After death does the soul sleep? No. Materialism is false and cheerless. Here we have some excellent thoughts and good logic. We joyfully embrace the conclusion that the soul exists, after death, in a conscious state.

This brings us to the main point under discussion, "Where will be the soul's habitation after death?" A false doctrine is prolific in hurtful superstitious. Many, in all ages, have held that the soul wanders about; others that it enters upon a series of transmigrations, to be purified for absorption into the Divine essence. The former of these errors has brought forth the deformed progeny of witchcraft, fortune-telling, spirit rappings, ghostly apparitions, etc. This part of the work is very interesting.

The dogma of purgatory comes next under review in four chapters. We have a statement of the doctrine and its defense in copious extracts from Cardinal Wiseman, Challoner, Gother, and Milner. We see what the doctrine is in itself, and the position it holds in a grand system of constructive theology. Granting the postulate, that "God has made His church the repository of His truth, traditional as well as written," we see how an interested priesthood has digged a purgatorial pit, walled it in by specious sophisms, tenanted it with souls not quite good enough for heaven nor bad enough for hell, and guarded it by the superstitious fears of the multiplied millions of Rome's deluded children. Whatever the poor soul in purgatory may think of its sufferings, one thing is clear—they yield a golden harvest to the priesthood. No marvel, then, that such men as Wiseman, Challoner, etc., feel themselves set for a defense of the dogma. Our author handles this part of his subject with skill. Planting himself upon the primary principle of Protestantism that "God's written word is the only and the sufficient rule of faith and practice," he shows that the Scriptures brought in support of the doctrine cannot, by a fair interpretation, be made to render it service. He then brings forward an army of Scriptures that unsettles it from every foundation upon which it rests. The argument is irresistible to all who believe God's written word. No purgatorial fires lie along the way the soul takes when it leaves its earthly habitation.

But what of the intermediate state? This question is opened with considerable spirit, and four chapters are devoted to its discussion. The position assumed is that heaven and hell have locality, and that the soul goes, immediately after death, to the one or the other of these places, and is ineffably happy, or inexpressibly tormented. Our author sees in the doctrine of the intermediate state too great a likeness to the dogma of purgatory to accept it, though it be defended by the Father of Methodism and one of our living bishops. It must be confessed that there is a want of consistency among those who defend the doctrine, especially in their explanation of original terms. We think some of their phraseology expresses more than they meant—such as ante-chamber of heaven, etc. If such terms be taken literally, they lay a foundation from which to the dogma of purgatory there is but one step. The question is pertinent, Why is the soul kept in the ante-chamber? Cardinal Wiseman would answer, "To burn off its sins;" while a Protestant would be at a loss for a satisfactory reply. But, after all, there has not been—what is the first essential in all controversies—a logical definition of terms used in the statement of the question. Hence arises, we think, the dispute. The period of the soul's existence is marked by three states: 1. The embodied, before death; 2. The disembodied, between death and the resurrection; 3. The resurrected, after soul and body shall be reunited. Hence there is of necessity an intermediate state—a state between the embodied and the resurrected. Our author will doubtless admit this. What amount of happiness the soul is capable of enjoying, or what are the circumstances of its being while in this intermediate state, are different questions, and must stand upon their own merits. Under the name of the intermediate state the question really discussed is whether there be an intermediate place. A state and a place are quite different things. Had this question been stated categorically by Mr. Wesley, Bishop McT——, and the author of The State of the Dead, we hardly think there would have been any controversy.

In the closing chapter a question is raised that will doubtless awaken interest: "There are no infants in heaven!" "What! are they all sent to perdition?" No. "Are they annihilated?" No! "What then?" We will refer the reader to the book for a solution of the seeming paradox, and leave him to his own conclusions after reading what is written upon the subject.—The book may be obtained at the Publishing House, Nashville, by sending $1 25 to A. H. Redford, agent.

E. S. Smith.

Lowndesboro, Alabama.

Lord Erskine's Rule.—Lord Erskine, distinguished for independence and truth, once said, "It was a first command and counsel of my earliest youth always to do what my conscience told me to be my duty, and to leave the consequence to God. I shall carry with me the memory, and I trust the practice, of this paternal lesson to the grave. I have hitherto followed it, and have no reason to complain that my obedience to it has been a temporal sacrifice. I have found it, on the contrary, the road to prosperity and wealth, and I shall point out the same path to my children for their pursuit."

Concurrent Declarations of the General Assemblies of 1869.

As there are matters pertaining to the interests of the church when it shall have become reunited which will manifestly require adjustment on the coming together of two bodies which have so long acted separately, and concerning some of which matters it is highly desirable that there should be a previous good understanding, the two Assemblies agree to adopt the following declarations, not as articles of compact or covenant, but as in their judgment proper and equitable arrangements, to wit:

1. All the ministers and churches embraced in the two bodies should be admitted to the same standing in the united body which they may have held in their respective connections up to the consummation of the union.

2. Imperfectly organized churches are counseled and expected to become thoroughly Presbyterian, as early within the period of five years as may be permitted by the highest interests to be consulted; and no other such church shall be hereafter received.

3. The boundaries of the several presbyteries and synods should be adjusted by the General Assembly of the united church.

4. The official records of the two branches of the church for the period of separation should be preserved and held as making up the one history of the church; and no rule or precedent which does not stand approved by both bodies should be of any authority until re-established in the united body, except in so far as such rule or precedent may affect the rights of property founded thereon.

5. The corporate rights now held by the two General Assemblies and by their boards and committees should, as far as practicable, be consolidated and applied for their several objects as defined by law.

6. There should be one set of committees or boards for home and foreign missions and the other religious enterprises of the church; which the church should be encouraged to sustain, though free to cast their contributions into other channels if they desire to do so.

7. As soon as practicable after the union shall have been effected the General Assembly should reconstruct and consolidate the several permanent committees and boards which now belong to the two Assemblies, so as to represent, as far as possible with impartiality, the views and wishes of the two bodies constituting the united church.

8 The publications of the Board of Publication and of the Publication Committee should continue to be issued as at present, leaving it to the Board of Publication of the united church to revise these issues and perfect a catalogue for the united church so as to exclude invidious reference to past controversies.

9. In order to a uniform system of ecclesiastical supervision those theological seminaries that are now under Assembly control may, if their Boards of Direction so elect, be transferred to the watch and care of one or more of the adjacent synods, and the other seminaries are advised to introduce, as far as may be, into the constitutions the principle of synodical or assembly supervision; in which case they shall be entitled to an official recognition and approbation on the part of the General Assembly.

10 It should be regarded as the duty of judicatories, ministers, and people in the united church to study the things which make for peace, and to guard against all needless and offensive references to the causes that have divided us; and in order to avoid the revival of past issues by the continuance of any usage in either branch of the church that has grown out of former conflicts, it is earnestly recommended to the lower judicatories of the church that they conform their practice in relation to all such usages, as far as is consistent with their convictions of duty, to the general custom of the church prior to the controversies that resulted in the separation.

A sad massacre of eight Europeans took place, February 12th, in New Zealand; and among the victims was Rev. John Whiteley, the oldest Methodist missionary on the island, who had been there for thirty-six years. His body was pierced with five bullets. During the fierceness of the late wars his life seemed safe everywhere; and the present determination of the rebels could not be more thoroughly exemplified than in murdering him and stripping him of his coat and waistcoat. The generally supposed head of the small party who committed these murders was a native for whom Mr. Whiteley stood godfather when he baptized them. His name, too, was the same—Waitere being Maori for Whiteley, although it is also spelt Wetere, which means Wesley. A remarkable letter has been reprinted in the colony from the London Watchman of the 2d of December, in which Mr. Whiteley said that during his thirty-five years' sojourn in New Zealand he never felt so despending. The rebellion of the Maories is not yet put down, and it has involved a large number of the converts.

THE DIVORCE ANTIDOTE.

The editor of the Liberal Christian says, on the divorce discussion:

A great many wise suggestions have been made as to the way of curing the disorder, and pairing every man and woman, and tucking them snugly away in a domestic berth of some sort for life, if they will only have the good sense and the good manners to stay there. But the trouble is, they won't stay there. The seat of the difficulty lies a good deal deeper down in our customs and ways of thinking than these social Solomons seem to imagine. It is not in the facility with which people get divorced, but in the facility with which they get married, that the mischief inheres. It is not in the unmarrying, but the marrying—the marrying without proper consideration, marrying from wrong motives, with false views and unfounded expectations, marrying without knowing who or what—that causes all the disturbance. And there is altogether too much of such marrying. Marriage is a thing of quality and degree. A marriage of blood is usually a short-lived affair, while the marriage of the brain or of the heart is life-long. When man and woman marry all over and clean through, every faculty and sentiment of each finding its complement and counterpart in the other, separation is impossible. But when they are only half married, when only a third part of them is married, when they are married only in their instincts, or their imaginations, or their fortunes, the unmarried part of both of them is very apt to get uneasy and rebel, and they find a Bedlam where they look for Elysium.

There is altogether too much marrying by forms of law those who, at the most, are only a third or half married in other ways. And there is altogether too much urging and coaxing, and alluring young people into the most important and sacred of all human relations, before they are prepared for its responsibilities, or moved to assume its burdens, and by those who ought to know better and act with more consideration. We make too much of marrying and being married, until it is thought by many people somewhat of a disgrace for a woman to pass through life alone; when, in fact, the life of many a single woman is poetry, romance, rapture even, in comparison with that of many a wife. So there is a vast deal of discontent, heartache, misery, infidelity, and unmarrying at the last. What we want is not a more stringent divorce law, but a better understanding of the divine law, which forbids the marrying of those not already one; not less unmarrying, but less marrying where there is no real marriage.

Impure Water.—Few of us are aware of the deleterious effects of impure water, or how prone water is to imbibe the impurities of the air. Many of us think if the water is clear and cold it must be perfectly pure, though it has stood in a close bed-room twenty-four hours; but this is far from true. If a pitcher of water is set in a room, for only a few hours, it will absorb nearly all the respired and perspired gases in the room, the air of which will have become purer, but the water utterly filthy. The colder the water is the greater the capacity to contain these gases. At ordinary temperatures a pail of water can contain a great amount of ammonia and carbonic acid gas; and its capacity to absorb these gases is nearly doubled by reducing the water to the temperature of ice. This plainly shows us that water kept in a room over night is totally unfit for drinking purposes, and should not be used to gargle in the throat; also that a large pail of water standing in a room would help to purify the atmosphere, but should be thrown away the next morning. It also teaches us the reason that the water from a pump should always be pumped out in the morning before any of it is used. We are lamentably ignorant of many of the properties of air and water, two of the most important elements of our nature.

Nail in the Foot.—To relieve from the terrible effects of running a nail in the foot of man or horse, take peach leaves, bruise them, apply to the wound, confine with a bandage. They cure as if by magic Renew the application twice a day, if necessary, but one application usually does the work. I have cured both man and horse in a few hours, when they were apparently on the point of having the lockjaw This recipe, remembered and practiced, will save many valuable lives. Correspondent Cincinnati Gazette.

SCIENTIFIC.

SILVER.

The discovery of large quantities of silver in our territories west of the Rocky mountains, and the great influence it will hereafter exert on our commerce, invests it with an interest it would not possess under ordinary circumstances; although, under any view, it is one of the most valuable metals known to the arts. It helped very materially in the swelling of our product of the precious metals last year to near $67,000,000, and will have great influence in its still further increase for 1869. At the instance of parties interested in the subject, and for the benefit of our readers generally, we have made silver the object of our special investigation for the purpose of presenting the accompanying facts.

Its discovery is of an earlier date than the most ancient records of mankind; and it became, by its scarcity, its beauty and its useful properties, the object of researches of artists and men of science. It is not astonishing that men who had caused metallic substances to assume so many different forms, and who so frequently imitated, by alloys, the whiteness and several of the properties of silver, were impressed from a very remote period with the idea of creating this precious metal by art. When they compared it with the other white metals it seemed to differ from them so slightly they thought it would not be impossible to procure it free from those qualities. Undiscouraged by their failures, in proportion as this metal was more and more recognized among mankind as the representative of all other objects, of all the productions of industry, and even of those of genius, the alchemists redoubled their efforts; and though their experiments and their laborious researches did not meet with all the success they expected, they were not entirely lost. It is from these trials, then looked upon as unfortunate, that chemists have derived the facts which are employed in its history; and they have had little to do except to arrange in methodical order, and clearly to describe the phenomenon which this metal presented in the tortures of every kind to which alchemists subjected it.

A large majority of the old metal workers called silver Luna, or Diana, and qualified it by the sign they consecrated it to, as a kind of semi gold, which they represented by two semi-circular lines put together in the same directions, with the horns turned to the left, so that nothing more was necessary than to turn back the interior curve and unite it with the exterior in order to form the circular figure or characteristic sign of gold, to which they believed it to be very nearly related, since it was only required to develope one of its parts in order to cause it to pass into the state of gold, the last stage of metallic perfection. The labors of the alchemists extended its numerous uses, and were of great benefit to the chemists in constructing the system of their science. The pharmaceutical operations alone, though they have been less numerous upon silver than many other metals, have largely served to increase the stock of chemical knowledge concerning it; and it is from the great aggregate of these labors that the history of this metal has gradually been formed.

There is not a finer white than is presented in the color of silver, and, whether burnished or not, it is one of the most beautiful metals known to man. It holds only the sixth rank among the metals with respect to density and specific gravity. It follows after platina, gold, tungsten, mercury, and lead. Its specific gravity is 10 474 when melted, and 10 535 when hammered.

With respect to its hardness, it is placed between copper and gold; this is augmented by the action of the hammer or by pressure. It is one of the most sonorous metals, and when struck emits an acute sound. Its ductility is one of its most marked properties; it follows immediately after gold and platina. It is made into leaves so thin that they are easily wafted away by the wind, and into wires of extreme tenacity. On this account it is instanced in natural philosophy to prove the divisibility of matter. A grain of silver may be sufficiently extended, and at the same time sufficiently firm, to make a hemispherical vessel to contain an ounce of water, or a wire four hundred feet in length! It is upon this malleability that the art of gold and silver beating is founded. It holds the second rank after gold with respect to tenacity or resistance against breaking. A silver wire one-tenth of an inch in diameter will support a weight of two hundred and fifty pounds. The wire is considerably lengthened by any weight that may be attached, before it breaks. It is hardened by all kinds of pressure, but easily acquires its former ductility by the action of fire or by annealing.

Silver is a good conductor of caloric, and is heated very quickly. Its expansion by heat is little inferior to that of lead and tin, and superior to that of iron. When silver has been expanded by heat and the fire urged till it is heated to whiteness or incandescence, it softens and runs. Its fusibility is fixed at one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three degrees. When it has been fused and suffered to cool slowly, it presents on its surface figures similar to net-work and fern-leaves, which indicate a very marked crystalizability. On breaking it we find a granulated texture which possesses the same property. Monge and Tillet, by allowing the liquid portion to run off from a large mass of fused silver, obtained it crystalized in quadrangular or octahedral prisms, and it affects the same form in nature as will be hereinafter noticed.—Inventors' and Manufacturers' Journal.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Alaska Fur Seal Trade.—Repeated reports of the indiscriminate slaughters perpetrated by traders upon the seals of St. Paul and St. George Islands awakened the Treasury Department to a sense of the necessity of preserving, by the imposition of legal restraints upon all traders, this valuable source of revenue to the government. Hence, on the 4th of March an order was communicated to General Miller, collector of the port, from Secretary McCulloch, that from that date these islands should be considered a military reservation, and traders should not be allowed to land upon them. We have since heard that, notwithstanding this order, a certain firm of this city has managed to import a vast quantity of fur-seal skins. Among these, we are told, there was a large number of skins of female seals and young pups, the killing of which the laws passed upon the subject declare to be punishable with heavy fines. We are further informed that the steamer Alexander, which arrived yesterday, consigned to Messrs. A. Wasserman & Co., brings down fifty thousand skins of these seals. Their average value in the market at present is $6 for each skin, the cargo being thus worth between $300,000 and $400,000. As the law forbids the killing of seals it follows, as a consequence, that somebody has boldly set it at defiance, as is evidenced by the rich cargo referred to.—San Francisco Chronicle, June 2.

He Prays for the Children.—We have a new minister. We are not much acquainted with him yet, but we know we shall like him, because he prays for children. Not in a stiff formal manner, as if from mere force of habit or duty, but with language fresh and tender, as if gushing from a fount of love within. "Father, bless the dear little children," he prays, and asks for grace to help the child soul in its struggles with sin and temptation, its reaching out toward the better life. Ah, yes, we know he loves the children, and will not only pray for them, but will work for them with an earnest sympathy and devotion. And what better qualification for his office can a pastor have than a loving appreciation of the worth and wants of the precious lambs of his flock? Is it not the most promising field of labor? Are not the children the most hopeful part of his charge? While the gray heads and world-hardened hearts will sit unmoved under his eloquent appeals, a few tender, earnest words will win scores of young sons to Jesus!

Oh, then, pastor, pray for the children, and don't forget to add to your prayers loving effort to gather them into the fold.—Sunday School Times.

A cure for the dangerous disease of somnambulism, it is reported, has been discovered by Prof. Pellozzari, of Florence. The plan consists in winding once or twice round the leg of the patient the end of a flexible copper wire, long enough to reach the floor. The theory of the cure is, that the copper wire dissipates the electricity in the human body. Eighteen somnambulists, treated in this way, it is asserted, have either been entirely cured or greatly relieved.

The salary of a Viceroy in India is equal to $12,500 per annum in gold, and he has, in addition, a winter and a summer palace, stables, servants, etc., on a magnificent scale. Per contra, he is exiled from home and civilization, is surrounded by semi-barbarism, and suffers from chronic dyspepsia and liver complaint.

A Belgian manufacturer has had a bell cast of aluminum, and with very good results. It is, of course, extremely light, so that, though large, it can be easily tolled. Its tone is said to be loud and of excellent pitch.

Wisdom is the olive which springs from the heart, blooms on the tongue and bears fruit in the actions.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

FOUR MONTHS TO HARVEST.

"There are four months before Conference—four months of pleasant weather, during which, according to custom, the church will hold its annual camp meetings and employ other special agencies for saving souls and building up the church."—San Francisco Spectator.

We anticipate this sentence from the article below, so beautifully headed. That there are "seasons of refreshing from the Lord" who can doubt?—days of special visitation, when the Holy Spirit moves among the assemblies of Israel visibly as the wind when it billows golden fields of ripened grain.

The Lord delights in hosts. He seeks to lead the standards of His people by a single pillar of light, holding every eye, drawing every heart, and by the common glory massing their strength, melting and merging them into the unity of a flowing stream. These methods by which His graces are bestowed secure at once power and harmony to the church. "Wait in the upper room" was the virtual command. And there in earnest accord, with "one mind," they prepared their hearts for the one baptism. They were kindled from the same altar. Henceforth they knew the force of union. They kept together, went much together in preaching, each testified to the truth as declared by the other, and the Holy Ghost gave witness to the whole with power.

Unity is therefore an essential element in revivals—unity in form and in mind. Jarring discords among God's people are heard by Him, as the confused murmurs at the base of Sinai were heard—only to arrest His gracious communings. "Be at peace among yourselves." How often has some family contention found its way into the "society," and checked the movings of the Spirit. Often a full week of prayer is necessary to make these obstinate mountains flow down before a proper consciousness of the divine will. We must "lift up holy hands without wrath" if we would pray fervent, effectual prayer.

Worldliness, in one of its intense forms, has taken possession of many Christians for now these three years. They have had to begin life over again. After a partial retirement from business they, by the force of circumstances, find themselves again at it, and they now stand in the arena with the fierceness of one who has been cruelly required to fight for his life a second time. Woe be to whatever now opposes itself in their path to fortune! Their brows contract, their muscles harden, and their hearts congeal. Now they know no man after the flesh. They feel as if Providence had at last furnished them with an ample justification for the severest application to the shop, the market, the desk, or the plow. To use a cant phrase, they now mean business. With not a few work has become a stern necessity for the second time in life; but surely not such a necessity as must needs shut out the blessed light of heaven, or must put out the eyes of the soul that it may grind the butter in the world's mill. This kind of possession comports with very orderly and virtuous habits; it only chills by spiritual apathy. One realizes it as the Atlantic voyager feels at midnight the presence of an iceberg which he cannot see. A few of those masses, that go down twice as far below the surface as they seem to be above it, are sufficient to reduce the flaming zeal of a company of angels to the lukewarm condition of Laodicea. Heed them not—only as the dead; look neither to them nor at them; count them among the things that were; for if you cannot obtain an outpouring of the Spirit without them, you cannot with them. Put together what brands you have and cry for the "wind" of Ezekiel. When the world is half on fire you may have use for these worldly ones, but not before.

Who hath "an ear to hear what the Spirit saith to the churches?"—His gracious proffers, His faithful warnings, His "lightnings," His "voices," His "stars" and "crowns." "Be watchful and strengthen the things which remain." "I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich." "As many as I love I rebuke and chasten." "Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." Surely, if He lives, we need nothing more to assure our hearts of His nearness.

That sevenfold Light of God sent forth now searches its way into all the earth. He runs far in advance of the most zealous missionary, He works, and waits for the slowly kindling zeal of the minister of God's house. He quickens and ripens the divine word, and pours upon the growing seed His mellowing ray; He stirs the saint and alarms the sinner, and with cooperative impulse and conspiring grace demonstrates to him the precious virtue of the Redeemer's blood. "Now is the accepted time, this is the day of salvation."

THE AUSPICIOUS YEAR.

In his commencement address, at Vacaville, Bishop Marvin said that he had hope that this would be hereafter known as the auspicious year in the history of our church on this coast. Why not? Already there are signs of such a consummation. Not only in the difficulties adjusted and dangers averted, but in positive progress, may be seen the evidences of divine favor and encouragement to our faith. The auspicious year! May we be permitted at Conference to join our brethren in thanksgiving that we live to see it and to participate in its blessings! It is for us to say whether the pious wish of the bishop shall be realized. We say this reverently, but with absolute confidence that it is true. The auspicious beginning may be crowned with continued success and a glorious ending. The conditions of success are within our control. The responsibility will rest upon our souls. The willingness of our Lord to grant His blessing is not only declared in His word, but is demonstrated by the grace already given. There is no discount on His promises. There is no ground for doubting that His gracious disposition will continue, for He is unchangeable, and His mercy endureth forever. There are four months before Conference—four months of pleasant weather, during which, according to custom, the church will hold its annual camp meetings and employ other special agencies for saving souls and building up the church. Suppose the entire ministry and membership of the church were with one impulse to approach the mercy seat, seek and obtain the baptism from on high, and then throw themselves with united effort into the work of the Lord—what results might we not expect? Suppose they do not—what opportunity will be lost! But we are hopeful of great things. The degree of prosperity attained is the result of enlarged faith, renewed consecration, and increased activity. Instead of resting content with the little that has been done, shall we not feel that we are called to exercise a still stronger faith, to make a still fuller consecration, and to labor with still greater energy? Do not the drops that have fallen here and there betoken a shower that shall water all the field? Surely, brethren, if we have discernment to read the signs of the times, and faith to grasp the promise, this will indeed be the auspicious year to our church.—San Francisco Spectator.

GIVING TO THE POOR.

Great prominence is given to this duty in the word of God. Precepts enjoining it are abundant in the Old Testament and in the New. Moses, under the divine direction, made many special laws for the protection and benefit of the poor, and declares that "thou shalt open thine hand wide" unto them. Christ magnifies this grace exceedingly in His directions concerning alms giving, and in His requirement of the young man to sell and give to the poor. The common fund, of which Judas was the custodian, appears to have been often if not mainly devoted to the relief of the needy. It was doubtless with reference to this duty to the poor that Jesus said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Paul's collections, to which allusion is made in the Acts and Epistles, were neither for church building nor ministerial support, but in behalf of the poor.

The first deacons of the church were stewards of a poor fund. Important and comprehensive promises are connected with this kind of giving. It is in effect a loan to God. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will He pay him again." He that considereth the poor is pronounced blessed. The Psalmist makes it the ground of remarkable beatitudes. "The Lord will deliver him in time of trouble," "will preserve him and keep him alive." And, above all other earthly recompense, "the Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." So plain a duty, however, hardly needs an express command, as it is embraced in the great law of love to our neighbor, and is in perfect accord with the feelings of the sanctified heart. The devoted Christian will be forward to remember the poor.

We may, however, fail in the measure of our responsibility by substituting some other object. It is a gross confusion and perversion of the subject to regard gifts to our own kindred and families in the light of alms. This is a duty, but should be called by another name. Paying our just debts in the support of the Gospel and the furtherance of missions, is not giving to the poor, in the scriptural sense. Without determining which is more important, we insist that they are distinct, and that those who help their relations and contribute to the support of the Gospel are not giving to the poor in the obvious sense of the command which requires us to give alms of such things as we have. The impositions to which the giver is subjected also restrain some from generous giving. This evil may be avoided generally by care, and by seeking out the worthy poor. Street beggars should be turned away, unless there is something special to recommend them, as they are in most cases professional beggars and impostors. The really deserving are modest, retiring, and must be sought out and ministered to with tenderness, and with respect for their sensitive natures. Careless and indiscriminate giving does not fulfill this law of benevolence; neither ought the liability to imposition to be regarded as a sufficient excuse for its neglect. In every community, especially in cities, there are many who are needy and deserving. Few of our religious people realize how much destitution is in their near vicinity. To discharge this duty aright we must not wait for the poor to come to us, but we must make it a habit of our lives to seek them, and personally to minister to their relief.

The poor fund collected in our churches, to be disbursed through the stewards or the pastor, ought not to be regarded as of secondary importance. This feature of church economy should be made much more prominent, and a collection for the purpose taken monthly or quarterly in every congregation. As yet this item has not been dignified with a place among the financial statistics of the church. In some Conferences there is a column set apart for "money raised for the poor," but generally the subject is neither discussed nor reported upon. The prominence given to this matter in the primitive church, as exhibited in the New Testament, justifies the endeavor to awaken increased interest. Evidently the obligation is not felt as it should be in our congregations, and there are many who neither remember nor consider the poor. What account will they give for this neglect, when the Bible is filled with admonitions on the subject? How will the well-fed and well-dressed professor of religion stand in the judgment, when it shall appear that he has allowed his neighbors to starve, or to spend their days in pinching want? Abused and perverted as this duty is by papists and others, there is great negligence and guilt also among ourselves. Not a great many give statedly and systematically, not many deny themselves luxuries that they may relieve the pallid want around them, and multitudes, it is to be feared, hardly regard the subject in the light of a religious obligation.

*

NORTHERN METHODIST MISSIONS

An address which appears in the New York Christian Advocate, from the Northern bishops, calls for a large increase upon the ordinary missionary contributions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. "At the close of the war," they state, "there was a surplus of $484,000." "This," say they, "enabled the church not only to maintain the work in the foreign fields and in the annual Conferences, but also to enter the vast fields then opened to us." That is, "then opened" for the first time. What those fields were which "the war" opened the reader will directly imagine—the South. O what an opportunity for advancing the kingdom of Christ! That same Maryland, Virginia, and Kentucky, which originally sent Methodism into Massachusetts, Ohio, and Illinois, were at last opened by the providence of God! The Holston regions, the Carolinas, and Georgia, where Bishop Asbury preached, traveled, appointed preachers, hold Conferences, and built up societies long years ago, were now seen, like the Macedonian in the apostle's vision, standing on a jutting point of the barbaric shore, with impassioned gesture and voice crying out, "Come over and help us!" Who could resist such an appeal? Certainly not the enterprising secretary of the Northern board. Having been himself "born and bred" in these regions, both religiously and naturally, it was but paying a debt of Christian gratitude to send the Gospel to the land of his forefathers. And the Northern bishops too, we will do them the justice to suppose, gladly availed themselves of an occasion to return somewhat to a people that had sent them a Lee and a McKendree. Accordingly they have spent in this open South country, not only all the "surplus," but have gone in debt in 1866, 1867, and 1868, to the extent of $469,889 69. A most laudable zeal. "The simple fact is," say they, "God has committed to our hands a work that can not be carried forward without increased contributions from our churches and people." As very much more than these sums of surplus and deficiency have, during the five years past, been spent on the South, the appeal comes home with this touching additional force; that "other churches have been robbed to do (the South) service." What an imploring cry must have come up from these regions into the ears of these holy managers of the missionary offerings of their church, when it so largely drowned the voice of China and of dying myriads of the pagan East. And how dull must we all be who, living in the midst of such moral and spiritual want, go on as if there were no heathens among us to be saved!

"The earth can rend, the mountains shake,
Of feeling all things show some sign,
But this unfeeling heart of mine."

It is only by going to New York, or by reading that Christian Advocate that "holds the mirror up to nature" so faithfully, that we may find out what we are.

And are these war-discovered heathens really being benefited? "Is the work promising?" says the address; and answers, "Never more so. Indeed never before so full of promise, both in the foreign and home fields, as now." This we are rejoiced to hear, because—1. We have a great desire to see that "foreign" field filled with the Lord's harvesters; and 2 Because we are in the "home" field ourself. Indeed the success and enterprise of the Northern Methodist Missionary Society in her foreign missions are not only highly creditable to her, but they encircle her brow with a halo of glory. God forbid that we should not rejoice in the truth, and especially in that greatest of all grand things, the triumph of Christ's kingdom. Her true missionary zeal has reacted powerfully upon her home altars, and has been the conserving element in the midst of passions and earthly policies which would have endangered a church composed exclusively of apostles. But as to those war-engendered home missions we are not so clear. It is barely possible that they have added some souls to the church of God; but if they have, it contravenes the doctrine that peace is sown by them that make peace. But we venture to affirm, from being ourself a part of these "home" heathens, to whom the Northern missionary is sent, that none of them, either black or white, have been gathered into the folds of these missionaries who were not already members of a Christian church; that they preach to no negroes who were not preached to before the war, and that they have not brought to any white men in the South any increased facilities for hearing the Gospel. Certainly in this city they have done nothing in the way of furnishing the Gospel to the colored people; for previously to the wresting away from us, by military order, our colored churches and colored congregations, they heard ten times as much white preaching as now, and fully as much from their own people. We think it is high time to ascertain what their missions are doing. Have they one white congregation in the State of Louisiana? Yes, one, "like smoking flax." How many white congregations have they in Mississippi, how many in Georgia, in South Carolina? We hope that our preachers will answer. Are any added to this church from the world? Now we know that during 1866 and 1867, the worst crop years which certain counties of Alabama ever saw, the Methodist Episcopal Missionary Society had the means of "converting" the brethren; who might afterward have given their experience in the words of Jonathan: "See, I pray you, how mine eyes have been enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey." But we must not be thought too hard upon starving and perplexed mortals, if we now add that the generous crop of 1868 is sending many of them back to their first love. If these "home" missions, which have sprung from "a zeal for the Lord," not unlike Jehu's of Nimshi, are really doing God service, we bid them God-speed; but if they are only for working off the waste steam of a slowly cooling superheated conflict with their brethren of the South, we doubt not "they will speedily come to nought."

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RICHARD OWEN'S CHOICE. By Joseph Lamb. Protestant Episcopal Society, No 3 Bible House, New York.

A good 24mo for children.

PERIODICALS RECEIVED.—Riverside Magazine for July; Arthur's Home Magazine for July; Once a Month for July; The Children's Hour for July; Galaxy for July; Little Corporal for July; The New Eclectic Magazine for July.

A PUBLISHING house and type foundry have been started in Shanghai by enterprising Chinese.

LAY DELEGATION BY WOMAN.

The question of lay delegation is so far a one-sided business, if we may judge by the voting, as reported, in the Northern Church. In the cities the vote for greatly preponderates. The chances, at the present time, are that the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church will go for lay delegation. The General Conference we understand to be virtually pledged to the change if the membership indicates a wish for it. The female members vote upon this question. A provision which was intended as a brake upon "progress" is likely to prove its chief element of success. A Northern woman is ready and eager to have a finger in every pie that is brought upon the table for discussion. The Methodist Episcopal Church North must have the credit of being the first to practically recognize the doctrine of "woman's rights." And it will be many years before a greater question will have been submitted to woman for determination. By this vote the government of this church, in these unapostolic days, has been transferred to woman, inasmuch as the number of females in that church is much larger than that of males. The Northern General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has virtually abrogated in favor of woman in so far as to suspend a radical change of its government, only less in import than the construction of a kingdom, upon her decision. Upon this vote the "oligarchy" of Mr. Wesley will give place to a double-headed executive and legislative body. Since the days of Eve woman has seldom held or wielded a weightier affair. We are reminded by it of the antiquated doctrine of St. Paul: "I would have you know that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God." The steps of this ascent of power are seriously deranged by putting the woman next to Christ. We have always supposed that both human history and philosophy confirmed the wisdom of the apostle and the position which the Christian church has hitherto assigned to woman. St. Paul was very emphatic upon the place which woman holds in church government. "I suffer not a woman to teach nor to usurp authority over man," he writes to Timothy as the head of a church. So far woman has no cause for wishing a larger sphere of influence than that which Christian civilization has given her. She will compromise that throne of love and devotion upon which she now sits in the midst of husbands, brothers, and sons, more powerful than the throne of the Cæsars, whenever she accepts the position of equality with man amid legislative strife, whether of Churches or States.

WE ARE again called upon to record the death of an old and most valued citizen and friend. Mr. J. D. Dameron, for many years a merchant of most extensive business, and ever a citizen of good report, a man of irreproachable character, a friend of undeviating fidelity, and a husband and father most devoted, he lived and died respected by us all. The latter end of his life was full of misfortune, and loss after loss befell him, until, bereft by death of wife and children, he himself at last fell by the hand of the inexorable destroyer. But, as we firmly hope and trust, he has only gone to join those he loved so tenderly, and that which seems to us, when superficially noticed, to be only misfortune, is great gain.—Picayune.

SUPERFICIAL INFIDELS.—Sir Isaac Newton set out in life a clamorous infidel, but on a nice examination of Christianity, he found reason to change his opinion. When the celebrated Dr. Halley was talking infidelity before him, Sir Isaac Newton addressed him in these or like words: "Dr. Halley, I am always glad to hear you when you speak about astronomy or other parts of mathematics, because that is a subject you have studied and well understand; but you should not talk of Christianity, for you have not studied it. I have, and am certain you know nothing about the matter." This was a just reproof, and one that would be very suitable to be given to half the infidels of the present day, for they often speak of what they have never studied, and of what, in fact, they are entirely ignorant.

Centenary College of Louisiana.

The commencement exercises of this college will take place on the third Monday and Tuesday (19th and 20th) of July. The Board of Trustees will meet at Jackson on Monday, the 19th. A full attendance of the trustees is earnestly requested, and also of the preachers of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences, and of all the friends of this important and venerable institution. We wish to rally to its support every Southern Methodist who stands by the cause of education in the Southwest.

J. C. KEENER,
President of the Board.

HOMER COLLEGE.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees takes place on Monday, July 12. A full meeting is earnestly requested.

The following ministers were appointed members of the board by the last Annual Conference: Revs. Samuel Armstrong, N. A. Cravens, Jobo A. Miller, S. S. Scott, T. B. White, Thomas J. Upton, W. G. Haislip.

H. T. LEWIS,
President Homer College.

Commencement of Southern University, Greensboro, Alabama.

Sunday, July 4, half-past ten A. M.—Commencement sermon, by Rev. Dr. Keener, of New Orleans.

Monday, July 5.—Annual meeting of the Board; and at eight P. M., exhibition of the Belles Lettres Society.

Tuesday, July 6, eleven A. M.—Oration before the societies, by W. L. Nugent, Esq., of Greenville, Mississippi; and at eight P. M., exhibition of the Clariosophic Society.

Wednesday, July 7.—Commencement day. Orations by graduates.

All our friends are invited. Conveyances will be at Newbern, July 3, to convey visitors to Greensboro.

E. WADSWORTH,
Chairman of Faculty.

A GENTLEMAN who has just returned from Jackson reports the crops along the line of the railroad as quite promising.

MARRIED.

On the 10th of June, at the residence of the bride's father, in Mobile county, Alabama, by the Rev. A. M. Jones, of the Mobile Conference, Mr. WILLIAM WELCH, of Pascagoula, Mississippi, to Miss LIZZIE D. CUNNINGHAM, of Mobile county, Alabama.

OBITUARIES.

Died, at Pine Ridge, Copiah county, Mississippi, May 29, 1869, MELCHI WADSWORTH, in his eightieth year.

He was ready for the change of worlds. The faith which sustained him in life was his stay and comfort in a dying hour. He rejoiced in the prospect of a reunion of friends who had already gone to the realms of light and glory.

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN FRITH, daughter of Wallen and Martha Stone, was born in the State of Georgia, April 27, 1791, and died in Autauga county, Alabama, April 22, 1869, aged nearly seventy eight years.

Sister Frith was twice married, and outlived, by a few years, both of her husbands. She moved to this State, in 1818, with her first husband, Colonel Hester, who died in 1832, and she married Dr. Frith in 1834.

When but a girl she attached herself to the Methodist Church, and was noted for piety during her single life. It was a long time ago since her girlhood, and Methodism was then in its pristine state. Class meetings were attended well and regularly, and class leaders were sub-pastors. It was at class meetings and class leaders' prayer meetings that she first exhibited that deep piety that marked her whole life.

She was for more than sixty years a member of the church. She had means, and was liberal in the support of all church enterprises, and at all times a true friend of the ministry. Her house was known as their home. God blessed her and she blessed the church. She died as she had lived—a Christian trusting in her Saviour. She told the writer of this, a short while before her death, that she was in readiness for the summons. May her large family and circle of friends, who read this, live to meet Sister Frith in heaven.

WM. A. EDWARDS.

Macon Advocate please copy.

Died, on the 7th of October, 1868, Z G. NORWOOD, of East Feliciana parish, Louisiana, aged forty-nine years and six months.

The subject of this notice was born in East Feliciana parish on the 18th day of February, 1819. In his seventeenth year he assumed the obligations and privileges of faith in Christ by uniting with the Methodist Episcopal Church—now Methodist Episcopal Church South. On the 23d of March, 1843, he was married to Miss Mary B. Baird, of Wilkinson county, Mississippi.

Brother Norwood lived the life of true piety. He was faithful, diligent, and exemplary in all the duties of Christianity, as they relate to the varied interests of society. He was cordial and candid in all his words and ways. In him there was a beautiful agreement between the profession he made and his daily walk—the truly upright man. Hence his death-bed scenes were those of peace and triumph. In his last moments his wife and numerous children—ten in number—received the good man's parting admonitions and benedictions, with the happy assurance that he "had no fears of death," "that Jesus Christ was his everlasting Saviour and reward," that his only regret was leaving his large family to struggle, without his help, with this world's affairs.

Thus Brother "Zach." Norwood, the good neighbor, the devoted husband, father, and Christian, passed peacefully over to the better land.

JAS. A. GODFREY.

LIBERTY, Miss., June 15, 1869.

Died, at the residence of her father, W. B. Fauver, near Clinton, Louisiana, on the 26th of May, Mrs. MOLLIE E. ROW, wife of J. A. Row, aged twenty-four years.

After four long and weary months of patient and almost unendurable suffering, another of our loved ones has been taken from out our midst.

She was a member of the Methodist Church, having remembered her Creator in the days of her youth.

She bore with Christian sublimity and faith the sufferings that follow the dreadful disease of which she died, and murmured not against the inscrutable ways of God. Being told by a friend that his arm and her friends arms were too short to help her in her last short hour on earth, and that her young and beautiful life was fast nearing the dark valley of death, she meekly said she hoped it would come soon, and then asked if it would not come before night. In perfect resignation she expressed her willingness to depart from her loved ones.

A short time before her bright young spirit had taken its departure for the heavenly land she bade a last farewell to the almost heart-broken ones around her, and said she would talk; but her voice was too weak.

As her gentle spirit passed away a sweet smile crossed her lips, as if she had met the spirits of those who had gone before her.

Although a bride of only a few months, and having all to make her young life desirable, death had no sting for her, and never did his cold mantle shroud a nobler form.

She leaves a loving husband, a fond parent, and an affectionate brother and sisters to mourn her loss. For the last short and sad year she has filled the place of mother, sister, and wife.

Farewell, loved being! Thou hast taken thy flight to a better world, and folded thy weary wings forever.

J.

Died, at the residence of his father, in Greene county, Alabama, on the 28th of May, 1869, after a short but very painful illness, WILLIAM DAVID GARRISON SMITH, son of Israel G. and Charlotte Smith, aged thirteen years, two months, and five days.

The deceased, though not a member of the church, expressed, a few days before his death, his determination to become such at the first opportunity. He was a regular Sunday school student, and from the Christian influences there brought to bear he had become a Bible reader, and after returning home from his day school he would take up his Testament and carefully read over his recitation for the following Sabbath. He said that he had thought of studying the profession of physic, but that he now believed he should preach the unsearchable riches of the Gospel of Christ. But in the midst of his days he was cut down, and he is no more in time. From the first of his attack, and while perfectly sane, he said that he should not live, and seemed perfectly resigned to his fate. As the iron grasp of the monster was fastening his resistless hold about his vitals his affectionate mother approached his bedside, flooded in tears, and weeping aloud, he said, "Mother, don't cry.—Laugh. I am going home. Come, mother, and go with me." His pallid cheek lit up with a smile, which seemed to me angelic, and he then passed through death triumphant to his home.

The father of the deceased is superintendent of the Sabbath school of which David was a student, and his earnest prayer is that he may have the indescribable pleasure and happiness of meeting all his fellow Sabbath school mates in that eternal school on high. May the Great Head of the Church speed on the Sabbath school cause, and may it be, in His hand, the great instrumentality employed for the salvation of the children of this country.

FATHER OF THE DECEASED.

Nashville Christian Advocate please copy.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.
WILLIAM BINGHAM, ROBERT BINGHAM,
W. B. LYNCH.

The session of 1869-70 begins AUGUST 25, and continues forty weeks.

The Course of Instruction includes the ordinary English branches, the Ancient Languages, French, Mathematics, Book-keeping, and the elements of Natural Science.

Expenses, including tuition, board, fuel, washing, books, and clothing, $365.

Circulars sent on application. je26 4t

"THE TIMES,"

THE IMPROVED LARGE OVEN

COOKING STOVE,

with extended Fire Chamber and Feeder Top—one of the best Baking and most economical Stoves made.

The Flues are constructed so as to insure the most perfect draft. The heat of the Oven is so equal that when baking there is no need for removing anything until done.

"The Times"

is made of a superior quality of Iron, very heavy, of neat design, and fine finish. The Top Plate is put together in sections, to permit of the greatest expansion without cracking.

We invite the attention of Housekeepers to the advantages of this Stove. Remember, we guarantee them to give entire satisfaction. Duplicate parts can be had at all times, at small cost, by which repairs can be made which will frequently save the price of a new Stove.

ZABLE & DALTON,
No. 115 Poydras street.

A large variety of MANTLE GRATES, House Furnishing Goods, Tin and Japanned Ware. Agents for the celebrated Osborn Bird and Animal Cages.

ZABLE & DALTON,
je19 1y No. 115 Poydras street.

TEACHING.

WANTED.—ENGAGEMENTS TO Teach by the 1st of October next:

1. For a young lady qualified in the usual branches of a polite education, music, etc., and with five or six years' experience.

2. For another, fully qualified, but without experience in teaching. A comfortable home in some private family would be preferred.

Apply, if by letter, to
REV. JAMES MACLENNAN,
je12 1m Greenville, Mississippi.

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - - $3,000,000, Gold.
Surplus, - - - 1,000,000, Gold.

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, } Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho, and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. je12 4tr

THREE INDISPENSABLE BIBLE HELPS.

I.

Blaipriss Gospel Treasury and Treasury of the Four Evangelists. Having the text in parallel columns, with Scripture Illustrations, Practical Reflections, and Addenda, geographical, biographical, topographical, historical, and critical, illustrating manners, customs, opinions, and localities of the Sacred Narratives, with analytical and historical tables, and a very copious Index, and a chart with every event numbered and localized.—One volume, 12mo. Over 900 pages. Cloth, extra, red edges, $3 50. Quarto edition, large type, $12.

"It is not easy to state in a few words the merits of this extraordinary book. It is in all respects a most unusual book, and the labor in its preparation must have been immense. It is in its own department without a parallel in the language, and stands many degrees at the head of its class."—Primitive Church Magazine, England.

Strongly recommended as a help to Sunday school teachers by Rev. Drs. Tyng and Alfred Taylor, and Messrs. Ralph Wells and Purdee, the Sunday School Times, and many others.

II.

Simmons' Scripture Manual. Alphabetically and systematically arranged. Having the texts bearing upon the important subjects of Scripture arranged and printed in full, under their appropriate heads. One volume, 12mo, cloth, extra, $1 75.

"Far more copious and reliable than any work of the kind. A better help to the study of the Bible is not accessible."—Congregationalist.

More than fifty thousand copies of this book have already been sold.

III.

Cruden's Complete Concordance. A Dictionary and Alphabetical Index to the Bible. The Unabridged Edition, having the various meanings of the most important words as they occur in the different parts of Scriptures, Concordance to Proper Names, Definitions of Proper Names and Concordance to the Apocrypha. 8vo, sheep, $5; cloth, $4.

"Cruden's Concordance, in its unabridged and complete state, is invaluable to the biblical student, and the abridgments which have been made of it furnish no idea of the thoroughness and fullness of the original and complete work."—Rev. Thomas DeWitt, D. D.

"It is a low view of such a book to consider it merely as an expedient for finding a certain verse. It is in reality a Bible Lexicon. As managed by Cruden, it is also an explanatory Dictionary, and his definitions are, in every instance remembered I, line, sound and evangelical."—Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D.

A descriptive catalogue of all our publications mailed to any address.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
je12 4tr 506 Broadway, New York.

ONE THOUSAND MEN WANTed.—Wages, $5 per day. Send for circular to M. L. BYRN, je12 4tr No. 80 Cedar street, New York.

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three-cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, je12 1tr Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address
SPIRIT PICTURE CO.,
je12 4tr 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price.
A. WILKINS,
je12 4tr Detroit, Mich.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SOMEBODY TELLS LIES.

Who is it?
Dr. WOLCOTT or the old school?
Wolcott reasons well.
Else whence this instinctive
Horror of Dose,
This opposition to Drugs
Implanted in every child?
Proof so positive
Convinces every reason
That the whole system
Of Drug treatment
Is and must be wrong,
When all humanity
Possesses a secret dread of them:
Yes, when every soul
Shrinks back and startles
At the approach of each Dose
That Ignorance mixes for the stomach.
'Tis our very instinct
That stirs within us,

and Nature points out to us the dreadful folly, causing such loathing that, before the vile compounds are presented to our averted gaze, the stomach often reels at the disgusting potions! Is it right? Can it be right when every human instinct condemns it in the strongest language; when even the brute creation shun it with abhorrence; when a power within ourselves, when all Nature cries against this most besotted and dangerous practice? Stop! Let us reason, and see how it looks. Perhaps you are costive!—Will Pills produce moisture or cure the complaint? Pills will rob the stomach of moisture, and never add a drop; for they are dry and have none to give. No one swallows them but is weaker and more costive afterward from the loss of the vitalizing fluids and gastric juices! Reader, have you a garden, a spot of earth, or a single blade of grass? If the soil becomes dry, will you sow it with gravel-stones or sand?—Nay, verily! But you sprinkle it with water! The human stomach and its health are better than "many gardens." Will not common sense lead you to a watery and cooling diet? Don't your stomach ask for more vegetables? Where are the apples, oranges, and any or all kinds of fruit she longs for? Where the spinach, beets, turnips, and the hundred varieties? She will accept of some of them. Where the brown or corn bread, oatmeal pudding, etc., waiting for you to eat, that will be agreeable to your palate and will prove to be exactly what you need? 'Tis a thousand times more sensible to drink a pint or quart of oat or corn meal porridge once or twice each day, for a week or two, or use warm water injections, than ever be guilty—yes, I mean guilty, for no person swallows Drugs but commits a sin against themselves, and punishment will certainly follow, sooner or later.

What makes that once strong man now weak and faltering? What drives the roses from the cheeks of that woman? What takes the fire and brightness from the eyes of that child? It is Drugs in nine cases out of every ten. Hundreds of people every day that throng Dr. WOLCOTT'S place, at 181 Chatham Square, suffer from Drug treatment. Thousands, when they return home, make a bonfire and burn them up. Most of the middle aged who read this paper to-day will live to hear Drugs as universally condemned as bleeding has already become. And they will wonder how it was ever possible that intelligent beings could live and have their senses, and yet submit to such a transparent farce in filling their own bodies with Drug poison, year after year, while their whole nature rose up and condemned, in the most eloquent language, this most absurd and health-ruining practice. For every person, without a single exception, who has swallowed most of these abominations, will ratify by their experience the truth of every word. Dr. Wolcott must be right or wrong. Dr. Wolcott is publishing truth or falsehood to the world. If his anti medical doctrines are false, why is it that he gains the patronage of the most shrewd and critical men, including many of our leading physicians, and retains their custom year after year? How is it possible for him to offer free tests of his Remedies in open daylight, before the world, unless it accomplished results? How is it that he has a larger practice and patronage than any Hospital in the world? How is it that he has more Certificates of Cures, with genuine names attached, from every city, village, and almost every neighborhood, than would fill the largest printed volume, and many of these cases pronounced hopeless before they used his Remedies? Who tells the truth—this is the question—Dr. Wolcott or the old school.

We leave the readers of this paper to decide for themselves whether to continue in the old heathenish custom of dosing or adopt ideas founded on natural law, which cannot be otherwise than safe and in the highest degree conducive to sound health.

Every letter written to Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT is opened with his own hands, and practical advice is given to all who ask for further information, free of cost, besides pamphlets and circulars. He uses no Narcotics, and a child can drink anything he prepares with impunity. His Remedies, PAIN PAINT for Pain and ANNIHILATOR for Catarrh, Consumption, Colds in the Head Weak Nerves, etc., are on sale at all first class Drug Stores in the Union, or sent directly from Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT'S office, 181 Chatham Square, New York free of Express charges, on receipt of $5 or upward at each order. All who come treated free of cost. No charge for medical advice. Extreme pain removed instantly. Private rooms for ladies. We cannot speak too highly of his safe and successful mode of treatment for the last ten years in the city of New York. je12 4tr

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Farmers, families, and others can purchase no Remedy equal to Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT for the cure of Cholera, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Croup, Colic, and Sea Sickness.—Taken internally (it is perfectly harmless—see oath accompanying each bottle) and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Musquito Bites, Old Sores, Pains in Limbs, Back, and Chest. The Venetian Liniment was introduced in 1847, and no one who has used it but continues to do so, many stating if it was $10 a bottle they would not be without it. Thousands of Certificates can be seen at the Depot, speaking of its wonderful curative properties. Price, Fifty Cents and $1. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, No. 10 Park Place, New York. je12 5tr

THE NEW GRADED

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BOOK.

Blaipriss Lessons on the Life of Christ. Harmonized from the Four Evangelists, with Manual for the Teacher.

Three grades. A Uniform Lesson throughout the school, but adapted to the various capacities of the different grades of scholars.

The most complete, thorough and attractive series of Lessons. Containing many important new features, and calculated to meet the urgent demand for improved methods of Sunday school instruction

A circular, with specimen pages and full description, sent to any address on application.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
je12 4tr 506 Broadway, New York.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchoupitoulas street. my29 3m

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, SCROFula.—A lady who had suffered for years from Deafness, Catarrh and Scrofula was cured by a simple remedy. Her sympathy and gratitude prompt her to send the receipts free of charge to any one similarly afflicted. Address
MRS. M. C. LEGGETT,
je12 4tr Hoboken, N. J.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers.

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The sub-titution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In conjunction with enlarged power of production, it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place. Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance each to its pattern; they are perfect in their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them:

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade, and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and ample—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view,—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtletics of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose expertness and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishments in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially so since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For Prices and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
je12 6tr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address
SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or
St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION:—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. je12 4tr

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to
NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa or St. Louis, Mo. je12 4tr

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
je12 1tr 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Buckeye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40 All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address
W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
je12 4tr Cleveland, Ohio.

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE

sep15 1y New Orleans.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 52 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON.
je23 1y

F. HATHORN, ALF. H. PIERSON:
Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, La.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address
DR. S. S. FITCH,
mh13 9mr 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mr Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2 $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above. je12 4ta

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address
AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
je12 1tr Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED, AGENTS.—LADIES or gentlemen to sell our popular allegorical engraving, entitled "From Shore to Shore," suggestive of Life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem.
H. B. RUSSELL,
je12 1tr 55 Cornhill, Boston.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

SUNSHINE.

Little buds, little buds, toss your heads—
Toss your heads, little truculent buds!
Rise up, pretty lilies, look out of your beds,
And welcome the sunshine in floods!
How softly uncloses
Each innocent daisy!
Now roses, now roses!
You must not be lazy;
The beautiful sunshine
Is shining for you—
Unfurl your bright petals,
And laugh at the dew.

Hawthorn hedges, break out in a breath,
With your delicate bouquets of snow;
Start up, little thorns, with your promise of death,
Keep guard on the treasure below!
Their blossoms of beauty
The fruit trees must scatter,
They've done their bright duty,
So what does it matter?
They laugh with delight,
As they flutter away,
To see little berries
Peep out at the day!

Royal sunshine, be truely and true;
Pour your golden enchantment on all!
We spring into life for worship of you—
Be ready to answer our call!
No whimsical hiding,
No clouds fling before you;
'Tis you we take pride in.
'Tis we must adore you!
What creatures would scatter
Their beauty and grace
For a king who refuses
A glimpse of his face?

FANKIE, THE MOCKING BIRD.

The first sight we had of him was when Cousin Tom and he landed safe and sound in our kitchen; Fankie in a cage so small—for convenience in traveling—that he had worn his tail feathers all to rags, whisking about so much. Tom had brought a pocketful of hard boiled eggs all the way from Chicago, and so Fankie had fared well, and never lost his appetite on the journey. He was wide awake, and perfectly delighted to see us, and before he had been in the house an hour, began to show us how he could sing. That was the beginning of our acquaintance with the dearest, happiest, most intelligent pet we ever had under our roof. We immediately got him a new cage, and from that moment he was at home, and never had a lonesome or discontented hour.

For the information of those of my young Northern readers who have never seen one of these wonderful songsters, I will say that he was about the size and shape of a catbird; of a dark ash color, lighter on the breast, with a long, handsome tail of black feathers with white tips, and extremely strong wings, black, with some white stripes and spots, showing when they were spread; his legs long, slender, black, and kept as clean and nice as any dandy would his best French boots; a long, beautifully shaped and pointed beak, and black talons, hard almost as iron. His eyes were splendid, bright, piercing, and full of intelligence. There never could be a bird more alive than he—all animation; quick as lightning in his movements; always on the alert; not an atom of dullness in him. In three years we never caught him napping, never found him with his eyes shut.

About four o'clock in the summer, not so early in the cooler weather, he commenced all alone by himself, in rather a solemn manner, as if it was doubtful whether people would care to hear him so early, and as if he were rather soliloquizing in music than singing, for anybody to hear; then came sharp, swift calls, that were equal to an alarm clock for waking anybody, and which would have cut through to the hearing of a man as deaf as a post. After a time he rather subsided; but as one after another of the various members of the family appeared, he would cock his head airily on one side, and burst out with a loud salute. He never missed this trick of politeness when any one passed under his cage. Oh! what a bird he was!

After our breakfast came his breakfast. He understood the system as well as any one, and never grew impatient like the little fretful canaries, but made himself happy in decorous waiting. Then he watched the boiling of his egg, and all the proceedings of preparing his meal, with as much interest as a child. He seemed to approve of what was being done; he looked as if he would speak.

His daily rations were put into two little tin dippers in his nicely cleaned cage, and were always the same—about half a gill of water in one, enough for him to wash his long bill in, which he liked to do after drinking, and in the other half of a hard-boiled egg, mashed fine, mixed with an equal quantity of soft baked potato, and sprinkled well with Cayenne pepper. But this was not the whole of the operation—this food must not be put into the dipper loose, in a crumbling, promiscuous manner, but rolled into a solid ball, all nicely incorporated and justly proportioned. Fankie knew about the proportions full as well as anybody else, and all he asked was justice. You must not stint him on the yolk; if you did, he would throw the white away; neither must you, because eggs happened to be scarce and dear, undertake to economize by putting in more potato and less egg. That would not do; he would not scold nor fret—he was too noble and dignified a bird for that—but in a little while you would find the floor beneath the cage covered with bits of potato, which he had snapped out with his beak.

Then, again, he must always have red pepper; black would not answer. Once, in the midst of a raging snow storm, the red pepper gave out, and May substituted black; but that day the poor fellow set apart to fast—he could not eat it—he knew better than we that it would make him sick; so through the deep snow a man was dispatched after his favorite and necessary condiment, and we never attempted to make any change after that.

It must not be supposed, from all this, that he was a difficult bird to keep. Not in the least—that was his food—he ate it, and enjoyed it; ate up all clean, usually. If he dropped any crumbs on the floor of his cage, he hopped down and picked them all up.

I must not forget his meat dainties: he liked a grasshopper pretty well; but a beetle was equal to an oyster. The children in the village used to bring him beetles, and looked delightedly on while he prepared and devoured them. For a moment the captive was allowed to crawl comfortably about the cage, but Fankie's sharp eye was never off from him, and the moment he attempted to get off through the wires Fankie seized him by the head. Snap! off it came! Snap again! off came one stiff wing, and then the other, then the rough legs, and the body was swallowed at one mouthful. One more delicious morsel to Fankie was—I am sorry to say it—a spider. Imagine yourself in the enjoyment of some delicious meat—partridge, for instance—and you can understand with what exceeding relish Fankie banqueted on a spider.

But he never spent much time in eating—he could not spare it—he was in a tremendous hurry to get through, so as to sing. Singing was the great concern of life with him. No; I should not say "concern," because it gave him none. He sang as easily as a brook runs down a hill. It was no effort to him; there was no work in it; he was so brimful of music, and running over, that songs came gushing out, and he sang by the hour; and what a medley, what a variety, what a range of sweet, clear notes, soft, plaintive, high, sharp, sublime, ridiculous—swallow, thrush, robin-redbreast, crow, oriole, jay, blue bird, pewit, and cock-a-doodle-doo! There never was anything like it—an unbroken song, running rapidly through everything that came into his head, so that if you did not know the truth, you would suppose a dozen different kinds of birds were in the room; and not the least exertion on his part, but he standing erect, wide awake, happy, sometimes on one foot, and snapping his tail to keep time—and oh! he was so fond of approval! He did so like to be praised and admired! He thought everybody who came to the house was his company, and he would jump with delight back and forth from one end of his perch to the other, times without number.

Everybody liked him, and all the children were his friends, and as they passed the house he would salute them, and answer their call of "whip poor-will" with the quickest, sweetest, most human repetition, to their endless delight—"whip poor-will," "whip poor-will," as fast as he could whistle it. While he was moulting, the first year after he came, he learned the canaries' principal song, and so astonished and mortified them by singing it fifty times over, and much better than they could, who had sung nothing else all their lives, that they gave up in chagrin and despair, and sang no more except a little at long intervals, or when they forgot themselves.

All Fankie's ways were interesting, as well as his songs, but the most so of any was an irresistibly comic trick he had of taking what we called his sun bath. Almost any very bright day, if we set his cage in the sunshine, he would at once proceed to shake himself up, as you would a pillow to dispose it for a thorough stirring and airing; every separate feather was turned, so to speak, inside out—I might almost say upside down—inside out, most certainly. My readers can try to imagine the spectacle he presented—a shapeless mass of shaken up feathers, all on end, in a promiscuous, fluffy heap, as if every one was acting independently of the rest. He looked very much as if some child had been trying to make a bird, by sticking stray feathers wrong side up on some misshapen substance roughly whittled into the remote likeness of a bird; and to make the matter worse, Fankie would elevate one wing, lean his head over the other, and sit perfectly motionless, with his eyes half shut. There never could be a more ridiculous object, and the utter indifference and coolness with which he would sit motionless and vacant-looking, while we stood by and laughed at him, was rich to see. There he remained, seeming in lazy happiness to be absorbing the warmth of the sun at every pore; and that is what I suppose he was doing. Those were his only hours of indolence.

His water bath he would never take except in the sunshine; through all cloudy and rainy weather poor Fankie went unclean, or at least unwashed; but once fairly in the sun, with his bathing tub full of clear, fresh water, he proceeded to make as forlorn a looking object of himself as a drowned kitten, quite as laughable in the thorough drenching, which plastered every feather to his body, as in his more genial sun bath. But no matter how much we laughed at his grotesque plight, it never disturbed him in the least. His self-possession was marvelous. He had fits of being absent-minded, sitting gravely, evidently lost in thought, like a person so absorbed as to be oblivious of everything around, and nothing could induce him to look at you until he got ready; then he would whirl swiftly and commence a fancy chattering that was charming to hear.

As I said, he never fretted, but he had some coaxing, pleading little notes that were irresistible. He did so love to be petted and admired, he was so fond of company, such a social bird, that it seemed a positive cruelty to leave him alone, or even to refrain from talking with him. Very often, when conversation was going on near his cage he would meekly say: "Me?" I don't think we should have been surprised any day to have heard him talk. He was a bright intelligence in the house, almost like one human, and always happy, all animation and vivacity.

Poor, dear Fankie! He had never known one moment of illness or dejection, and we counted upon years and years of life for him; but one morning, just after he had been singing gaily and delightedly as usual, we heard a strange, choking little cry from him. It was the dear fellow's plaintive call to us for help. Some sudden sickness had seized him, and as he fell, the frightened creature cried to us to save him; one foot caught upon his perch, and his beautiful head dropped on the floor of his cage. I had him out in less than a moment, but there he lay dead in my hand, without a struggle or a flutter, quite still, and limp as a rag—what had but an instant before been an active, intelligent, happy life, a dead thing in my hand. I could hardly believe my own eyes as I held him, and I never felt my own nothingness in the sight of the Creator of all being more than when I realized my utter inability to bring back life even to a little bird. Poor Fankie!—Hearth and Home.

FARM AND GARDEN.

DRAINING.

A subscriber at Macon, Georgia, asks for information on drainage, "the cost per acre for tile drains, the depth and distance they should be laid, and what substitute can be used for tile."

If we were willing to go to the expense of draining thoroughly to a considerable extent, we should get the services of Mr. Hansen, whose communication appears on another page, or some one else familiar practically with the subject, to supervise it. The expense is heavy and should be done in the best manner. The cost of the tile alone is estimated at from $25 to $30 per acre where tile is convenient, and varies, of course, with the requirement of the land, clays of close texture requiring closer drains than soils of more porous quality.

Where stone is abundant on the land, it may be substituted for tile, but if it must be hauled even a short distance and several times handled, it is still costly draining, and it is much more difficult to make with it good drains that will keep open, than with tile.

Wood may be substituted with much economy of first cost, and, if well laid down and covered, will make good drains and last a long time. We have made drains with seasoned chestnut rails that were very good at the end of nine years, and how much longer we do not know. Two were laid down side by side, close enough for a third to lie well on top. Round poles may be used in the same way. An opening of three to four inches diameter is enough for ordinary drainage.

In our Southern States, where land is generally cheap, we do not doubt that it would be good economy to use wood for this purpose.

We should not make the drains deeper than two and a half feet, and should regulate the distance by the degree of closeness and wetness of the soil; two rods distance being near enough, perhaps, under any circumstances.

The drains, where the use of the plow may be practicable, may be opened in a measure by the plow, and finished with the spade to the depth required. Then lay the wood or stone, and cover with brush, sods or anything that will keep the earth out of the drains, and cover in.

These suggestions, as we have said, are applicable to lands of moderate price, and where it is desirable to economize the first cost. We know that very effective draining may be so done.—American Farmer.

GOOD ROADS.

As we become more civilized as a people the fact will more and more force itself upon us that our common highways are not a tithe as good as they ought to be, that it costs us twice as much in the wear and tear of horses, wagons, and harness, and loss of time in moving upon bad roads, as it would keep them in good condition. We are amazed, that the community will continue from year to year traveling on the most execrable roads, when so slight an expense to each property holder would remedy the evil. Even in our boasted city of Philadelphia many parts of the rural portions are so utterly neglected as to render them almost impassable. We know of highways that have not been touched for two years, and when they are attempted to be repaired, it is done so negligently and ignorantly as to be of the least permanent service.

In the counties throughout the Commonwealth, where the township authorities control the roads, the duty could not be worse attended to, except in particular regions. The old system of allowing the taxpayers to work out the amount of their road taxes in repairing the roads cannot be too pointedly condemned. It is an utter failure, and as long as it is continued the condition of the roads will not get any better. There should be an independent system substituted, and men appointed supervisors who know something about the business to be supervised, and a tax assessed and collected, as all other taxes are sufficient to insure the maintaining of the roads in the most thorough state of repair.—Germantown (Pa) Telegraph.

To Keep Fowls Healthy.—The way I keep my fowls in health, I clean out the house once a week; put wood ashes under the roosts; have iron basins for them to drink from; whitewash inside of hen house with hot lime; put a little kerosene on the roosts once a month. The main food is oats, and cake of scraps to pick on. I never feed but once a day—at noon, or when I shut them up at four or five P. M. When they run out, then give them all they will eat. In my experience, there is no way to get diseased fowls easier than to keep them stuffed; it makes them lazy, and they won't work as much as they ought to to keep in a healthy condition.

I never had any gapes in chickens. When any fowl begins to droop I give three large pills of common hard, yellow soap; 'tis the best thing to cleanse a fowl I know of. I follow it for three days, give them nothing to eat and plenty of pure water to drink. In desperate cases, give a half teaspoonful of tincture of lobelia. It will seldom, if ever, fail of curing. It is a very cleansing and powerful medicine for fowls.—H. C. Wheeler, Foxboro, Massachusetts, in Rural New Yorker.

A Christian sailor, when asked why he remained calm in a fearful storm, said, "Though I sink, I shall but drop into the hollow of my Father's hand, for He holds all these waters there."

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. ja16 6m

D. H. HOLMES,

155.. .....CANAL STREET..... 155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. de12 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans

oct3 1y

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

In addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Beugel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, unbridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 1 volume	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
New Orleans.

my15

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,

Edward Barnett.

Joseph Ellison,	President.
W. S. Pike,	Vice President.
W. P. Harpen,	Secretary.
St. Clair Dearing,	General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,

OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

MUTUAL AID & BENEVOLENT

LIFE INSURANCE ASSOCIATION

OF LOUISIANA.

DIRECTORS.

J. M. Lapeyre,	W. S. Mount,
John Davidson,	L. B. Pothier,
H. Zuberbier,	William McCulloch,
I. N. Marks,	William Creevy,
E. F. Schmidt,	T. K. Finlay,
William Cooper,	Anthony Sambola,
W. S. Pike,	Patrick Irwin,
David McCoard,	John C. Sinnott
J. Caulfield,	C. Cuvaroc,
Gerard Stith,	W. C. Nichols.

OFFICERS.

John Davidson,	President.
W. S. Pike,	Vice President.
R. W. Young,	Secretary.
L. A. Fournier,	Treasurer.

W. B. KOONTZ, Attorney.
W. C. NICHOLS, Medical Examiner.
N. C. FOLGER, Agent.
Office—120 Carondelet st., (Davidson's Row.)

SYNOPSIS OF CHARTER.

The plan proposed by the Mutual Aid and Benevolent Life Insurance Association is as follows:

1. Each person, upon enrolling himself or herself as a member, shall pay into the Treasury a membership fee, if between the ages of

16 to 30, inclusive, the sum of.....$10 00
31 to 40, inclusive, the sum of..... 15 00
41 to 50, inclusive, the sum of..... 20 00
51 to 60, inclusive, the sum of..... 25 00

which payment constitutes him or her a life member.

2. A Life Insurance Policy is issued for a sum equal to one dollar for each enrolled member appearing on the books of the Association at the decease of said member.

But in no event shall the amount paid on said policy exceed $5,000.

3. On the death of any member an assessment is made upon each policy holder for one dollar and twenty-five cents, payable at the office of the Association, within thirty days after notification thereof, by publication in one daily newspaper published in the city of New Orleans, in English and one in French, for five consecutive days, and if the policy holder resides out of New Orleans he shall be notified in writing.

4. Should the number of members exceed five thousand, the assessment of $1 25 will be reduced in proportion to the number of members exceeding five thousand.

5. Should any member fail to pay the assessment in the time specified, he forfeits all previous payments or credits.

6. All accumulations from whatever source, such as forfeitures, interest, etc., shall be credited upon the books of the Association to the members pro rata, to be withdrawn in lieu of assessments. oct17 1y

...K L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

...8.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have in good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Rosborough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.
VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Gatlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Seed Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
jal6 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE

OF THE

CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLER'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
97 and 99 Julia street.
de13 6m

DARBY'S

PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS.—MUNN & CO., EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above. je12 4tx

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. je12 4tx

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
jul6 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,
AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session,	$48 00
Tuition, Fall session,	32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address

REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Culhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hull's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hull Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
jal6 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE,

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEAN }

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MN.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MNS.
One (8 lines)	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

Rev. J. C. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans

THE THIRTY FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $15. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President

J. M. BONNELL,
sep5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages	$215 00
Music	50 00
French or ona Modern Language	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address

WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty-seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Followes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1868.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.

jy22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 101 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio,

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y.

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street.

Next door to the Picayune Office.

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

A. EYRICH, (Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct21 6m 130 street, New Orleans.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62 CAMP STREET..... 62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,
No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
july6 1y

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras.
nov1 New Orleans, La.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug8 6m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term	$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term	30 00
Contingent fee, per term	2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circular to O. F. CASEY, aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE, SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY						1	2
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC.				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general market, which continues extremely dull. There has, nevertheless, been more demand for sugar, and the receipts have met ready sale from the landing at steady prices. Molasses, also, has been in moderate request, without any quotable change in rates, but still the movement has been on a very limited scale. The receipts of Western produce have been rather more liberal, but the business has been mostly confined to the local trade, the only exception of any moment being 17,000 bushels bulk wheat, in the elevator, taken for Liverpool at $1 23 per bushel. This cargo was classed as No. 1 spring, Chicago standard, and, to secure its delivery in good condition, the shippers are sacking it. If our market were kept fairly stocked, and we had a regular trade with Liverpool, this would be done in ships' sacks, with much greater economy. Under present circumstances the wheat will probably cost the shippers $1 32 to $1 33 per bushel, free on board in this port.

The weather has been clear and warm—perhaps unusually so—and highly favorable to the growing crops. Our cotton accounts from the country are more generally encouraging, although we still receive complaints of the unfavorable effect of excessive rains and unpropitious weather. The chief difficulty in the way of liberal returns is the backwardness of the crop, which is about two weeks behind hand. This would be of much less moment were it not for the little reliance to be placed upon freedmen's labor during the picking season. As it is it threatens a serious loss from waste, damage, etc. A few weeks since it was supposed that a considerably wider area had been planted, but later developments render this doubtful.

The river has fallen two inches since our last report, and is now two feet two inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—The following are the arrivals since the 18th instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi ....bales..	891
Mobile	57
Florida	17
Texas	35
Total	1000

On Saturday the sales embraced only 90 bales, taken by a few buyers, in small lots, at about previous figures. On Monday the business was confined to 160 bales, at figures showing an advantage on the side of buyers of ¼c. per pound, low middling ruling at 30½c., and middling at 31¼c. On Tuesday there was rather more demand, and 240 bales changed hands at still easier prices, good ordinary selling at 28¾ to 29c., low middling at 30 to 30½c. and middling at 31¼c.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 490 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 790,553 bales, against 580,378 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 70,951 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 26,147 bales to France, and of 6,102 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 257,082 to Great Britain.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary	26½ to 27
Good ordinary	28½ to 29½
Low middling	30 to 30½
Middling	— to 31½
Strict middling	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....		1959
Arrived past three days	1000
Arrived previously	820880
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc	9112—830992
		832951
Exported past three days	8977
Exported previously	801700—810677
Stock on hand and on shipboard....		22274

SUGAR.—The market has exhibited a better feeling since our last report, and all the receipts of fresh sugar have been quickly sold, but the old stock still works off only in small retail lots. On Saturday and Monday 155 hogsheads were sold at 9¾c. for inferior, 11¾c. for good common, 12¾c. for good to fully fair, 13c. for fully fair to prime, 13¼c. for strictly prime, and 14¼c. for choice.

MOLASSES.—The movement in Louisiana molasses has been small, owing to the light receipts, which, however, have all been sold at full prices. On Monday a lot of 120 barrels choice fermenting brought 62½c. per gallon.

WHEAT.—We note the sale, since our last review, of 17 000 bushels No 1 spring, Chicago standard, in bulk, in the elevator, taken for Liverpool at $1 23 per bushel.

CORN.—The market has been in better supply since our last review.

CATTLE MARKET.

JEFFERSON CITY,
Tuesday Evening, June 22, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head	25 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head	10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	10 to 11c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$1 to 5
Sheep, second quality, per head	3 to 4½
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to —
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	8 to 12
Calves, per head	5 to 12

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES,

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
" Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	17 00
Spades	11 00	18 00
Axes	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	23½	24½
East India	24½	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb		8½
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	1 02½	1 05
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	5 50
Crackers	6 00
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	8 00	16 00
English, Fire	85 00	100 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford
Tallow
Adamantine	15	21½
Star	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	9 50	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel		50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14	16½
Havana
Java
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton		15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel
Copper, Brazers' ₩ lb	37	38
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	37	38
Yellow Metal	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23½	24½
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	4 50	5 00
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	4	4½
St. Domingo	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico	6
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 75	1 85
Madder	22	24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	22	25
Feathers, ₩ lb		1 00
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	1 65
Herrings	70
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl		27 00
No. 2		21 00
No. 3	15 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	5 90	6 00
Extra	6 00	11 50
Fine	5 00
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	14	15
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples
Currants, Zante	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell	26
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
Layer		3 60
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000
Sicily ₩ box
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 25
10 x 12	3 50	3 75
12 x 18	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 20	2 50
Canada	2 60	2 90
Oats	71	73
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	90	1 00
Beans, ₩ bbl	8 00	12 00
Hops, ₩ lb	8	12
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	25 50	26 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	17	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	8½	13
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	18
Pelts ₩ piece
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	6	8½
Sheet	6½	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7
Castings, American	6½	7
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 00	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	35	70
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	60	80
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	2	3½
Black do	5	6
Select, water rotted	7	8
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German	14	16
English	14	16
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	1 25	4 00
Pitch	2 50
Rosin A No. 1	3 00	5 00
No. 2	2 00	2 25
No. 3		1 75
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	40	42½
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 35	1 40
Coal Oil	34	36
In cases	44	48
Cotton Seed, Crude	70	75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton
Cotton Seed	35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	19 00
" North half bbl
Dried, ₩ lb
Tongues ₩ doz
Pork, Mess	35 00	35 25
Prime Mess
Hog, round, ₩ lb
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	17½	18
Do., canvassed	19	21
Sides	18½	19
Shoulders	15	15½
Green Shoulders		13½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	20	21
In kegs	21	22
Fair, in tierces		17
Butter, Northern	32½	40
Western	20	30
Cheese, American	18	19
Potatoes, ₩ bbl
Onions
Green Apples
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	7	10
India
Carolina
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store	2 25	2 30
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 05	2 10
from store	2 20	2 25
Turks Island, ₩ bushel
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	7	7½
Northern	8	12
Southern	6	10½
Castile	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	6	15½
Havana, White	15	16½
Yellow	13½	14½
Brown	12½	13
Tobacco, in bhds, ₩ lb:
Baiers & Cutters	—	—
Choice and Selections	15	19
Fine Leaf	12	15
Medium Leaf	9	11
Fair Leaf	10	12
Common Leaf	8	10
Good Refused	7	10
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	—	—
Bailing	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	40
Burry	14	18
Louisiana, Native	24	27
Texas, (@ Mexico	26	31

SPECIAL NOTICES.

MARIANNA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Marianna district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Gordon, Alabama, August 26–29. The opening sermon will be preached by the Rev. William A. Sampey, on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Preachers, both traveling and local, and Sunday school delegates will be prepared with their reports on the first day of the meeting, as per minutes, page 57, article 4. Members, on arriving at Gordon, will report to Rev. L. Patterson.

WESLEY B. DENNIS, P. E.

TUSCALOOSA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Tuscaloosa district, Mobile Conference, will be held in Marion, commencing August 5. Bishop Pierce will preside.

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

UNION SPRINGS DISTRICT MEETING

The district meeting for Union Springs district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Brundidge, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday, August 25. The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M., by Rev. S. F. Pilley.

J. W. SHORES, P. E.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Starkville district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Vaiden, on the Central railroad, embracing the fourth Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before, at eleven o'clock.

The official members of the district are invited to be at their post at that time. The good people of Vaiden will take care of all. Visiting brethren are invited to come and help us.

K. A. JONES, P. E.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held in Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. WILSON, P. E.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Lafayette district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Dadeville, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, July 29th, where we hope to meet a full attendance of the delegates and members.

The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. E. L. Loveless.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

CAMDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Camden district will be held at Camden, commencing on the 1st day of July. Brother Hudson will preach the opening sermon on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference,

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita	July 10, 11
Monroe	17, 18
Vernon, Vienna	24, 25
Farmerville	31, Aug. 1
Homer	Aug. 7, 8
Hayneville	14, 15
Minden	21, 22
Bossier	28, 29
Sparta	Sept. 4, 5
Mount Lebanon	11, 12

The Ouachita district meeting will be held at Hayneville, commencing on Wednesday, August 11. All official members of the district are earnestly desired to be present on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, to hear the opening discourse and assist in organization.

SAMUEL ARMSTRONG, P. E.

Meridian District, Mobile Conference,

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Meridian	July 17, 18
Pearce's Springs, at Bethel	24, 25
Shubuta and Waynesboro, at Shubuta	31, Aug. 1
Clarke, at Salem	Aug. 7, 8
Gaston	14, 15
Butler	21, 22
Belmont, at Wesley Chapel	28, 29
Livingston	Sept. 4, 5
Bindon Springs, at Kizer Hill	11, 12
Enterprise ct., at Jacob's Ch'l	18, 19

JOSHUA T. HEARD, P. E.

Jackson Dist., Mississippi Conference,

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson station	July 3, 4
Terry, at Forest Hill	10, 11
Clinton, at Chapel Hill	17, 18
Canton station	24, 25
Camden, at Forest Grove	31, Aug. 1
Sharon, at Thornton	Aug. 7, 8
Vernon and Livingston, at Vernon	14, 15
Chartbags, at Conway	21, 22
Madisonville, at Pearl river	Sept. 18, 19
District conference, Raymond	Aug. 26

R. ABBEY, P. E.

Wetumpka Dist., Montgomery Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wetumpka	June 12, 13
Prattville	19, 20
Autaugaville and Ivy Creek, at Ivy Creek	26, 27
Lowndesboro, Hayneville and Union, at Union	July 3, 4
Pleasant Hill ct., at Elwood	10, 11
Tallassee ct., at Oak Valley	17, 18
Socopatoy ct., at Socopatoy	24, 25
Carolina ct., at Rehoboth	Aug. 7, 8
Autauga ct., at Pine Level	14, 15

At the request of the district meeting I will preach on the Support of the Ministry, and solicit contributions for foreign missions at these quarterly meetings.

WM. S. TURNER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference,

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs	May 29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit	June 5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station	12, 13
Brookhaven station	19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandywine	July 3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard	10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val:	17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground	24, 25
Burtenton ct., at Tabernacle	31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda	Aug. 7, 8
Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst	14, 15

G. F. THOMPSON, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville	June 19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove	26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara	July 4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon	17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington	24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer	Aug. 8, 9
Meadville	15, 16
Buffalo	22, 23
Percy Creek	28, 29
Liberty	Sept. 4, 5

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

New Orleans Dist. Louisiana Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Orleans circuit, at Algiers	May 9
Quar. Conf., at 112 Camp, 7½ P.M.	10
German churches: at Craps-st	16
Quar. Conf., at Dryades st	21
Jefferson City	23
Plaquemine	30
Felicity street	June 6
Thibodeaux	13
Carondelet street	27
Baton Rouge	July 18
Morgan street	25

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, ... 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, ... 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, ... 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,

MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,

AND HALE

PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no11 1y

DR. C. McLANE'S

VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

THE CHARTER OAK

COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
Manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and Heating Stoves of all kinds.
te13 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

PAYMENTS—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART,
my22 President.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of Instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months	$150 00
Fuel	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department	40 00
Music	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.
For particulars apply to
B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM,
ja9 2m Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
de12 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired. A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....161

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings, Curtain Damasks, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74 .....Camp street.....

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes:

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

no14 1y HILL & VEAZIE, No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street.
oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 11th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses—Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President,
de12 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of SEPTEMBER, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address
H. F. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to HYGIENE. Location VERY HEALTHY.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom-house Broker, BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Cimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 34.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 738.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—It is said Boutwell is dissatisfied, and contemplates resigning at an early day. The indications are that Boutwell's friends intend to push him for the next Presidency. This will probably accelerate Grant's measures for the reconstruction of the cabinet.

The public debt statement will be issued to-morrow. The decrease of the debt is some eight or nine millions.—Times.

CUBA.

HAVANA, June 23, via Key West, June 25.—General Buceta has arrived in Havana. He was hooted at Santiago, and on his arrival at Cienfuegos was only saved from the violence of the volunteers by the intercession of the Governor. He is now concealed in this city, and will be compelled to escape by stealth. The mobilized volunteers garrisoning Matanzas recently executed a young man, named Robinson, aged nineteen, son of a British resident, for carrying rebel correspondence.

Heavy skirmishes have taken place in the Cinco Villas districts, in which it is reported that one hundred Spaniards were killed.

It is known that large sums of money are forwarded to the United States for the purchase of war material, and to aid the Cuban juntas in fitting out expeditions.

HAVANA, June 24.—General Buceta, falsely reported to have been killed by his troops, has gone to New Orleans.

The cholera has broken out at Guantanamo and vicinity. Several cases occurred at Santiago.

The disease is raging with great severity in the interior.

About the last of May the schooner Grapeshot landed forty men and a portion of her cargo on the Cuban coast. While the boats were landing the men, some of the passengers on board attempted to run the vessel ashore, when a fight ensued with the crew and officers, in which the captain of the Grapeshot received a bullet in his leg. The Grapeshot finally got rid of the whole party, and without landing all her stores, proceeded to Turk's Island, where she received a clearance, and arrived on the 4th instant at Falmouth, Jamaica. There were one hundred and fifty-five packages of arms and ammunition remaining on board, which were seized by the customs officers, and the captain abandoned the vessel. The seizure was subsequently declared illegal, and the captain sued the collector of the port and others for damages.

Several filibusters who landed at Battiguera were executed at Santiago.

HAVANA, June 25.—The volunteer forces have, of their own free will, given up the duty of garrisoning the Moro Castle and Fort Cabanas, and will be relieved to-morrow by the naval forces. They have taken this action to convince the home government that they have no idea of disobeying its order, or opposing the new Captain General.

HAVANA, June 30.—DeRodas says he counts on fifty thousand volunteers to put down the rebellion.

Lesca has frequent encounters with the insurgents in Cinco Villas. It is supposed that the insurgents executed an entire company of Spaniards captured at Sabana Nueva.

EUROPE.

PARIS, June 25.—At the camp at Chalons, yesterday, Marshal Bazaine, in presenting to the Emperor the soldiers who took part in the battles at Sollorino and Magenta, said: "Your soldiers recall the day on which you led them to victory. The glorious anniversary shall never be effaced from our hearts. Under all circumstances they remain devoted to your dynasty."

The Emperor, replying, reminded the army that this was the anniversary of the battle of Solferino. He was pleased to see that they had not forgotten the great cause for which they fought ten years ago. The Emperor continued as follows: "Preserve the remembrance of the battles fought by your fathers and yourselves, for our victories are the history of the progress of civilization. You will thus maintain the military spirit which is the triumph of noble over vulgar passions. It is fidelity to the flag and devotion to your country. Continue in the same course and you will always be worthy of so great a nation."

It is rumored that the negotiations recently renewed for a commercial conference between France and Belgium are likely to fall through again.

BREST, June 25.—The Great Eastern is three hundred and seventy-seven miles out. Signals continue perfect.

PARIS, June 29.—M. Boucher opened the Corps Legislatif, saying the Chamber was convoked to verify its authority. The renewal of the Corps Legislatif by universal suffrage afforded a natural opportunity for the nation to express its thoughts, aspirations and wants, but the political results of that manifestation should not be precipitate. The government would present resolutions and projects of law in order to realize the wishes of the country.

Rochefort, editor of the Lanterne, has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment, three years' forfeiture of citizenship, and a fine of 3,000f.

MADRID, June 29.—The Republicans propose to move a vote of censure against Sagasta and Herrera for their recent tyrannical conduct.

Prince Henri de Bourbon took the oath to support the constitution.

BREST, June 29.—The Great Eastern is progressing finely.

LONDON, June 29.—The Star, commenting on the departure of Ryan's expedition, says America is now in relation to Cuba precisely like England toward the Confederacy.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RICHMOND, June 25.—The commencement exercises of Washington College, at Lexington, took place on Thursday. Rev. R. A. Holland, of Baltimore, addressed the literary societies, and General Lee distributed the medals and diplomas. C. W. McCormick, of Chicago, a member of the Board of Trustees, who was unavoidably absent, sent a check for $5,000 as a substitute for his personal appearance.

Many distinguished persons from other States are present at the alumni dinner to-night. Speeches were made by Commodore Maury, General Smith, and others. The college prize oration was delivered by McC. Harrett, of Texas; the law class oration by John T. Pendleton, of Kentucky, and the Cincinnati oration by J. P. Strader, of West Virginia.

Registration, just closed, has greatly increased the white majority in the State. The Conservatives claim that their vote has been increased twenty thousand.

THE ROAD TO TEXAS.—We rejoice to find that our judgment of Mr. Charles Morgan and of his intentions with reference to the railroad to Texas has been confirmed by his actions. And we have the additional satisfaction to find that such men as William M. Perkins, L. F. Generes, W. T. Hepp, and the other sixteen or eighteen old citizens, of wealth and character, associated with him, and they are determined to carry the road built by the Opelousas Company on to Texas.

We do not wish to discourage the Chattanooga Company from building their road also. There is room and business for both, and both can do an enormous business with a connection through to Texas, for that will only connect them with roads to Mexico and California, and roads to the Northwest, which will furnish business enough for half a dozen such roads.

The details of the plan proposed must be carefully examined by our readers to understand them, and we will not undertake to do this for them. But we will call attention to these facts:

Mr. Morgan agrees to do the business of the proposed road and of all other roads on his track to Berwick's bay at the proportional rate, mile for mile, charged on such connecting roads.

He subscribes for one-half of the four millions of stock in the road from Berwick to Texas; but if more than the other half is subscribed by others, he will let them take so much of his stock off his hands.—Picayune.

A POLITE AUDIENCE.—"John Wesley always preferred the middling and lower classes to the wealthy. He said: 'If I might choose, I should still, as I have done hitherto, preach the Gospel to the poor.' Preaching in Monktown church, a large, old, ruinous building, he says: 'I suppose it has scarce had such a congregation during this century. Many of them were gay, genteel people, so I spoke on the first elements of the Gospel; but I was still out of their depth.' Oh! how hard it is to be shallow enough for a polite audience."

CALIFORNIA produced last year nearly fifteen million pounds of wool, which was larger by almost two million pounds than the production of any other State.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ADDRESS.

To the Ministers and Members of the M. E. Church South within the bounds of the Mobile Conference:

DEAR BRETHREN: At the late Sunday School Convention, held in the city of Mobile, it was unanimously resolved that a communication should be addressed to you, through the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, urging upon you the absolute necessity for new zeal and increasing activity in the great Sunday school work in our midst. The wise and thoughtful of every age have regarded the young with the most profound interest. Children will increase and grow in influence and power. As they advance in years and resources they must augment or diminish the prosperity and happiness of society. Families, States, kingdoms, and the different divisions of the church of Christ will feel their presence and force for weal or woe. The race of man will be made better or worse by them. They will roll the car of Christian civilization forward or backward, as their efforts are good or bad, and as their motives are pure or impure.

We behold in the children of the age the rude and undressed material out of which our edifices of State and Church are to be built. And the strength and beauty of these temples will depend, to a large extent, upon the skill and fidelity of the civic and moral workmen, whose duty it is to form and fashion each piece for the place which it is to occupy in these important and powerful structures. Children are esteemed as an important part of the family circle, and sagacious parents know the value of discipline and training to those who are to come after them. They use every legitimate means within their reach to prepare their children for the position to which, in after life, they may be called, and they labor assiduously to fit and qualify their offspring to become useful and ornamental members of society.—States and kingdoms show their appreciation of children by the provisions made for their protection and development. From the time of Lycurgus down to the period in which we live, true statesmen of every age and country have regarded the young as an important part of the State, and in all great governments the most vigorous and active measures have been inaugurated for their welfare and maturity. God has shown His love for children in giving His Son to die for them, in constituting them a part of His church, and in making it her duty to prepare them for the scenes of labor, trial, and usefulness through which they are to pass up to their holy seats in the great church triumphant in heaven.

There can be no doubt in reference to the relationship of children to God. As they were made mortal and sinful through Adam, so they are redeemed and saved in Christ. They had no personal agency in the fall and its consequences, and nothing is required of them as a condition of salvation until they reach years of discretion and accountability. They belong to the Christian church, and, dying in infancy, the Saviour says, "Their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven." The first promise made to Adam and Eve after the fall was through their posterity. The first church founded in the family of Abraham included children. The theocracy established by Moses, under the immediate direction and inspiration of God, embraced the children of the Jews, and constantly inculcated the most rigid attention to the religious culture and training of the young; and when this was merged into the spiritual and universal church of the Messiah, children occupied in it a most conspicuous and important place. That there might be no doubt regarding so vital a matter, the great Master said to His disciples, and through them to the world, "Suffer the little children and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." The apostles, acting in obedience to their Lord, brought whole families and households into the church, "baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." St. Peter urged and exhorted the people to whom he preached, saying, "The promise is unto you and to your children." These facts, when properly considered, leave no doubts in our minds as to the course which, as Christians, we should pursue. If parents are bound to educate and discipline their children, and if States and kingdoms feel it to be incumbent upon them to train and qualify the young in their midst for the posts of usefulness and honor hereafter to be held by them, how much heavier is the obligation resting upon the church to prepare the rising generation for the holy duties of the high vocation whereunto they are called!

Parents and statesmen draw their motives to action generally from this life and its interests, while ours come from time and eternity. They regard children as denizens of the earth and as the future representatives of themselves, and the supporters and defenders of their institutions, while we esteem them as immortal beings redeemed from death by the precious blood of Christ, and the future heirs to eternal life in the kingdom of heaven. How much nobler they are when regarded as fellow-citizens of the household of faith! And how much greater should our efforts be to train and prepare them for their high and holy destiny! To insure success in this mighty work God places children in our arms in their years of tenderness and plasticity. He commits them to our care before the baleful influence of wicked example has led them astray, and ere the deadly blight of actual sin has corrupted and defiled their natures.—He gives them to us under circumstances so favorable to success in Christian education, and with so many gracious influences within our reach, that none need despair who are willing to do their duty. How shall we proceed? When and where shall we begin to feed the "lambs of Christ?" In the closet and at the mother's knee the first impressions should be made. At home, in the family circle, a deep reverence for God ought to be inculcated, and every Christian parent should teach his children to repeat after him "Our Father, which art in heaven." After the exercises of the home bethel comes the Sabbath school.—This is a wonderful agency, and it has already done efficient service in the glorious work of Christian culture. It occupies an important place in the economy of the church between the labors of Christian parents and the public preaching of the divine word "in the great congregation."

As a kind and benignant foster-mother, this noble institution throws open her arms to all the youth of our land who are willing to learn the way to eternal life. She is admirably fitted for the work which she proposes to do. When the labors of the week have closed and the holy quietude of the Lord's day has come, as morning orisons are ascending to heaven and hallowed associations are filling all minds, the Sunday school convenes. While every pious heart is turning reverently toward its Creator, the superintendent, teachers, and pupils assemble. The exercises are conducted by good men and good women, who, forgetting self and disregarding the calls to personal ease and indulgence, are ready to be spent in the cause of their divine Master. The school is opened by devotional exercises that call to mind the place in which they are convened and that suggest the indebtedness of all to Him who "so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." The word of God is the text book. The lesson is some great Christian truth which shows our relationship to Christ and to each other, and that discloses the relative importance of time and eternity. The teacher comes to his class full of his holy theme, and becomes for the time "a terror to evil doers, and a praise to them that do well."

As the recitation proceeds the hopes and fears, and the restraints and stimulants of our holy and blessed religion are felt with increasing power. In the distance the death scene, the resurrection, the last judgment, and the rewards of the just and the unjust rise up before the minds of the young. The Holy Ghost imparts to these a solemnity and reality that exerts a most benign and transforming influence over tender minds and hearts. When thus began and spent, the Sabbath points directly to the heavenly rest, while the happy faces, cheerful hearts, and devout exercises of the Sunday school call to mind the hallowed associations and ennobling employments of the redeemed in heaven. When thus organized and conducted, this institution is an instrument of great power, and a most essential part of the church of Christ. It is a species of moral fortification into which we can bring our children for protection and safety. Around them here are thrown the strongest restraints known to the Christian church, and upon their young and plastic natures are brought to bear the noble aspirations and the grand and beautiful hopes of the life of faith.—Whether we look to this life or to that which is to come, as parents we should carry our children to the Sunday school. Such helps as it affords in the moral training of the young are nowhere else to be found, and without the discipline and maturity of their religious natures the education of our children is fearfully defective. To unfold the mind, and to leave the heart neglected and dwarfed, is to destroy the equipoise, harmony, and health of our whole being. Such persons may be made greater by their education, but they are frequently worse in themselves and more dangerous to society.

In view of the good which it proposes to accomplish, we should wield all our influence in behalf of the Sunday school. Our advice and counsel ought always to look in that direction, and when necessary, as parents, our authority should be called into requisition. But to insure success the power of our own examples must be given. Children will value most highly those things for which we show an appreciation. The greatest commendation that we can give to the Sunday school is to enter its pale. We all have time for this. Who of us is unable to devote one hour during the week to the delightful exercises of this nursery of piety? The Sunday school, and a preparation for the performance of its duties, will increase the stores of our religious knowledge, and they will refine and purify our hearts. Many of the wisest laymen, and a large number of the most learned and gifted clergymen, in the leading Protestant churches of the age are devoted to the Sabbath school; and while they teach others the first principles of the doctrines of Christ, they grow in wisdom and in favor with God.

It is the duty of superintendents, teachers, and parents to make the exercises of the school as interesting and attractive as possible. Its pupils should never be made to feel that they are imprisoned and fettered; on the contrary, the place should be lovely, and its exercises should edify, delight, and charm them. The chief object of this institution should never be forgotten. Every effort ought to be made to lead the young to Christ, and the impression should grow in their minds that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." We should constantly teach them that the laws of the church are right, and we should never regard our work as complete and finished until they feel that "her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." If we fall below this mark our work is lost, the inmates of our Sunday schools will go to the world, and the lessons of religious instruction may become "a savor of death unto death to them."

The organized and disciplined forces of evil that oppose the moral culture of our children, and that seek to undermine and destroy their natures, should kindle in us new zeal for the Sunday school, and call forth greater efforts for the conversion and salvation of those whom God has committed to our care. The Christian conservatism of the Methodist Episcopal Church South has for years been in the way of the frivolous and worldly. They have done their utmost to batter down the adamantine walls erected by the brawny arms of our spiritual forefathers. Having failed in this attempt, they now seek to destroy us by stealing the hearts of our children. They meet them with smiles and blandishments, and by the most ingenious and facinating allurements they strive to draw our offspring away from the purity and simplicity of our faith and practice. And when every other means has been ineffectual, they bait and bribe them to enter a communion that will keep no watch over their conduct, and which will hold them to no accountability for what they do. We owe it to the morality of the country, to the purity of our race, to the holy memories of our fathers, to the souls of our children, and to the cause of our great Master in heaven, to disappoint the cherished expectations of these vaunted ritualists, and save our youth from ecclesiastical worldliness and heartless formality.

In common with other Christians who are striving to fear God and keep His commandments, we have much to encourage and cheer us. The importance of educating children for Christ has at last been seen, the friends of the Sunday school have leaped to their feet, and from one end of our country to the other children are anxious to be taught the way to heaven. This new moral impulse, which, like an ocean wave, sweeps over the entire continent, gives promise of the noblest results. If we take advantage of this providential opening, and train up our children in the doctrine and usages of the church, we may do a work that will be felt by generations yet unborn. God will be glorified, and our posterity may be saved.

—A. S. ANDREWS, Chairman.

THE story is told by a French journal that in a provincial town a gentleman's house was rendered dark and damp by a tree which stood too near his windows. He could not cut it down because it belonged to the commune, and he knew an application to the authorities would be unavailing. Accordingly he sent for insertion in one of the Paris papers the following paragraph: "There is still in existence one of the trees of liberty of the date of 1793. It may be seen at X., close to the house of M. A. B., and the passers-by reverently uncover their heads to this venerable witness of grandest struggles and our most illustrious victory." Three days afterward an order came from the prefecture in Paris for the mayor of P. to cause the said tree to be cut down—which was accordingly done forthwith."

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1869.

THE MASTER'S HAND.

The scroll was old and gray,
The dust of time had gathered white and still,
Above the touches of the artist's skill,
And hid their charm away.

The many passed it by;
For no sweet curve of dainty face or form,
Or gleam of light, or flash of color warm,
Held back the careless eye.

But when the artist came,
With eye that saw beneath the charm of sense,
He seemed to catch a gleam of life intense
That filled the dusky frame.

And when, with jealous care,
His hand had cleansed the canvas, line by line,
Behold! the fire of perfect art divine
Had burned its impress there.

Upon the canvas glowed,
Made priceless by the arch of time they spanned,
The touches of the rare Old Master's hand—
The life his art bestowed.

* * * * * * *

O God, whom we adore!
Give us the watchful eye to see and trace
Thy living semblance in each human face,
However clouded o'er.

Give us the power to find,
However warped and grimed by time and sin,
Thy message written on the soul within—
Thine impress on the mind.

Not ours the reckless speed
To proudly pass our brother's weakness by,
And turning from his side with careless eye,
To take no further heed—

But studying, line by line,
Grant to our hearts sweet trust and patient skill,
To trace within his soul and spirit still Thy Master Hand divine.

LETTER FROM BISHOP MARVIN.

ASHLAND, OREGON, June 12, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: I have an honr to give to some ADVOCATE. This honr I have redeemed from company by what might almost be thought rudeness. But having been defeated so many times in an effort to write, by unexpected comers, I resolved today that have an honr I would with my many friends who are readers of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. I feel a certain pleasure already, in this random beginning, in thinking of some who, as I hope, will read this letter.

I am at Ashland, the southernmost town in Oregon. The last two days I have been on the stage along through that grand region of mountains that stretches from this point to the town of Shasta, in California. My pen is ambitious to sketch the scene, but feels itself a poor fledgling, and despairs in the presence of the task. I came over the same road last August, but the air was thick with smoke, and I saw nothing but the nearest landscape. On this trip I was more fortunate. O the mountains! the mountains! And I had a full view, though a distant one, of the great monarch of them all—Shasta. As far down as Chico I saw his crown lifted in imperial consciousness over all the intervening ranges. At that time it looked like a beetle jutting a little above the surrounding mountains. But even then I could see that it was white. On learning how much farther off it was than any other elevation in sight, and reflecting that these were themselves high mountain ridges, I began to comprehend the grandeur of Shasta. Here am I in the Sacramento valley. Forty miles away is the Trinity range. Fifty miles beyond that again is Mount Shasta. These statements are made from a standpoint sixty miles advanced from that where the crown came in view. Now think a moment. Shasta, fifty or more miles beyond Trinity, is seen beyond and across Trinity by a man here in the valley; and the line of vision strikes him far down from the summit. There at the line of vision is a point immensely above the Trinity range, and above this line the elevation would make another Trinity! But it required some reflection on these facts to comprehend the greatness of the vast pile.

Thus, by oft-recurring views of the mountain, my mind had been opening itself to the magnitude of it, when all at once, near Yreka, the stage whirled into the mouth of a valley that swept back thirty-five or forty miles to the very foot of the monster. There was not an intervening ridge. The whole sweep, from base to summit, was in my eye. Now look! The snow line is more than half way down! and that after a month of summer heat in the valleys, in which time, for several days, the temperature has been over one hundred degrees Fahrenheit. I was on the driver's box, and so had the best possible position for the sight. Then and there I forgave the stage company for extortionate charges. To say I had the worth of my money in this spectacle would be to say nothing. To say that I was compensated for the jolting of a mountain wagon through the livelong, sleepless night would be a most insipid remark in such a presence. Shasta! I saw Shasta and forgave the Oregon Stage Company! I can say no more.

Soon the impertinent hills skirting the road thrust themselves in between me and my mountain, and I lost sight of him. I asked a stage agent who was along if we would not see Shasta again on the ascent of the Siskiou. "Wall," he said, "I don't know; I think it likely we shall." Here was new matter of wonder. A man who has passed over this road twice a month regularly for a long time, now does not know the points from which Shasta may be seen. I had preached, two nights before, on "What is man?" Now I thought of it and mused.

Sure enough, about half way up Siskiou I questioned the northward horizon with my eye for Shasta. It was a grand response I got! There stood the Czar, dominating the mural grandeurs of Oregon and California. To the right, and about the same distance from me, was Scott's mountain, itself white with snow even now. But it is scarcely waist-high to Shasta. As I ascend he stands out more and more grandly, until the very base of him seems to be resting on the mountains. I had actually a vision of the mountain standing in the top of the mountains. This imposing scene has helped me, I trust, to a more adequate feeling, if not to a juster conception of the grandeur of the Lord's House.

This was my last view of Shasta. A sharp angle in the road and a crack of the driver's whip soon put me behind an imposing ledge, and for this trip, at least, my mountain is gone! But here is Siskiou, and I am near the summit! Look at these crags and gorges—these heights above and these abysses beneath! No lack of mountains here! No, verily—provided only you have never been in communion with Shasta. Thenceforth the word mountain sounds too big for anything below the everlasting snows.

I had had all the way a German fellow-passenger who was very quiet, and I had become well affected toward him, because I had observed that he did not swear. I did not learn his name, but for convenience of the narration will call him Tentou. Incidentally from his conversations with others I learned that he was a lumber merchant of Portland, Oregon. Business had prospered with him. He had made money—more money than he had ever expected to make. He could afford to recreate a little, and had been to San Francisco just because he fancied the trip. He went down by water; but on the bar at the mouth of the Columbia river a breaker broke the wheel-house off the good ship Orifismene, on which he sailed, and it was thought another of equal force, while the ship was staggering from the blow, would have been too much for her. Besides breaking the wheel-house the breaker had done another thing—it had frightened Tentou until he resolved to return by stage. The passengers had dropped off one by one, until at Siskiou he and I alone remained. Two employees of the stage company were out with the driver, enjoying sundry coarse and profane jokes, each of which was crowned with an uproarious guffaw. Tenton and I were inside, looking at Shasta in silence. I had a fellow-feeling toward him as one who was awed by the same magnificence, and I thought perhaps he was worshiping God in the presence of His works. The occasion was too great for speech. I had been moved to speak once or twice, but words, such as I could command, seemed like impertinences, and I felt as one dumb under a divine presence.

Tentou broke the spell. A few houses and little fields in the narrow mountain valleys were in sight. There was an accent of petulance in the tones of my friend. "Vat in to vorlt does anypody live here for? Dere's noting here! Dey can see noting. Dere's no pizness here. Dey sees no peples. Noting makes me live here. I lives in de city, vere dere's pizness and peples." O Tentou! Tentou! were you born on the same continent with Schiller, and Goethe, and Luther?

"Noting to pe seen here!" That was said in the presence of Shasta.

"No peples." Yes, people are great—greater than mountains or worlds. But Tenton has never seen men any more than he has Shasta His eyes have been on both, but he has seen neither!

All at once I saw what life was to my friend. The axle of the universe was his lumber yard. To be in his little dirty office in the corner of this same yard, to hear of heavy immigration and good crops, to hear of much building and fencing, to hear the tramp of ever augmenting multitudes, and the jostle of an ever-increasing melee of wagons in "te city," are all great facts to him. There is a happy augury in them all. They are prophetic of a growing lumber trade. "Pizness!"—You ought to have heard the tone in which this word was spoken. I had never before heard it sound so full. I thought it sounded as if a pulse were beating in the heart of it. Business! The periphery, the whole sweep and scope of life and destiny are in that word for Tenton.

I looked at him and felt discouraged. But a moment's reflection relieved me. Successful business men are not all of this type. I know many a man who has made more money than this one who would realize a greatening presence in these sublimities of nature. A man does not necessarily become too metallic through business to expand under the touch of such a wand.

After the foregoing speech of Tenton silence reigned inside of the coach and profanity on the top for some little time. At length the mind of my friend was diverted from "pizness." There was something that could achieve such a result—something that could master a spirit unmoved by all this mural majesty. What was that? It was a tight boot! Tenton had, with becoming regard to appearances on the part of a prosperous business man, provided himself with new boots for his pleasure trip. To all his other pleasure on this memorable trip had been added that most exquisite one, so often enjoyed by men who affect nice boots—tortured feet. And now we were suffering an uncommon degree of summer heat. The boot luxury became too exquisite. It was more than Tenton could bear, and he took off his boots.

Friends, I have never been troubled with fastidious olfactories, but I thought for awhile I would be compelled to take refuge on the top of the coach, in the midst of the profanity. But that stench was more intolerable than this, and I resigned myself to the consequences, be they what they might.—Meantime there was a measure of compensation in contemplating the complacent look of the man as he laid back on one seat and stretched out his two caskets of perfumery upon another immediately under my nose.

After all, Tentou and I parted with mutual good feeling, and I think of him not without respect. I have no doubt he is a man of probity as well as energy, and not indifferent to the social virtues. But I must dismiss him with the remark that there are two things that would improve him vastly as a companion—soapsuds and ideas.

Well, really, this communication has run a course that I little anticipated. I am tempted to lay it aside. But I have so little command of time for writing I know not when I could produce another; and this must go.

There is evident improvement in the church on this coast. Some revival spirit is abroad. The organization is coming in many places to be more thorough and compact. The colleges are doing well, and are paying their debts. A good many substantial churches are being built. In the country we are strong; in the larger towns and cities we are rather weak. So far as I can learn, we are having better growth this year than at any time since the war began. This growth is healthy and substantial. Many men of intelligence—of the class of solid citizens—are coming in. They are "bone and sinew." But we want preachers. I could find ample work for twenty-five more preachers in California, and ten or fifteen in Oregon. But they must be men of good Damascus temper. There is no call for men with whom a fat salary is the capital consideration. Men to whom the "reproach of Christ is greater riches than" money will be in demand for a long time on the Pacific. Men who will emulate apostolic labor and self-denial, who "count not their lives dear unto themselves," who are ready to go beyond any "line of things made ready" for them can find work here to their hearts' content. We want men who will "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ."

I have done much hard work since I have been here; but, thanks be to God, I have been happy in it. I have witnessed many conversions and over one hundred and fifty accessions to the church. I have been in many precious love-feasts and prayer meetings, and have had occasion many a time to say, "The Lord is in His holy temple."

Many Southern people are coming into the valley of the San Joaquin. Among them there is a fair proportion of Methodists. Our church has almost exclusive possession of the upper portion of this valley. There is a great work for us to do that no one else can do but us. May we not fail. Nor will we. God is giving His seal upon our labors, and we pray for His grace to "establish the work of our hands upon us."

E. M. MARVIN.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

We mention tenderly the name of Miss SARAH CONNOR.

Since our last meeting it has pleased almighty God to lay the hand of affliction again upon our Sunday school, and in His providence remove from our circle one of our most useful, energetic, and beloved teachers; therefore,

Resolved, That in this sad bereavement we bow in humble submission to the will of our heavenly Father.

Resolved, That we tender our hearty Christian condolence and sympathies to the bereft household of which our beloved sister was a member; and commend them to "God and the word of His grace."

Resolved, That the members of the school wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be recorded on the minutes of the Sunday school, and that a copy be forwarded to the family of our deceased sister, and also a copy be forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

MR. R. J. LAWRENCE,
MR. W. J. MINOR,
MISS KATE SALTONSTALL,
MISS LAURA RICHARDS,
Committee.

SHUBUTA, MISS., June 16, 1869.

History of Methodism in Alabama.

MR. EDITOR: While these are the days of improvement, development, and discovery in all the great departments of human enterprise, and while the whole country rejoices in the grand successes which have crowned labor and expenditure in linking the great Atlantic and Pacific waters by the national railroad, and while conventions upon the publishing interests and commercial advantages, etc., are displaying such zeal, and while the Southern Church rejoices in the happy success of Dr. A. H. Redford's untiring zeal in writing the History of Methodism in Kentucky, and while the experienced Dr. McFerrin is preparing the History of Methodism in Tennessee, and while Bishop Pierce is to prepare the History of Methodism in Georgia, cannot some one be induced to undertake a similar history of Alabama?—Now is the time to commence the work. Now, while our people are being so fully aroused upon this subject in other portions of our Zion, is the time to gather the material. Now the subject can be expanded and enriched by the recollections of our living fathers in the Gospel. There are those now living in the Montgomery and Mobile Conferences who can furnish enough facts and observations of the early settling of this country and the workings of Methodism, together with the printed minutes, to make a history so complete, so full of incident and experience, that it would rekindle the fires of divine love upon the altar of many hearts now darkened by recent misfortunes, and would give invaluable aid in consecrating this whole country to the blessed cause and work of our adorable Redeemer.

Who will undertake so great and valuable a work? We have scores of men every way worthy and well qualified to perform this work; but how shall they be set in motion? Who will volunteer for this service, or how shall the plan be arranged? What say you, Mr. Editor? Let the subject be duly and prayerfully considered.

VIDI.

TO YOUNG MEN.

It is easier to be a good business man than a poor one. Half the energy displayed in keeping ahead that is required to catch up when behind will save credit, give more time to business, and add to the profit and reputation of your word. Honor your engagements. If you promise to meet a man, or do a certain thing at a certain moment, be ready at the appointed time. If you have work to do, do it at once, cheerfully, and therefore more speedily and correctly. If you go out on business, attend promptly to the matter on hand, and then as promptly go about your own business; do not stop to tell stories in business hours.

If you have a place of business, be found there when wanted. No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons. Never "fool" on business matters. If you have to labor for a living, remember that one hour in the morning is better than two at night. If you employ others, be on hand to see that they attend to their duties, and to direct with regularity, promptness, and liberality. Do not meddle with any business you know nothing of. Never buy any article simply because the man who sells it will take it out in trade. Trade is money. A good business habit and reputation is always money. Make your place of business pleasant and attractive; then stay there to wait on customers.

Never use quick words, or allow yourself to make any hasty or ungentlemanly remarks to those in your employ, for to do so lessens their respect for you and your influence over them. Help yourself, and others will help you.—Be faithful over the interests confided to your keeping, and all in good time your responsibilities will be increased. Do not be in too great haste to get rich. Do not build until you have arranged and laid a good foundation. Do not—as you hope to work for success—spend time in idleness. If your time is your own, business will suffer if you do. If it is given to another for pay, it belongs to him, and you have no more right to steal it than to steal money. Be obliging. Strive to avoid harsh words and personalities.—Do not kick every stone in the path; more miles can be made in a day by going steadily on than by stopping to kick. Pay as you go. A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond. Ask, but never beg. Help others when you can, but never give, when you cannot afford to, simply because it is fashionable. Learn to say no. No necessity of snapping it out dog fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully. Have but few confidants, and the fewer the better. Use your own brains rather than those of others. Learn to think and act for yourself. Be vigilant. Keep ahead rather than behind the times.

Young men, cut this out, and if there is folly in the argument let us know.

RAPIDITY OF SENSATION.

If a needle be stuck into one of the fingers, the sensory fibres take the impression through the nerve and the posterior root to the spinal cord and thence to the brain. The command goes out to "draw the finger away." The mandate travels down the spinal cord to the anterior root and thence through the motor fibres of the nerve to the muscles, which immediately act, and the finger is at once removed. All this takes place with great rapidity, but yet with nothing like the celerity once imagined. The researches of Helmholtz, a distinguished German physiologist, have shown with great exactitude the rate of speed with which the nervous fluid travels; and other observers, among whom Schelske deserves mention, have given a great deal of time and patience to this and kindred questions. As the result of the many deliberations, it was ascertained that the nervous fluid moves at the rate of 971 feet in a second. Now, electricity travels a speed exceeding 1,200,000,000 feet in a second, and light over 900,000,000. A shooting star moves with a velocity of 200,000 feet in a second, and the earth in its orbit round the sun, 100,000. A cannon ball has a mean velocity of 1,800 feet in a second; an eagle, 190; a locomotive, 95, and a race horse 80. We thus perceive that the nervous fluid has no very remarkable rate of speed—a fact which, among many others, serves to indicate its non-identity with electricity.

Prof. Donders, of Utrecht, has recently been making some interesting experiments in regard to the rapidity of thought, which is likewise interesting. By means of two instruments, which he calls the mocmatachograph and the mocmatachometer, he promises some important details. For the present he announces that a simple idea requires the brain to act for .067 of a second for its elaboration. Doubtless the time required is not the same for all brains, and that by means of these instruments we may obtain definite indications relative to the mental calibre of our friends. What invaluable instruments they would be for nominating caucuses for vestries, for trustees of colleges, for merchants in want of book keepers; in short, for all having appointments of any kind to make!

For the eye to receive an impression requires .077 of a second, and for the ear to appreciate a sound .149 of a second are necessary. The eye, therefore, acts with nearly twice the rapidity of the ear.—Wm. A. Hammond, M. D., in the Galaxy.

THE Bishop of Oxford is the most popular preacher in England. He is probably more American in his style of doing things than any bishop or preacher in England. He is decidedly High Churchman, and a leader of the anti-evangelical party. The son of Wilberforce the Great, he has thrown all his father's principles behind him. He is the champion of the Irish Church in the House of Lords. On the subject he made one of the wittiest and most effective speeches that has been pronounced. It was very brilliant, full of satire, fun, and argument. He told several capital stories which convulsed the House with laughter. To show the absurdity of appeasing the Fenians and other disturbers of the peace in Ireland by despoiling the church which had alone been loyal, he revived the old law by which, if a royal boy at school did any wrong, the master selected a poor but quiet boy, mounted him on the back of the royal transgressor and flogged him instead of the prince. When the bishop delivers a sermon in London no church will hold the people, and there is no chance to hear him without tickets. He has all the freedom and fire of a Western orator, with the finish of a classic scholar. He would long since have had the highest honors in the church if he had not been so extreme in his opinions. Dean Stanley, of Westminster Abbey, who leads the Rationalist column of the established church, has a much more reasonable chance of promotion. He is in great favor with the court. His wife, Lady Augusta Stanley, sister to Lord Elgin and Frederick Bruce, is said to be the confidential friend of the Queen and about the only lady out of the royal family whom the Queen visits.—London correspondent Boston Journal.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1869.

THE HEART'S JEWELS.

Oh, jewels! there are more rich, I trow,
Than the sparkling gems on a monarch's brow,
And treasures more rich and dear to the grasp
Than the gilded wealth in an empire's clasp;
For the crown that a monarch in pride doth wear
May be but the price of a people's despair,
And the diamonds that slumber on his breast
May be the cost of a nation's rest.

But the gems that shine with a purer ray,
And increase in lustre as time wears away,
Are the jewels of virtue which deck the heart
With a sacred halo that never will part;
Bright jewels of friendship, rich gems of love,
And diamonds of truth from heaveo above,
Whose sparkle, not meant for mortal eyes,
Is gazed on by angels lo upper skies.

A word of sympathy dropped on the ear
Of affliction and woe is far more dear;
The tear of sorrow on friendship's cheek,
Which the depth of feeling alone can speak;
The mantle of charity lovlogly spread
On the acts of the living, the faults of the dead
Are jewels more rare and of greater reoown
Than the baubles that deck a prince's crown.

DE SOTO CORRESPONDENCE.

MANSFIELD, LA., Juoe 18, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: On the 12th of June our Sunday school celebration came off, attended by all its appropriate accompaniments. The exercises commenced on Friday eveuing, at eight P. M., in the large college session room, where the school and a large audience assembled and heard an address by Dr Wise, of Keachie, who had been previously appointed for that purpose. On Saturday morning, at ten A. M., Brother Scales assembled his troops of Sunday school scholars at the session room, formed a procession, and followed the banner in order to the grove or ravine. Here the different families had sent their baskets of good things, which were spread beneath the beautiful shade trees on the banks of the ravine.

Though we have not the art of painting to your imagination the richness of the address, the harmonious blending of the choruses, the grandeur of the banner as it was borne along, the reverend smiles of doctors and superintendents, the romantic appearance of the ravine, with its silvery, winding stream, yet these were all there. We leave the reader to fill up and perfect the programme in his own imagination. Suffice it to say that the Sunday school in Mansfield is a fact—a part of its being, as much a thing of life and real existence as Brother Scales himself.

There is one thing more which we would like to see introduced into all our Sunday schools, and which will be some day; but who will be the first to begin it? That is a temperance society. The time will be when every Sunday school will have its temperance organization and its pledge. We believe that a revolution might be wrought by this means. J. P.

Reminiscences of Billy Dawson.

BY AN ENGLISH METHODIST.

Billy Dawson was familiarly called "the prince" of local preachers, and well did he deserve the title. The rousing character of his appeals and the quaint eloquence of his style will be long remembered; for, as a preacher, he was fearless and bold—not by rhetorical flourish, or pageant parade of empty but large-sounding words, dazzling his hearers by a mere lip eloquence, but by powerful, searching appeals, by "Thoughts that breathe and words that burn," seeking a way to the heart. As illustrative of the power of Billy Dawson as a preacher, we may quote the following. It is selected from a sketch of celebrated Methodist preachers, which appeared some years ago in a New York religious journal:

"Mr. Dawson was delivering a discourse which was peculiarly suited to his genius, and which will be long remembered in many towns and villages in England, because of the effect it almost always produced. The sermon was generally known to be one of his favorite discourses (and such he preached many times over,) and was called by his admirers, 'Death on the Pale Horse.' As the reader will readily suppose, it was founded upon Revelation 6: 7, 8. I have heard the sermon more than once, and know not that ever I heard one that was throughout of so startling a character. In bold and striking imagery, in powerful, thrilling, irresistible appeal, it scarcely could have a parallel. When Mr. Dawson had been happy in its delivery, I have seen the congregation listen with such absorbing interest that it seemed as though their very breathing was suspended, and, in the pauses of the preacher, a long and deep inspiration was resorted to as a relief.

"This discourse Mr. Dawson was delivering at the village in question, and was indulging in that peculiarly vivid imagery which was the basis of his popularity. 'Come and see! The sinner is in the broad road to ruin; every step takes him nearer to hell, and farther from heaven. Onward, onward he is going; death and hell are after him quickly, untiringly they pursue him. With swift but noiseless hoof the pale horse and his paler rider are tracking the godless wretch. See! see! they are getting nearer to him—they are overtaking him! At this moment, so perfect was the stillness of the congregation that the ticking of the clock could be distinctly heard in every part of the chapel, and upon this, with a facility peculiarly his own, he promptly seized, and, without any seeming interruption, leaning over the pulpit in the attitude of attention, he fixed his eyes upon those who sat immediately beneath, and in an almost supernatural whisper continued: 'Hark! hark! here they come! that's their untiring footstep—hark! hark!' and then, imitating for a moment the beating of a pendulum, he exclaimed in the highest pitch of his voice: 'Save the sinner—save him! See, the bony arm is raised; the dart is poised! O my God! save him—save him! for if death strikes him, he falls into hell, and as he falls he shrieks: Lost! lost! lost! Time lost! Sabbaths loet! Means lost! Heaven lost! All lost! LOST! LOST!' The effect was so overpowering that two of the congregation fainted; and it required all the preacher's tact and self-command to ride through the storm which his own brilliant fancy and vivid imagination had aroused."

Billy Dawson once refused to dine with a family on the Sabbath day because the servants were kept from divine service to prepare dinner for him. A short time afterward he met his would be hostess, when she told him she had hit upon a plan which would remove that hindrance Said she, "We send our dishes to the public bake-house," fully expecting this plan would at once meet with his approval. On asking his opinion thereon, Mr. Dawson made answer: "Very good plan, very good; only you must first find a baker without a soul."

Generally accounted as true is an anecdote of his preaching at Pudsey, a village inhabited chiefly by woolen cloth weavers, some five or six miles from Leeds. It has been thus related by the writer in the American religious paper before referred to:

"As the story prevails, Mr. Dawson was preaching from the history of David slaying Goliath, and was indulging freely in the pictorial representation of which he was so perfect a master. Personating David, he had struck down the boasting Philistine, and stepping back in the pulpit, he cast his eye downward, and commenced a train of irony, which had the twofold effect of piercing every one that exalted himself against the Lord, and of adding force to the graphic picture he had already given of that strange conflict. So powerfully did the speaker depict the conqueror's emotion, and so rapidly did he heap taunt on his prostrate foe, that the congregation seemed to forget the actual state of things in the ideal, and waited in breathless suspense for the catastrophe. Some in the gallery, in the intensity of the excitement, literally leaned forward, as though they expected to see upon the floor of the pulpit the giant's form with the stripling's foot upon his breast; and one person, carried away by his feelings and forgetting in his excitement the sanctity of the place, exclaimed, in the broad dialect of his country; 'Off with his head, Billy!'"

Another time, urging sinners to give their hearts to God, he suddenly stopped and exclaimed: "O God! here is mine." An old lady in the gallery immediately rejoined: "And here is mine, too."

—One more reminiscence of this remarkable man to close. At Bristol he had once to preach missionary sermons, and on the succeeding Thursday to address the missionary meeting. He was called upon to speak, and after a few preliminary remarks he rolled up his copy of the resolution in the shape of a telescope, and placed it to his eye. Then, in vivid language he depicted the state of the heathen. Putting it to his eye again, he asked, "What do I see now?" and after a pause went on: "Oh! I can see a chariot. It is the Gospel chariot; it is golden and lined with love. There are ropes to it of purest silver, and there are men in white robes drawing it." Then the sounding of the trumpets, the Saviour sitting in the chariot, and scattering on every side the Gospel blessings, were pictured in glowing words. If the speaker had stopped here the description would have been very fine, but Billy Dawson put up his mimic telescope again. The audience waited in breathless silence for what would follow, when he said: "And what do you see now, Dawson?" "Why," he continued, "I see that there will be a good collection."

Such was Billy Dawson, one of the greatest ornaments to the local ministry in connection with Methodism. It was such men as these who rendered Methodism famous. Like Stephen, they were filled with the Holy Ghost, and therein we have the secret of their power. Have we lost that spirit? In the school of modern Methodism are there not to be found some kindred souls? We are forcibly reminded of the remark of an old lady, who, when the venerable Dr. Dixon, preaching a funeral sermon for the late Dr. Bunting, lamented that God was taking away all their best men, exclaimed in a loud voice: "Bless the Lord, that's a lie." As meant by this old lady, if God takes away a David he supplies a Solomon, so that the good work still goes on. Thank God for Methodism; may it wield a yet far more extended influence, and rise to a higher baptism of the Spirit from on high.—New York Methodist.

MR. MACGREGOR'S CANOE.

HE PADDLES IT DOWN THE JORDAN.

I brought my canoe from Damascus round the spur of Hermon by very rugged roads, with the ice crackling under our feet, and the snow beside our path. The "Rob Roy" was then launched on the perennial source of Jordan, near Hasbeyn, and paddled down until she was transferred to the pool at Dan, where from out of the moist earth there gushes the largest single spring in the world. The third source is at Banias, the ancient Cæsarea Philippi, where a torrent rushes out of the rock, and then these three rivers, each born full grown, the Hasbany, the Ledden, and the Banias, converge in the plain of Huleh, and unite in a small lake, "the waters of Merom." To trace the course of water through this marsh, eight miles long and four wide, was my object, and the Rob Roy was carried to the furthest point where a horse could take her, and then I launched her alone. The plain is flat. The people are nearly black in color. The houses are little reed huts, and great buffaloes—the "bulls of Basham"—plash through the morass or swim the numerous streams.

The natives ran from the field to see the canoe. They shouted aloud for "bucksheesh," and threw mud and stones to stop me for this. Their numbers increased and their excitement. Soon they waded out to intercept me; I eluded them. They then stripped and swam to me, but I distanced them every one. Men now joined with guns, and roared out to me to come ashore. Women and children joined the chorus, "Baroda, baroda," (guns, guns,) until at last one man fired at me quite close. I still paddled on, laughing and trying to keep a bold front, until at the village of Salhyeh a dozen naked men, just like savages, with faces tattooed and only long, twisted topknots of hair on their head, were waiting in mid-stream with poles and bludgeons. It was impossible to paddle fast without striking these men, and one of them, waving a huge shank bone of a buffalo in one hand, seized my canoe. The others soon closed, and they dragged me ashore. I refused to get out, as I knew they would rifle her, and my pistol at any rate would have disappeared; so they hoisted my canoe on their shoulders, and bore it, with me sitting inside, to the tent of the Arab sheikh. A large crowd followed, shouting and dancing. I insisted upon having the Rob Roy brought into the tent. A grand palaver was held. I told them I was an Englishman. "Sowa, sowa," they said (friend.) I said I must go on to the lake. They assured me there was no road. I said I must go to see. The seniors of the tribe assembled to consult, and several hours were wasted in talk. Meanwhile I made sketches for some, gave a lesson in geography to others, fired off some wax matches for the rest, and cooked my luncheon of hot soup in my "canoe cuisine," to the wonder and delight of all. Over and over they pressed for "bucksheesh," and I answered, "Certainly, but it must be given to your sheikh." He winked to me. I knew I had bought him then. I privately gave him a gold Napoleon, and he pressed me to stop the night in his tent, but I was at last allowed to go on, and so in triumph launched the canoe again on the fast flowing stream.

The crowd soon followed, and on both sides of the river, when away from their sheikh, they began again for "bucksheesh." One man pointed his gun at me at least twenty times, but did not fire. My speed tired them all out except a dozen. These were nearly all naked, and they dashed into the water like ducks to ford the countless streams. At last the river branched out into three, and the branch I followed took me straight to the great barrier of reeds, papyrus, and canes. This is three miles broad, a mile thick, and often fifteen feet high. Still I plunged on, and at length I jumped into the water myself. A sharp twinge on my bare leg reminded me that here are water snakes, and that in a pool near Banias leeches are caught by thousands, merely by a momentary dip of the naked limbs. Having fully proved that no boat could go further (and probably no human being could in any way whatever penetrate this marvelous floating jungle,) I acknowledged they were right, that there was no road, and I turned back. After a most tiring paddle against stream to the village I took my canoe to a tent. The village worthies assembled at night, and a bowl of excellent "kuskoosoo" was brought with delicious clotted buffalo milk. We at the top of the table (or floor, rather) ate with three wooden spoons, the rest with their hands, but all from one bowl. Every one gave me his pipe to smoke, and I lighted my canoe lamp and had a page of the Times to read. Only one of them had ever before seen an Englishman. The great fire in the tent now smouldered down, and they gave me carpets to sleep upon, for my clothes were wet. Seven hours before this I had managed to send off one of them on a good horse to my dragoman, who was, with my tents, many miles away, and in the dead of the night I heard his distant hail, as the faithful fellow, Michael Harry, of Beyrout, came over the marsh, after fourteen hours of riding that day.

I shouted aloud, and the old Arab in the tent was amazed. Things now changed entirely, and after a good sleep I took "Rob Roy" next day round the obstruction of reeds. Four days I spent in her upon Lake Hulet, and I succeeded in finding the mouth of the Jordan there, and went up three miles to an inner lake of great beauty, where most probably no man has ever been. I traversed the lake in all directions, and took soundings and compass bearings everywhere, and without entering into details, I may state the following as my conclusions:

The Hasbany river is the true Jordan. The river Ledden spreads almost at its birth into a hundred streams, and gets lost. The Banias and Hasbany rivers each lose one-half of their bulk in this way, but they unite at Tell Sheikh Yusuf. The united streams run south about three miles, and then spread into a morass. On this is a vast floating forest of papyrus and cane, perfectly dark inside. I could never penetrate more than three feet. I measured one cane, and (allowing one foot for the root) it was just twenty feet high. The papyrus is called babir by the Arabs. Many of the stalks of it are as thick as my arm. The water percolates below and through the spongy marsh, and loses one-half of its volume by absorption and evaporation. The impassable barrier is only a mile thick. I reached northward to within a mile of the place I stepped at in going south. The Jordan flows in a stream one hundred feet wide and fifteen feet deep on the western side of the centre of the morass (not the eastern, as given in Vandevelde's splendid map.) The Lake of Hulet is very irregular in outline. Its upper edge is the only one bounded by reeds and marsh. The bottom is nearly level. It is about twelve feet deep, and in no part more than twenty feet. No part of it is more than three miles across. The whole of the spacious area might be drained dry by a single cut at the southern end. Until it comes to Jacob's Bridge the river flows deep and smooth, but the canoe had to be carried past the long line of torrent. After that I paddled her into the Lake of Gennesareth.—London Times.

THIRTY years ago a young woman named Rasalama was led through the streets of the capital, and followed by a hooting crowd, the first Christian martyr of Madagascar. Last year, at the coronation of the new queen of that island, which contains five and a half millions of population, and an area larger than England and Ireland and France combined, in the presence of three hundred of her subjects who came to see the pageant, she discarded every vestige of the old heathen ceremonies, and on the canopy over her throne was inscribed "Glory to God in the highest; on earth peace, good will to men." And now the last mail informs us that humbly, like one of her subjects, she has applied to one of the native pastors for baptism. She has come with her prime minister to tell the story of her Christian faith, and to seek for instruction. They had both learned the Gospel in troublous times. The queen first heard of Christ from a man afterward burned for his faith. The prime minister received his first copy of the Scriptures from one of the last of the martyrs, and hid it in an enclosure where the former queen kept her fighting bulls. On February 21 both the queen and the prime minister were baptized by Andriambelo. Her subjects by thousands are seeking instruction. Madagascar is not yet a Christian country; millions are yet heathens; but, with such a "nursing mother" to the Zion there, there is reason to believe that the twenty thousand hearers added last year are but a small fraction of those who will this year ask for a purer religion.

MONEY AND MISSIONARIES.

There is one thing that money cannot do. It cannot do the missionary work of the churches. In the divine economy there is no method of proxy for doing Christian work. Yet this is what is being attempted. The city streets and alleys are full of practical heathen so far as knowledge of the Gospel is concerned. Under the shadow of the fashionable church dwell scores of families that are strangers to the Word of Life. Thousands of the neglected poor daily look up to the church's spire, and think not that it points to heaven. And the very most that is done for these people is to send to their door, at long intervals, a hired city missionary. It is not his fault that he is hired; or that he is a city missionary. But it is the fault of the church of five hundred members that, instead of having five hundred missionaries to do the work, they have but one.

This is not the proper method of tilling the Lord's vineyard. A Christian man cannot give ten or twenty dollars to a city missionary and say, "This will make up his salary, and end my duty in the matter." Nor can the church say, "We support a missionary, and that balances our account of Christian work." No absolute proxy labor of this description can please the Almighty. A church cannot grow under such a system. The age demands and Christ calls for individuals, and every Christian is now deemed to be a missionary. Money will not buy the exultation of soul that comes from speaking religious words to the irreligious. The millionaire cannot purchase the feeling a man has who says to others, "This is the way," pointing them to Christ. The same is true of a church filled with millionaires, or with men who pay a thousand dollars a year and never feel it. For the very reason that they do not feel it the act blesses nobody. Because it is so cheap, they and their families and their church do nothing, and, consequently, die of spiritual inanition. Simon of old thought the "gift of God could be purchased with money." We think our money will bring in converts to righteousness, and procure a divine blessing. On every hand multitudes of church members are dying of laborious idleness. The cry sometimes comes up for work—for something to do; but the silencing reply is, "We have a neighborhood missionary, and your services are not needed." The "Master's business" is too important for the committal of it altogether by any church to a proxy. All Christians are missionaries, at home and in their own church. And, if work is the law of growth, men and women cannot afford to keep their religion to themselves, or to shock their next door neighbors by sending into their houses strangers to do what Christ's love in their own hearts should prompt them to do themselves.

Some subtle spiritual discovery may one day reveal the fact that our missionary dollars go no further in doing good than we fervently follow them with our prayers.—Independent.

AN ANCIENT BAKERY.—A curious discovery has just been made at Pompeii. In a house in course of excavation an oven was found, closed with an iron door, on opening which a batch of eighty one loaves, put in nearly eighteen hundred years ago, and somewhat overdone, was discovered; and even the large iron shovel with which they had been neatly laid in rows. The loaves were but slightly overbaked by the lava heat, having been protected by a quantity of ashes covering the door. There is no baker's mark on the loaves; they are circular, about nine inches in diameter, rather flat, and indented (evidently with the baker's elbow) in the centre, and are slightly raised at the sides, and are divided by eight lines radiating from the centre into eight segments. They are now of a deep brown color, and hard, but very light. In the same shop were found five hundred and sixty one bronze and fifty-three silver coins. A mill, with a great quantity of corn in excellent preservation, has also been discovered.

GUSTAVE DORE finds his engagements too numerous and important to allow him to accept the invitation to travel to the East in the suite of the Empress of the French, and illustrate the journey. He has, therefore, had the audacity actually to decline the invitation—a piece of daring almost unprecedented, we venture to think, in the annals of courts Scenes of Mohammedan Superstition.

S. S. Cox, Esq., writing from Algiers, says:

Mahmoud insists on our going up into the old city to see some Mohammedan rites. The devil himself is an Algerine dervish. These are not the dancing, whirling dervishes of Constantinople. These are several sects of Moslems peculiar to Morocco and Algiers. I think there are seven. I believe Mahmoud belongs to this one. He did not like to confess it, but I saw him, as we entered, quietly salute the chief dervish with a peculiar embrace and kiss.

To this performance the ladies went; but they had to go up stairs into one of the galleries of the inner quadrangular court of the Moorish house among the Moorish women. Several nationalities were represented in our crowd. Expectation was on tiptoe to see and hear. It was a hot night, and the room was close and full of people. Some two dozen Moors were present. It is dark in the room; only two dim candles and a charcoal fire, which smouldered in a skillet. The object of the latter appeared to be to warm up the drums which the dervishes beat, and which, when the sheepskins get loose, they heat over the fire to make it tight. Perhaps there were some fumes in the skillet to make the dervishes devilish. While our ladies above were taking coffee, very black and sweet, in nice little China cups, in the galleries, with their Arab hostesses, we sweat down stairs, leaning expectant in the dark against the whitewashed walls or against the pillars of the court.

THE DANCE.

Now the chief begins. He chants passages of the Koran, while standing around him semi-circularly, a half dozen respond with whining tones. Others, with their drums, sit cross-legged in a row, before a little stand with two long, lighted wax tapers. A monotonous drum chorus begins; then a long-haired dervish bounds up like a jack in the box, as if shot in the rear, and, being up, a brother unbinds his garments and spreads out his hair, and then he jumps up gently at first, keeping time to the music. His head bows as his body sways; then faster and faster, till his hair flies around wildly and his hands are swinging insanely. He is joined by another, who is more staid. The last looks as if he ought to know better. The first one, exhausted, falls down in epilepsy and is carried out. No. 2 is joined by No. 3; then No. 4 appears, and by this time No. 1 reappears, and the quadruped—for they are like a brutal four-legged nondescript—are all at it. No. 1 having worked himself wild again, stops a moment. The others stop. A brother appears from behind with

A RED HOT BAR OF IRON.

No. 1 laps it with his tongue. I see it smoke. My blood runs icily. He slaps the incandescent iron with hand and foot. Then the ministering brother offers him to eat some delicate stems or pieces of glass. He crunched them and swallowed them. His digestion is excellent. If it had been candy he could not have relished it more! Then No. 2, the intelligent, stoops and has

A LONG WIRE RUN THROUGH HIS TONGUE, and out of each cheek, protruding four inches. He snarls meanwhile like a caged hyena. Then No. 3, who has been rather quiescent, commences to snap and bark like a hungry dog—eyes popping out, and face all savage and imbruted.—Barked?—he howled, he growled. Finally, the ministering brother comes out with one of the thick leaves of the prickly pear, a foot long, in form of an ellipse, an inch thick, and full of thorns; all the dervishes drop down on all fours and are biting at it, and into it, and crunching it.

THE FROTH OF THEIR MAN MOUTHS

hangs to the green prickles and slavers the green rind. Ugh? What more? No 4, in an ecstacy of fanatic diabolism, swallows a scorpion. Whether they have taken out the poison, or whether the afflatus is so enormously exciting that poison is innocious, or what, God knows? We summon Mahmoud in haste; beckon our ladies from above in the dark, and seek relief and breath in the narrow streets. Upon this infernal orgy we have nothing to comment. It is near making the human a wild animal as anything can be.

THE Sacrament was administered in Madrid for the first time in Spain in March, with fifty-two communicants present. It was expected that on the next celebration, on "Whitsunday," it would be attended by nearly one hundred and fifty, judging from the number of persons who have already seen the pastors with a view to partaking. The Second church at Madrid is crowded with attendants, as many as one thousand often obtaining entrance; and a Thursday morning service is attended by three hundred, and increasing in interest.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 113 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Liams Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying his Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

By a letter from the college we learn that in the present dangerous condition of the centre building it will be impossible to hold the usual commencement exercises. The notice, therefore, which was published in the two last issues of the ADVOCATE is recalled, and the Board of Trustees will meet on the 14th and 15th of July, at Jackson, Louisiana; and we earnestly solicit a full attendance, on the occasion, of the members of the Board, of the preachers and friends of the institution.

J. C. KEENER,
President of the Board.

THE CATHOLIC PRIEST'S EXPLANATION.

The priest whose indecent intrusion into the Presbyterian mission Sabbath school we commented upon two weeks ago, is out in the Catholic organ and in the New Orleans Times of last Sabbath, trying to set himself right before the public. So long as the testimony of respectable persons is worth anything, we imagine he will find this hard to do with the Protestant portion of this community. To his very round denials the Southwestern Presbyterian opposes the calm force of the following paragraph:

"We have given the statement of three parties who saw and heard the whole occurrence. The statement of one of them was made in the presence of witnesses; the statements of the other two are in writing, over their own signatures, and may be seen by any one who desires it. In the face of such testimony the reverend gentleman's charge of falsehood would go for very little, and we cannot comprehend how he could make that charge, except by supposing a defect of memory truly astonishing."

His article in the Times is headed, "Falsehood Contradicted and Hypocrisy Unmasked," It is a rare specimen of that terrible malady of which some Irishmen are the victims, that is characterized by a sort of sub-acute raving very properly called Delirium Tonans. He is evidently laboring under such an attack of superlative verbal abandon. He compares the Presbyterian to "a snarling cur whipped into good behavior for its ill breeding," "castigated by the force of noonday light," which "whines and howls with all the malicious venom and hatred of Calvinistic malignity." The ADVOCATE is treated to a separate article in the Catholic Messenger, in which he introduces his favorite figure again: "As the dog-days are approaching the biped animal is becoming ferocious, and will attempt to bite with the rage of canine fury." It attempts to bite "the Irish priest," but is suddenly seized with "hydrophobia." Calming himself down for a moment, he proceeds in his reply to the Presbyterian, but soon yields to his native delirium:

"Some time ago rumors reached me that the enemy was insidiously at work establishing a viper's nest in the shape of a Sabbath school mission, in the neighborhood of the Jackson railroad depot, for the purpose of carrying on a Protestant propagandism and proselyting institution—soliciting Catholic parents to send their children thereto, and bribing Catholic children to frequent those dens of hypocrisy, lies, and deceit, in order to imbibe in that poisoned sonree those biblical cants and sanctimonious slang belched forth by their authors in Luciferian ejaculations. Not wishing to act immediately upon the rumors until I would be better informed, four Sundays ago I made a descent upon the den, and there found one of my Catholic children, whom I ordered out of that nest of darkness and irreligion, remarking to one who was a Sabbath school teacher, or connected therewith, that I would tolerate no one to influence the Catholics of my parish to frequent that haunt of error—that I would allow no wolf to come in the clothing of sheep and make incursions among my flock, without sounding the cry of alarm, and expurgating, with all the might of my moral force, my parish of this imported religious infection. * * *

"The Presbyterian is very eloquent when on the high horse of Popery and Romanism. Poor fellow! Popery and Romanism existed in youth, and beauty, and vigor, ever ancient and ever new, even before his cadaverous religion was dreamed of being hatched in the cold bowels of the virulent Calvin; and they will exist in divine beauty and heavenly grandeur when that ephemeral sheet will be blotted out from the memory of men even of his own creed."

He thinks that, had the ADVOCATE, in "its juvenile days," got "a few cracks of a whip from the hands of an Irish priest," it would "now have a better knowledge of the truth." No doubt he has found the whip a very valuable medicine; and we understand that it runs in the family of the Moynihans to swallow an occasional dose of it without a murmur.

His article in the Times closes in a very charitable frame: "I have always pursued the course of forbearance toward my co religionists, as is my duty—never abusing any man's religion, nor any man on account of his religion. If he differs from me in religious belief, that is his own business, not mine. He is accountable to his God alone."—Very smoothly said, but in noticeable contrast with his "descent" upon that "viper's nest"—that "den of hypocrisy, lies, and deceit"—that "poisoned source" of "biblical cant and sanctimonious slang belched forth by their authors in Luciferian ejaculations." This is the smiling priest that Protestant Christians have been giving to, that he might build up churches and schools where the people and the children of this city are taught to hate the "cadaverous religion" of the "virulent Calvin," and to look upon all Protestants as the offspring of the Devil. This intrusion of this conceited priest into a Protestant Sabbath school, and his attempt to dragoon a little child, whose parents sent it there, because he might choose to consider it a lamb of his own flock, will certainly not be permitted to pass in this land of religious freedom without the severest public censure. He must learn to seek some other audience besides a defenseless woman and a company of little children for the display of his priestly heroism and his uncouth zeal.

HOMER COLLEGE.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees takes place on Monday, July 12. A full meeting is earnestly requested.

The following ministers were appointed members of the board by the last Annual Conference: Revs. Samuel Armstrong, N. A. Cravens, John A. Miller, S. S. Scott, T. B. White, Thomas J. Upton, W. C. Haislip.

H. T. LEWIS,
President Homer College.

The Protestant Episcopal Convention for Reform.

At Chicago, on June 16, two hundred delegates, clergymen and laymen, mostly from Episcopal churches in the Northern, Middle, and Western States, met in convention "to consult how the church could be called back from destruction"—we quote the words of its president. The following gentlemen were elected its permanent officers: President, Hon. Felix R Brunegg, of Pittsburg, Pa.; vice presidents, Rev. Dr. Newton, of Pennsylvania, Gordon G Hubbard, of Illinois, Rev Dr. Andrews, of Virginia, Colonel B. A. Cregg, of New Jersey, Judge Miller, of Wisconsin, and John J. Hewitt, of Michigan; secretaries, Rev. C. W. Quick, of Pennsylvania, Rev. N. N. Cowgill, of Kentucky, and Rev. T. L. Smith, of Missouri.

The objects of the convention were clearly set forth in the resolution, "that this conference, recognizing the present as a time of eminent danger to the purity of worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church, does hereby pledge itself to use all proper efforts for the preservation of the same in their integrity." This passed unanimously. The question was asked, "Were they to go on using a Prayer Book which inculcated false doctrine and untrue meaning?" A liturgy was wanted "which reflected the doctrines of Christ, the Master." They "did not propose to tear up the Prayer Book, but to bring it into harmony with the word of God." The following resolutions were then unanimously adopted:

Resolved, As the opinion of this conference, that a careful revision of the "Book of Common Prayer" is needful to the best interests of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Resolved, That all words or phrases seeming to teach that the Christian ministry is a priesthood, or the Lord's Supper a sacrifice, or that regeneration is inseparable from baptism, should be removed from the Prayer Book.

Resolved, That there shall be now appointed a committee of — clergymen and — laymen, to be denominated the Standing Committee of the Chicago Conference, which committee shall have power to sit as often as they may deem expedient, and shall be a body in perpetuity for the promotion of the general objects contemplated by this conference.

It is high time that steps be taken to separate between the Romanizing party and the Protestant element of the Episcopal Church. The High Church party has been increasing for a long time from the indistinct statement of the points at issue in the conflict. All the bishops are on the side of the Ritualists to the extent of not declaring outright that such forms are the expression of doctrines as positively in conflict with the principles of the Reformation as is Rome itself. The true Protestants of this church have determined to wait no longer upon their balancing bishops, but to come to a clear statement of what they believe to be not only true, but vital truth.

At this hour, when the great battle is joined between Roman priests and the whole of Bible reading Christianity, there is no place for a lukewarm support. All good men wish to know where the Protestant Episcopal Church is. Does she believe that her ministers are priests? If so, she is of the enemy. Does she believe that her ministers actually offer up a sacrifice when they administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper? If so, she is not with us. Does she believe that her ministers can regenerate the people by baptizing them? If so, she teaches a dogma which is but a single step from Rome. Does she believe that her ministers can so bless the elements of bread and wine as to constitute them a food for supporting spiritual life in any one who partakes of it? If so, she is no longer at heart a Protestant, but a Roman Catholic Church, lacking only the outward union with that hoary superstition.

This uncertainty of where she stands is much against the common cause of Protestantism, because she has heretofore assumed to be the head and front of the church of the Reformation. It is paving the way upon which thousands have already passed over from Christ to Mary. If she is to be the half-way house between true Christianity and Rome, let it be known, that Christian people may have due warning.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THREE SEASONS IN EUROPEAN VINEYARDS. By William J. Flagg.—New York: Harper & Bro. 1869. 12mo, pp. 321.

This book is the result of an intelligent American's visit to the vine-growing districts of France, Switzerland, Italy, and Germany. It is full of valuable hints to those who are engaged in the cultivation of the vine. The writer is a strong apologist for wine-drinking: "The American people are in want of a drink. A nation has transplanted itself, but not its vines, from one hemisphere to another, and is thirsty." "The pale, bony woman, who paralyzes her insides with unstinted draughts of liquid ice, and the restless, nervous man, who consumes his with draughts equally unstinted of liquid fire, are types alike of our wretched condition as a people. Dilution will not save us. We must raise red wine then, and this can be done." He lays much stress on the virtue of red wine for its tonic properties, that it will cure dyspepsia, and "touch every weakness for which tonics and stimulants are prescribed." We have received this book through the house of Mr. G. Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street.

FIVE ACRES TOO MUCH. By Robert B. Roosevelt. New York: Harper & Bro. 1869. 12mo, pp. 294.

A New York city gentleman, excited by reading Ten Acres Enough, determines to realize his idea of country life. He attempts in Flushing what had been accomplished by another in New Jersey. Visions of beans, berries, Bartlett pears, grapes, tomatoes, cauliflower, asparagus, peaches and cream, were blended with odors of hay and the scent of the woodbine in his imagination, and in due course of time he found himself following the peaceful pursuits of the husbandman. He soon saw that there was much to be learned not laid down in the books. Everything went to grass, and the Ten Acres proved Five Acres Too Much. The story is a pleasant exaggeration, rather over much drawn out. For sale by G. Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street.

We have received from the publishers, Messrs. Sheldon & Co., 498 and 500 Broadway, New York, through R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street:

THE OFFICE AND WORK OF THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY By James M. Hoppin, professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in Yale College. 1869 8vo, pp. 620.

The treatment includes: 1. Preaching specially considered; 2. Rhetoric applied to preaching; 3. Pastoral office, etc. If the reader can picture a professor with talent, not genius, and a class of students at work every day in the week upon such themes as "a definition of preaching," "the object and design of preaching," "the difficulties of preaching," "faults of preaching," "the methods of composing a sermon," etc., he can form a tolerable notion of this book, which has evidently grown upon the hands of its author by every recitation heard during a long period. It is very much after the growth of a piece of gold when struck by one big hammer and a good many small ones: it widens, widens, until it threatens to become as big as a coverlid. As matter of course, there are many excellent things gathered here from Bautani, Chalmers, Pascal, Vinet, and ten thousand others, but all constitute a volume of lectures on homiletics and pastoral theology which have been worked upon until finally the professor has thrown them into the form of a book that weighs exactly two pounds one and a half ounces, and henceforth destined to some sequestered spot in the libraries of say five hundred well-disposed people.

FRANCE has a population of thirty-seven millions, and its real estate is owned by six millions of its population.

Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

The Southern Historical Society.

This society lately formed in this city, which is to have branches in all other Southern States, is one which should receive the addhesion and support of all Southern men.

Its object is simply to collect and retain for the use of students of history, in this and all coming time, all information which may give accurate and distinct account of the events of the past, especially those which relate to the Confederate war for Independence.

At the head of it has been placed Rev. B. M. Palmer, D. D., of this city, while as vice presidents for each State and the District of Columbia, Generals Robert E. Lee and Braxton Bragg, Lieutenant Generals D. H. Hill, Wade Hampton, and J. C. Breckinridge, Admiral Semmes, Vice President A. H. Stephens, Senator Trusten Polk, Governors Isham G. Harris and B. G. Humphreys, Secretary S. R. Mallory, Hon. Messrs. A. H. Garland and S. T. Wallis, Colonel Ashbel Smith and Mr. Corcoran, of Washington, give responsibility and character to it; which is further secured by an advisory committee, of which the president, vice president for Louisiana, secretary, Dr. Jos. Jones and Major General H. T. Hays, Senator T. J. Semmes, Dr. J. Dickson Bruns, and W. S. Pike, Esq., are the members.

A historical society, thus organized and thus directed, should have the respect and the co operation of all who desire to preserve and hand down to posterity an exact portrayal of the condition of things in the South, from the time when it was first peopled down to the present day, and especially during the period when it made its effort to become a separate people and to found an independent nation.

The North has peculiar advantages in preparing its history. It was successful, and, therefore, lost none of its muniments of title, or of its public documents and chronicles. These were mostly kept during the entire war at Washington—a place of security. On the other hand, in the general wreck of the Southern government, and dispersion and ruin of those who adhered to it, there was almost a total loss of all their public and private archives. Then there succeeded, after the war, an indisposition to dwell upon its incidents, especially when the multitude among the victorious party were so ill-disposed to admit of the least right of free discussion or frank statement of the questions of fact upon which history must depend.

There is, therefore, great necessity for the organization of such a society as this, which will collect the facts as they appear to Southern eyes, and shall preserve the documentary evidence which still exists, and supply its place, wherever it has been lost or destroyed, by the testimony of those who originally prepared or had the custody of it.

This is important to both sides of the great question, for posterity will hardly credit a history which shall be able to give the version of one side alone and from which the other shall be wholly excluded.

We understand the object not to be to publish a history or histories, but to make historical collections. We quite agree with Vice President Garland who, in his letter of acceptance, declares us not to be now in a fit state of mind, and we may add, not sufficiently in a state of freedom, to write a history calmly and thoroughly.

And this opinion has been expressed to us by men of position and thoughtfulness on the other side. We are now too full of prejudice and bias—whether this be on the right side or wrong makes little difference—to give a reliable opinion to our unprejudiced fellow men, as to the events of the war and their moral result.

It may be, as a distinguished Northern writer has said to us, that our true and received history will be written by some foreign hand, directed by a mind alien to our interests and feelings. But whether a dispassionate and fair history be yet written among us, or this task devolve on some more distant member of the human family, it is requisite that we should collect and preserve the memorials of the past, as we have regarded and held it to exist, and of right to be regarded, and to this end this society should receive the membership of all Southern men, and they should contribute to it in money and means, and in the erection of a fire-proof place of deposit, where our history may have a sanctuary.—Picayune.

COSTLINESS OF IDOLATRY. — The Leader says: "Many persons cavil at the costliness of our churches and religious services. But those of the unchristianized nations are found to be far more expensive. A missionary in China took pains to collect statistics as to the cost of idolatrous worship in that country. He reported that in one district in Shanghai at least $18,000 are expended annually, to appease the souls of the dead. As there are one thousand six hundred and twenty districts in the empire, some spending more and some less, the average would give nearly thirty millions of dollars spent for the Hien gods. In the same manner it is estimated that $31,752,000 are expended annually for the Foo gods. Add to this the amount spent in each family for the worship of its ancestors, say $1 50 to each family, and with eighty million families of five persons each, the aggregate is $120,000,000. Cut the figures down a half, or three-fourths even, and the amount is still greater than is given to all Christian objects in America."

Enormous Exhibition of Power.

A paragraph has been recently going the rounds of the press, in which it is stated that the greatest blast on record was recently made on the proposed site of a port in San Francisco harbor. Twelve tons of powder were fired at once, dislodging eighty thousand tons of rock. So far as the quantity of powder exploded is concerned, this is probably true, at least in regard to ordinary blasting and mining operations. Much larger quantities of powder have been exploded accidentally, and in military operations.

The greatest exhibition of powder of which we have any knowledge was the blast at the Round Down Cliff, at Dover, England, January 26, 1843. The cliff was three hundred and seventy five feet above high water mark, and as a projection of it prevented a direct line of the Southeastern railroad being taken to the mouth of the Shakspeare Tunnel, it was resolved to remove the obstruction by blasting. Three galleries, three hundred feet long, were excavated in the chalk rock. Nine tons of powder were placed in the bottom of the shafts, arranged in three separate charges, which were fired simultaneously, by means of powerful voltaic batteries. As soon as the current was sent through the wires, a low, faint, indescribable subterranean rumble was heard, and immediately after the bottom of the cliff began to bulge out, and then, almost immediately, about five hundred feet in breadth of the summit began gradually to sink. There was no roaring explosion, no burst out of fire, no violent and crushing splitting of rocks, and comparatively speaking but very little fire.

For a proceeding of mighty and irrepressible force, it had little or nothing of the appearance of force. The rock seemed as if it had exchanged its solid for a fluid nature, for it glided like a stream into the sea, which was at a distance of one hundred yards from the base. By this blast one million tons of rock were removed, which would otherwise have required the labor of thousands of men for twelve months. Cultivator and Country Gentleman, Albany, New York

THE Christian Work, in giving an account of the English May meetings, gives in a table the incomes of the various benevolent societies. By a ding up and classifying the statistics there given, we reach the following results: The Bible and the tract societies have an aggregate income from subscriptions and sales of £300,804; the foreign mission societies report receipts amounting to £642,320; home missions, £246,021; Jewish missions, £55,474; colonial and continental missions, £46 009; educational societies, £157,924; and miscellaneous societies, £46,832; making a grand total of £1,495,384; or, reducing this amount to currency, supposing gold to be worth $1 40, of $10,138,704. To this should, probably, be added not much less than a million of dollars which was given to societies whose incomes it is difficult to ascertain, and which are not reported in these statistics. Of the different denominations, so far as we can distinguish their societies, the Episcopalians contribute £390,432; the Presbyterians, of various sorts, £211,542; the Methodists, £174,210; the Congregationalists, £125,559; and the Baptists, £34,458; leaving for union societies, or those whose character is unknown, a remainder of £559,185. Of the foreign missionary societies the Church Missionary (Low Church Episcopalian) receives £157,330 or $1,065,697 currency; the Wesleyan Missionary Society, £146,249, or $991,568; the London Missionary Society, £108,847, or $737,993; the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, £103,132, or $699,135; the Baptist Society, £30,556; the Free Church of Scotland, £29,558; the United Presbyterians, £25,464; the Primitive Methodists, £18,573; the Church of Scotland, £11,009; and the English Presbyterians, £6,602.

Speeches and Sermons by Rev. Dr. Deems.

For the exceedingly small sum of ten cents we can furnish by mail, prepaid, five sermons and two speeches delivered in New York by Rev. Dr. Deems. Address

T. W. BROWN & Co.,
U. S. Pub. Company,
411 Broome street, New York.

A REBOUND.

Some of the pet schemes of Massachusetts are coming back upon her, greatly to her own annoyance. Not long ago her politicians flared up into indignant remonstrance at the floating in upon herself of politicians from New Hampshire to fill Federal offices in Boston She who had populated the offices in the South with swarms of her own exported carpet-baggers, and who wants military regime re-established, in order to punish the Southern people for being restive under the infliction, shrieked when General Grant put a New Hampshire ex-Governor into the Boston custom house.

The fourteenth constitutional amendment is now troubling her with another rebound of her own gun. That resolution excludes from representation in Federal numbers all persons to whom the State refuses the right of suffrage. Whenever the right of suffrage is abridged or denied to any male citizen, the basis of representation in Congress is reduced in the proportion which the number excluded bears to the whole number of male citizens in the State.

In Massachusetts they do not permit any one to vote who cannot read and write. The number is large enough to affect at least one member of Congress, and one vote in the election of President.

Rhode Island is in the same dilemma for another cause. They do not permit poor whites to vote without a property qualification, and there is in Rhode Island a large number of operatives and day laborers employed in manufactures—persons who will be excluded in the enumeration. Rhode Island has now two members of the House of Representatives, and will be in danger of losing one of them. * * *

They must enfranchise all their whites, and thus throw themselves open to be ridden over by the classes of which they have a hereditary terror, or must consent to descend in the scale of influence among States, compared with those whom they themselves raised up for a very different purpose. One way before them is for Massachusetts to throw down all barriers and let in the floods of ignorance against which she has been covering herself with constitutional provisions as with a shield of protection, and for Rhode Island to let in thousands of voters who may endanger the rule of the great families who are now the absolute magnates in that State; and the other way is to stick to their principles and traditions, and take the consequences by submitting to the sacrifice.

In one direction is humiliation and domestic peril, compensated by increase of the power of domination out of the State. On the other side is political loss, with no other compensation than the serenity of self-respect in having maintained principles which, if they have been honestly entertained, it is disgrace to surrender.

There is a grim sense of satisfaction among the victims of Massachusetts and Rhode Island to witness the squirming of the politicians of those States in the toils of a policy which they fabricated for the humiliation of others, but find to their surprise come back, netting their own limbs.—Picayune.

The French elections have passed off amid tumult and storm, which sometimes seemed to threaten actual insurrection. In Paris, Lyons, Amiens, and other cities there was very serious disturbance. The results of the elections are such as to startle and shock devoted Imperialists. Instead of the famous opposition of five (Jules Favre, Ollivier, Picard, and two others,) which for so many sessions alone stood out against the government, there is now an opposition of something like one hundred. But the most serious feature of the business is that the opposition is entirely of an extreme character. Red Republicanism lifts its banner again—this is the crowning of the edifice! Men like Jules Favre had hard work to regain their places, being regarded as too moderate. Brave old Garnier Pages, one of the Republican government of 1848, has been beaten by a man of fiercer sentiments. The Orleanists are nowhere; the moderate Liberals are nowhere. Franco stands between the devil and the deep sea, to cite an old phrase—between the Imperialists and the Socialists. Rumor says that the Emperor is a good deal alarmed at the turn things have taken, and is racking his brain to find a policy which may carry him through.

The number of sheep in Ohio in 1868 was 7,689,845, producing not less than 30,000,000 pounds of wool. The farmers of Ohio in 1855-6 lost in killed and injured 86,251 sheep by dogs, which were valued at $288,697 45. The number of dogs in 1866 was 174,909, making the loss for the two years per dog $1 62.

Commencement Exercises of Madison College and Sharon Female College.

July 11.—Commencement sermon, by Rev. W. Harrington.

July 12.—Examination of students of Madison College. Declamation by the pupils and address by Prof. G. E. Criz at eight P. M.

July 13.—Examination of the pupils of Sharon Female College.

July 14.—Examination of the senior class.

July 15.—Compositions by the senior class, conferring of degrees, and address by Rev. W. T. J. Sullivan.

The Board of Trustees will meet on the 13th, at four P. M.

Committee of visitors from Mississippi Conference—Revs. C. G. Andrews, W. B. Lewis and W. Harrington.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT, Prest.

Commencement Exercises of East Alabama Male College, Auburn.

Annual sermon, July 11, by Rev. O. R. Blue.

Freshman prize declamation on the night of July 12.

Trustees meet July 12.

Sophomore prize declamation on the night of the 13th, with an address, on delivering of prizes, by Rev. William Shephard.

Commencement day, July 14. Exhibition of senior class, and an address before the literary societies by the Hon. David Clopton.

J. F. DOWDELL, Prest.

MARRIED.

At the residence of the bride's father, near Floyd, Carroll parish, April 28, 1869, by Rev. P. H. Dieffenwierth, Mr. W. S. H. WAILES, of Catahoula parish, to Miss SAMMIE MCGAUGHEY, daughter of Rev. W. G. McGaughey, of the Louisiana Conference.

March 18, 1869, by Rev. E. B. McClellen, Mr. CHARLES E. STEWART to Mrs. MARY A. CORUBITZ, all of Warrington, Florida.

By the same, April 13, 1869, Mr. JOSEPH W. JONES to Miss FLORIDA A. GRINNELL, all of Warrington, Florida.

By the same, June 16, 1869, Captain PAUL BOYDEN to Miss MARY FRANCES LANGFORD, all of Warrington, Florida.

By the same, June 17, 1869, Mr. RICHARD SOLIS to Mrs. MALINDA E. WHEATE, all of Warrington, Florida.

OBITUARIES.

Sister CAROLINE PAXTON POWELL was born in Elbert county, Georgia, April 8, 1808, and died near Childersburg, Talladega county, Alabama, April 4, 1869.

Her Christian life was a beautiful commentary on the Bible, and is written on the hearts of her bereaved husband and children in letters of prayer and faith, suffering and patience, and dying peace.

DANIEL DUNCAN.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

Died, in Pensacola, Florida, May 18, 1869, Mrs. ELIZABETH L. LEE, wife of Captain Joseph Lee, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Williams.

Sister Lee was born March 12, 1830, was converted and joined the Methodist Church early in life, and was married July 13, 1846.

She bore her protracted illness with patience and resignation. She spoke with tearful eyes of her kind and pious parents, from whom she had been separated many long years, and whom she had contemplated visiting this summer. She seemed to be exceedingly anxious to see them once more before she laid aside the throbbing dust to put on the diadem of deathless glory.

Her sense of gratitude to God, and to her dear parents for pious training, was sincere and profound.

I never heard any one speak more calmly and hopefully of folding up the pilgrim's tabernacle on the margin of the last cold stream. She appeared to know that she had a permanent abode "in the land beyond the river."

Should this fall under the eyes of her aged parents, I trust they will draw comfort out of these lines, and "pitch their moving tents each night a day's march nearer home."

E. B. MCCLELEN.

MISS MARY MARLAR, only child of the Rev. John Marlar and Sarah Holden, was born in Edgecombe, North Carolina, in 1789, was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in her thirteenth year, and was married to John G. M. Sibley in 1805.

She moved with her family and her parents to what is now the State of Tennessee in 1809, thence to Mississippi in 1813, where she lived out the remaining days of her life, performing faithfully the duties of wife and mother. She was a devoted mother, a consistent and daily Christian, meek and quiet, constant and true in her friendship.

Mrs. Mary Sibley was the mother of ten children—seven sons and three daughters—all of whom survive her except the oldest and youngest sons. She lived to see all her children on the road to the better land, and two of her sons are heralds of the Cross—one local, the other itinerant.

On the 3d of December, 1868, she departed this life in the triumphs of the Christian's faith. Farewell, dear mother, until we shall meet in Paradise. Rest from thy toils and sacrifices. Our loss is eternal gain to thee. We shall soon meet again. R. A. SIBLEY.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,
MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

WILLIAM BINGHAM, ROBERT BINGHAM, W. B. LYNCH.

The session of 1869-70 begins AUGUST 25, and continues forty weeks.

The Course of Instruction includes the ordinary English branches, the Ancient Languages, French, Mathematics, Book-keeping, and the elements of Natural Science.

Expenses, including tuition, board, fuel, washing, books, and clothing, $365.

Circulars sent on application. je26 4t

"THE TIMES,"

THE IMPROVED LARGE OVEN

COOKING STOVE,

with extended Fire Chamber and Feeder Top—one of the best Baking and most economical Stoves made.

The Flues are constructed so as to insure the most perfect draft. The heat of the Oven is so equal that when baking there is no need for removing anything until done.

"The Times"

is made of a superior quality of Iron, very heavy, of neat design, and flue finish. The Top Plate is put together in sections, to permit of the greatest expansion without cracking.

We invite the attention of Housekeepers to the advantages of this Stove. Remember, we guarantee them to give entire satisfaction. Duplicate parts can be had at all times, at small cost, by which repairs can be made which will frequently save the price of a new Stove.

ZABLE & DALTON,
No. 115 Poydras street.

A large variety of MANTLE GRATES, House Furnishing Goods, Tin and Japanned Ware. Agents for the celebrated Osborn Bird and Animal Cages.

ZABLE & DALTON,
je19 1y No. 115 Poydras street.

TEACHING.

WANTED.—ENGAGEMENTS TO Teach by the 1st of October next:

1. For a young lady qualified in the usual branches of a polite education, music, etc., and with five or six years' experience.

2. For another, fully qualified, but without experience in teaching. A comfortable home in some private family would be preferred.

Apply, if by letter, to
REV. JAMES MACLENNAN,
je12 1m Greenville, Mississippi.

THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Capital, - - $5,000,000, Gold.
Surplus, - - 1,000,000, Gold.

AGENCIES.

Virginia City, Gold Hill, Austin, White Pine, } Nevada.
Ruby City, Idaho.

A GENERAL BANKING AND EXCHANGE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE BANK AND AGENCIES.

Funds deposited with us for investment in Farming Lands, City or other property on the Pacific coast, will be paid by Telegraph or otherwise in any part of California, Oregon, Idaho, and in the Mining Districts of Nevada, through the Bank and Agencies as above, on the most favorable terms.

LEES & WALLER,
BANKERS,
And Agents for the Bank of California in New York. je12 4tr

THREE INDISPENSABLE BIBLE HELPS.

I.

Mimpriss Gospel Treasury and Treasury of the Four Evangelists. Having the text in parallel columns, with Scripture Illustrations, Practical Reflections, and Addenda, geographical, biographical, topographical, historical, and critical, illustrating manners, customs, opinions, and localities of the Sacred Narratives, with analytical and historical tables, and a very copious Index, and a chart with every event numbered and localized.—One volume, 12mo. Over 900 pages. Cloth, extra, red edges, $3 50. Quarto edition, large type, $12.

"It is not easy to state in a few words the merits of this extraordinary book. It is in all respects a most unusual book, and the labor in its preparation must have been immense. It is in its own department without a parallel in the language, and stands many degrees at the head of its class."—Primitive Church Magazine, England.

Strongly recommended as a help to Sunday school teachers by Rev. Drs. Tyng and Alfred Taylor, and Messrs. Ralph Wells and Pardee, the Sunday School Times, and many others.

II.

Simmons' Scripture Manual. Alphabetically and systematically arranged. Having the texts bearing upon the important subjects of Scripture arranged and printed in full, under their appropriate heads. One volume, 12mo, cloth, extra, $1 75.

"Far more copious and reliable than any work of the kind. A better help to the study of the Bible is not accessible."—Congregationalist.

More than fifty thousand copies of this book have already been sold.

III.

Cruden's Complete Concordance. A Dictionary and Alphabetical Index to the Bible. The Unabridged Edition, having the various meanings of the most important words as they occur in the different parts of Scriptures, Concordance to Proper Names, Definitions of Proper Names and Concordance to the Apocrypha. 8vo, sheep, $5; cloth, $4.

"Cruden's Concordance, in its unabridged and complete state, is invaluable to the biblical student, and the abridgments which have been made of it furnish no idea of the thoroughness and fullness of the original and complete work."—Rev. Thomas DeWitt, D. D.

"It is a low view of such a book to consider it merely as an expedient for finding a certain verse. It is in reality a Bible Lexicon. As managed by Cruden, it is also an explanatory Dictionary, and his definitions are, in every instance remembered by me, sound and evangelical."—Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D.

A descriptive catalogue of all our publications mailed to any address.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
je12 4tR 506 Broadway, New York.

LAND WARRANTS WANTED at the highest market price.

A. WILKINS,
je12 4tR Detroit, Mich.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SOMEBODY TELLS LIES.

Who is it?
Dr. WOLCOTT or the old school?
Wolcott reasons well,
Else whence this instinctive
Horror of Doses,
This opposition to Drugs
Implanted in every child?
Proof so positive
Convinces every reason
That the whole system
Of Drug treatment
Is and must be wrong,
When all humanity
Possesses a secret dread of them:
Yes, when every soul
Shrinks back and startles
At the approach of each Dose
That Ignorance mixes for the stomach.
'Tis our very instinct
That stirs within us,

and Nature points out to us the dreadful folly, causing such loathing that, before the vile compounds are presented to our averted gaze, the stomach often reels at the disgusting potions! Is it right? Can it be right when every human instinct condemns it in the strongest language; when even the brute creation shun it with abhorrence; when a power within ourselves, when all Nature cries against this most besotted and dangerous practice? Stop! Let us reason, and see how it looks. Perhaps you are costive!—Will Pills produce moisture or cure the complaint? Pills will rob the stomach of moisture, and never add a drop; for they are dry and have none to give. No one swallows them but is weaker and more costive afterward from the loss of the vitalizing fluids and gastric juices! Reader, have you a garden, a spot of earth, or a single blade of grass? If the soil becomes dry, will you sow it with gravel-stones or sand?—Nay, verily! But you sprinkle it with water! The human stomach and its health are better than "many gardens!" Will not common sense lead you to a watery and cooling diet? Don't your stomach ask for more vegetables? Where are the apples, oranges, and any or all kinds of fruit she longs for? Where the spinach, beets, turnips, and the hundred varieties? She will accept of some of them. Where the brown or corn bread, oatmeal pudding, etc., waiting for you to eat, that will be agreeable to your palate and will prove to be exactly what you need? 'Tis a thousand times more sensible to drink a pint or quart of oat or corn meal porridge once or twice each day, for a week or two, or use warm water injections, than ever be guilty—yes, I mean guilty, for no person swallows Drugs but commits a sin against themselves, and punishment will certainly follow, sooner or later.

What makes that once strong man now weak and faltering? What drives the roses from the cheeks of that woman? What takes the fire and brightness from the eyes of that child? It is Drugs in nine cases out of every ten. Hundreds of people every day that throng Dr. WOLCOTT'S place, at 181 Chatham Square, suffer from Drug treatment. Thousands, when they return home, make a bonfire and burn them up. Most of the middle aged who read this paper to-day will live to hear Drugs as universally condemned as bleeding has already become. And they will wonder how it was ever possible that intelligent beings could live and have their senses, and yet submit to such a transparent farce in filling their own bodies with Drug poison year after year, while their whole nature rose up and condemned, in the most eloquent language, this most absurd and health-ruining practice. For every person, without a single exception, who has swallowed most of these abominations, will ratify by their experience the truth of every word. Dr. Wolcott must be right or wrong. Dr. Wolcott is publishing truth or falsehood to the world. If his antimedical doctrines are false, why is it that he gains the patronage of the most shrewd and critical men, including many of our leading physicians, and retains their custom year after year? How is it possible for him to offer free tests of his Remedies in open daylight, before the world, unless it accomplished results? How is it that he has a larger practice and patronage than any Hospital in the world? How is it that he has more Certificates of Cures, with genuine names attached, from every city, village, and almost every neighborhood, than would fill the largest-printed volume, and many of these cases pronounced hopeless before they used his Remedies? Who tells the truth—this is the question—Dr. Wolcott or the old school.

We leave the readers of this paper to decide for themselves whether to continue in the old heathenish custom of dosing or adopt ideas founded on natural law, which cannot be otherwise than safe and in the highest degree conducive to sound health.

Every letter written to Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT is opened with his own hands, and practical advice is given to all who ask for further information, free of cost, besides pamphlets and circulars. He uses no Narcotics, and a child can drink anything he prepares with impunity. His Remedies, PAIN PAINT for Pain and ANNIHILATOR for Catarrh, Consumption, Colds in the Head, Weak Nerves, etc., are on sale at all first class Drug Stores in the Union, or sent directly from Dr. R. L. WOLCOTT'S office, 181 Chatham Square, New York, free of Express charges, on receipt of $5 or upward at each order. All who come treated free of cost. No charge for medical advice. Extreme pain removed instantly. Private rooms for ladies. We cannot speak too highly of his safe and successful mode of treatment for the last ten years in the city of New York. je12 4tr

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Farmers, families, and others can purchase no Remedy equal to Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT for the cure of Cholera, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Croup, Colic, and Sea Sickness.—Taken internally (it is perfectly harmless—see oath accompanying each bottle) and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Musquito Bites, Old Sores, Pains in Limbs, Back, and Chest. The Venetian Liniment was introduced in 1847, and no one who has used it but continues to do so, many stating if it was $10 a bottle they would not be without it. Thousands of Certificates can be seen at the Depot, speaking of its wonderful curative properties. Price, Fifty Cents and $1. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, No. 10 Park Place, New York. je12 5tr

THE NEW GRADED

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON BOOK.

Mimpriss Lessons on the Life of Christ. Harmonized from the Four Evangelists, with Manual for the Teacher.

Three grades. A Uniform Lesson throughout the school, but adapted to the various capacities of the different grades of scholars.

The most complete, thorough and attractive series of Lessons. Containing many important new features, and calculated to meet the urgent demand for improved methods of Sunday school instruction.

A circular, with specimen pages and full description, sent to any address on application.

M. W. DODD, Publisher,
je12 4tR 506 Broadway, New York.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

REFERENCES—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchoupitoulas street. my29 3m

DEAFNESS, CATARRH, SCROFULA.—A lady who had suffered for years from Deafness, Catarrh and Scrofula, was cured by a simple remedy. Her sympathy and gratitude prompt her to send the receipts free of charge to any one similarly afflicted. Address MRS. M. C. LEGGETT,
Je12 4tR Hoboken, N. J.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers:

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The substitution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity, but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In conjunction with enlarged power of production it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place. Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance each to its pattern; they are perfect in their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them.

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade, and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and ample—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtleties of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose expertness and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishments in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially so since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For facts and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
je12 6tr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address
SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or
St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. je12 4ta

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to
NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. MCLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TAY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. je12 4tR

TRY THE BEST

One Dollar Sale in the Country.

If required, Agents need not pay for the goods until delivery.

Agents wanted everywhere. Send for circular. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
je12 4tR 136 Federal st., Boston, Mass

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the Biskeys $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40 All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. Full particulars free. Address
W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
Je12 4tm Cleveland, Ohio.

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, La's Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF OAK STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE

sep15 1y New Orleans.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 58 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON, W. H. DAMERON.
Ja23 1y

F. HATHORN, ALF. H. PIERSON: Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address
DR. S. S. FITCH,
mh13 9mr 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mr Springfield, Massachusetts.

FIRE! FIRE! FIRE!—Globe Fire Extinguisher Company, No. 4 Dey street New York.

Great reduction in price. No. 1, $35; No. 2 $40; No. 3, $45.

First class Agents wanted. Address as above. je12 4tm

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address
AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
je12 4tR Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

WANTED, AGENTS.—LADIES or gentlemen to sell our popular allegorica engraving, entitled "From Shore to Shore, suggestive of Life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem.
B. B. RUSSELL,
Je12 4tr 56 Cornhill, Boston.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

CHRISTIAN CHILDREN.

Saw ye never in the meadows,
Where your little feet did pass,
Down below, the sweet white daisies
Growing in the long green grass?

They are like to little children,
Children bred in lonely cot,
Who are modest, meek, and quiet,
And contented with their lot.

Saw you never lilac blossoms,
Or acacia white and red,
Waving brightly in the sunshine,
On the tall trees overhead?

They are like to other children,
Children of the high and great,
Who are gracious, good, and gentle,
Serving God in their estate.

Christian children, high and lowly,
Try like little flowers to be:
Day by day the tall tree-blossom
Gives to God its fragrance free.

Day by day the little daisy
Looks up with its yellow eye,
Never murmurs, never wishes
It were hanging up on high.

God has given each his station;
Some have riches and high place,
Some have lowly homes and labor—
All may have His precious grace.

And the air is just as pleasant,
And as bright the sunny sky,
To the daisy by the footpath
As to flowers that bloom on high.

And God loveth all His children,
Rich and poor, and high and low,
And they all shall meet in heaven
Who have served Him here below.

FLOWERETS.

FROM THE GERMAN.—BY J. B. A. AHRENS.

VI.—AN HONEST MAN.

In the village of Alle, in Switzerland, the furniture of a deceased clergyman was sold at public auction. A farmer purchased an old writing desk. It contained a large number of shelves and little drawers, which he fondly opened and shut, thinking at the time what he would put in each one of them.

When he had brought the desk home he discovered that behind one of the outside drawers another one was secreted. He instantly opened it, and lo! it contained $500 in gold.

Of course the farmer was amazed, and said to himself: "What shall I do with all this money?" Then answered a wicked voice in him: "Silly man! how can you question? The money is yours. You bought the desk as it is—bought it with the treasure. Take the money, and say no more about it."

After a while another voice made itself heard within himself—it was conscience: "The money is not yours," said the voice; "nobody offered to sell you this money; consequently you did not buy it. You simply bought the desk, not the money. You found the money, and you know that it belongs to the heirs of the deceased."

The farmer had gladly kept the money, for it would have sufficed to purchase a nice house and garden with it. But finally he said: "To keep the money would be unjust. Conscience is right; the money belongs to the heirs." He immediately returned it.

This transpired A. D. 1844, and the name of this honest farmer is Joseph Hubler.

VII.—THE RAIN.

A wealthy merchant was returning home from a fair at a distant city. He had sold much of his ware, so that his buggy was loaded down with money. But the rain, which poured down in torrents, did not only thoroughly drench the traveler's clothes, but also rendered the road almost impassable. Then the merchant loudly complained that the good Lord had given him such bad weather for his journey.

His way led through a dense forest. Suddenly, to his utter dismay, he noticed a robber at a distance, aiming directly at him with his gun. He would have been surely killed had not the rain wetted the robber's powder—the gun would not fire. A few strokes with the whip increased the horse's speed, and thus the merchant's life was saved.

When he was beyond the reach of danger he said to himself: "How foolish was I to murmur against God because of the rain! If the weather had been fair—if it had not rained—I would now be weltering in my blood! In vain would my children have waited for my return! The rain, which made me complain, saved my life. Henceforth I shall never forget this beautiful verse:

"'Behind a frowning providence
God hides a smiling face.'"

VIII.—THE FAITHFUL DOG.

A merchant owned a very watchful dog. Once the merchant returned from a fair, at which he had taken in much money. He kept this money in saddlebags, made of leather, fastened with buckles to the saddle. The dog kept equal pace with the horse. After a while, without being noticed by the merchant, the buckles were unfastened by the motion of the horse, and the saddlebags, with the money, fell on the ground. Then the dog barked very loudly; but the merchant did not heed it. When, after a while, the dog barked more furiously, his master gave him a few strokes with the whip. But the good dog did not cease barking. He even ran between the horse's legs and bit him. Then the merchant thought the dog was mad, drew his pistol and shot him. After some time the merchant discovered his loss. He hurriedly rode back, and was pained to see, for a long distance, the blood of his wounded dog. Finally he reached the place where he had lost his saddlebags. There his dog lay on the bags! He was dying. Seeing his master, he only faintly wagged his tail, licked his hand and—was dead.

SCIENTIFIC.

SILVER.

CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK.

Silver has long been believed to be absolutely indestructible by the contact of air, even when aided by intense heat; and on this account it was ranked among the perfect metals. Several of the old chemists advanced that, in treating silver by a long reverberation, in a furnace where the flame was made to circulate above the metal, it was at last converted into a vitriform oxide. It has even been added that, when united with mercury and divided by this liquid metal, it was oxidized by the processes which are usually employed for converting mercury into red oxide, and this view is far from improbable.

Many experiments have proven that silver is really oxidizable, but also that it is much less so, and with much greater difficulty than the other metals. Macquer was the first experimentor who remarked this oxidation, which he effected by exposing the metal in a crucible to the intense heat of the furnace of Servos twenty successive times. At the last, very sensible traces of oxidation were perceived, and a vitrification of an olive color. Macquer never failed to observe, when treating silver in the focus of a burning glass, that, after a long incandescence, it was covered with a white powder which formed a stratum upon the support of the silver. Homberg, in his first experiments with the burning glass of Tchirshansen, made the same observation upon both silver and gold. It cannot be doubted that these facts indicate a marked oxidation of silver, and that they become stronger and more conclusive when joined with the experiments we shall mention.

Van Marum made many valuable researches respecting the effects of electricity, with the grand machine of Seyler, and found that it took fire and burned. By passing the electric shock from a battery through a silver wire, the wire is apparently reduced on the instant to powder, with a greenish white flame, which passes with the rapidity of lightning, and the oxide manifestly formed in this operation is dissipated in smoke. If we perform the same operation after wrapping the wire in, or fixing it upon, white paper, it attaches itself to the paper in a very fine powder of a greenish gray color, so fine and adherent it resembles smoke, and forms a light covering to the paper that cannot be separated from it. It is impossible to doubt either the oxidation of the silver or its combustibility, because the phenomenon is constantly accompanied with flame. We may attribute the effect, which is not produced by ordinary fire, however intense it may be, to the extreme division of the metal by the electric shock, and to the high temperature produced by the electric current in the body which is exposed to it. A stroke of lightning upon silverware produces exactly the same phenomenon, and is followed by the same results.

The oxide of silver formed by these different processes, and which it is so difficult to obtain, is extremely easy of reduction, because the silver adheres to the oxygen very weakly. Though the presence of this body augments its weight, changes its properties, and especially renders it acrid and caustic, nothing more is required than to expose these greenish or yellowish gray oxides to contact of the solar rays to make them assume a darker color, become black, and rapidly approach the metallic state. When we heat them in close vessels, with the pneumatic apparatus, we obtain from them pure oxygen gas, and easily convert them into the brilliant and ductile metal by fusing in a crucible.

Neither hydrogen nor carbon have been combined with silver, but it combines readily with sulphur and phosphorus. It is well known that when silver is long exposed to the air, especially in frequented places, as churches, theatres, etc., it acquires a covering of violet color, which deprives it of its lustre and malleability. This covering, which forms a thin layer, can only be detached by bending the silver or breaking it in pieces with a hammer. It was examined by Professor Pronst and found to be sulphuret of silver.

Silver does not combine with the simple incombustibles, but combines readily with the greater number of metallic bodies. When silver and gold are kept melted together they combine and form an alloy, composed, as Homberg ascertained, of one part of silver and five of gold. He kept equal parts of gold and silver in gentle fusion for a quarter of an hour, and found, on breaking the crucible, two masses, the uppermost of which was pure silver, the undermost all of the gold combined with one-sixth of silver. Silver, however, may be melted with gold in almost any proportion, and if the proper precautions are observed the two metals remain in combination.

The alloy of gold and silver is harder and more sonorous than gold. Its hardness is a maximum when the alloy contains two parts of gold and one of silver. The density of these metals is a little diminished, and the color of the gold is much changed, even when the proportion of the silver is small; one part of silver to twenty parts of gold produces a very sensible change. The color is not only pale, but it has a very perceptible greenish tinge, as if the light reflected by the silver passed through a very thin veil of gold. This alloy, being more fusible than gold, is employed to solder pieces of that metal together.

When silver and platinum are fused together (for which a very strong heat is necessary) they form a compound not so ductile nor white as silver, but much harder. The two metals are separated by keeping them for some time in a state of fusion, the platinum sinking to the bottom from its weight. This circumstance would induce one to suppose that there is very little affinity between them. Indeed, Professor Lewis found that when the two metals are melted together they sputter and fume as if there were great repugnance to their union. The difficulty of uniting these is also noticed by Scheffer and others.—Inventors' and Manufacturers' Journal.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Period of Gestation in Domestic Animals.

The following table and remarks are extracted from an article in Blain's Encyclopedia:

	Shortest period. Days.	Mean period. Days.	Longest period. Days.
Mare	322	347	419
Cow	240	283	321
Ewe	146	154	161
Sow	109	115	143
Goat	150	156	163
Bitch	55	60	63
Rabbit	20	28	35
Turkey	24	26	30
Hen	19	21	24
Duck	28	30	32
Goose	27	30	33
Pigeon	16	18	20

According to the observations of M. Teisseir, of Paris, in five hundred and eighty-two mares * * * the shortest period was two hundred and eighty-seven days, and the longest four hundred and nineteen, making the extraordinary difference of one hundred and thirty-two days, and of eighty-nine days beyond the usual term of eleven months. The cow usually brings forth in about nine months, and the sheep in five. Swine usually farrow between the one hundred and twentieth and one hundred and fortieth day, being liable to variations influenced apparently by their size and by their particular breeds. The true causes which abridge or prolong more or less the period of gestation in the females of quadrupeds, and of the incubation of birds, are yet unknown to us.

In most cases, therefore, between nine and ten months may be assumed as the usual period, though with a bull calf the cow has generally been observed to go about forty-one weeks, and a few days less with a female. Any calf produced at an earlier period than two hundred and sixty days must be considered decidedly premature, and any period of gestation exceeding three hundred days must also be considered irregular; but in this latter case the health of the produce is not affected.—Rural New Yorker.

Dry Earth for Poultry Houses.—The employment of dry, pulverized earth, as the means of deodorizing poultry houses, appears to be worthy of more attention than it has hitherto received. The fact that from four hundred to five hundred fowls can, by this aid, be kept in one building for months together, with less smell than is to be found in any ordinary fowl house capable of accommodating a dozen chickens, is very conclusive as to its efficacy. In the building of the National Company, where this fact has been ascertained, seven or eight fowls are kept in each compartment, twelve feet by three, and yet there is no smell or trace of moisture.

Mr. Greyelin informs us that if a much larger number are put into each run the ground becomes moist, ceases to deodorize, and the birds at once become unhealthy. It should be stated that the droppings that fall from the perches during the night are removed from the runs each morning, and the dry earth only receives the manure that falls during the day; this has its moisture absorbed so speedily by the earth that it at once becomes pulverized, mixed with the soil, and ceases to smell. So powerful is the deodorizing effect of the earth that it does not require to be renewed in the runs for many weeks together.—London Field.

Learning Calves to Drink.—I will give you my treatment of cows and young calves in learning the calf to drink. I let the calf suck until the milk becomes good; this I think is the best remedy for taking the cake from the cow's bag. I then take the calf from the cow in the morning—that is, let it suck the last in the morning—and leave it until next morning without offering anything to drink. By this time the calf is hungry, and will be ready to make an effort to drink at the first offer. I milk the cow, back the calf into the corner, take it by the under jaw with the left hand, which forces the mouth open; then, with some one to hold the dish, I dip some milk with my right hand and pour it in its mouth. I let go the left hand and force its head in the dish while it is lapping its tongue for more milk. It learns to drink soon.

Taking the calf from the cow in the morning, it will not make a noise through the day, and in the night it will lay quiet if the cow is not permitted to remain in sight.—Correspondent Rural New Yorker.

The Striped Bug.—Every gardener knows that this is a most destructive insect among melon, cucumber, and other young vines, sometimes damaging the crop seriously. Many remedies have been suggested, some of them, no doubt, good in their way, but troublesome. Now we have tried for several years another, which proved with us a complete success. Instead of aiming to drive away the insect by soot, ashes, etc., we pet it, or rather furnish it with food better than the young melon and cucumber plant. We sow around each hill, at the time of planting, a few radish seeds, and coming up about the same time, the tops supply pasture for the bug, which it much prefers to the vines. Lettuce will also answer, but the radish is rather liked the best. While our vines are untouched by making this little provision for it, the young radish-tops are completely perforated. We can recommend the remedy with confidence.—Germantown Telegraph.

The Quemadaro is a space of an acre or two just out of the Gate of San Bernardo, Madrid, occupied by a broad mound, and the site of the autus da fe. This mound has been laid open by a new road cut through it, and was found to be composed of alternating layers of earth and ashes, interspersed with human bones. A Protestant meeting was held on this spot May 12, the anniversary of one of the most famous autos. Very many of those present carried away with them as relics bones of the old martyrs.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. ja16 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans

oct3 1y

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopedia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Beugel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols.	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each	45 50
Wesley's Notes on the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Diuturnity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols.	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 6 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates.

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
New Orleans.

myl6

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,
Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, President.
W. S. PIKE, Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss,	Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith,	Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier,	Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,
OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

60.....BARONNE STREET.....60

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,
MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,
AND HALE
PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded. no14 1y

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

In existence thirty years. de12 6m

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET..... 99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Rosborough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us. ja2 1y

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.

VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Scant Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Flues of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE

OF THE

CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FILLEY'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st., and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
de12 6m 97 and 99 Julia street.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & CO., 161 WILLIAM ST., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

PATENTS—MUNN & CO., EDITORS Scientific American, 37 Park Row, New York. Twenty three years' experience in obtaining American and European Patents.

Opinions, no charge. A pamphlet, 108 pages of law and information, free. Address as above. je12 4ta

BUILDERS, SEND FOR CATALOGUE of all new Architectural Books and Journals. Address A. J. BICKNELL & CO., publishers, Troy, New York, or Springfield, Illinois. je12 4tR

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,

AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, - - - $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, - - - 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address
REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS' Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Briniey Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEAN

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)..	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two.....	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three.....	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four.....	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address

REV. J. C. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL

Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA.

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W C Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
se p5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE, Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages.....	$215 00
Music.....	50 00
French or one Modern Language.....	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Floyd; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address
WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1868.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.

p22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio, Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDRENS SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

A. EYRICH, (Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL AND RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan,
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States.
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,

No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.

July6 1y

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
nov1 New Orleans, La.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

aog8 6m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term..	$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term.....	30 00
Contingent fee, per term.....	2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circular to O. F. OAKEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE. SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages.....	$80,00
Incidental Fee.....	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course.....	$75,00
Incidental Fee.....	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing.	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
OCT						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
NOV		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
DEC				1	2	3
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no material change to report in the general market, which continues to exhibit very little animation, with only a limited business in the wholesale trade in supplying country and plantation orders, and increasing dullness in some departments. The sales of sugar and molasses have been mostly confined to the current receipts, without any marked change in prices. Western produce has shown but little activity, corn ruling at fuller prices, caused by scant supplies, and most other articles showing little or no variation.

The weather has been remarkably warm, but with daily showers. Our accounts from the country are generally encouraging, and the prospect of a liberal yield of both cotton and sugar appears brighter than at any time this season. We see no cause, however, why any one should hastily conclude, as was done at the corresponding period last year, that we may look for a three millions crop, which would show an increase of about twenty-five per cent. on the last yield. The disappointment of long crop men in the past season should render them cautious in making estimates for the present year.

The river has continued to recede slowly since our last report, and is now two feet ten inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 25th ultimo:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	640
Mobile.....	153
Total.....	793

On Saturday the movement commenced with increased animation, and under encouraging dispatches from New York subsequently became still more active, resulting in sales of 1,375 bales, mostly at full prices, without any quotable improvement, but with the advantage on the side of the seller. On Monday buyers came forward with unabated spirit, and although factors raised their pretensions, yet, under later and still more favorable news from New York, 1,400 bales changed hands at an irregular advance of ⅛ to 1c. per pound, low middling closing at 31 to 31¼c., and middling at 32 to 32¼c. On Tuesday the market opened with only a moderate inquiry, and although factors evinced a disposition to offer their stocks more freely, yet as the comparatively large business of the two preceding days had partially supplied the demand, the movement continued inanimate throughout the day, and the business did not exceed 525 bales. Prices showed more irregularity. Low middling sold down to 30¾c., and even a fraction lower, and strict low middling up to 31⅛c., and even a fraction higher, but the market appeared most nearly represented by 31 to 31¼c., which were the quotations on Monday. We also heard of Liverpool middling at 31¾c. The stock unsold is now estimated at less than 6,000 bales, but little more than half of which is offered at the ruling rates.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 3,300 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 791,584 bales, against 580,798 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 74,126 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 23,839 bales to France, and of 5,688 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 252,194 to Great Britain.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary.....	27 to 28
Good ordinary.....	29 to 30
Low middling.....	31 to 31¼
Middling.....	32 to 32¼
Strict middling.....	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales...	1969
Arrived past three days..... 793
Arrived previously..... 832236
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc..... 9112—832711
	834070
Exported past three days..... 4083
Exported previously..... 615926—620009
Stock on hand and on shipboard....	14061

Sugar.—Since our last review the market has been dull and drooping, and the light receipts have not been disposed of. On Saturday and Monday 64 hogsheads were sold, of which two small lots of fresh brought 9½c. per pound for common and 13⅛ to 13¼c. for prime, and a lot of old on private terms. On Tuesday 59 hogsheads changed hands, part on private terms and the rest at 11¾c. per pound for good fair, and 13c. for strictly fully fair to prime. The stock of Louisiana sugar now in the city is estimated at 6,600 hogsheads.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, June 29, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head.....$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head. 25 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head... 10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross..... 10 to 12c
Sheep, first quality, per head..... $4 to 5
Sheep, second quality, per head..... 3 to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head..... — to —
Milch cows, choice, per head..... 80 to 100
Milch cows, per head..... 50 to —
Texas cows, with calves..... — to —
Yearlings, per head..... 8 to 12
Calves, per head..... 8 to 12

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows.....	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers...	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers.....	6 00	0 50
Sweeps.....	6 00	6 50
Cultivators.....	10 00	11 00
Shovels.....	10 00	17 00
Spades.....	11 00	18 00
Axes.....	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky.....	23½	24½
East India.....	..	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb..	..	8½
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs.....	1 07½	..
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot....	5 50	..
Crackers.....	6 00	..
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M.....	8 00	16 00
English, Fire.....	85 00	100 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford.....	..	.
Tallow.....	..	..
Adamantine.....	15	21½
Star.....	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb.....	38	55
Sweet and Spiced.....	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ hbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Northern.....	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton.....	9 50	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel.....	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb.....	14	16½
Havana.....	..	..
Java.....	..	..
St. Domingo.....	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb.....	37	38
Sheathing.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts.....	37	38
Yellow Metal.....	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb.....	23½	24½
Tarred, American:.....	.. ..	21
Russia.....	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl.....	4 25	4 75
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y.....	4	4½
St. Domingo.....	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico.....	6	.. ..
Indigo, ₩ lb.....	1 75	1 85
Madder.....	22	24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western.....	25	27
Feathers, ₩ lb.....	..	1 00
Fish, Cod, ₩ box.....	1 65	.. ..
Herrings.....	70	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl....	.. ..	27 00
No. 2.....	.. ..	21 00
No. 3.....	15 00	.. ..
Flaxseed, ₩ lb.....	..	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine.....	5 75	5 87½
Extra.....	5 90	11 50
Fine.....	5 00	.. ..
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb.....	14	15
Figs, Drum.....	20	21
Dried Apples.....	..	..
Currants, Zante.....	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell.....	26	..
Raisins, M R, ₩ box.....	none	here
Layer.....	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₩ box.....	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000.....	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₩ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10.....	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12.....	3 50	3 75
12 x 18.....	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western.....	2 20	2 50
Canada.....	2 60	2 90
Oats.....	70	72
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel....	95	1 00
Beans, ₩ bbl.....	8 00	12 00
Hops, ₩ lb.....	8	12
Gunpowder, ₩ keg.....	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag.....	18½	19
Hay, Western, ₩ ton.....	24 00	28 00
Northern.....	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican.....	17	18
Wet salted, city slaughter.	8½	13
Kip Skins.....	..	.. ..
Dry country.....	17	18
Pelts ₩ piece.....	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₩ ton.....	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₩ lb.....	5	6
English, ₩ lb.....	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb.....	6	8½
Sheet.....	6½	9
Boiler.....	8	10
Nail Rods.....	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties.....	6	7
Castings, American.....	6½	7
Lime, Western ₩ bbl.....	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime.....	1 75	..
Rockland, &c.....	2 00	2 25
Cement.....	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana.....	35	70
Muscovado.....	..	..
Refinery, Rebolled.....	60	80
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country.....	2	3½
Black do.....	5	6
Select, water rotted.....	7	8
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb.....	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German.....	14	16
English.....	14	16
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar.....	.. ..	.. ..
Pitch.....	2 50	2 75
Rosin A No. 1.....	3 25	5 50
No. 2.....	2 00	2 25
No. 3.....	.. ..	.. ..
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon.....	40	..
Varnish, bright.....	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon.....	1 35	1 40
Coal Oil.....	33	35
in cases.....	43	47
Cotton Seed, Crude.....	70	75
Refined.....	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon.....	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton.....	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed.....	35 00	.. ..
Meal.....	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern.....	none	here
" Western.....	19 00	.. ..
" North half bbl.	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₩ lb.....	..	..
Tongues ₩ doz.....	..	..
Pork, Mess.....	34 75	35 00
Prime Mess.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hog, round, ₩ lb.....	.. ..	.. .
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb.....	17½	18
Do., canvassed.....	19	21
Sides.....	18½	19
Shoulders.....	15	15½
Green Shoulders.....	..	15
Lard, Prime, in tierces....	20	21
In kegs.....	21	22
Fair, in tierces.....	..	..
Butter, Northern.....	30	38
Western.....	20	30
Cheese, American.....	16	18
Potatoes, ₩ bbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Onions.....	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples.....	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana.....	6	9½
India.....	..	..
Carolina.....	..	..
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb.....	14	25
Crude.....	..	..
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 15	2 20
from store.....	2 25	2 30
coarse, cargo....	.. ..	.. ..
from warehouse..	2 05	2 10
from store.....	2 20	2 25
Turks Island, ₩ bushel....	..	..
Soap, ₩ lb, Western.....	7	7½
Northern.....	8	12
Southern.....	6	10½
Castile.....	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city.....	6	15½
Havana, White.....	15	16½
Yellow.....	13½	14½
Brown.....	12½	13
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters.....	—	—
Choice and Selections..	15	19
Fine Leaf.....	12	15
Medium Leaf.....	9	11
Fair Leaf.....	10	12
Common Leaf.....	8	10
Good Refused.....	7	10
Common Refused.....	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb.....	—	—
Bailing.....	20	20½
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb.....	32	40
Burry.....	13	17
Louisiana, Native.....	24	27
Texas, @ Matne.....	26	31

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Demopolis district will be held at Demopolis, beginning on Thursday, August 12. Bishop Pierce is pledged to be present. All the official members of the church in the district are hereby earnestly invited to attend.

A. H. Mitchell, P. E.

GADSDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Gadsden district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Lebanon, commencing July 23. The opening sermon will be preached on Friday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. F. T. J. Brandon. Bishop McTyeire will be present. The official members of the district are urged to be prompt in attending.

T. G. Slaughter, P. E.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT MEETING.

The district conference of the Vicksburg district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Rocky Spring, from September 9 to 12. The official members are all earnestly solicited to attend, as matters of great importance to the interests of the church will be discussed. The following brethren are respectfully requested to act as chairmen of the committees to which they are assigned, and prepare their reports beforehand, viz:

1. On the best means for promoting the purity and extension of the church, Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D. 2. On education, Rev. W. E. M. Linfield. 3. On Sabbath schools, Major Thomas Reed. 4. On church finances, Hayward Foote. 5. On the necessity and best method of circulating our church literature, Rev. H. M. Booth. 6. On the administration of church discipline, Rev. D. A. J. Parker. 7. On ministerial education, Rev. F. M. Featherstone.

J. G. Jones, P. E.

MARIANNA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Marianna district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Gordon, Alabama, August 26-29. The opening sermon will be preached by the Rev. William A. Sampey, on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Preachers, both traveling and local, and Sunday school delegates will be prepared with their reports on the first day of the meeting, as per minutes, page 57, article 4. Members, on arriving at Gordon, will report to Rev. L. Patterson.

Wesley B. Dennis, P. E.

TUSCALOOSA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Tuscaloosa district, Mobile Conference, will be held in Marion, commencing August 5. Bishop Pierce will preside.

Jas. L. Cotten, P. E.

UNION SPRINGS DISTRICT MEETING

The district meeting for Union Springs district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Brundidge, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday, August 25. The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M., by Rev. S. F. Pilley.

J. W. Shores, P. E.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Starkville district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Vaiden, on the Central railroad, embracing the fourth Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before, at eleven o'clock.

The official members of the district are invited to be at their post at that time. The good people of Vaiden will take care of all. Visiting brethren are invited to come and help us.

K. A. Jones, P. E.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. Wilson, P. E.

Alexandria District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Evergreen and Big Cane ct..June	26, 27
Alexandria station.....July	3, 4
Centreville circuit.....	10, 11
Harrisonburg station.....	14
Columbia circuit.....	17, 18
Lonisville circuit.....	21, 22
Atlanta circuit.....	24, 25
Rapides.....	31, Aug. 1
Anacoco circuit.....	7, 8

Fred. White, P. E.

Opelousas District, La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia.....July	10, 11
Franklin.....	17, 18
Calcasieu.....	24, 25
Bellevue.....	30, 31
Bayou Mallet.....Aug.	7, 8
Vermillionville.....	14, 15
Abbeville.....	21, 22
Opelousas.....	28, 29
Plaquemine Brulee.....Sept.	4, 5
Bayou Boeuf.....	11, 12
Grand Chenlere.....	25, 26

J. D. Adams, P. E.

Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Black Hawk ct., Black Hawk.July	3, 4
Richland ct., at Ebenezer...	17, 18
Lexington ct., at Eulogy....	24, 25
Mt. Olivet ct., at Dover.....	31, Aug. 1
Yazoo ct., at Deasonville....Aug.	7, 8
Yazoo city.....	14, 15
Durant ct., at Wesley Chapel.	21, 22
Sunflower ct., at Greenwood.Sept.	4, 5
Carrollton ct., at Eden.....	18, 19

W. P. Barton, P. E.

Wetumpka Dist., Montgomery Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wetumpka.....June	12, 13
Prattville.....	19, 20
Autangaville and Ivy Creek, at Ivy Creek.....	26, 27
Lowndesboro, Hayneville and Union, at Union.....July	3, 4
Pleasant Hill ct., at Elwood.	10, 11
Tallassee ct., at Oak Valley.	17, 18
Socopatoy ct., at Socopatoy.	24, 25
Carolina ct., at Reboboth...Aug.	7, 8
Autauga ct., at Pine Level..	14, 15

At the request of the district meeting I will preach on the Support of the Ministry, and solicit contributions for foreign missions at these quarterly meetings.

Wm. S. Turner, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist., Miss. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville circuit, at Muddy Springs.....May	29, 30
Summit and Magnolia stations at Summit.....June	5, 6
Bogue Chitto circuit, at Johnson's station.....	12, 13
Brookhaven station.....	19, 20
Brandywine ct., at Brandyw'e.July	3, 4
Wesson and Beauregard stations, at Beauregard.....	10, 11
Pleasant Valley and Rehobath stat's, at Pleasant Val:	17, 18
Behala circuit, at Providence camp ground.....	24, 25
Burtenton ct., at Tabernacle.	31, Aug. 1
Georgetown ct., at Bethesda. Aug.	7, 8
Crystal Springs and Hazlehurst stat's, at Hazlehurst.	14, 15

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville.....June	19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove.....	26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara.....July	4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon.....	17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington...	24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer.....Aug.	8, 9
Meadville.....	15, 16
Buffalo.....	22, 23
Percy Creek.....	28, 29
Liberty.....Sept.	4, 5

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita.....July	10, 11
Monroe.....	17, 18
Vernon, Vienna.....	24, 25
Farmerville.....	31, Aug. 1
Homer.....Aug.	7, 8
Hayneville.....	14, 15
Minden.....	21, 22
Bossier.....	28, 29
Sparta.....Sept.	4, 5
Mount Lebanon.....	11, 12

The Ouachita district meeting will be held at Hayneville, commencing on Wednesday, August 11. All official members of the district are earnestly desired to be present on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, to hear the opening discourse and assist in organization.

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Meridian District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Meridian.....July	17, 18
Pearce's Springs, at Bethel.	24, 25
Shubuta and Waynesboro, at Shubuta.....	31, Aug. 1
Clarke, at Salem.....Aug.	7, 8
Gaston.....	14, 15
Butler.....	21, 22
Belmont, at Wesley Chapel.	28, 29
Livingston.....Sept.	4, 5
Bladon Springs, at Kizer Hill	11, 12
Enterprise ct., at Jacob's Ch'l	18, 19

Joshua T. Heard, P. E.

Jackson Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson station.....July	3, 4
Terry, at Forest Hill.....	10, 11
Clinton, at Chapel Hill.....	17, 18
Canton station.....	24, 25
Camden, at Forest Grove...	31, Aug. 1
Sharon, at Thornton.....Aug.	7, 8
Vernon and Livingston, at Vernon.....	14, 15
Churchage, at Conway.....	21, 22
Madisonville, at Pearl river..Sept.	18, 19
District conference, Raymond.Aug.	26

R. Abbey, P. E.

SELAT.—MORE VALUABLE than Gold. For particulars send two three-cent stamps to AUGUSTE DUPIN, Box 1027, Cincinnati, Ohio. jel2 4tn

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and woman, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
62 Camp street, New Orleans,
manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and Heating Stoves of all kinds.
le13 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—188 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

FAKUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 37 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

july25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART, my22 President.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months,	$150 00
Fuel,	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department,	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department,	40 00
Music,	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each,	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

B. ARBOGAST, President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM, Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja6 2m

ONE THOUSAND MEN WANTED.—Wages, $5 per day. Send for circular to M. L. BYRN, jel2 4tp No. 80 Cedar street, New York.

MYSTERY.—Spirit Photographs sent for twenty-five cents. Address SPIRIT PICTURE CO., jel2 4tn 34 Liberty street, N. Y.

THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS salary. Address U. S. Piano Co., New York. jel2 4tn

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
del2 6m

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINOR'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

J. M. ELKIN. F. STAINOER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baronne, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.

oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....74

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes:

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

HILL & VEAZIE, no14 1y No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street. oct17 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

On the 14th of January, 1869, the Spring session of this Institution begins. One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars will pay the expenses of Tuition, Board, Room rent, Fuel, Contingent fee and Washing, for a session of five months. We have accommodations for more than the one hundred and seventy-one students already matriculated, and hope for a large increase the ensuing session.

The chair of English Literature and Modern Languages, now vacant, will be filled by the Joint Board at their annual meeting in June next. Applications can be made through the undersigned to the Board.

E. E. WILEY, President, del2 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This Institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the Institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON, sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Cameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja26 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Olimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sep1

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 25.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 739.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Mr. Reverdy Johnson, late minister to England, is still in Washington, conferring with the State Department, and getting up material for a reply to Sumner's speech on the Alabama treaty. It appears by a confidential document, just made public to day, that Mr. Johnson, on February 17 last, addressed a letter to Secretary Seward, detailing and defending his efforts in negotiating the boundary and the Alabama treaty. Some of the contents of this letter are interesting. In speaking of the naturalization treaty, he says to Mr. Seward:

"As directed by your instructions, I addressed myself first to the question of naturalization. The English doctrine was so wholly unfounded in reason that Lord Stanley did not hesitate to abandon it. It assumes that allegiance is due the soil upon which a man is born. It makes him, therefore, a political serf, and denies to him the power to better his condition. No free people can consent to such a doctrine, and, notwithstanding her majesty's courts are hoary with age, it never for a moment was questioned by judicial authority, even up to the moment when our protocol was signed. It fell at once before the light of British and American freedom. Whenever a subject of Great Britain becomes naturalized under the existing laws of the United States, his rights are identical with those that belong to native citizenship."

Regarding the northwestern boundary dispute, Mr. Johnson said that Lord Stanley and himself at once agreed to leave it to arbitration. He then alludes at length to the Alabama treaty, and proceeds to show how a foreign war would fail to secure the payment of our claims on England, and cites the fact that both Lord Russell and Lord Stanley refused to submit to arbitration the alleged unauthorized recognition of belligerent rights. That question, however, as well as the question whether that government had observed her neutral obligations in suffering the Alabama and other vessels to be built and escape from her ports, Mr. Johnson says would have been before the commission and its umpire, and he does not doubt if the treaty had been ratified but that the decision would have been in favor of the United States. Mr. Johnson maintains that we obtained in the rejected treaty all we ever asked for, and, with perfect opportunity of knowing what the sentiments of the British government and people are, he is satisfied that nothing more can be accomplished.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—In his letter to the trustees, giving an addition of nearly fourteen hundred thousand dollars to the Peabody educational fund, Mr. Peabody says he hopes the annual income of the fund may be found sufficient to sustain and extend the work so well begun. It is his desire when the work is closed and the final distribution made, that the fourteen Southern States, including Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri, and Texas, shall share in that distribution according to their needs. The present gift, added to the principal sum of one million, given by his first letter of trust, which is still intact, makes an annual revenue of trust of upwards of one hundred and thirty thousand dollars. Mr. Peabody proposes to continue devoting the greater part of the fund to the same States which have received the benefits for the past two years, with, perhaps, the addition of Texas. Times.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Internal revenue receipts to-day over $1,250,000.

Bismarck refuses to recognize Emil Hoechester, of Chicago, appointed consul at Bremen.

Bontwell asks Hoar whether supervisors of internal revenue are entitled to informers' moieties.

Cubans here have an official account of the recent attempt to relieve Las Tunas. The train, guarded by one thousand five hundred to two thousand five hundred Spaniards, was attacked by a squadron of Marmol's cavalry and a large portion of the train captured. In the contest the Spaniards lost over two hundred men, but succeeded in reaching Las Tunas with a portion of the train, and found the garrison almost helpless from cholera and fever. Disease soon attacked the reinforcements. Their encampment was vacated, and after severe loss they succeeded in retreating.

Lesca was repulsed with severe loss in the Cinco Villas district and the district regained by the Cuban army. Quesada has commenced offensive movements, has regained several important positions, and is now master of the northwestern portion of the island. Immigrants now numbering seven thousand are acting earnestly with the Cubans. The dispatches state that the Cubans are well organized and armed with improved weapons, well provisioned and in good spirits.

There is the best authority for stating that no present cabinet changes are contemplated.

Admiral Hoff reports Havana quiet. A brigade sent to reinforce Puerto Padre returned in a pitiable condition, full of cholera. They succeeded in reaching Las Tunas, but were harassed and finally attacked, but repulsed the Cubans. The Spanish loss in the battle was seventy-six. The insurgents behaved bravely, and retreated in good order.

It is reported that the Spaniards intend abandoning the railroad between Nuevitas and Puerto Principe.

It is certain the President has no present intention of molesting Georgia as a State in the Union; nor has he asked Hoar's opinion regarding her political condition.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Cubans here have the following news: The Spanish troops attacked Jordan near Holguin. After eight hours' fighting the Spaniards were repulsed, and compelled to take refuge in the town. The Cuban loss was two hundred killed and wounded, including twenty Americans. The Spanish loss was about the same. The Spanish force consisted of two brigades, outnumbering the Cubans two to one.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Scattering returns from Virginia indicate clearly that Walker, Conservative, is elected, with a strong probability that the same party carry the State Legislature. The election was unusually quiet. Many negroes voted the Walker ticket without question or molestation.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 3.—George Peabody has given another million in bonds for Southern education.

Among the bonds are $19,000 Louisiana sixes, $10 000 New Orleans city sixes, $35,000 Mobile city fives, $79,000 Alabama fives, $69,000 Louisiana consolidated bank fives, all first-class securities, with dividends certain to be paid.

In addition he gives Florida six per cent. bonds, which, with the over due coupons, amount to about $384,000. These last, like the Mississippi bonds, will require many years for payment.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Cuban advices report that the instructions of Da Rhoda are to carry out the policy of Dulce, that of conciliation, and positively to control the volunteer organizations, and maintain the supremacy of Spain; and that orders have issued to prevent the commission of such atrocities as were recently committed, by General Lesca, in Cinco Villas district. The effect of this policy upon the volunteers has been to produce dissensions throughout the entire organization. Volunteers who have given adhesion to Da Rhoda's administration, by surrendering the control of the forts, arsenals, and other important positions, are denounced as traitors.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Herald publishes this morning a report of a late conversation with ex-President Pierce on the political situation. From this report it appears he is not satisfied with the reconstruction doings of Congress; thinks we are getting on too slowly toward specie payments; inclines to the diplomacy of Reverdy Johnson on the Alabama claims; thinks we are not prepared for war with England; cannot understand the anti-filibustering activity of the administration in regard to Cuba, and has no faith in the women's rights movements. He has nothing to say about his successors in the White House.

EUROPE.

LONDON, July 3.—The Times says the votes in the House of Lords have had the effect of rendering the Irish Church bill more favorable to the established church, and more offensively partial in its provisions.—Archbishop Cullen has addressed a letter to the officers of the Catholic College, saying that if the bill is mutilated by the peers, the nation must have a fuller measure of justice.

BREST, July 3.—The Great Eastern is ten thousand and twenty knots out. Insulation is constantly improving.

MADRID, July 3.—In the Cortes today the ministers of the Interior and Justice declared that the clergy and municipal authorities were willing to take the oath prescribed by the constitution.

Topete said that the idea of a Republic, now that a monarchy is voted, is impossible.

The national troops have been sent against the Carlists in Andalusia and Aragon.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RICHMOND, July 6.—The election here closed quietly, and so far as heard from has been the quietest ever held in the State. The city presented the appearance of a Sunday. A body of troops bivouacked in the park, and the ambulances of the two parties, covered with national flags, driving about after sick and infirm, are the only unusual scenes of the day. A number of blacks openly voted the Walker ticket without any of the hostile demonstrations from their brothers which characterized the last election. The ballots are being counted; both parties claim the State. Returns show that a large colored vote has been given for Walker, and it is thought he has carried the State by a handsome majority.

FORTRESS MONROE, July 6.—The election in this vicinity passed off quietly.

RICHMOND, July 7.—The State, according to latest returns to-night, has gone nearly forty thousand majority for Walker, and there is a Walker majority of fifty on joint ballot in the Legislature. The Walker people elect all the Congressmen except three, who are Platte, Porter, and Norton, colored.

This complete disaster to the Wells ticket results from, first, the unreliability of the negro vote, which in the country districts has gone largely for Walker, and second, because of the failure of their calculations in some of the counties bordering on Tennessee and North Carolina, where the white votes for that ticket were chiefly expected.

In that quarter, counties that were expected to give Wells five hundred majority went against him by one thousand.

The Walker State Executive Committee telegraphed the President this morning, congratulating him on the triumph of his policy in Virginia, and thanking him for his liberality. Several Walker colored men have been elected to the Legislature.

A CHEERFUL RELIGION.—Let men be taught to know there is as much religion in the good, robust, rejoicing, enthusiastic singing of God's praise, as in the sedate and doleful kind that is usually styled the most devotional; let them know that the earnest prayer need not be a drawling jeremaid; let them feel that good Gospel preaching may be in a sprightly delivery of pleasant truths, more than in a whining recitation of inanities; let them believe that Christianity is a living thing, that it is in sympathy with the active, rejoicing spirit of our humanity, and it will be better commended to their acceptance.

Seriousness ought always to characterize the Christian. But seriousness does not consist in sullenness, moroseness, or even in the sobriety that drives away smiles and the taste for rational pleasures. He is most serious who best brings an earnest, healthy, rejoicing nature to the performance of his duty. Men are most beautifully serious when truthful smiles are playing on their lips, and when their whole countenances are lighted up with a benignant joy.—United Presbyterian.

WESLEY AND THE GOUT.—"It is supposed that none have the gout but high livers, the intemperate, or the indolent. This is not true. 'Tis a singular fact, which none of his biographers have noticed, that both his father and mother were afflicted with the gout, and their gifted son also. And they were among the most industrious, temperate, and frugal people in the world. Mr Wesley says Dr. Cadogan asserts 'there is no such thing as hereditary gout;' that it is generally owing to one or more of three causes—namely, intemperance, indolence, or irregular passions. Mr. Wesley admits that the far greater part of our chronical distempers are contracted by ourselves, but not all. He says: 'I am a living witness of the contrary, even with regard to the gout. Those who know me do not charge me with intemperance, either in meat or drink. I am not indolent; I never travel much less than five thousand miles a year, and I bless God I have no violent passions; yet I have within these thirty years (since 1744) had the gout nine or ten times, of which my father was frequently ill, and my mother died.'"

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Not having retained a copy of any letter I have sent you, and frequently writing others before those already sent are published, I may repeat in these letters some things already stated in the former. But if my readers now are as eager for items from California as I was a year ago, they are willing that the writer should repeat ever so much, and continue his correspondence without limit. I find, however, that as the relish of novelty wears away in the many objects and items which at first met my eye on every side, my cacoethes scribendi abates, and both my private and public correspondence are neglected. Already California is getting old to me. Many things I now see and pass unnoticed which a year ago would have been brought out as matter of considerable interest. I shall try to recall some of these, but not until I am moved to write another letter.

Some time since I was providentially called to preach on a special occasion at Petaluma, and had an opportunity of seeing California in a direction which I had not yet visited. Petaluma is quite a business town, containing some three thousand inhabitants, situated on a large creek which flows into the northern wing of the bay. This creek is navigable by small steamboats and schooners up to the town when the tide is in, and when the tide is out, to a point two miles below the town. From this lower point a horse railroad connects with the town. The valley of Petaluma is about eight miles wide at the town, and extends north some forty or fifty miles.—Many smaller valleys branch off from it, and the hills and sides of the mountains are rich for cultivation or pasture.

I have this week attended the commencement exercises of the Pacific Methodist College, under the presidency of Rev. J. R. Thomas, D. D., LL. D., late of Emory College, Georgia, having been invited to preach on the Sunday previous to commencement. Leaving San Francisco on the boat which starts from the wharf at seven o'clock A. M., in company with my presiding elder and the new wife I had the honor of helping him to three days before, we had a delightful ride of twenty-eight miles to Valijo, a city of three thousand inhabitants, the seat of the United States navy yard, and very aspiring. We are transferred immediately from the boat to the cars, and in a few minutes are whirling along the California Pacific Railroad, which connects this point with Sacramento, at present the terminus of the great Central Pacific Railroad.

Valijo has a fine landing for ships, a good location for a city, a pleasant climate, and aspires to be the terminus of the great Pacific Railroad. But the "powers that be" at present in the case have determined to run that much coveted road from Sacramento through Stockton, and thence into Oakland, just opposite to San Francisco on the bay, or around the head of the bay, by San Jose, direct into the city.

This railroad from Valijo to Sacramento has all been built since I came to California—in less than one year. The time has already come when the building of a railroad of one hundred miles will be the work of only a few months, instead of several years. Two weeks ago I saw a statement in a paper that the citizens of Vacaville had held a meeting and resolved to build a road from their little town to the Vaca station, a distance of four miles. I thought they might possibly accomplish it, and if so, in the course of a year or two; but imagine my surprise when I went up the other day and found the hands at work in the town, just completing the grading. In two weeks more the whole affair will be in successful operation.

The appearance of the country at this season is very beautiful indeed. From Valijo, for some ten miles up the road, we pass through or along little valleys of a few miles in extent, and through or among hills or small mountains, both perfectly bare, except with an occasional tree, and perfectly covered from top to bottom with wild oats, or barley and wheat. On many of the hills I find flourishing crops of wheat, and those not cultivated at all have oats growing as thick and luxuriant as if planted. It was just hay time, and on many of these hills I saw the mowing machines at work, belting the hill around like the rings of Saturn, and doing effectual work where the hill was as steep as the ordinary roof of a house. This wild oats and hay is harvested in great quantities, and is the food for all stock when not doing hard work.

Some ten or twelve miles from Valijo we pass through a short tunnel, and immediately enter the wide and extensive Suisun valley, bordering the bay and stretching far out among the hills. Beyond that comes the Sacramento valley, so wide, so large, so long. Into these, from the coast range on the one side and the Sierra Nevadas on the other, come many smaller valleys, all of them very rich, and some of them of considerable extent.

We leave the cars at Vaca station, as already intimated, and take the stage coach five miles, through a perfectly level valley, among luxuriant wheat fields. "How much will this field make?" said I to the driver. "Well, that is rather poor; it will not make over twenty-five bushels." A few moments after: "How much will this make?" The field was much better, and he replied: "Forty or fifty bushels."

I was surprised that we did not see Vacaville, as the towns and villages in this county are generally seen miles away; but my doubts were soon relieved, when, rising a gentle hill or "divide," we saw another long, narrow valley stretching before us, and Vacaville nestling in it just at our feet. The college presents a handsome appearance on a little foot-hill in the edge of the town.

Vacaville is a village of some two or three hundred inhabitants, with few exceptions Southern families, and ours is the only church in the place. It is very common in these valleys to find almost the entire population Southern. The Southern people being nearly all farmers, and the Northern people filling the mercantile and mechanical occupations, brings about that strange state of things which exists here in California—that our church is the next largest denomination of Protestants in the State, and yet we have almost no footing at all in the cities.

Upon my return trip I went out from Vacaville to Suisun in a buggy with a friend, and saw the country in that direction. Leaving Vacaville and going immediately across the valley, it seemed as though we were going straight up to and over the mountain before us; but when we reached the place the road wound a little around into another beautiful little valley, and through that around another spur of mountains into another valley, and so on, the valleys and mountains harmoniously intertwining themselves, so that the traveler journeys days together without passing anything worthy the name of a hill, but with tall mountains seeming all the while to hem him in on all sides. The whole scene and its impressions are strange and beautiful. These valleys are immensely rich, and now of a deep dark green; the sides of the mountains a lighter green, and gradually becoming lighter up to the top, which is yellowish. A man may have his rich wheat fields at his feet, his orchards, vineyards and potato fields at his side, and his cattle browsing over his head, all within a mile of him.

That the mountainous nature of California is a great disadvantage, and consumes much of its lands in waste, is a great mistake. These hills and mountains are mostly rich to the top, and eminently suitable for many purposes which the increase of population will develope. At present, while the population is moderate, only the valleys and edges of the hills are used for grain, and the heights for grazing; but when the population comes, which a few years will bring, these hills, robed with a luxuriant growth of vines, fruit trees and olives, will smile upon and mock the valleys.

JESSE WOOD.

A WONDERFUL FLOWER.

"Come with me, sir; come! A flower very large and beautiful, wonderful!" exclaimed a Malay, who drew the attention of Dr. Arnold to a flower remarkable alike for its enormous size and its anomalous structure and habit. And the surprise of the Malay was nothing compared with that of Dr. Arnold and his companions, Sir Stamford and Lady Raffles, when, following their native attendant, they saw among the bushes of a jungle a flower apparently springing out of the ground, without stem or leaf, and measuring at least a yard in diameter. The first news of this remarkable discovery created a great amount of curiosity in Europe, and no papers ever read at the Linnean Society can be compared, for the interest they excited, with those in which the illustrious Robert Brown described this wonder of the vegetable world. The most striking feature in the Rafflesia is its enormous size; indeed it is the largest and most magnificent flower in the world. It is composed of five roundish leaves or petals, each a foot across, of a brick-red color, but covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a large cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens; and this cup is filled with a fleshy disc, the upper surface of which is everywhere covered with curved projections, like miniature cows' horns. The cup, when freed from its contents, would hold about twelve pints of water. The flower weighs fifteen pounds. It is very thick, the petals being from one to three-quarters of an inch in thickness. A flower of such dimensions and weight might be expected to be a treasure to the perfumer; but, alas, its odor is exactly that of tainted beef! Dr. Arnold supposed that even the flies which swarmed over the flower when he discovered it were deceived by its smell, and were depositing their eggs in its thick disc, taking it for a piece of carrion! Another cause of wonder to the little band of explorers who discovered it was that they could find no leaves connected with it. It sprang from a small, leafless, creeping stem, about as thick as two fingers. Now, a plant without leaves is like an animal without a stomach; for the leaves are to the plant what the stomach is to the animal; they separate from the air the food needed for the growth of the plant. There are, however, strange plants which are actually leafless, making up for this want by using the leaves of others. Such plants are called parasites, because they feed on the nutritive juices of others. Thrusting their roots into the living tissues of other plants instead of into the earth, they appropriate the prepared food of these plants, and at once apply it for their own purposes for the production of stem, flower, or fruit. The gigantic Rafflesia belongs to this class. Without a vestige of foliage, it rises at once from the long, slender stems of one of the wild vines of Sumatra—immense climbers, which are attached like cables to the largest trees of the forest. The buds push through the bark like little buttons, continuing to grow until they have the aspect of large closed cabbages, and in about three months after their first appearance the flower expands. It remains but a short time in perfection, soon beginning to rot, leaving only the central disc, which becomes a large, rough fruit, filled with multitudes of small, simple seeds.—World of Wonders.

THE rice crop in the Southern States will exceed that of any season since the year 1860.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1869.

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine for evermore.

There is no death! The dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer showers
To golden rain or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow-tinted flowers.

The granite rocks disorganize
To feed the hungry moss they bear;
The forest leaves drink daily life
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall,
The flowers may fade and pass away—
They only wait through wintry hours
The coming of the May.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best loved things away,
And then we call them "dead."

He leaves our hearts all desolate—
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transplanted into bliss they now
Adorn immortal bowers.

The bird-like voice, whose joyous tones
Made glad this scene of sin and strife,
Sings now an everlasting song
Around the tree of life.

And where he sees a smile too bright,
Or hearts too pure for taint and vice,
He bears it to that world of light
To dwell in Paradise.

Born into undying life,
They leave us but to come again;
With joy we welcome them—the same
Except in sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe
Is life—there are no dead.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

MR. EDITOR: I hope you will not be wearied by the recurrence of this subject. And knowing that I am unable to compete with your correspondent, "W. E. M. L.," I should be far from troubling you with this if I did not feel compelled to dissent from some of the views expressed in his communication in a late issue of the ADVOCATE.

He says the congenital law that directs the Sabbath school makes it a church for the children, and that there is no necessity for requiring children to attend church service after attending Sabbath school worship. In support of these views he mentions "the day selected for the exercises," "the subjects adopted for instruction and exercise," "the absence of children from the congregation of worshipers on the Sabbath," and "the pastoral influence exercised over the Sunday school children by the superintendent."

In this pastoral charge we have a large Bible class, composed of Sunday school teachers and other members of the church. The day selected for our exercises is the Sabbath, and the subjects adopted for instruction are of the class used in the pulpit; yet we do not feel that we need not afterward attend church service.

It may be true that "children are generally absent from the congregation of worshipers on the Sabbath," and yet I do not think there is a "general acquiescence in such an arrangement," or that "the conscience of the church is satisfied with it." I read the proceedings of several recent Sabbath school conventions, and was pleased to see the unanimity with which they decided against this arrangement, and the earnestness with which they sought to remedy the evil. I was especially interested in the remarks of Dr. A. L. P. Green, of Tennessee, in the Sunday school convention in St. Louis.

But suppose the conscience of the church is satisfied with the absence of children from the congregation—does it follow that "the arrangement" is a good one? Surely "no one would so abuse his own mind" as to say it does. Now, "W. E. M. L." has been "set for the defense of the Gospel," and it devolves on him, as an "able minister of the New Testament," to "lift up his voice like a trumpet" and wield his powerful pen to arouse the sleeping consciences of the church, and prevent their general acquiescence in any arrangement that militates against the interests of religion.

I am an advocate for the Sunday school, inasmuch as it subserves the interests of the church; but I cannot get my conscience to acquiesce in an arrangement that causes this institution, of mere human origin, to supersede the permanent business of a minister. True, the Sabbath school is wisely arranged to accomplish a work God himself has imposed on the church; but in the pulpit the means also is of divine appointment. "It pleases God, by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe," and with the proper attention and effort on the part of superintendents, teachers, parents, and pastors, the children will not consider it a "tax upon their patience and disposition to attend church service."

I cannot believe, with "W. E. M. L.," that we must become superintendents of our Sabbath schools in order to "feed the lambs of the flock." Let our Sunday schools remain where they are—under the superintendence and tutorage of the laity; but let us preach the Gospel to the children from the pulpit, while the laity teach it to them in the Sabbath schools. It is not necessary or expedient for us to preach sermons which the children cannot appreciate. The adults and the learned will be more edified by the plain and simple presentation of the Gospel, such as the children can understand, than by labored efforts that are above their comprehension.

W. B. L.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

GORDON, ALA., June 20, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: We desire to inform you of the existence of a Sunday school at this place, and the very interesting celebration which came off on the 5th instant. This school was organized this year (in March) under not very favorable circumstances, (there being a prosperous Sunday school also in the village, under the supervision of our Baptist brethren, with an able and well qualified superintendent at its head,) but a fortunate selection for supervisors has caused the school to progress beyond our expectation. More are constantly adding their names to swell the number. Many who have not heretofore embraced the advantages of Sunday schools now flock to this, and exhibit an interest and determination characteristic of the teachers.

The celebration was one of the most interesting ever witnessed in this section of country. It was opened by singing a beautiful piece by the school, and appropriate prayer.

The speeches of the little fellows were fully up to the occasion, showing conclusively the taste and wisdom of the tutors. An address by a young man who attached himself to the church last year, and is now a teacher in the school, gave us a clear and comprehensive history of Sabbath schools in this country, its influence upon society, its relation to the church, etc. Many others that harmonized with the occasion.

But the singing of the children was sweet indeed. Their sparkling eyes, when called to the stage, gave evidence of the joy in their little hearts, and their bright faces showed a consciousness of their ability to perform their parts well, and prove the efficiency of their teachers.

Now, Mr. Editor, I think if you could have been present at our celebration to have seen and heard the children, and seen our large, handsome, I might say elegant, attentive and well behaved audience, you would have forgotten that you were in southeastern Alabama, and have thought you were in some city hall, where every one loved the Sunday school, or at least you would have felt that the people of Gordon had aroused to the Sabbath school interest. We hope to witness another celebration here, but do not expect to derive more pleasure in any exhibition of like character than that experienced in this. We do not wish to weary you, and will only add that a school conducted with such wisdom, zeal, and energy cannot fail to do an incalculable amount of good.

DEVON.

A RUSTIC, describing Louisville, said the finest residence there belonged to Mr. M. E. Church, whose name was out in big letters over the door, and there was a sharp-pointed chimney on the house two hundred feet high.

Errors.—Mississippi Conference.

VERNON, MISS., June 29, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: I saw the communication of the Rev. J. Nicholson in the ADVOCATE of June 12, making inquiry about the relation of Rev. Andrew Day to the Mississippi Conference, about thirteen days ago. I have been absent from home since that time, holding a protracted meeting, hence have not had an opportunity of examining the record until to-day.

The official record shows that Rev. Andrew Day's character was passed, and he was granted a superannuated relation on the fifth day of our last session.

I presume his name was overlooked in the bishop's cabinet, and by the bishop, or his secretary, in the list of appointments which was read to the Conference.

The reason his name does not occur in the printed minutes, in answer to the thirteenth question, is that in preparing copy for the printer I simply depended upon the accuracy of the official list of appointments, and wrote the superannuates just as I found them there.

Of course, as Brother Nicholson suggests, it was simply an oversight, and one, too, for which, as far as I was to blame, I am sincerely sorry. I have no doubt that the others who made the mistake feel the same way.

No one of her preachers is more deserving of the attention and respect of the Mississippi Conference than Brother Day. He was received into the traveling connection in 1838, has never been local, and has always been effective, until the failure of his health a few years ago. His name stands the seventh on the roll, by seniority, of the Mississippi Conference.

By a typographical error Rev. Hardie Brown is represented in the minutes as having come to us from the Congregational Methodist Church. If the last comma in the answer to the fourth question were taken from where it now stands and placed immediately after Brother Brown's name, the impression would be different and correct. Brother Brown regrets that the impression should have gone out that he was ever in any other than the Methodist Episcopal Church, as his ancestors for several generations have been in that church, and he has been cradled in her lap.

It is next to an impossibility to get everything just as it should be in the printed minutes of an annual Conference.

C. G. ANDREWS.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

The loss of friends, in any circumstance, is painful, full of sadness and tears.

The pall, the knell, the bier,
And all we know or fear of agony and sorrow are the necessary concomitants of death. But when one of our friends is suddenly snatched away from us by the hand of violence, how much more appalling is the blow!

The subject of this notice, Colonel E. LLOYD WAILES, in the prime of life, in full health and vigor, on the 26th of April last, had gone to Harrisonburg, Louisiana, on business, had accomplished the object of his visit, and was in his skiff preparatory to his return home, when a sudden quarrel arose between an occupant of the boat, named Wardlaw, and a drunken man on shore, named Fairbanks. After a short altercation Fairbanks fired his pistol, as he avows, at Wardlaw, but the ball took effect in Colonel Wailes' heart, killing him instantly. Thus was cut off by the hand of drunken recklessness, in the midst of his days and of his usefulness, one of the noblest and best men we have ever known.

Edward Lloyd Wailes was born at Opelousas, Louisiana, December 31, 1814. His father, Levin Wailes, Esq., was for many years Surveyor General of this State. Being appointed receiver of the Land Office at Washington, Mississippi, he removed to that place when Lloyd was about five years old. In those days Washington was a flourishing town, the seat of government and the stronghold of Methodism in Mississippi. Winans, Burrass, and Miles Harper were the giants of those days and of that region. Under these benign influences, and with a disposition naturally amiable and predisposed to virtue—guided, too, by the loving hand of a saintly mother—Lloyd embraced religion and joined the church in his youth.

He was educated at Jefferson College, then a prosperous institution. For a few years of his early manhood he followed the business of a surveyor.

In 1836 he married Miss Olivia King, and settled down as a planter in the vicinity of Washington, where he resided until after the death of his wife in 1844, when he moved to Texas parish, in this State. In 1846 he married Miss Mary J. Miller, a notice of whose death you published about a year ago. He continued to reside in the latter neighborhood until his death.

Such briefly are the outlines of a life filled up with all that was noble, pure, and of good report. I have known him longer and more intimately than I have any other man, and if there was ever a blot or stain on his moral or Christian character I have never seen nor heard of it. As a thorough and exact business man he had no superior. He was, in the course of his life, administrator of several large and complicated estates. Not a single exception was ever taken to the justness or correctness of his accounts.

As a friend, a father, and a husband he possessed all the qualities that could make him best beloved in those relations. As a Christian he was never enthusiastic or demonstrative, but always consistent and zealous, always active and practically diligent in promoting every interest of the church. But that which specially marked his individuality, and was the basis of his whole character, was his even, uniform, unruffled temper—a perfect self-mastery that never suffered the elation of success or the depression of misfortune to disturb the even tenor of his judgment or his spirits. I have never known a man who might more appropriately adopt the motto of the great William of Orange: "Tranquilus saevis in undis."

Before the war he was a man of large property, the fruits of his industry and judicious management. At its close he found himself stripped of nearly everything, and that, too, at a time of life when men reasonably desire to rest from their labors and enjoy the fruit of their toil. Undisturbed by the cruel waves, undismayed by the floating wreck, he set to work with the energy and cheerfulness of youth to repair his shattered fortunes—at least to provide things honestly in the sight of all men. He made no compromises of conscience on bankrupt acts or paraphernal claims, but came squarely up to the issue; and had he lived a few months longer he would have honorably acquitted every claim against him.

His sudden death gave no opportunity for an expression of his future prospects. But we needed none. His whole life testifies to his preparation for the last event. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

H. W. DRAKE.

FLOYD, LA., June 14, 1869.

A LITTLE THREAD.—Payson once gave notice, in Portland, that he would be glad to see any young person who did not intend to seek religion. About forty came. He spent a very pleasant interview with them, saying nothing about religion, till, just as they were about to leave, he closed a few very plain remarks thus, "Suppose you should see, coming down from heaven, a very fine thread—so fine as to be almost invisible—and it should come and gently attach itself to you. You know we will suppose it came from God. Should you dare to put out your hand and thrust it away?" He dwelt for a few moments on the idea, and then added, "Now such a thread has come from God to you this afternoon. You do not feel, you say, any interest in religion. But by your coming here this afternoon God has fastened one little thread upon you all. It is very weak and frail, and you can very easily brush it away. But you will not do so. No; welcome it, and it will enlarge and strengthen itself till it becomes a golden thread, to bind you forever to a God of love!"

A LITTLE SERMON.

Sitting in a station the other day, I had a little sermon preached in the way I like, and I'll report it for your benefit, because it taught one of the beautiful lessons which we all should learn, and taught it in such a natural, simple way that no one could forget it. It was a bleak, snowy day, the train late, the ladies' room dark and smoky, and the dozen women, old and young, who sat waiting impatiently, all looked cross, low spirited, or stupid. I felt all three; and thought, as I looked around, that my fellow-beings were a very unamiable and uninteresting set.

Just then a forlorn old woman, shaken with palsy, came in with a basket of little wares for sale, and went about, mutely offering them to the sitters. Nobody bought anything, and the poor old soul stood blinking at the door a minute, as if reluctant to go out into the bitter storm again. She turned presently and poked about the room, as if trying to find something; and then a pale lady in black, who lay as if asleep on a sofa, opened her eyes, saw the old woman, and instantly asked, in a kind tone, "Have you lost anything, ma'am?"

"No, dear, I'm looking for the heatin' place, to have a warm 'fore I goes out agin. My eyes is poor, and I don't seem to find the furnace nowheres."

"Here it is;" and the lady led her to the steam radiator, placed a chair, and showed her how to warm her feet.

"Well, now, ain't that nice?" said the old woman, spreading her ragged mittens to dry. "Thank 'e, dear; this is proper comfortable, ain't it? I'm most froze to-day, bein' lame and wimbly, and not sellin' much makes me sort of down-hearted."

The lady smiled, went to the counter, bought a cup of tea and some sort of food, and carried it herself to the old woman, and said as respectfully and kindly as if the poor soul had been dressed in silk and fur, "Won't you have a cup of hot tea? It's very comforting such a day as this."

"Sakes alive! Do they give tea at this depot?" cried the old lady, in a tone of innocent surprise, that made a smile go round the room, touching the glummest face like a streak of sunshine. "Well, now, this is jest lovely," added the old lady, sipping away with a relish. "That does warm the cockles of my heart!"

While she refreshed herself, telling her story meanwhile, the lady looked over the poor little wares in the basket, bought soap and pins, shoe strings and tape, and cheered the old soul by paying well for them.

As I watched her doing this I thought what a sweet face she had, though I had considered her rather plain before. I felt dreadfully ashamed of myself, that I had grimly shaken my head when the basket was offered to me; and as I saw a look of interest, sympathy and kindliness come into the dismal faces around me, I did wish that I had been the magician to call it out. It was only a kind word and a friendly act; but, somehow, it brightened that dingy room wonderfully, and changed the faces of a dozen women; and I think it touched a dozen hearts, for I saw many eyes follow the plain, pale lady with sudden respect, and when the old woman, with many thanks, got up to go, several persons beckoned to her, and bought something, as if they wanted to repair their negligence.

Old beggar women are not romantic; neither are cups of tea, boot lacing and colored soap; there were no gentlemen present to be impressed by the lady's kind act; so it wasn't done for effect, and no possible reward could be received for it, except the ungrammatical thanks of a ragged old woman. But that simple little charity was as good as a sermon to those who saw it; and I think each traveler went on her way better for that half hour in the dreary station. I can testify that one of them did; and nothing but the emptiness of her purse prevented her from "comforting the cockles of the heart" of every forlorn old woman she met for a week after.

SPEAK FOR CHRIST.—Ah! the man who has Christ in his soul, and wants to tell nobody, has a sepulchre, and he is dead. If there be one thing in this world that is worth telling, it is not that honor, that wealth, that any good fortune in similar things has come to you; but that Christ has been made known to you. It is the noblest of all events, and the most precious of all disclosures; and if there is a man who has walked in sorrow and sadness, and had his Saviour come to meet him, and interpret the Scriptures to him, and at last disclosed himself to him in his own house in the breaking of bread, and he is not moved to tell his friends and neighbors, then the dead ought to cry out.

ONLY BELIEVE.

"Only," that is all. But, ah! to do it—to believe with all the heart, without one lingering doubt or the least shadow of hesitation—that is an achievement to which our poor, weak nature sometimes feels unequal. We want to walk a little by sight. We cannot wholly let go the counsels of mere reason, or the lessons of experience. We must see our path, or have at least a ray of light; we must draw from the past some precedent to go upon it. But no—it is "only believe." But this is to go forward in the dark, to cut loose from what has been, to rely upon the bare word of promise. How the trembling heart, groaning under its burden of want, knowing its own insufficiency, yet afraid to launch forth upon the promises of the Almighty, cries out in its perplexity, its extremity, "Lord, if I could only believe!" Sometimes it almost feels that Jesus must be mocking its misery when He says "Only believe." Lord, there is my difficulty. I cannot believe. But Jesus ever replies, "Only believe." We look up into His calm, loving face, and are persuaded that He has the heart and the power to bless us, even beyond all our conception of what can be; yet, strange to say, we hesitate. Still He repeats it, "Only believe." Jesus is right. Wisely and kindly does He shut us up to simple faith. It is just and reasonable. In it lies a blessing for us far beyond even what we ask in our particular extremity. It is His love which ever presses upon us, "Only believe." He can say no less and be the loving Friend that He is.

Oh, when once we do believe, how right, how easy it seems! Once let go all self-dependence, all reliance upon the visible, and simply trust all with Jesus, without knowing, or scarcely caring to know, how He will grant our request, then the soul has rest, that "peace of God which passeth all understanding." Therefore Jesus keeps us to the single point, "Only believe." He will not allow us to be diverted from it. If it has to be repeated a thousand times before we obey, He will not put anything else in its place.—Believing carries the whole heart with it, and that is what Jesus wants. Believing attributes all the power and gives all the glory to Immanuel, which is a reasonable requirement. Believing is the laying our weary head, our aching heart, upon the bosom of Jesus, and that is entering into our rest. Then, while believing secures the particular blessing that we crave, it involves more than we can ask or think.—United Presbyterian.

USE WESLEY'S HYMNS.—In the Boston preachers' meeting, recently, the subject being under discussion, "How can our camp meetings be made more profitable?" there was a strong and general expression of disapproval of those sentimental and often senseless ditties that in our conference meetings have taken the place of the good old "theological" hymns of Charles Wesley. One brother said that his people had sung, "Will you meet me at the river?" "Climbing up Zion's hill," and the like, till they appeared to be utterly ignorant of the hymns in the Methodist collection, and when he struck up one of them he had to sing it alone. We have long been satisfied that the church has suffered immensely by the substitution of the jejune stuff, both music and poetry, in the numerous musical treatises for social worship, which, like the frogs of Egypt, have come up all over the land, for the spiritual hymns of Charles Wesley, full of Gospel truth and Gospel-power, which our fathers used to sing in the deep and noble melodies of former generation into the hearts and consciences of awakened sinners, till their chains fell off, and they leaped into the liberty of the kingdom of God. Let us use the hymn book. It is a thesaurus of spiritual knowledge and power.—Zion's Herald.

A MAN who strives earnestly and perseveringly to convince others, at least convinces us that he is convinced himself.—Thomas Fuller.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1869.

THE CHINA MISSION.

I begin to realize the fact that we are being brought nigh unto you or you are drawing nearer to us in China. Just think of being absent far away here in this solitary, friendless, godless, heathen land for a period of five or six years, without even so much as a single line during all that time from one of my old classmates—college friends and former most intimate Christian companions. It was rather more than I bargained for, and has proved a little the most trying part of my missionary experience. You must not blame me, therefore, if I quite concluded that my Conference had forgotten me, and with me all knowledge of the existence of such a thing as the China mission.

Better times have now come, for which I am abundantly thankful. I no longer feel cast off, forgotten, abandoned, alone, but as a member of a living body, revived, and full of vigor and hope for the future.

There is now some prospect of the China mission becoming an efficient reality, and taking its deserved rank among others laboring for the conversion of these innumerable and miserable heathen of the East. We greatly need more laborers, and I do earnestly pray that the noble example of the two Georgia Conferences may have the effect of provoking abundantly the love and good works of the other Conferences. Our church is capable of taking and occupying a forefront position in China. She is eminently adapted by her economy and organization to do a vast amount of the pioneering that is still necessary to the complete occupation of the country. Practically every mission here is Methodist in its operations. The system works well, but requires laborers. Other churches or missions are receiving constant reinforcements. Last evening we had six new arrivals at our house to dinner—three for the A. B. C. F. M. and three for the Presbyterian mission; and the cry is, still they come, both from England and America. Pity you cannot renew your youth, if that would set your face toward China.

It seems to me if the two Georgia Conferences succeed in raising the amounts of their assessments for this mission the present year that they might amply provide a support for a colleague to join me from Georgia. Why not?

God bless you and dear Brother Haygood and others for the interest you have manifested in me personally, and for the energy you have awakened in the Conferences. Influence of your example will not stop in Georgia, but will have its effects in the remotest parts of our church connection, and not a few will emulate the example of your own Conferences.

I am a little overtaxed with labor just now, and fear it is beginning to take effect upon me. I have no provision before me for a single holiday or rest from this till Christmas. I am perfectly exhausted when Saturday night comes, yet I cannot claim Sabbath, for that too is one of my busiest days. It is like working and sleeping in harness. But, thanks to a gracious Providence, I enjoy good health all the while—always have—and feel happy, yes delighted that my hands have found something of such a hopeful character to do. I am gathering around me numbers of the ablest teachers and most promising young men in China. They read my China newspapers, and write for them too, and it is through that agency that I hope soon to bring many of them to a saving knowledge of Christian truth. Some of my constant visitors and Christian inquirers are of the first classes of society—graduates—and above the mercenary principles that not unfrequently prompt the lower classes to seek admission to the church. It may seem all very nice to be a missionary in a foreign land, but to one who appreciates the duties and obligations of his high calling it is of most momentous concern, and all the romance of such a life departs immediately on touching heathen soil. No one should ever think of becoming a missionary to China who is not thoroughly identified with Christ. Such Christian experience as we were wont to enjoy at dear old Oxford is necessary to rightly imbue the soul with the savor of Christ's life and fill it with the spirit of self-denial, and there is no place better suited to test the material of which the missionary is made than China.

I had proposed to write regularly for the Southern Christian Advocate, but cannot find time. I am very sorry, too, for I know many will expect me to write oftener now than ever, as they have determined to support me.

I have not lost any of my interest in all that pertains to the welfare and success of our church and her enterprises at home, and I am still willing, so far as able, to contribute my mite toward promoting any and all of her interests. May God abundantly bless you and all the brethren of your Conference, and make this year one of unparalleled prosperity to you all.—Young J. Allen in Southern Christian Advocate.

ABOUT WOMEN.

ARE THEY BETTER THAN MEN?

We copy as follows from a contribution to the Boston Advertiser:

The great argument in favor of woman suffrage seems to be that women are so much better than men, their votes would be ruled by a purer morality, no bad men would be chosen into office, and so, of course, no bad laws could find any place on the statute book.

When Henry Ward Beecher was writing out the above doctrine, the other day, for publication, I wonder if it passed through his mind that in the number of times he had performed the marriage service there had been instances when he had done it with sadness and fear, knowing that he was binding a trusting, innocent girl to a heartless, unprincipled man. If such a case has ever come within the circle of his experience, will Mr. Beecher explain what would have prevented that bride from voting that man into office had he asked for her ballot instead of her hand? Again, has not Mr. Beecher declared a couple man and wife when he knew that the woman sold herself for gold? And does he believe the woman who would sell her person would feel any delicacy in selling her vote?

The morality of women is, no doubt, different from that of men; but that it is better or higher, under circumstances of equal temptation, yet remains to be proved.

The eagerness with which women have sought for office during the last few months seems to show a great similarity to men in personal, selfish ambition; and there is no evidence that the underlying motive in the one sex is purer than in the other.

The readiness with which bad men find women of good moral standing in society who are willing to marry them would seem to imply that bad men might find plenty of women who would be willing to vote for them. The frequency with which we find women swaying their own households with foolish and bad laws is certainly a reason for supposing that similar laws might govern the nation if they were installed as legislators.

Men of good intentions err through mistaken judgment; women of good intentions err through mistaken feeling. One is just as liable to err as the other; but the errors of feeling are more dangerous than those of judgment, because they are so much less under the control of reason. It is an axiom of science that reason was given us to correct the mistakes of the senses, and it is equally true that it was given to correct the mistakes of the sensibilities.

When women decry the moral sense of men they should bear in mind that most men owe their morality to the influence and instructions of their mothers. While we may be fond of claiming honor to our sex for the influence good and wise mothers have exerted in the training of some of the great men of the world, let us not forget that bad men owe their traits to their mothers just as certainly. We have no right to boast of the mother of the Gracchi unless we are willing also to take shame to ourselves on account of the mother of Nero. We are just as responsible for the vices or follies of the mothers of thieves, murderers, and traitors of the land as for the virtue and the wisdom of the mothers of the saints and the patriots.

The persons who are discussing the woman question at the present time talk as if women were so faithful to the original law of right that they could not be swerved from the true path by ideas of expediency which so often mislead men. But when we observe how easily a woman's affections are perverted thro' her vanity in her relations with the other sex, and how often her love for her children is mainly shown in the foolish delight with which she pampers their selfishness, indulges their passions, and stimulates their pride, it is difficult to understand why she should be more wise in the management of public affairs than in those of her private station.

There is a theory that political life is to regenerate women by giving them something more dignified to think of than the frivolities of dress and society that occupy them now. But if the sacred duties of wife and mother cannot rouse women to thoughtfulness and sobriety, why should we expect anything better from the stormy excitement of politics? If they are unwilling to exercise private virtues, why should we believe that they will be more faithful to public trusts? Women who are so eager for wider fields in which to exercise their faculties and powers have not yet awakened to the responsibilities of private life.

It is said of old time that a man who does not provide for his own house is worse than an infidel, and the community generally would endorse the saying; but a woman has no more right to fail in this respect than a man. The household is the wife's place of business, and if she is unfaithful to the duties that lie before her there she is as worthy of condemnation as the man who neglects the duties of his calling, regardless of the ties that bind him to maintain his wife and children.

It is expected, as a matter of course, that every man should have an occupation to which he should give his best energies. He may not love it ardently; he may feel that he should love some other employment better; but if he is a manly man he works diligently, and applies his best strength of mind and body that he may be successful in his calling, whatever it may be.—Now the wife of such a man has no right to think that she is not just as much under the law of conscience to do her part in relation to the family as her husband. Because she loves dress and society, or books, music, drawing, or "agitation," she has no right to leave the economy of the house to the carelessness of her servants, or the training of her children to the ignorance of her servants. It is as selfish in her to follow out her own tastes, without regard to the comfort and welfare of the family, as it would be for her husband to spend his days at the club house or the library, while his business is in the hands of clerks or shop boys. A man who devotes his life to the pursuit of his own selfish pleasure is not considered respectable; but many women seem to think they have a perfect right to give to books, to art or to society the best years of their lives, and to leave the comfort of their homes, the training of their children, in the hands of hired substitutes. Can such women expect to hear the award of "Well done, good and faithful servant?"

The virtues of the men of the country form the standard by which we may measure the virtues of the women of the country. Women who look with contempt upon the duties and employment of domestic life are women who can never elevate the morality of men. Home is the basis of the State. As the homes of a country are, so will the whole body of a country be, for a country is only a large number of homes united into one great community for the common good.

CHINESE LABOR IN AMERICA.

We copy as follows from an article in the Atlantic Monthly:

It also happens just now that we are laying down a service-pipe to an immense reservoir, brimming over with labor. The Chinese have already found their way to our Pacific coast. They are at work on the railroads, in mines, forests, fields, factories, and the kitchens and chambers of our friends in California. They are in Oregon, Montana, Nevada, and Idaho. When the Pacific Railroad is completed they will be at Salt Lake City and Omaha, and in time will make their appearance in Chicago and Boston.

The supply of labor in China is unlimited. We are to think of a territory not larger in area than the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, but containing a population of four hundred millions.—One-half of the people are only able to gain their daily bread. Two hundred millions in that country have faint hope of ever making any headway, and hence their readiness to seek their fortunes in foreign lands. They are at Singapore, where several hundred thousand have taken possession of the lower end of Malacca, and trade with vessels touching at that port. They are on all the islands of the Indian Archipelago. They swarm in the gold fields of Australia; the Sandwich Islands will soon be in their hands, and they will supply San Francisco with sugar. They are to be found all the way from Chile to Oregon.

Nearly all those who are thus seeking their fortunes abroad are from southern China, where a remarkable spirit of enterprise and adventure has been lately developed. Companies, like those established in London two and a half centuries ago for the settlement of North America, have been formed at Canton and San Francisco for the encouragement and protection of the Chinese emigrants. The one hundred thousand now in this country are but pioneers of the millions who will follow by and by.

It is evident that henceforth we are to look westward as well as eastward for laborers. We are accustomed to think of the Chinese as belonging to a degraded race, ignorant of civilized life, and unable to compete with the skilled labor of Europe. But we have this fact before us, that China as a nation makes the whole world her debtor. We want her tea and silks, and can obtain them only by paying cash. We have also the fact that the Chinese have established themselves in the woolen mills of California, producing cloth which won a prize at the World's Fair.

The Chinaman works patiently, and will not stipulate for three evenings a week to visit friends. St. Patrick's day is not in his calendar. He wants only a week at New Year.

The Chinese are not disposed to be aggressors upon the rights of others, neither will they allow any infringement of their own. They wage no war, but, if treated unkindly, quietly go their own ways, seeking business somewhere else. "I go do for you, you go do for me; I go." And he is off at once. He fully understands what some Anglo-Saxons as yet have failed to comprehend, that the hiring of servants does not include the privilege to abuse them.

"I have had a Chinaman," says a gentleman of San Francisco, "nine years. When he came into my family he could not speak a word of English. He knew nothing about cooking. My wife went into the kitchen and showed him how to make a pudding and a pie, and after a few days' observation he mastered the mysteries of the culinary art, and has cooked to our satisfaction from that time to the present. He is faithful and honest. I would entrust every dollar of my property to him as soon as I would to one of my own countrymen."

Another gentleman gives this testimony: "I have had a Chinese servant several years, and when I go into the country I leave my house in John's hands. He hides my silver plate and other valuables, and does not leave the premises a minute. When I return I find every thing in perfect order. I do not think he ever took a dollar that did not belong to him, though he has had opportunities to do so. He purchases all my groceries, and invariably makes better bargains than I can myself. I would trust him much quicker than I would many Americans in my employ."

It is only the lowest class of Chinese that have thus far reached our shores as servants and laborers, but let these receive kind treatment, let them have the same protection for life and property which is given to all others, and in time a different class will make their appearance.

EXTRACT FROM SPURGEON.

Is it not a fact, that as soon as you enter the meeting you feel that if you are called upon to pray you have to exercise a gift. And that gift, in the case of many praying men (to speak hardly perhaps, but to speak honestly) lies in having a good memory to recollect a great many texts, which always have been quoted since the days of our grandfather's grandfather, and to be able to repeat them in good regular order. The gift also in some churches, especially in village churches, lies in having strong lungs, so as to be able to hold out without taking breath for five and twenty minutes when you are brief, and three quarters of an hour when you are rather drawn out. The gift lies also in being able not to ask for anything in particular, but in passing through a range of everything, making the prayer not an arrow with a point, but like a non-descript machine, that has no point whatever, and yet is meant to be all point, which is aimed at everything and consequently strikes nothing. Those brethren are the most frequently asked to pray who have these peculiar and perhaps excellent gifts, though I certainly must say that I cannot obey the apostle's injunction in coveting very earnestly such gifts as these. Now, if, instead thereof, some man is asked to pray who has never prayed before in public, suppose he rises and says, "O Lord, I feel myself such a sinner that I can scarcely speak to thee. Lord, help me to pray! O Lord, save my poor soul! O that thou would'st save my old companions! Lord, be pleased to give us a revival. O Lord, I can say no more; hear me for Jesus' sake. Amen." Well then you will feel somehow as if you had begun to pray yourself. You feel an interest in that man, partly from fear lest he should stop, and also because you are sure that what he did say he meant. And if another should get up after that, and pray in the same spirit, you go out and say, "This is real prayer." I would sooner have three minutes of prayer like that, than thirty minutes of the other sort, because the one is praying and the other preaching. Allow me to quote what an old preacher said upon the subject of prayer, and give it to you as a little word of advice: "Remember the Lord will not hear thee because of the arithmetic of thy prayers; He does not count their numbers. He will not hear thee because of the rhetoric of thy prayers; He does not care for the eloquent language in which they are conveyed. He will not regard because of the geometry of thy prayers; He does not compute them by their length or by their breadth. He will not regard thee because of the music of thy prayers; He doth not care for sweet voices nor for harmonious periods. Neither will He look at thee because of the logic of thy prayers; because they are well arranged, and excellently compacted. But He will hear thee, and He will measure the amount of the blessing He will give thee, according to the divinity of thy prayers. If thou canst plead the person of Christ, and if the Holy Ghost inspire thee with zeal and earnestness, the blessing which thou shalt ask shall surely come unto thee." Brethren, I would like to burn the whole stock of old prayers that we have been using this fifty years. That "oil that goes from vessel to vessel"—that "horse that rushes into the battle"—that misquoted and mangled text, "where two or three are met together, there will be in the midst of them, and that to bless them"—and all those other quotations which we have been maugling and dislocating, and copying from man to man. I would we came to speak to God just out of our own hearts. It would be a grand thing for our prayer meetings; they would be better attended; and I am sure they would be more fruitful if every man would shake off that habit of formality, and talk to God as a child talking to his father; ask Him for what we want, and then sit down and have done.

ALCOHOLIC MEDICINES.

"Alcoholic Medicine," the title of an article in the June number of your paper, is a very important topic for the consideration of the medical profession as well as for that of the general public, and the objections to the use of that class of medicines may be thoroughly confirmed by a presentation of the great improvement of modern medical science, whereby the hygienic principles under which that form of medicine has been employed, have become much more correctly and effectively enforced, by the substitution of a few much more appropriate articles of materia medica. The verity of these views has in late years been greatly confirmed by the writer hereof, with an extensive experience derived from the use of medicinal materials of a totally different and far more useful character than that of alcohol, which was before employed for similar purposes.

The chemistry of physiology is the real basis of our corporeal organization, the difference of the numerous animal tissues being dependent upon their varied compositions, and chemical composition is the basis also of the secretions, the healthy operations of each one being dependent thereupon. The loss of any one or more of the numerous materials devoted to the structure, or the presence of some unnatural matter, necessarily produces derangement of the functions, causing various diseases. One of the most frequent sources of organic and functional disturbances, and the defection of the vigor and soundness of many of the functions, is the derangement of the chemical composition of secretions or of the tissues devoted thereto, frequently resulting in the development of unnatural secretions. Of these disturbances the vitiation or defective condition of the blood is the most copious cause of all, it being the sole and incessant source of health and strength.

As one special example of this effect, dyspepsia may be mentioned, caused by imperfect gastric juice, which fluid is secreted from the blood in the stomach.

As derived from the vitiated chemical condition of the blood, the following troubles may also be referred to, namely: Rheumatism, boils, carbuncles, erysipelas, and several other skin diseases. Many other diseases are caused by the absorption into the circulation of various poisonous matters from the outside; for example, scarlatina, smallpox, measles, and cholera; also typhus, intermittent, and some other forms of fever.

From the chemical derangement of the tissues thus produced, whereby the healthy operations are prevented, the materials thereby remaining are subjected to decomposition and fermentation from the high temperature of the body, thus causing additional unnatural materials, and greatly increasing the vitiated condition of the circulation, and numerous other foul results, with great suffering and dangerous symptoms.

The application of some means for the arrestation and prevention of the derangement and decomposition of both the solid and fluid materials, and thereby enabling the functions to remain natural and assisting them to perform their requisite duties, is of course the great desideratum. It has been long understood that alcohol, in the form of brandy, wine, whisky, etc., has to a certain extent the power of preventing the decomposition of many substances when placed in connection with them, and upon this chemical principle it has been depended upon for medicinal purposes, and likewise as a means of stimulating and increasing some of the functions of the organization when they are depressed.

But it has become a most fortunate result of the modern investigations of the chemistry of physiology and of medicinal articles that the restorative powers of several other substances are vastly more effective, and their administration for the prevention of the decomposition of the internal contents of the body is far more natural and effective than that of alcohol, and being free from the unnatural stimulative properties of that liquid, the functions of the brain, the heart, the stomach, and many other organs are restored to health much more speedily, whereby the use of alcohol in any form whatever is rendered wholly unnecessary, and its vicious influence upon the habits of all may thereby be entirely avoided. One of the most effective chemical restoratives of health in case of the disease above mentioned, and many others also derived from various causes, is an article known as sulphurous acid, which is presented in three saline forms, each being administered according to the requisition of its peculiar qualification. Besides arresting the decomposition and fermentation of all the internal tissues, it prevents the formation and absorption of foul matter, and aids the functions in their natural duties, thus improving the healthy condition of all the blood and all its secretions, whereby sound health in general is speedily restored. An excellent substitute for the stimulating properties also of alcohol is found in the tonic powers of several interesting vegetables, the administration of which effects a rapid promotion of digestion, circulation, and strengthening of the nervous system, without the slightest vitiated influence of alcohol which so often follows its use. Under the advantages derivable from these medicinal principles, the writer hereof has had so extensive and fortunate an experience, he has come to the conclusion that alcohol, as a medicine, may be wholly dispensed with; and thereby not only may the danger of inebriation be greatly prevented, but also the more speedy and thorough restoration of health and the prolongation of life may be insured.

Another valuable consideration of this subject is the relief thereby of the poisonous effects of intoxicating drinks, namely, delirium tremens, and the ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and other organs which are caused by the absorption of alcohol into the blood, thereby producing serious chemical derangements of the tissues and functions. John H. Griscom, M. D., in National Temperance Advocate.

THE SMALLEST STEAM ENGINE IN THE WORLD.—A writer in a London periodical has describes a minute model of the engines of the steamship Warrior, made by Thomas Smith:

This tiniest working model in the world is now in possession of John Penn, of Greenwich, the eminent maker of the great engines of which it is the infinitely reduced counterpart. It will stand on a threepenny piece; it really covers less space, for its base-plate measures only three eighths of an inch by about three-tenths. The engines are of the trunk form introduced by Penn; the cylinders measure one-eighth of an inch in diameter, and the trunk one-twentieth. The length of the stroke is six-fortieths of an inch. They are fitted with reversing gear, and are generally similar in design to the great machines with which ships of the Warrior class are equipped. From the extreme smallness of this model a few minutiæ—such, for instance, as the air pumps—have necessarily been omitted; there is a limit beyond which human skill and niceness cannot pass. Still, so small are some of the parts that they require a powerful magnifying glass to see their form. The screws which hold the members together are only one-eightieth of an inch in diameter, and these are all duly furnished with hexagonal nuts, which can be loosened and tightened by a Lilliputian spanner. The whole weight of the model is less than a threepenny piece. It works admirably, and when working its crank-shaft performs from twenty to thirty thousand revolutions in a minute.

CHARACTER is not shaped by trifles any more than marble is sculptured by puffs of air. Only by hard struggles, and stern conflicts with temptation, and resolute self-mastery, does the divine principle assert its supremacy and carve its immortal loveliness into every faculty and mood of the mind. The sharpness of our trials, and the hardness of our lot, show what we are made of, and how long we are to last.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

By a letter from the college we learn that in the present dangerous condition of the centre building it will be impossible to hold the usual commencement exercises. The notice, therefore, which was published in the two last issues of the ADVOCATE is recalled, and the Board of Trustees will meet on the 14th and 15th of July, at Jackson, Louisiana; and we earnestly solicit a full attendance, on the occasion, of the members of the Board, of the preachers and friends of the institution.

J. C. KEENER,
President of the Board.

DEATH OF REV. DR. DORMAN.

The following note from Rev. A. S. Andrews contains the melancholy, though not unexpected tidings of the death of this prominent and well known minister of the Gospel. Dr. Dorman has been for many years identified with Methodism in Alabama, and there are thousands, within the bounds not only of Alabama, but of the Southern Church, who will read this announcement with deep regret. We suppose a more extended notice of him will be prepared for publication as soon as convenient.

MOBILE, July 5, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Our mutual friend and brother in Christ, Rev. Thomas W. Dorman, D. D., died on the night of the 2d instant, at ten o'clock. His health has been rapidly declining since Conference. Two weeks ago he felt that his time was short for this world, and being informed by his physician that he might die at any moment, he calmly said, "It is all right; I am ready to go." On the night of the 2d instant, as friends watched by his side and children kneeled at his dying couch, he quietly breathed his last. On the following evening his remains were borne to the grave from the St. Francis street Methodist Episcopal Church, followed by a large concourse of mourning friends.

"Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

A. S. ANDREWS.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.—We are requested to call attention to the fact that the time of this meeting has been changed from the fourth to the fifth Sunday in August.

MY MOTHER'S SOFT HAND.—"When I was a little child," said an aged minister once, "my mother used to make me kneel beside her, and place her hand upon my head while she taught me to pray. She died when I was very young, but still, when going to do wrong, I seemed to feel her soft hand upon my head. When I grew up to be a man the thought of that same hand still kept me safe."

THE HOME MISSIONARY.

Comparatively few Christians are called to be ministers, but all are commissioned to tell at home how great things the Lord hath done for them. Christ denied to the converted Gadarene the privilege of a wider apostleship, and sent him in his new-born fervor to his home and friends. Here is an important part of every Christian's field, and the sphere within which the personal ministry of the most is necessarily confined. We have been impressed with the magnitude of this instrumentality in the conversion of families and neighborhoods, whilst reading the history of early Methodism, both in England and America. In very many instances a member of a large family is converted under the powerful preaching of some zealous preacher, and this one convert, going home and telling his experience, becomes the means of bringing the family to Christ. This informal home ministry doubtless prevailed in the first planting of Christianity, and under the first baptism of the Holy Ghost. Then every young convert became a lay-evangelist to his own kindred and friends. Faithfulness involved the disciple in persecution in the days of Paul, not much less so in Wesley's and Asbury's times, and something of the same treatment is still in store for those who do their duty.

The qualification for the discharge of this important trust appears to have been the burning fervor which the Holy Spirit imparted. In times of great awakenings and revivals there is peculiar courage, and a loving and zealous concern and tenderness. The Holy Ghost is just as essential to success in our families as to the preacher in the pulpit. Without deep and constant communion with Him the needed courage and love will be wanting, and the Christian will shrink from the trial. Generally we are tempted to evade this duty to our own households, unless exalted by the grace of God above the fear of man.

Every believer is divinely sent as a messenger of mercy to his own house. If the only converted member of a family or connection, he is called of God to declare to them the testimony of his experience. This light is put under a bushel at his peril. Nothing but a plain and faithful confession of his Lord, and personal persuasion and warning, can make him clear of the blood of souls. If not called to the broader field of the Gospel ministry, there is not one to whom Christ does not say: "Go home to thy friends and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee." Experience is the message, and conversion must be the qualification.

Young converts are usually filled with an irrepressible desire to tell the story of redeeming love, and older Christians have this ardor in proportion as the love of Christ constrains them. There is not much cross where love drives the chariot wheels of duty. It is, however, true, for some reason, that Christian men and women find it more difficult to discharge this home obligation than to attend to the more public and general aspects of religion. Ministers can more easily be faithful in the pulpit, and they find it less difficult to warn strangers than to deal truly and intimately with their own households and kindred. The want of deep spirituality is doubtless the main obstacle. Abundance of love will break down the chilling barriers and unreasonable constraints which separate the Christian convert from his own flesh and blood; and the consciousness of the mighty work wrought in him will stir his sympathies and break forth into utterance. More grace, more religion, more of the Holy Ghost are needed, that believers may do their whole duty at home.

The great embarrassment to the believer's religious influence at home is in his negligent walk. Nowhere is religion so thoroughly tested as in the family, and in the social and domestic relations.—Weighed in the scales of public life, as the Christian is seen by the world at large, and by the church, he is devout, exemplary, blameless; but when put into the more delicate and discriminating balance of the home, he is found wanting in some eminent qualities and graces of the religious profession. Ill tempers bloom into rash words and sour looks in the seclusion of domestic life, and the fearful discrepancy between profession and practice is forced upon the unwilling conviction of those whose salvation calls for a pure example. If the world knew some professors as well as they are known to their wives and children, it would form a very different estimate of their characters.

Here it is that parents lose religious influence over their children, and lead them to distrust all religious doctrines and professions. The children of the apparently pious leave the church before they are fully fledged, and become noted for wickedness and infidelity. Often a man's nearest neighbors and kindred think worse of his religion than anybody else. They are not made better by his influence, but are rather confirmed in their indifference and contempt. There must be the utmost carefulness and circumspection if the believer would bless his own house, and lead his own family to Christ. He must not be less considerate at home than abroad, and he is to reflect that in these nearer and more intimate associations every prospect of good is blasted by the lack of wisdom and discretion. Faithfulness in this sphere of duty will be amply rewarded, and will bring about a moral revolution in the church and society. Whatever we may be called to do in public, and whatever position be ours as professors of the faith, we have above all to declare the Gospel of a living and holy experience within the sacred enclosure of home. Go and do this, and cheerless hearths, gloomy domestic circles, and houses where every religious impulse is chilled by an atmosphere of felt self-condemnation, will be gladdened by a joyous and healthful spirituality. *

A WEEK OF PRAYER.

The bishops, at their late meeting in St. Louis, set apart the week beginning with Friday, August 13, to be observed as a week of special prayer throughout the bounds of our church. Friday, the 13th of August, is to be a day of fasting as well as prayer. Wherever practicable, public services should be held every day, and the people requested to devote the entire week to the service of God.

By timely notices and judicious arrangements by the preachers a general interest may be excited, and a large attendance secured upon the protracted services. On circuits the most central and commodious point should be selected for the meeting by the preacher in charge. A camp or basket meeting might be held in every work, and remote appointments can have prayer meetings. Where no public services are accessible we would earnestly advise every member of the church, besides keeping the fast, to distinguish the appointed week by a more than usual attention to family and secret prayer. In the stations there will be protracted services as a matter of course. With or without ministerial help, let every town and city pastor begin in the name of the Lord, lead his people to the altar of prayer, and call sinners to repentance.

The observance of a week of prayer last year was attended with signal displays of the divine grace and power. We shall see greater things this year if all our people can be brought to their knees. It is scarcely too soon even now to think about this important occasion and to prepare for it. The way of the Lord must be prepared in the church, and in the hearts of believers. Christians must put themselves in sympathy with the work of God by a closer walk and deeper spirituality. Churches must become more united in love, and more profoundly imbued with the mind of Christ. Hindrances there are in the individual, and in the society, which must be removed before the Holy Spirit can come in.

Above all we need to seek God that He may pour out upon Israel "the Spirit of grace and supplication." "The promise of the Father" waits upon our faith for its fulfillment. The measure of our blessing will be according to our faith. Begin, then, in time to wake up and get ready. Have the appointments made judiciously, and let all the people keep the solemn week of prayer. *

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE SACRISTAN'S HOUSEHOLD. A story of Leppe-Detmold. By the author of Mabel's Progress, Anne Margaret's Trouble, etc. With illustrations. By C. G. Bush. New York: Harper & Brothers, publishers, Franklin Square. 1869.

We are indebted to Mr. Ellis, opposite the post office, for this work. It is a cheap edition, bound in paper, and is reputed to be an excellent fiction. The scenes are German, and the characters also. To look at the illustrations is as far as we expect to go. These are graphic and pleasing.

We have received from Mr. Geo. Ellis, opposite the post office, New Orleans:

THE NEWCOMES. Memoirs of a most respectable family. Edited by Arthur Pendennis, Esq. By William Makepeace Thackeray. With illustrations by the author. New York: Harper & Brothers, publishers. 1869.

This work is well known to the public. The publishers have here a new and cheap edition. Some regard the Newcomes as the best of Thackeray's productions. We have never been able to read very far in any of them.

MY DAUGHTER ELINOR. A novel. Harper & Brothers. 1869.

Sprightly in style—a vivid picture of modern New York society, wholesome in its moral tone. Plentiful in quantity—say 257 pages.

Also by the same publishers:

STRETTON. A novel. By Henry Kingsley.

The scenes and characters are English. Our sampling discovers much trash and little good.

SIGHTS AND SENSATIONS IN FRANCE, GERMANY, AND SWITZERLAND; or Experiences of an American Journalist in Europe. By Edward Gould Buffum. New York: Harper & Brothers, publishers. 1869.

The author is dead and the book is edited by a brother. The editor says: "The sights and sensations were written currente calamo, in the midst of occupations which taxed all the time of the writer." We find the chapters open with interest, are pleasant, and suitable for the noontide hours of this July weather. A considerable amount of information is contained in the book, though written in too much of a hurry.

ELEMENTS OF ASTRONOMY. Designed for academies and high schools. By Elias Loomis, LL D. New York: Harper & Brothers. 1869

The author is the well known professor of natural philosophy and astronomy in Yale College. This work is strictly elementary, and contains what is most recent in astronomical discoveries.

HYMNS OF THE CHURCH. With Tunes. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co. 1869.

This is a hymn and tune book after the style of our own. It is gotten up in the best manner as to paper, binding, and size of the volume. The arrangement of the hymns and tunes is judicious, and the index department is most complete. There is an index of hymns, one of tunes, another of metres, another of subjects, and another of texts. It is altogether a very complete thing. It contains many of the best hymns in the language, and a valuable collection of music. The compilation is by John B. Thompson, Ashbel S. Vermilye, and Alexander R. Thompson. We judge the work has been prepared for the use of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and that the title is somewhat characteristic of that ambitious though small denomination of Christians. Hymns of the church many of them are, and the work is a valuable one for all.

THE ANGEL OF PEACE.—This beautiful engraving is published by T. S. Arthur & Co., of Philadelphia. It is fifteen by twenty inches in dimension, and a very sweet and delightful picture. It is a night scene, and the angel, far above the silent city and up among the stars, bears a little child with fresh-blown flowers away toward its heavenly home.

The Evangelical Apologist Enlarged.

MR. EDITOR: Allow me to state to the friends of the German branch of our beloved church that with the blessings of God I shall be able, with the second edition, on October 1, to double the size of the Apologist. The price will continue to be $1 per annum, payable in advance. The paper is doing a vast deal of good. Our Germans are learning that though Lee's army surrendered our church means to live, and live to the glory of God. The paper is self-supporting. I ask for no help from the Publishing House or Missionary Board. But I must have more subscribers—am entitled to them. My enterprise is the enterprise of the church. Will not all our preachers make an effort to induce the Germans of their acquaintance to take the Apologist? I am sure after a while the readers will thank them for their importunity. The paper will become an agreeable visitor. Let me hear from the brethren at once!

Affectionately yours,
J. B. A. AHRENS.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

The advertisement of this institution appears in our columns this week. We are indebted to Dr. Wiley for a copy of the catalogue. The names of an able faculty and of a large list of students are displayed in its pages. This is one of our best colleges, located amid the mountains of Virginia, and most favorably situated for the physical and moral well-being of the student. The religious influences are decided and most salutary. President Wiley is an experienced educator, and has surrounded himself with an able corps of teachers. Boys sent to him will be cared for with parental solicitude. Their welfare in every respect will be safe in his keeping. Parents who wish their boys to be converted, as well as educated, can send them to no institution where this desire will be more likely to be realized.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

WHISTLER, ALA., July 5, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: You and your many readers will no doubt be glad to hear from this part of the Lord's vineyard, and especially since He has poured out His Spirit upon us. Two weeks ago I began a series of meetings at this place, and the result of the first week was eight accessions to the church, with about that number of conversions, and the second week closed with an addition of eleven persons to the church, and about the same number of converts. There are yet many penitents at the altar, and I shall continue the services yet awhile. We have had some valuable accessions to the church. Some of the young men who have been converted and added to the church will no doubt be very useful to the church, and one or two, I believe, will be ministers of the Gospel. I have never seen brighter conversions anywhere. All the converts communed with us yesterday, and it was truly a glorious time. I have received thirty-six persons into the church since I took charge, which was the last of December, 1868. I closed the first six months of my labors last night, and feel thankful to God for what He has done for us. To Him be all the glory. Pray for us.

Yours in Christ,
J. J. GRACE.

CAMP MEETING.—A SUGGESTION.

SUMMIT, MISS., July 5, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: If I may be allowed the privilege I would suggest the propriety of having a district camp meeting about the 1st of October, at some convenient place on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad. There is no suitable place near Summit. The camp ground should be in a grove near a stream of water. I think near Brookhaven or Magnolia would be a suitable place. We can have cloth tents made at a small cost, and let every person go prepared to furnish themselves. The ministers will have a tent and necessary comforts provided for them.

WM. HOOVER.

DR. MUNSEY'S APPEAL.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church South owes a debt which has embarrassed it ever since the war. This debt, after some payments have been made upon it, amounts to a sum approximating $35,000. The larger part of it is owing to a gentleman who, during the war, when on account of the blockade, and other reasons, we were unable to do it, paid our drafts for the support of our China mission, and saved our honor as a church. If we had not then possessed such a friend, and our drafts had been dishonored, the effect upon our credit as a church, and upon the prospects of our mission in China, would have been disastrous. The war has been over four years; still we owe this gentleman a large part of the money he advanced for us. In addition to this, the board owes money for the support of missionaries for work long since performed, and which to this hour it has not been able to pay. But a few days ago an unpaid draft for $375 was sent to the treasurer of the board, from the widow of one of our missionaries who labored among the Indians. This draft was dated November 3, 1860. The treasurer, out of a treasury nearly empty, paid it. Who knows how sad a story may be connected with the history of this unpaid draft, and how far the lack of the amount it called for contributed to hasten the death of this missionary, and the bereavement of his family? Among the drafts yet unreported to the board, there may be several more with a similar story. Besides the $35,000, there are other claims against the board which are disputed, and the settlement of which is now pending, which may upon final adjustment or adjudication, as the case may be, make the entire debt much heavier. The whole debt, be it what it may, by all means ought to be paid this year. It can be paid against the meeting of the board on the first day of next September. We ought to exert ourselves for its immediate liquidation for many reasons, among which are the following:

1. This debt curtails the appropriations necessary to make our foreign missions vigorous, aggressive, and efficient in their operations.

2. It prevents the church from extending its missionary work in accordance with the genius, spirit, and commission of the Gospel, and as the crisis of the hour demands.

3. It deprives the church at home of the full measure of the advantages of the reflex evangelical influence of aggressive missionary work upon itself, so necessary to its own life, growth, and development.

4. It serves to dispirit our missionaries already in the field; and to quench the holy ardor of ministers at home who feel called of God to go and preach to the heathen, but who for the lack of money cannot do it. Indeed, it tends to destroy all missionary feeling amongst us, and when we cease to be missionary in spirit and work we cease to be the church of Christ.

5. It impairs the confidence of our creditors, and of the world, in our rectitude as a people, and as a church. The church ought to be the exemplar to the world in its faithfulness to its obligations, and its promptitude to pay its debts. There is no honorable individual, firm, or corporation, who could command the money, who would dare to be so slow in meeting its liabilities as the church has been in paying this debt.

6. Slowness to pay this debt is ingratitude to the men who advanced their money, so long ago, to help us in our need; and surely a church ought to be grateful to its benefactors.

7. Slowness to pay this debt is ingratitude to God, who preserved the integrity and purity of our church when impoverished by the war, and persecuted, proscribed, slandered, and assailed by our enemies.

8. We are now able to pay it. If we are not as rich now as before the war, still we are able to pay twice the amount of our indebtedness, and also sustain and greatly enlarge our missionary operations abroad. Our lands, houses, parlors, dining rooms, kitchens, barns, horses, cattle, carriages, clothes, churches, organs, etc., testify to our ability to do it. An inventory of all these things will appear in the judgment.

9. If the church withholds the funds God has deposited with it as His treasurer to meet this indebtedness, and the cause of Christ is thereby brought into bad repute with the children of this world, and the Gospel is hindered in its work of saving sinners, God will curse it. If our church fails to carry out the spirit of its commission, God will not let the work suffer, but He will take the "candlestick" from us and give it to another. To be equal to the religious necessities of the world, is the condition upon which the existence of the church was founded.

Will the church liquidate these claims by the first day of next September? Will our people be indifferent to this appeal? Surely there is religion enough among us to prompt a practical answer. But we have a discouraging precedent: W. T. Smithson, the former treasurer of the board, called upon the church to discharge this debt by every member sending him twenty-five cents. In answer to this call he received $3,164 99—twelve thousand six hundred and sixty persons out of a membership of five hundred and forty-five thousand and sixty-nine responding. Where were the five hundred and thirty-two thousand four hundred and nine? "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?" Is it possible that half a million of our membership are too poor to purchase two oranges or two cigars? Or is it possible that they were in the worse condition of indifference to missionary matters? In answer to Brother Smithson's call our people ought to have given the amount required, leaving a magnificent balance to be appropriated to our foreign work. Such a response would have sent a thrill of power through every department of the church, which would have been of more value to us than an accession of fifty thousand members. It would have been "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon," for us, which would have sent dismay and discomfiture to our enemies. God would have blessed us, and we would have been richer today, both in temporal and spiritual treasures. The church, or societies in the church, including Sabbath schools, ought to be organized upon a missionary and practical basis, affording the board a steadily increasing and reliable revenue, year by year, so that all irregular and spasmodic efforts to raise money for missionary purposes will be dispensed with forever. Such efforts have disgraced the church, corrupted our people, and nearly destroyed systematic beneficence among us. To this work we must address ourselves—but now, and first, our indebtedness must be discharged, and I suggest the following method:

1. Let every Sabbath school in the Methodist Episcopal Church South send to me a donation of at least ten dollars. A sister denomination owed a larger debt than ours, and it was paid by the Sabbath schools of the denomination.

2. Let every member of the church send me, by mail, one dollar.

These donations are not intended to substitute the regular contributions for the support of foreign missions, or release me from my active duties as secretary, but to liquidate the liabilities of the board, while in the meantime I will visit the churches, and do all I can to promote the interests of the general work. Will the preachers and Sabbath school superintendents present this matter to the congregations and Sunday schools of the church? Brethren, give me your hearty co-operation, or all will be a failure. Let us, in the city and country, make one grand, united effort for God and Southern Methodism, and the work is done. May God bless our beloved church.

My address is Baltimore, Maryland. W. E. MUNSEY, Corresponding Secretary.

IT APPEARS by the telegraphic announcements that the President and his cabinet have assumed themselves to be a political caucus. A semi-official notice has been issued that they have had a consultation on the subject of the local elections of Tennessee and Virginia, and come to the decision to give active support, as an administration, to Wells for Governor of Virginia, and Stokes for Governor of Tennessee. In both States the division is not between Republicans and Democrats, but between the extreme Radicals and the Conservatives of the Republicans. Grant has espoused the extremists, and promulgates the decree that the government patronage will be used for securing the success of the Radical candidates of his preference!

The indecency of this interference is not likely to create much of a sensation. People have got to be accustomed to the freaks of absolutism in high places at Washington, to the shameless use of all, and of more than are lawful, of the powers of government, for the use of faction, to tyrannical legislation, persecutions, proscriptions, and disfranchisements of adversaries, and the heaping upon parasites and followers of bounties for servility out of the table treasury. The new proof of a purpose to convert a political party into an army of servile adherents to a triumphant chief, subject to his dictation in their political conduct, to be ostracised for disobedience and paid for service, is but following the essential principle of action which has inspired the action of the dominant party for a series of years, and which their chief is appropriating to himself as his own.

The success of General Grant in this audacious intervention in securing an ascendancy in Tennessee and in Virginia, which he can count upon as "loyal" to himself, will be another waymark on the road to imperialism, on which many thoughtful people believe with fearful apprehensions that republicanism in this country is traveling with accelerated pace. It may not be imperialism, with the bauble of a crown, or the name, which avows the character of despotism; but it looks as though it might come to be an imperialism disguised under the terms of a republic, like Venice under her Doges and her Council of Ten, from which there will be no escape—even if public virtue enough should survive to desire escape—except through the throes of a new revolution.—New Orleans Picayune.

Earthquake at St. Louis.

At nine minutes past two o'clock, yesterday morning, many persons were conscious of a positive shock of an earthquake in the neighborhood. It was not so violent as to awaken a sleeping person, but, being awake, one could not be in doubt as to its being an earthquake. A person who seems to have marked the time at which the shock occurred, sends us a note stating: "At nine minutes past two o'clock, this morning, there was an earthquake, the earth moving north and south, the main shock lasting about five seconds, causing considerable alarm. The shock was preceded by a rumbling noise." Another authority states that the oscillation was from east to west, and gives the testimony of some lady friends, one of whom said that during the shock she felt "as if she were on the ribbed side of a washboard, whilst the ribs were shaken by somebody." Another lady, our informant states, described it "as if a tremolo were played on an instrument;" and he himself "felt it as a trembling of the floor, from east to west, upon about six or seven trembling waves." The air at the time was close almost to suffocation, and those who did not feel the immediate effects of the earth shaking, felt oppressed and uncomfortable.

Councilman Driscoll stated that he was sitting in a chair when the shock came, and was sensibly shaken from one side of the chair to another. This testimony ought to be convincing if not conclusive. Various parties give testimony of the rattling of china in cupboards, the jingling of glass pendants, and swinging of loose shutters in the absence of any agitation of the air, etc.

At Kirkwood the shock was distinctly felt. A gentleman who was lying in bed at the time states that an oscillating motion was experienced as if the building was shaken by a strong wind. He was not aware that the disturbance was caused by an earthquake until, comparing his observations with those of his neighbors next morning, he attributed it to the earthquake.

At Jefferson Barracks and Carondelet the shocks were distinctly felt. At the former place it was noticed by several persons. A lady at Carondelet thought the house was coming down over her head.—St. Louis Republican, July 3.

Speeches and Sermons by Rev. Dr. Deems.

For the exceedingly small sum of ten cents we can furnish by mail, prepaid, five sermons and two speeches delivered in New York by Rev. Dr. Deems. Address

T. W. BROWN & Co.,
U. S. Pub. Company,
411 Broome street, New York.

JACKSON DISTRICT MEETING.

The district conference for Jackson district, Mississippi Conference, for 1869, will commence at Raymond, August 26, at ten A. M. Pastors will be prepared to give full statistical information, including periodicals and other religious reading.

Essays are expected as follows:

Pecuniary obligations to the church, Rev. H. H. Montgomery.

Whether schools and colleges should be mixed or exclusive as to sexes, Dr. A. H. Gage.

On preaching against the usages and doctrines of sister churches, Hon. O. R. Singleton.

Whether orphan asylums ought to be encouraged, Rev. C. B. Galloway.

On self-denial, Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt.

On errors in Scripture interpretation which science has discovered, Rev. J. M. Pugh.

On popular errors in ecclesiastical science, Rev. H. Brown.

On the millennium, so called, Mr. Nat. McKie.

On Sunday schools, Col. G. W. Harper.

On colportage, Mr. W. H. Cassell.

Aid to young men preparing for the ministry, Rev. C. G. Andrews.

The second coming of Christ, Rev. W. B. Lewis.

On religious declension, Dr. T. A. Phillips.

Christianity taught in schools, Mr. A. M. Gurley.

Congregational singing, Mr. W. H. Hartwell.

Pastoral visiting, Rev. J. W. Adams.

Funeral preaching, Col. W. G. Kearney.

Doctrinationalism, Dr. Harvey.

The church, Rev. W. Harrington.

On fore-knowledge and free agency, Rev. J. K. Hamlin.

Sunday schools among colored people, Rev. J. S. Harris.

The absolute completion of the work of Christ, Rev. T. M. Ward.

Herbatory and catechetical instruction in schools, Mr. J. W. Hall.

The sacraments, Rev. John Lusk.

On the relation of science, literature and religion, Prof. T. G. Rice.

The Christian's love for the church, Rev. J. C. Carlyle.

The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, Mr. A. W. Stanford.

Have modern Jews the religion of their ancient ancestors? Captain E. C. Postell.

On the supposed new doctrines and church laws of the New Testament, Rev. A. M. Campbell.

On reading and the selection of books, Rev. Thomas Ford.

On the religious education of children, Rev. F. M. Alford.

The A B Cs, Rev. R. Abbey.

Are our newspapers sufficiently laudatory of living ministers? A volunteer.

A large number of visitors is expected, for whom ample provision will be made by the householders of Raymond, as also free transportation to and from Bolton's depot. R. ABBEY, P. E.

MARRIED.

On the 1st of July, at the residence of the bridegroom, on Jerry bayou, Dog river, by the Rev. A. M. Jones, of the Mobile Conference, Mr. CHARLES EHLERS to Miss SARAH A. MILLER, both of Jackson county, Mississippi.

On the night of the 4th of July, 1869, at the Methodist church in Whistler, Alabama, by Rev. J. J. Grace, Mr. JOSIAH G. WHATLEY to Mrs. BARBARA B. DRAKE, both of Whistler, Alabama.

On the 12th of May, 1869, at the residence of the bride's father, in Baldwin county, Alabama, by Rev. J. J. Grace, Mr. JAMES A. CARNEY, formerly of Wilmington, North Carolina, to Miss LOUISA A. DOLIVE, of Baldwin county, Alabama.

On the 18th of June, 1869, at the residence of the bride's mother, in Baldwin county, Alabama, by Rev. J. J. Grace, Mr. MONROE COVINGTON to Miss MAGGIE STAPLETON, both of Baldwin county, Alabama.

OBITUARIES.

MISS WILLIE ROSSEAU was born March 28, 1843, and died in Auburn, Alabama, May 28, 1869.

For many years she had been the subject of severe affliction, and for several years immediately preceding her death her affliction was intensely severe. This affliction was not in vain, but was sanctified to the beautifying of a spirit already lovely. In patience and gentleness she bore her sufferings. Death found her ready, possessed of every grace which adorns and constitutes the Christian character. Many were her expressions of perfect confidence. The age has not gone by when the children of God can pass through the valley fearing no evil. This is one of the many instances in which there was not a fear in the mind of the dying, nor a doubt entertained in the minds of the surviving. W. S.

Died, April 23, at his residence on Sicily Island, Louisiana, Colonel T. A. S. DONIPHEN, aged fifty-five years, five months and twenty days. He was born in George county, Virginia, October —, 1813, where he was educated and grew up to manhood.

In 1835 he emigrated to the State of Mississippi, where he engaged in merchandising; and though a young man of about twenty two years, the activity and penetrating powers of his mind soon gave evidence of the high grade of his intellectual and moral worth. Though he withdrew from the mercantile business after a few years, it was only to place himself in a more extensive field, which he did by taking charge of the editor's chair in the office of the Natchez Free Trader, and filled it with honor and ability for many years.

While living in Natchez he was married to a second wife—Mary Glover—and by and by retired and settled on Sicily Island, Catahoula parish, where he lived an intellectual superior, an example of moral rectitude and a pattern of Christian charity.

He embraced the religion of Jesus Christ when quite a youth, obeying the injunction, "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness;" and he found it a sure guide, along the conflicting paths of life, for his youthful steps, and a safe companion amid the storms and buffetings of mortal life.

The disease (dropsy) was furious in its attack and rapid in its march, closing the scene in a few months. But in the midst of the severest of the conflict he was and though his suffering was very great, and the cloud grew heavy and dark, the star of hope shone brightly, and in the midst of the sobs and cries of his afflicted family he was calm and collected, and was even importunate in his efforts to assuage their grief. It was a sore trial to his wife, but she could not weep as those who have no hope; for while the tender but strong cords that bound their hearts together on earth were breaking, that same even-tempered voice was heard, "Don't weep, darling. God's will be done. True, mortal life is fast ebbing, and will soon be to a final end; but with equal rapidity I am nearing the joys of the spirit world, to live with God forever." Such was the closing scene. T. J. LACEY.

"Meek, submissive meek;"

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

The Fall Session of this institution begins on the 19TH OF AUGUST, 1869.

We have never been better prepared to furnish the facilities for a thorough Collegiate training. Our Board of Instruction is filled with men of large experience as College officers and of acknowledged ability as professors. Our buildings—now undergoing repairs—and boarding arrangements afford pleasant homes for students.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars, payable in advance, will meet the expenses for tuition, board, room-rent, fuel, contingent fee and washing for five months.

A catalogue, or special information on any points, may be obtained by addressing

E. E. WILEY, President,
jy10 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S
CIRCULAR TO ADVERTISERS,
SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS,
CONTAINING

A list of Seven Hundred and Fifty choice Advertising mediums, subdivided into more than fifty small lists, with Price Cards showing the cost of any advertisement from one line to one column.

A list of the leading Daily Papers in all the large towns and cities of the United States and Canada.

A list of Two Hundred leading Weekly and Monthly publications, with estimates showing the cost of an advertisement of from five to twenty-five lines, from one week to two months.

A list of prominent Advertisers who have patronized this Advertising Agency, and letters showing the opinions of such men concerning the advantages it offers.

Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
jy10 4tr 40 Park Row, New York.

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or
St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. jy10 4tr

PHŒNIX DISINFECTANT.

Best and cheapest Deodorizer in existance. For tenhouses, Water Closets, Stables, etc. Instantly stops bad smell and noxious gases. Protects Horses and Cattle from Rinderpest. Drives vermin from poultry and young plants. Prevents contagion and infection. Cheapest and most convenient Carbolic power in use. Meets chief requirements Metropolitan Board of Health. First premium awarded by American Institute.

Circular with testimonials mailed on application. HOLLINS, KIRKUP & CO.
jy10 4tr 12 Dey street, New York.

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the new eye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. We furnish full outfit free. Address W. A. HENDERSON & CO., jy10 4tr Cleveland, Ohio.

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed.—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. jy10 4tr

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
jy10 4tr Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

MUSKET SHOT GUNS, WARranted to shoot close and kill sixty yards. Price, $2 50.

Wanted.—Army Guns and Revolvers. Send stamp for price list of Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers, to JOHNSTON'S GUN WORKS, jy10 4tr Pittsburg, Pa.

VINEGAR.—HOW MADE FROM Cider, Wine, Molasses or Sorghum in ten hours, without using drugs. For terms, circulars, etc., address F. I. SAGE,
jy10 4tr Vinegar Maker, Cromwell, Ct.

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED Dollars a year.—Male and Female Agents wanted everywhere. Address H. ANDERSON & CO., jy10 4tr 314 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo.

$3,500 PER YEAR TO SELL "Wonder of the World." J. C. TILTON, jy10 4tr Pittsburg, Pa.

YOU CAN MAKE LARGE PAY with our Stencil Dies. Samples free. S. M. SPENCER & CO., jy10 4tr Brattleboro, Vermont.

NINE DOLLARS A DAY FOR all. Address A. J. FULLAM, jy10 4tr New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers.

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The substitution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time-keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In conjunction with enlarged power of production, it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place. Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance one to its pattern; they are perfect in their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them.

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade; and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and ample—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtleties of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose expertness and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishments in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially so since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For facts and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
jel2 6tp 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canada. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural, and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the Impurities of the Blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
myl 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S
LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,
AND
McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET
DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,
PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Farmers, families, and others can purchase no Remedy equal to Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT for the cure of Cholera, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Croup, Colic, and Sea Sickness.—Taken internally (it is perfectly harmless—see oath accompanying each bottle) and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Cuts, Burns, Swellings, Bruises, Musquito Bites, Old Sores, Pains in Limbs, Back, and Chest. The Venetian Liniment was introduced in 1847, and no one who has used it but continues to do so, many stating if it was $10 a bottle they would not be without it. Thousands of Certificates can be seen at the Depot, speaking of its wonderful curative properties. Price, Fifty Cents and $1. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers throughout the United States. Depot, No. 10 Park Place, New York. je12 5tr

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S
ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.,) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
jy10 4tn 40 Park Row, New York.

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,
NO. 164 CANAL STREET,
Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR
KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.
A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE
sep15 1y New Orleans.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS
No. 52 Union Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON.
je23 1y

F. HATHORN. ALF. H. PIERSON:
Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
And Wholesale Dealers in
Groceries, Oils and Drugs,
Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oc17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address DR. S. S. FITCH, mh13 9mp 714 Broadway, New York.

THE MAGIC COMB.—Teeth are coated with solid dye. You wet your hair and use the comb, and it produces a permanent black or brown. One comb sent by mail for $1 25. Address WM. PATTON, ap10 3mp Springfield, Massachusetts.

DOLLAR SALE.—WE GIVE ONE hundred yards Muslin for a 100 Club; 20 Watches and 10 Poplin Dress Patterns in every 100 slips. Send fifty cents for slips describing fifteen articles. Circulars free. Agents wanted. ALNER, EARL & CO.,
jy10 4tr 24 Chauncey st., Boston, Mass.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

SONG OF THE SWALLOW.

BY EMILY HUNTINGTON MILLER.

The robin may warble his merriest tune,
The leaves may be green on the tree;
But the blithe little swallow will wait for the June,
For the bird of the summer is he.

As swift as the light he is flashing along,
High up in the glimmering blue,
Then low at my feet, where the blossoms are sweet,
And the meadows are sparkling with dew.

Oh! gay little rover, no shadow of fear,
No care for the morrow have you;
You pass from our skies ere the autumn is here,
To the land where the summer is new.

Say, how do you know when the skies are aglow,
And the wind blowing soft through the leaves?
Who shows you the way through the night and the day
To your home by the sheltering eaves?

The robin may warble his merriest tune,
The leaves may be green on the tree;
But the blithe little swallow will wait for the June,
For the bird of the summer is he.

—Little Corporal.

A GOOD-NIGHT STORY.

BY CLARA W. T. FRY.

Bedtime was coming with the twilight, and there were four little faces pressed against the window panes, watching the bright sunset clouds fade away, and four little children were almost ready to bid the world 'good night.'

Four little children. The Prince and Periwinkle were two little boys. Stella and Bell were two little girls. The Prince's hair was curly and golden, and Periwinkle's was straight and brown. Bell's cheeks were rosy and plump, and Stella's eyes were sparkling and dancing.

And these were the four little children that gathered around Cousin Pen, like bees around a flower, and asked for the 'good-night story'—for they had one every night.

'What shall it be?' said Cousin Pen.

'A fairy story,' said Stella.

'I'm tired of fairy stories,' said Periwinkle; 'they are all just alike.'

'O no!' cried Stella, 'I never knew two alike in my life!'

'Well,' insisted Periwinkle, 'something always turns into something else, and they all end good, anyway.'

'Tell about sailing,' said the Prince.

'O yes! some real body who went sailing,' said Bell.

'Don't you think you are rather particular, little people?' asked Cousin Pen.

Four 'O noes' came all at once from the children, and four hearty kisses lit on Cousin Pen's cheeks, and the children dropped down like four little bundles on the floor, and sat very still.

'I am thinking of one,' said Cousin Pen, 'and it is about sailing.'

'Good!' said the Prince.

'It isn't a fairy story,' continued Cousin Pen.

'Gooder!' shouted Periwinkle.

'It is about a real body.'

'That's my story,' said Bell.

'And it all happened, O ever so long ago; will that do, Stella?'

'Just as well as a fairy story,' said Stella, who was so good natured she was pretty sure to be happy.

'Well, here it is. There was a Spanish sailor, a long, long time ago, and he sailed the seas over and over again, and always came safely home. And he fought in some fearful battles, and always came safely home. And still he kept sailing and traveling over the whole wide world, and always came safely home to Spain.

'By and by he began to grow old; and he was sorry for that, for he thought he must soon stay at home, and never sail the great seas any more. Then he heard of a wonderful Magic Fountain of Youth. 'I must find that fountain,' said he, 'and then I will send the waters all over the world, and people can drink them, and be young and strong and brave and beautiful always. They need never grow old or feel weary and worn any more. Their hair will not grow white, nor their faces wrinkled, nor their steps feeble—but their eyes will keep bright, and their cheeks fair and rosy, and they will be young and strong as long as they live.'

'So he gathered up his money, and called his men, and fitted out three little ships, to sail away in search of the Fountain of Youth. He had heard that it was in the Island of Bimini, far away in the New World.'

'Why! where is the New World?' said Periwinkle.

'I never heard of it,' said Stella.

'We all live in it,' said Cousin Pen. 'These things happened more than three hundred years ago; and the people who lived on the other side of the ocean called America the New World then; it was new, too, for it had only just been discovered, and there were such wonderful stories told about it that it did not seem strange, to the people who lived so long ago, that there should even be a Magic Fountain of Youth in it.'

'What was the sailor's name?' asked the Prince.

'His name was Leon—Juan Ponce de Leon. He had been in the New World before, for he came over with Columbus, when he discovered it; and he lived awhile on the island that we call Hayti. They call it Hispaniola—that means Little Spain—because it was shaped like Spain, the old home they had never before left so long.

'So Leon went first to Hispaniola, and then sailed away to a cluster of small islands—the Bahamas, we call them; and we should never think of such a thing as a Fountain of Youth being there; but Leon thought that one of these islands must be Bimini. So every day he and his sailors left the ships, and went all over the Beautiful Islands. They found thick green grass, and richly-colored flowers, great trees and forests, and bright-winged birds. And they drank the waters of many beautiful, sparkling springs, and little, bubbling, dancing streams, and quiet, shining lakes; but it was all just like any other water, and the Fountain of Youth was nowhere in the cluster of Beautiful Islands.

'But they had seen so much that was wonderful and sweet and pleasant, that they were glad they had searched through them.

'Then they sailed away again, between the blue sky and the blue water, away to the north and west, and by and by Sunday morning came—it was Easter Sunday—'

'Why, we have Easter Sunday,' said the Prince.

'Yes! and we always have flowers in church—O so many!' said Bell.

'Well, it was Easter Sunday then to the sailors on the shore of the New World. And that morning, when they looked to the west, they saw land—a beautiful land, all blooming with Easter flowers, and so they called it Florida'

'And was it our Florida?' said Periwinkle.

'Yes, to be sure it was—our Florida. Leon said it should belong to the King of Spain, so he took possession of it in the King's name, and then he began again to look for the Fountain of Youth. He was more anxious than ever to find it now, for he had been growing older all this time; so he sailed among the little islands around the shore, and searched them through, and then he searched all through the plains and forests and valleys of Florida, and drank of all its clear, cool waters.

'But the Easter flowers faded away, and the hot summer came, and Leon's hair was grayer, and his eyes dimmer, and his step slower; for he had grown old in search of the Fountain of Youth. But the busy, earnest life, and the patient search, had kept his heart young while his body grew old; and so, when he died and was buried in the New World he discovered with Columbus, it did not seem as if he was any older in spirit than when he left the shores of Spain.'

'Then he never found the fountain?' said Stella.

'No. Leon never found what he expected. But in his search for the fountain, he had found and had done a great deal more than he ever knew. He thought that the Florida he found was only a beautiful, flowery island, while it was really a part of the great continent where so many millions of people live now.

'It is we, who live so long after Leon, in this beautiful land he found—it is we who see the real Fountain of Youth, and we see it every day.'

'O, where is it?' and four little children started up like butterflies ready to fly.

'It is right here now,' said Cousin Pen. 'We see it shining in the happy, bright, young faces, and busy, glad, young lives all over the land. The old story about the Fountain of Youth has come true now; for the New World is full of children, who live and grow up and are glad and good, here. And as fast as some grow up, others fill their places, and so the Fountain of Youth is full forever.'

'But,' said Periwinkle, 'Leon always thought it was a real fountain, didn't he?'

'Yes, I suppose he did. But that was so very long ago; and the story of the fountain was only one of many wonderful stories that people over the sea told of the great New World they could never hope to see.

'And now we think of all the children in the north and south and east and west, and smile to think of the old and beautiful story.'

'Good night,' said the Prince.

'Good night,' said Bell and Stella.

'Good night,' said Periwinkle.—The Little Corporal.

A MAN'S own good breeding is the best security against other people's ill manners.

THE prospect of cotton in northern Mississippi is good for an average crop.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GRAFTING POTATOES.

Some rather strange tales are told in some of the English agricultural journals, and notably the Gardeners' Chronicle, of the results of experiments in producing new varieties of potatoes by grafting the eyes of one kind into the tubers of another. As the facts are new, at least to us, and probably to most of our readers, and the same method of procedure might result in obtaining not only new varieties, but also in improving some of the old ones here, we propose to give the method as tried with such seeming success in Great Britain. It is rather claimed to result in a cross than to produce an entirely new variety, but the good qualities of two kinds, it is said, can be obtained in this way.

The mode of operation is to take two potatoes, one of each variety, the good qualities of which it is wished to combine. With a pocket-knife cut all the eyes cleanly out of one of them, and substitute in their places the eyes cut out of the other. The eyes to be inserted should be sprouted and cut into the form of wedges, and inserted into cuts of the same shape and size in the other potato; they are held in place by hair-pins, and bound with bass matting or twine. The fit must be exact and the rind of each must just meet. The grafted potatoes are then to be planted. As some of the grafts may fail, it is well to operate upon a dozen or more sets at a time. The produce of these grafted potatoes are to be kept separate and planted out the following year, when their qualities will be proved. Many varieties will sometimes result from grafting only two kinds into each other, and the results are said to have astonished the originator of the system, as two reds "have produced a white potato." Kidneys and rounds, grafted into each other, produced rounds, mottled and Kidneys, differing from both parents.

Some new and valuable varieties are said to have been obtained by this process; and by grafting an early on a late kind, or vice versa, several crosses could be obtained, some of which would be early, some medium, and some late; and inferior but prolific kinds, by being grafted with a better sort that is a poor yielder, may be made to produce a hybrid combining good table quality with productiveness—such, for instance, as grafting the Neshannock on the California.

The subject is interesting, and opens a field for experiment worthy of trial by agriculturists and gardeners; and as the planting season is just now beginning, there will be a chance for introducing new varieties in a shorter time and with more certainty than by sowing seed balls.

PREVENTIVE OF ARMY WORMS.

We take the following from an article in the New Iberia Journal: "A planter on the coast having, for several years past, been in the habit of sowing in his cotton land the ordinary cow pea, and finding to his amazement that those of his neighbors' crops, where no peas had been sown, were literally destroyed by the worms, his crop remaining untouched, was induced to test the efficacy of the vine as a preservative against their destruction. With this view he tried the following experiment, to wit: That of cultivating one portion of his field in cotton alone and surrounding the other with a belt of peas. This done, the period for the army worm to appear having arrived, that portion of his field wherein no peas had been sown was entirely devoured, while that in which peas had been sown remained untouched—a result which, of course, leads him very rationally to suppose that the vine alone, growing around the cotton, had proved its protection against the aggression of the insect. After all, from the accounts given by the oldest inhabitants of our parish, we are inclined to think that it is, as reported, an infallible preservative against the ravages of the cotton worm, and for this reason: From the authority quoted above, we are told that up to twenty or twenty-five years ago such a thing as the army or cotton worm was unknown among them, and before that period it was the universal practice of all planters to yearly sow their fields—whether of cotton or corn—in peas. Why they should have given up this wholesome practice we are unable to say, but certain it is that since, few have been the crops raised in this section without having been more or less injured by those insects. We would not too strongly urge upon our cotton planters the importance of testing the efficacy of this simple expedient, it being both easy and profitable."

A SUGGESTION ABOUT CATERPILLARS. The discovery of one full-grown caterpillar by one of our most vigilant planters has been brought to our attention, and in such a way that we are disposed to give the information full credit. The worm was fully identified as the genuine cotton caterpillar, and was nearly ready to go into its web. We make this announcement, not for the purpose of affecting the cotton market, or producing a panic among planters, but to put planters on their guard, and to suggest what seems to us of great importance, that the planters all over the country cause a strict search of their cotton to be made, with the view of destroying every worm or chrysalis which may be found. One worm or chrysalis killed now will cut off thousands of caterpillars in August and September. For every ten destroyed now, probably five bales of cotton will be saved to the planter when he comes to gather his crop in the fall. This would richly pay for several days' patient search. The enormous increase of the cotton worm in passing through only three "crops," while it is a most unwelcome fact, is nevertheless the key to the planter's indemnity against its ravages. Only destroy the pioneers, or the first "crop," and there is an end to all apprehensions of danger. Search the young cotton, weeds, and bushes thoroughly for worms and chrysalis now, on every plantation, and the result will be a failure in the caterpillar crop, as certain as fate.—Ouachita Telegraph, June 23.

LABELING TREES.—At a meeting of the Institute of Technology, held in Boston, Hon. M. P. Wilder made a statement relative to a new method of labeling trees, accidentally discovered by him. In the use of zinc labels, which were the most durable in character, an indelible ink was used; but not having the ink at hand on one occasion, he wrote upon the zinc with a lead pencil. This writing, although it could not be rubbed off when first made, grew more distinct and durable with age, and after several years could not be erased except by scraping.

THE LITTLE RAFT THAT CROSSED THE ATLANTIC OCEAN.—We copy as follows from the Philadelphia Telegraph:

On the 4th day of June, 1867, more than two years since, a tiny raft, named the Nonpareil, worked its way out of New York harbor to the broad ocean beyond, and hoisting sail, drifted away toward Europe. The people of Southampton, England, were astonished, on the 25th of the following month, to see a novel craft nearing their wharves upon the tide. It was the Nonpareil, and from that day she was famous. When Capt. John Mickes, her builder, stepped upon her for the long voyage, many deemed him more than bold, and expected to hear or see nothing again of either him or his raft. The success of the enterprise, however, proved that he well knew the capacity of his tiny vessel, and demonstrated that even the raging deep might be dared almost upon a plank. The Nonpareil now lies at Smith's Island, opposite Chestnut street wharf. She is made of three straight cylinders twenty-five feet in length and twenty-six inches in diameter. The cylinders are made of gutta percha, encased in heavy duck covers, and connected by means of heavy duck flanges, which form a deck surface twelve and a half feet wide. On the top and across these cylinders are placed a series of thwarts or planks, which keep the cylinders apart, and also afford seats for passengers. An air valve is attached to each cylinder, and in eight minutes the raft can be put in readiness for service. The raft, it is said, has a buoyant capacity of ten thousand pounds, and a deck surface of two hundred and sixty-four square feet. She is now rigged and equipped as she was at the time of making her celebrated voyage—the same water casks, beds, binnacle and tackling being on board. Captain Mickes, who is with the boat at Smith's Island, says that during the voyage across the ocean the bedding, which was elevated about two feet above the deck, was never wet. He also stated that the raft cannot be swamped or capsized by surf or sea.

ADVICE.—Advice is like snow; the softer it falls, the longer it dwells upon and the deeper it sinks into the mind.—Coleridge.

PHOTOGRAPHS. PHOTOGRAPHS.

S. ANDERSON

Has the pleasure of announcing to his numerous friends and the public that he has removed from 61 Camp street to

183 Canal Street,

where he is prepared with all the recent improvements in the Art to execute the most beautiful works that can be desired, at the old rates of $3 per dozen.

He would call especial attention to his new style,

THE SUN PEARL PICTURES,

which surpass the finest Ivory miniature. Copying in every style and size.

Call and see. jal6 6m

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH. F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

GENERAL STEAMBOAT AGENTS,

COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 90 Common street, New Orleans

oct3 1y

ROBERT J. HARP,

AGENT OF THE

SOUTHERN METHODIST E. BOOK DEPOT,

Has now on hand an assortment of the most

Choice and Attractive New Books,

in addition to our own Publications, a list embracing a few of which appears below.

We invite special attention to our

STOCK OF STATIONERY.

	PRICE.
Abbott's Juvenile Histories, 28 vols.	$33 50
Biblia Hebraica	6 00
Burton's Central Africa	2 00
Biblical Encyclopodia, Kitto, unab.	25 00
Beugel's Gnomon of the New Testament, 8vo	9 00
COMMENTARIES.
Clarke's, 6 vols., sheep, 8vo	30 00
Clarke's, 4 vols., sheep, 8vo, Applegate edition	24 00
Whedon on the Gospels, 2 vols.	3 50
Lange's, 7 vols., cloth, $5 each	35 00
Lange's, 7 vols., sheep, $6 50 each.	45 50
Wesley's Notes of the New Testament, 8vo	3 50
Pierce's Notes on Acts	1 25
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, cloth, quarto	4 00
Cruden's Concordance, unabridged, sheep, quarto	5 00
Cruden's Concordance, abridged, cloth	2 00
Webster's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 80
Worcester's latest Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary	10 00
Mosheim's Ecclesiastical Hist., 8vo.	7 00
McLaine's Mosheim, 2 volumes	5 00
Milman's History of Christianity	2 50
Stevens' Hist. of Methodism, 3 vols.	5 25
Stevens' History of M. E. Church, 4 volumes	7 00
History of Wesleyan Methodism, by Geo. Smith, F. A. S., London ed.	3 00
Lost Chapters of Methodism Recovered	3 00
Methodism in Kentucky, Redford, 2 volumes	4 00
Ecce Deus	1 50
Ecce Homo	1 50
Ecce Deus Homo	1 50
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75
Prince of the House of David	2 00
Throne of David	2 00
Pillar of Fire	2 00
Glory of the House of Israel	1 25
Divinarity—Comparative Age of the World	2 00
Gaston's Collections, new edition	1 50
Simmons' Scripture Manual	1 75
Pastors' Sketches, 2 volumes	3 50
Local Preacher's Manual, by Wesleyan Publishing House.	2 00
Catechisms of the Church South, all bound in one volume	1 00
History of Rationalism, Hunt	3 50
History of Greece, Grote, 12 vols.	18 00
Fountain of Youth	2 00
The Nile Tributaries, Baker	2 75
Cast Up by the Sea, Baker	1 25
The Land and the Book, 2 vols.	5 00
Life and Sermons of the late Rev. F. W. Robertson, 5 volumes	10 50
Sovereigns of the Bible	1 50
Through the Dark to the Day (new)	1 50
Garden of Spices	2 00
Garden of Sorrows	1 25
God in History and in Science	75
Mother of the Wesleys, with portrait	2 00
Mother's Mission	1 25
The Book that will Suit You	1 00
Sunday School Hand Book	1 25
Jay's Family Prayers	1 50
Imitation of Christ, Thos. A'Kempis, calf, ext	2 50
Imitation of Christ, muslin	1 25
Imitation of Christ, 24mo, muslin	50
Italy in Transition, W. Arthur, author of "Tongue of Fire"	1 50
Greece and the Golden Horn, Dr. Olin	1 50

ALSO, STATIONERY,

Wholesale and retail.

WRITING PAPER OF ALL KINDS.

Envelopes,
Pens,
Rulers,
Pencils,
Inks,
Blank Books,
Slates,

Initial Paper and Envelopes;

POCKET BIBLES IN GREAT VARIETY.

School Books, Sabbath School Books, and requisites.

Address ROBT. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street,
New Orleans.
my15

LIFE INSURANCE.

THE HOME INSTITUTION.

LOUISIANA EQUITABLE

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

Capital.....$500,000.

OFFICE:

NO. 142 CANAL ST., NEW ORLEANS

DIRECTORS:

John Pemberton,	W. S. Pike,
E. A. Tyler,	J. W. Stone,
C. H. Slocomb,	A. Thompson,
F. Delbondio,	Philip Meyer,
George A. Fosdick,	Marshall J. Smith,
Edward Rigney,	W. B. Schmidt,
Alex. Marks,	C. E. Girardey,

Edward Barnett.

JOSEPH ELLISON, . . . President.
W. S. PIKE, . . . Vice President.
W. P. HARPER, . . . Secretary.
ST. CLAIR DEARING, . . . General Agent.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS:

Dr. B. H. Moss, Dr. Sam. Choppin,
Dr. Henry Smith, Dr. J. H. Lewis,
Dr. Y. R. LeMonier, Dr. W. C. Nicholls.

G. A. Breaux, Attorney.

ALL KINDS OF LIFE RISKS TAKEN.

Ordinary Life and Annual Endowment; Ten Annual Endowment and Five Annual Endowment; Single Payment; Participating and Non-Participating, issued by this Company as low and on as favorable terms as any other Company in the country.

This Company, in order to place within the reach of every one,

THE MECHANIC,
THE ARTISAN,
THE CLERK,
OR THOSE OF LIMITED INCOMES,

has divided the payment of Premiums in such sums as can be easily spared, thus combining real Benevolence with the advantages of Life Insurance.

Policies therefore will be issued, the payments on which may be divided into

MONTHLY INSTALMENTS.

ALL POLICIES NON-FORFEITABLE.

Policies issued immediately on application.

ja9 1y

PHILIP WERLEIN,

SOUTHERN MUSIC HOUSE,

80.....BARONNE STREET.....80

NEW ORLEANS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL SOUTHERN AGENT

FOR THE CELEBRATED

E. P. Needham & Sons' Organs.

Twenty-five different styles, with the patent Foot Swell, the most perfect yet invented, made to stand the Southern climate, and guaranteed to be.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST

NOW MADE.

No. 1. Single set Reeds, four Octaves, $70 00
No. 13. Two sets Reeds, five Octaves, four Stops, ... 175 00
No. 18. Three sets Reeds, five Octaves, seven Stops, ... 250 00
No. 26. Four sets Reeds, five Octaves, eleven Stops, ... 360 00

Send for price list and illustrated catalogue.

Liberal terms to Churches, Schools and Teachers.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENCY OF THE

DUNHAM & SONS,
MARSCHALL & MITTAUER,
AND HALE
PIANOS.

Prices ranging from $350 to $700, according to style and finish. Guaranteed for six years.

Music and Everything in the Music Line at the Lowest Prices.

Satisfaction in every invoice guaranteed, or the money refunded no14 1y

D. H. HOLMES,

155.....CANAL STREET.....155

DEALER IN

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

☞ In existence thirty years. de12 6m

JOHN L. DUNNICA. GEO. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

FOR THE

PURCHASE AND SALE OF ALL KINDS

OF

SOUTHERN and WESTERN PRODUCE.

99.....POYDRAS STREET.....99

New Orleans.

Consignments of Cotton, Sugar and Molasses solicited.

All property consigned to us is insured in our Open Policy.

Agents for the following

BRANDS OF FLOUR,

which we are constantly receiving, and always have a good supply on hand:

Crescent Mills, Can't "B" Beat.
Magnolia, Choice Family.
Roshorough & Co., Choice Family.
Missouri Mills.
Saxony Belle.
Sparta Belle.
Concordia Mills.

Also, various brands of

SUPERFINE, SINGLE, DOUBLE AND TREBLE EXTRAS,

which we sell at the lowest market rates.

Persons desiring FAMILY SUPPLIES would do well to send us their orders with the money, and thereby save time and money.

Careful personal attention given to all business entrusted to us: ja2 1y

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,

Dealers in all descriptions of

MACHINERY AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

New Orleans, Louisiana.

VICTOR CANE MILLS,
COOK'S EVAPORATORS,
All sizes, for either Southern or Sorgo Cane.

VICTOR GRAIN DRILLS.
BUCKEYE THRASHERS,
For Rice, Wheat, Oats, etc.
OHIO MOWING MACHINES.
OHIO REAPING MACHINES,
With Dropper.

These Machines dispense with raking, as they deliver the cut grain ready for binding. They are adapted to all kinds of Grain, Rice, etc.

Warner's Sulky Hay Rakes.
Horse Powers.
Southern Corn Planters.
Sattley Gang Plows.
Corn Shellers.
Stafford Sulky Cultivators.
Corn and Cob Crushers.
Straw and Hay Feed Cutters.
Cider Mills and Presses.
Crawford Garden Cultivators.
Hay Presses and Cotton Presses.
Guttlett Steel Brush Cotton Gins.
Portable Steam Engines, of all sizes.
Stationary Steam Engines, boilers of all sizes.
Circular Saw Mills and Shingle Machines.
Coleman Corn and Wheat Mills.
Bolting Machines and Bolting Cloth.
Shafting, Belting, etc.

Send for special circulars for any articles or estimates for full sets of Machinery.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

TRUE MERIT vs. HUMBUG.

THE CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.

Why More Charter Oaks are Sold.

They have won the confidence of every housekeeper, after years of kitchen service, and not at State Fair trials of forty minutes' duration.

Their REPUTATION is not of MUSHROOM growth, or newly made. Thousands of children born in New Orleans have never eaten any other Bread except that baked in the Oven of a

CHARTER OAK.

The Fires of the Charter Oak are patented, and used in no other stove. It is here where the Charter Oak differs from all other stoves, and for these reasons a Charter Oak Stove will have a better DRAFT, and will DRAW well in any chimney.

THE HOT AIR FLUE
OF THE
CHARTER OAK.

ITS GREAT IMPORTANCE WHEN BAKING.

A thermometer placed in the Oven of a Charter Oak will show the same temperature of heat under the fire box as at any other point of the Oven, thus showing the great importance of FULLER'S HOT AIR FLUE to equalize the heat in the Oven, so necessary to bake Wholesome Bread.

A CHARTER OAK STOVE

will cost but $2 or $3 more than the ordinary Cooking Stoves of the day. It will last, in a well regulated kitchen, from twelve to fifteen years, and no reflecting housekeeper would think of saving $2 and risk the entire purchase money upon a worthless Cooking Stove, whose only recommendation may be that it is $2 cheaper.

Every CHARTER OAK guaranteed, or the money refunded.

RICE BROS. & CO.,
89 and 91 Camp st. and 565 Magazine st.
Charter Oak Warehouse,
89 and 99 Julia street.
de12 6m

DARBY'S
PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.
DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.
The Great Family Medicine.

The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.
The Wonderful Healing Remedy.

The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.
The Astonishing Disinfectant.

The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.
The Remarkable Pain Killer.

Cures Burns, Wounds, Stings.
Cures Cuts, Sores, Boils.
Cures Ulcers, Scratches, Bites.
Cures Catarrh, Scalds, Bruises.

Removes all Bad Odors.
Relieves Colic instantly.
Cures Chronic Diarrhea.
Cures Erysipelas and Gangrene.

READ THIS AND SEE!

Letter from Major J. T. Hester, of Alabama:

AUBURN, ALA., April 4, 1869.

MESSRS JOHN DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM St., N. Y.—Gents.: I have received so much benefit from "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid" that I feel it my duty to let you know it. I had an attack of Typhoid Fever, and with it a most stubborn case of Erysipelas, and was confined to my bed near two months, suffering the most intense pain all the time from Erysipelas; and after exhausting the many prescriptions of my physician, he finally commenced the use of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid, and soon found that I was being improved by its use, and continued to use it, and am nearly well. I consider it the most valuable medicine for the diseases and purposes for which it is made that is sold. I also used it most successfully on my little son, who was severely burned, and I do assure you that it was from this medicine alone that I could get any relief from my distressing attack of Erysipelas.

I do not write you this as a certificate for publication, but as a duty that I feel I owe to Professor Darby and his invaluable medicine.

I shall never be without it again if I can by any possible means get it.

I hope you are succeeding, and will make a fortune.

Very truly yours,
J. T. HESTER.

For sale by every Druggist and Country Merchant.

Orders filled by the proprietors,

JOHN DARBY & CO.,
de5 1y 161 William street, New York.

BINGHAM SCHOOL,

MEBANEVILLE, N. C.

WILLIAM BINGHAM, ROBERT BINGHAM,
W. B. LYNCH.

The session of 1869-70 begins AUGUST 25, and continues forty weeks.

The Course of Instruction includes the ordinary English branches, the Ancient Languages, French, Mathematics, Book-keeping, and the elements of Natural Science.

Expenses, including tuition, board, fuel, washing, books, and clothing, $365.

Circulars sent on application. je26 4t

CHURCH BELLS.—We are prepared to furnish Church Bells, of Steel composition, having a rich, deep tone, at the following prices, which place it within the power of all Churches to be provided with a good Bell:

	Weight.	Wt. of Bell and mountings.	Price.
28-inch Bell,	250 lbs	400 lbs	$65 00
36-inch Bell,	650 lbs	800 lbs	135 00
40-inch Bell,	800 lbs	1000 lbs	175 00
48-inch Bell,	1200 lbs	1500 lbs	265 00

These Bells are warranted for one year against breakage in ordinary use.

THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., New Orleans.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, GRADUate of the Philadelphia Dental College, has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oct31 1y

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE,

AUBURN, ALABAMA.

The Spring Session will begin on the 20th of January, and close on the 14th of July, 1869.

The educational facilities here furnished to students are equal to those of the best colleges in the country. Young men may take a regular or partial course, but will be required to have at least three studies.

Auburn is situated directly on the Montgomery and West Point Railroad. Its health and social advantages cannot be surpassed.

EXPENSES.

Tuition, Spring session, - - - $48 00
Tuition, Fall session, - - - 32 00

Board in private families, from $15 to $20 per month.

Students in indigent circumstances, by applying as such, will be required to pay in advance only half the price of tuition, and by messing they may greatly reduce the expense of board.

For further information address
REV. J. F. DOWDELL,
ja2 3m President.

PLOWS. PLOWS. PLOWS.

WE ARE MANUFACTURERS'
Agents at New Orleans for

Avery Plows, Peacock Plows,
Calhoun Plows, Brinley Plows,
Garrett & Cottman Plows,
Hall's Valley Plows, cast iron,
James H. Hall Cotton and Eagle Plows.

We sell all these at manufacturers' prices, and all other kinds of Plows at lowest market rate. THOS. B. BODLEY & CO.,
Dealers in Machinery and
Agricultural Implements,
ja16 1y No. 9 Perdido st., N. Orleans, La.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF

NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which

THE NEW ORLEAN

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Is sent in the States of

ALABAMA,

MISSISSIPPI,

LOUISIANA AND

TEXAS,

Constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest.

Our Circulation Is Widening Daily

Under the care of

FIVE HUNDRED SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS,

Who are both the agents and owners of this sheet.

A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns.

Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city.

We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour, and even whisky, which may be set forth in its columns.

The terms of advertising are as follows:

SQUARES.	1 MO.	3 MOS.	6 MOS.	12 MOS.
One (8 lines)..	$5 00	$12 00	$20 00	$30 00
Two.....	7 50	15 00	25 00	40 00
Three.....	10 00	20 00	30 00	50 00
Four.....	12 50	25 00	35 00	60 00

Larger advertisements in proportion.

Address,

Rev. J. C. KEENER, D. D.,
112 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL Session of the

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GEORGIA,

Begins on OCTOBER 5, 1868, under the direction of the following

FACULTY.

Rev J M Bonnell, D D, President.
Rev C W Smith, A M, Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev W O Bass, A M, Professor of Natural Science.
C Schwartz, A M, Professor of Latin and Modern Languages.
Mrs A R Leak, Assistant in Literary Department.
Carl Hintz, Musical Director, (with ample assistance.)
Mrs E T Crowe, Teacher of Drawing and Painting.

CHARGES—There are three terms in the scholastic year. For each term the charges, which are to be paid at the beginning of the term, are as follows:

Regular tuition, $30. Board including washing, fuel and lights, $75. Incidental fee charged to day scholars, $1.

The following are optional: French, $15; Instrumental Music, $25; use of Instrument $3; Vocal Music in class, $2—not charged to those who take Instrumental Music; Drawing, $15; Painting, $20.

Pupils who take French may be excused from Latin without affecting their graduation.

Special advantages provided in the departments of French, Music and Painting. For further information address the President.

J. M. BONNELL,
sep5 tf President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE,

Staunton, Virginia.

The next session begins on the 21st day of SEPTEMBER, 1868, and closes on the 24th of June, 1869.

Rev William A. Harris, President, with a Faculty of twelve professors, teachers and matrons.

This is a Female College of the first rank; one of the most flourishing in the South; young ladies here from nearly all sections of Virginia, and various Southern States. Method of teaching like that pursued in the University of Virginia. Health and comfort of pupils unsurpassed. Those from the Gulf States, especially, have greatly improved in health. No social disquietude. The population of this great Valley is nearly all white. This institution is an educational home for the daughters of the South.

Charges for the entire scholastic year, board and tuition, in collegiate course, embracing

Ancient Languages.....	$215 00
Music.....	50 00
French or one Modern Language.....	20 00

Refer to Professors Smith and Holmes, Virginia University; Mrs. John B. Fluy.; Bishops Pierce, Early, Doggett; Rev. Drs. Duncan and Munsey.

For catalogues address
WM. A. HARRIS,
sep5 6t Staunton, Va.

CENTENARY MALE INSTITUTE

Summerfield, Alabama.

The twenty seventh annual session of this school will begin on the

FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1868,

and continue nine months, with no vacation, except one week at Christmas.

The expense for tuition, incidental fees, board, washing, fuel and lights, will be $230, one-half to be paid on entrance and one-half on the 15th of February, 1869.

Persons wishing to patronize this school may address JOHN MASSEY, aug15 2m Principal, Summerfield, Ala.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HANSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB HARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All order will meet with prompt attention.

p22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, Ohio, Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, etc., made of the Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Send for Catalogue and Price List. no7 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON.

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES.

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE,

Sum'ter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

A. EYRICH, (Successor to Bielock & Co.,)

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

130.....CANAL STREET.....130

New Orleans, Louisiana,

Keeps on hand a large and carefully selected stock of

STANDARD SCHOOL, LAW, MEDICAL

AND

RELIGIOUS BOOKS,

Bibles, Prayer Books, Testaments, Hymn Books, Albums, Engravings, Chromo-Lithographs, etc., and is constantly receiving from Publishers, at first prices,

ALL NEW WORKS ISSUED,

Which he can supply at

LOWER RATES THAN ANY HOUSE SOUTH.

With fifteen years' experience in the Southern Book trade, and fully acquainted with the wants of our section, he believes he can guarantee satisfaction to all.

Letters of inquiry cheerfully attended to.

General Agent for

M'CLINTOCK AND STRONG'S BIBLICAL, THEOLOGICAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL CYCLOPEDIA,

a storehouse of knowledge for the use of ministers, students and Sunday school libraries.

Agents wanted, to whom liberal rates will be given. Address

A. EYRICH,
oct24 6m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,

STOVE DEALER

AND

TINWARE MANUFACTURER

62.....CAMP STREET.....62

NEW ORLEANS.

SIGN OF THE BIG TEA POT.

I would respectfully announce to my friends and the public generally, both in the city and country, that after an association of over twenty years, under the name and style of Austin & Goodwyn, formerly corner of Customhouse and Front Levee, I have permanently located as above, and shall continue my old business of

MANUFACTURING TINWARE,

in all its branches, as heretofore, and in addition will endeavor to keep at all times a full and complete stock of the best, as well as the latest and most approved

COOKING STOVES.

The names of a few will suffice to give an idea of the great variety constantly kept on hand:

The Charter Oak,	The Good Samaritan
The Revenue,	The Torchlight,
The American,	The Brilliant,
The Magnolia,	The Fashion,
The True Kentuckian,	The Farmer,
The Maid of Orleans,	The Southern States,
The Mutual Friend,	The Sunny South,

and many others, too numerous to mention of which will be sold at

THE LOWEST MARKET PRICES,

for cash or approved city paper.

Being ever grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed and confidence reposed in me during my former copartnership, I would most earnestly solicit a continuance of the same, and shall pledge myself to do my utmost to maintain the reputation of the old house.

Remember the Big Tea Pot,
No. 62 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.
jaly6 1y

MAGIC PRESS.

J. P. WILSON,

JOB PRINTER.....JOB PRINTER

77 Magazine street, corner of Poydras,
nov1 New Orleans, La.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor & Commission Merchant,

190 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug8 6m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, AT Greensboro, Alabama.

The next session of this Institution begins the first Wednesday in October, and is divided into two terms.

TUITION.

Academic Department, per term..	$35 00
Preparatory Department, per term.....	30 00
Contingent fee, per term.....	2 50

A fee of $5 is charged those who attend the schools of Chem. and Nat. Phil.

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $16 to $20 per month. By messing it can be obtained even cheaper than at these rates.

Sons of ministers of the Gospel in the regular work, and those studying for the ministry, are admitted free of tuition.

The whole expense for the scholastic year, including everything except books and clothing, will be $250, payable one-half at the opening of the session and the remainder on the 15th of February. If the student wishes to board in a private family it will be $280. This great reduction in the price of board and tuition will bring the advantages of the University within the reach of those whose limited means have heretofore placed the highest scholastic training beyond their reach, as well as secure the patronage of those who, on the score of economy, are sending their sons out of the State to be educated.

Especial attention is called to the fact that preparatory students are taught exclusively by the Faculty.

The Law School has been organized under the management of Hons. Judge Coleman and A. Benners.

For further information apply for circulars to
O. F. CASEY,
aug15 2m Secretary of Faculty.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages.....	$80,00
Incidental Fee.....	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course.....	$75,00
Incidental Fee.....	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing.	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trust
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1869.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
FEB.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28
MAR.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
APR.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
MAY							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
JUNE			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday
JULY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
AUG.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
SEP.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30
OCT.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
NOV.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
DEC.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received, and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The movement in the general market has been on a still more limited scale during the past three days. We notice but very little doing in any branch of the wholesale trade, and only a limited business in our leading staple, while operations in Western produce have been confined to a trifling jobbing business. Sugar and molasses, on the contrary, have been in good request, at steady prices.

The weather has been clear and warm and our accounts from the country are still more encouraging than last week. The crops are rapidly recovering from the bad effects of the unpropitious spring, and there is now a fair prospect that there will be a sufficiently liberal yield to fully test the capacity of our labor force in the picking season. Many look forward with sanguine hopes to the assistance of the Chinamen at this period.

The river continues to fall slowly and is now three feet four inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—The following are the arrivals since the 2d instant:

Louisiana and Mississippi.....bales..	803
Lake.....	10
Mobile.....	36
Texas.....	1
Total.....	852

On Saturday the movement commenced with increased animation, and the sales continued extremely dull throughout the day, the sales being confined to 154 bales, without any quotable improvement, but with the advantage on the side of the seller. On Monday the demand showed no improvement, and only 153 bales changed hands, but at fuller prices for all good cottons, factors being unwilling to part with such descriptions unless at outside rates or a fraction higher. On Tuesday the market opened with a limited demand, and notwithstanding the light supply, and factors generally asking very full prices for the better qualities, one or two small lots were sold at easier rates, the day's business embracing only 112 bales.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 419 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 792,552 bales, against 585,790 bales to the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 85,493 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 23,828 bales to France, and of 7,918 to other foreign ports, and a decrease of 250,436 to Great Britain.

Referring to our remarks above, we quote as follows:

Ordinary.....	27½ to 28½
Good ordinary.....	29½ to 30½
Low middling.....	31½ to 31½
Middling.....	32½ to 33
Strict middling.....	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1868, bales....		1959
Arrived past three days.....	852
Arrived previously.....	833671
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc.....	9112	—833635
		835594
Exported past three days.....	1984
Exported previously.....	820009	—822993
Stock on hand and on shipboard....		12601

Sugar.—The demand for fresh lots of Louisiana sugar has been good, since our last report, and all the supplies in first hands were sold. The city trade has also shown some improvement. On Saturday and Monday 139 hogsheads changed hands at 7⅛c. per pound for inferior, 11⅞ to 13¼c. for fair to prime, 13¼c. for prime to choice, and 15¾c. for white. On Saturday (not reported) 84 hogsheads sold on the basis of 13¼c. for choice. On Tuesday 11 hogsheads prime sold at 13c. per pound. Refinery sugar is selling at 15 to 15½c. per pound for yellow clarified, 15¾ to 16¼c. for white, and 17 to 17½c. for crushed and powdered. Cuba sugar has continued inactive.

Molasses.—All the receipts of Louisiana molasses, which, however, are very light, have been disposed of at full prices. On Monday 12 barrels mixed cistern bottoms and fermenting sold at 65c. per gallon, and 51 barrels fermenting on private terms.

Flour.—The market has been quiet but firm since our last review, with a scarcity of double extra, the description most in request.

Wheat.—The last barge load received in the elevator—14,000 bushels in bulk—was sold for export a few days since at $1 35 per bushel. There are large orders pending here, but we fear there is but little prospect of any of them being filled, few more receipts being expected.

Corn.—The demand has again been restricted by light supplies, and prices have been firmer.

CATTLE MARKET.

Jefferson City,
Tuesday Evening, July 6, 1869.

Texas cattle, choice, per head.....$35	to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head.	25 to 30
Texas cattle, third qual, per head...	10 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross.....	10 to 12c
Sheep, first quality, per head.....	$4 to 5
Sheep, second quality, per head.....	3 to 3½
Sheep, third quality, per head.....	— to —
Milch cows, choice, per head.....	80 to 100
Milch cows, per head.....	50 to —
Texas cows, with calves.....	— to —
Yearlings, per head.....	8 to 12
Calves, per head.....	8 to 12

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows.....	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers...	8 50	9 50
Cotton Scrapers.....	6 00	6 50
Sweeps.....	6 00	6 50
Cultivators.....	10 00	11 00
Shovels.....	10 00	17 00
Spades.....	11 00	18 00
Axes.....	10 00	15 00
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky.....	23½	24½
East India.....	24	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb..	8	8½
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs.....	1 07½	...
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot....	5 50	...
Crackers.....	6 00	...
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M.....	8 00	16 00
English, Fire.....	85 00	100 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford.....	..	50
Tallow.....	..	..
Adamantine.....	15	21½
Star.....	15	21½
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb.....	38	55
Sweet and Spiced.....	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Northern.....	13 00	.. ..
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton.....	9 50	10 00
Western, ₱ barrel.....	.. ..	50
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb.....	14	16½
Havana.....	..	..
Java.....	..	..
St. Domingo.....	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough ₱ ton.....	.. ..	15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb.....	37	38
Sheathing.....	.. ..	.. ..
Copper Bolts.....	37	38
Yellow Metal.....	29	30
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb.....	23½	24
Tarred, American.....	.. ..	21
Russia.....	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl.....	4 25	4 75
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y.....	4	4½
St. Domingo.....	4½	4½
Fustic, Tampico.....	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₱ lb.....	1 75	1 85
Madder.....	22	24
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western.....	10	18
Feathers, ₱ lb.....	..	.. ..
Fish, Cod, ₱ box.....	1 65	.. ..
Herrings.....	70	.. ..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl.....	.. ..	27 00
No. 2.....	.. ..	21 00
No. 3.....	15 00	.. ..
Flaxseed, ₱ lb.....	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine.....	5 62½	5 85
Extra.....	6 00	11 50
Fine.....	4 50	5 00
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb.....	14	15
Figs, Drum.....	20	21
Dried Apples.....	..	..
Currants, Zante.....	12½	13
Almonds, soft shell.....	26	..
Raisins, M R. ₱ box.....	none	here
Layer.....	.. ..	3 60
Lem's Sicily ₱ box.....	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000.....	.. ..	.. ..
Sicily ₱ box.....	.. ..	.. ..
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10.....	3 25	.. ..
10 x 12.....	3 50	3 75
12 x 18.....	4 00	4 50
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western.....	2 00	2 20
Canada.....	2 20	2 50
Oats.....	73	..
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel....	1 00	1 07½
Beans, ₱ bbl.....	8 00	10 00
Hops, ₱ lb.....	8	12
Gunpowder, ₱ keg.....	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag.....	17½	..
Hay, Western, ₱ ton.....	27 00	30 00
Northern.....	.. ..	.. ..
Louisiana.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican.....	17	18
Wet salted, city slaughter.	8½	14
Kip Skins.....	.. ..	.. ..
Dry country.....	17	18
Pelts ₱ piece.....	.. ..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₱ ton.....	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₱ lb.....	5	6
English, ₱ lb.....	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb.....	6	8½
Sheet.....	6½	9
Boiler.....	8	10
Nail Rods.....	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties.....	6½	6½
Castings, American.....	6½	7
Lime, Western ₱ bbl.....	1 65	2 00
Shell Lime.....	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c.....	2 00	2 25
Cement.....	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana.....	40	70
Muscovado.....	..	..
Refinery, Rebolled.....	60	80
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country.....	2	3½
Black do.....	5	6
Select, water rotted.....	7	8
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb.....	4 75	5 00
Wrought, German.....	14	16
English.....	14	16
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar.....	.. ..	.. ..
Pitch.....	2 60	2 75
Rosin A No. 1.....	3 25	4 50
No. 2.....	2 00	2 25
No. 3.....	.. ..	.. ..
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon.....	39	40
Varnish, bright.....	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon.....	1 35	1 40
Coal Oil.....	33	35
in cases.....	43	47
Cotton Seed, Crude.....	70	75
Refined.....	95	1 00
Tanners' ₱ gallon.....	1 15	1 30
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton.....	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed.....	35 00	.. ..
Meal.....	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern.....	none	here
" Western.....	19 00	.. ..
" North half bbl.	.. ..	.. ..
Dried, ₱ lb.....	..	..
Tongues ₱ doz.....	..	..
Pork, Mess.....	34 50	35 00
Prime Mess.....	.. ..	.. ..
Hog, round, ₱ lb.....	.. ..	..
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb.....	17½	18
Do., canvassed.....	20	22
Sides.....	18½	18½
Shoulders.....	14½	15
Green Shoniders.....	..	15
Lard, Prime, in tierces....	19½	20½
in kegs.....	21	22
Fair, in tierces.....	..	..
Butter, Northern.....	28	38
Western.....	18	30
Cheese, American.....	10	18
Potatoes, ₱ bbl.....	.. ..	.. ..
Onions.....	.. ..	.. ..
Green Apples.....	.. ..	.. ..
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana.....	6	9½
India.....	..	..
Carolina.....	8½	10
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb.....	14	25
Crude.....	..	..
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 25	2 30
from store.....	2 35	2 40
coarse, cargo.....	.. ..	1 95
from warehouse...	2 15	2 20
from store.....	2 30	2 35
Turks Island, ₱ bushel....	50	60
Soap, ₱ lb, Western.....	7	7½
Northern.....	8	12
Southern.....	6	10½
Castile.....	18	20
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city.....	7½	15½
Havana, White.....	15	16½
Yellow.....	13½	14½
Brown.....	12½	13
Tobacco, In hhds, ₱ lb:
Baiers & Cutters.....	—	—
Choice and Selections....	15	19
Fine Leaf.....	12	15
Medium Leaf.....	9	11
Fair Leaf.....	10	12
Common Leaf.....	8	10
Good Refused.....	7	10
Common Refused.....	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb.....	—	—
Bailing.....	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb.....	32	40
Burry.....	13	17
Louisiana, Native.....	18½	21
Texas, [illegible] Merino.....	26	32

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DEMOPOLIS DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Demopolis district will be held at Demopolis, beginning on Thursday, August 12. Bishop Pierce is pledged to be present. All the official members of the church in the district are hereby earnestly invited to attend.

A. H. Mitchell, P. E.

GADSDEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Gadsden district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Lebanon, commencing July 23. The opening sermon will be preached on Friday, at eleven o'clock, by Rev. F. T. J. Brandon. Bishop McTyeire will be present. The official members of the district are urged to be prompt in attending.

T. G. Slaughter, P. E.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT MEETING.

The district conference of the Vicksburg district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Rocky Spring, from September 9 to 12. The official members are all earnestly solicited to attend, as matters of great importance to the interests of the church will be discussed. The following brethren are respectfully requested to act as chairmen of the committees to which they are assigned, and prepare their reports beforehand, viz:

1. On the best means for promoting the purity and extension of the church, Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D. 2. On education, Rev. W. E. M. Linfield. 3. On Sabbath schools, Major Thomas Reed. 4. On church finances, Hayward Foote. 5. On the necessity and best method of circulating our church literature, Rev. H. M. Booth. 6. On the administration of church discipline, Rev. D. A. J. Parker. 7. On ministerial education, Rev. F. M. Featherstone.

J. G. Jones, P. E.

MARIANNA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Marianna district meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Gordon, Alabama, August 26–29. The opening sermon will be preached by the Rev. William A. Sampey, on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M.

Preachers, both traveling and local, and Sunday school delegates will be prepared with their reports on the first day of the meeting, as per minutes, page 57, article 4. Members, on arriving at Gordon, will report to Rev. L. Patterson.

Wesley B. Dennis, P. E.

TUSCALOOSA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Tuscaloosa district, Mobile Conference, will be held in Marion, commencing August 5. Bishop Pierce will preside.

Jas. L. Cotten, P. E.

UNION SPRINGS DISTRICT MEETING

The district meeting for Union Springs district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Brundidge, Alabama, commencing on Wednesday, August 25. The opening sermon will be preached on Thursday, at eleven o'clock A. M., by Rev. S. F. Pilley.

J. W. Shores, P. E.

STARKVILLE DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for the Starkville district, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Vaiden, on the Central railroad, embracing the fifth Sunday in August, commencing on Thursday before, at eleven o'clock.

The official members of the district are invited to be at their post at that time. The good people of Vaiden will take care of all. Visiting brethren are invited to come and help us.

K. A. Jones, P. E.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

The district meeting for Talladega district, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Munford, commencing on Thursday night before the first Sunday in August. Bishop McTyeire will be present.

L. M. Wilson, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist., La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Waterproof.....	July 17, 18
Sicily Island.....	24, 25
Delhi and Floyd, at Delhi...	Aug. 7, 8
Carroll ct., at Oak Grove..	14, 15
Lynd Grove circuit.....	21, 22
Bastrop and Oak Ridge, at Bastrop.....	28, 29
Winsboro ct., at Winsboro..	Sept 11, 12
Lake Providence.....	25, 26
District conference meeting, at Bastrop.....	Aug. 28, 29

W. G. McGaughey, P. E.

Alexandria District, La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Evergreen and Big Cane ct..	June 26, 27
Alexandria station.....	July 3, 4
Contreville circuit.....	10, 11
Harrisonburg station.....	14
Columbia circuit.....	17, 18
Louisville circuit.....	21, 22
Atlanta circuit.....	24, 25
Rapides.....	31, Aug. 1
Anacoco circuit.....	7, 8

Fred. White, P. E.

Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Black Hawk ct., Black Hawk	July 3, 4
Richland ct., at Ebenezer...	17, 18
Lexington ct., at Eulogy...	24, 25
Mt. Olivet ct., at Dover.....	31, Aug. 1
Yazoo ct., at Dessonville...	Aug. 7, 8
Yazoo city.....	14, 15
Durant ct., at Wesley Chapel.	21, 22
Sunflower ct., at Greenwood.	Sept. 4, 5
Carrollton ct., at Eden.....	18, 19

W. P. Barton, P. E.

Wetumpka Dist., Montgomery Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wetumpka.....	June 12, 13
Prattville.....	19, 20
Autangaville and Ivy Creek, at Ivy Creek.....	26, 27
Lowndesboro, Hayneville and Union, at Union.....	July 3, 4
Pleasant Hill ct., at Elwood.	10, 11
Talinssee ct., at Oak Valley.	17, 18
Socopatoy ct., at Socopatoy.	24, 25
Carolina ct., at Rehoboth...	Aug. 7, 8
Autauga ct., at Pine Level..	14, 15

At the request of the district meeting I will preach on the Support of the Ministry, and solicit contributions for foreign missions at these quarterly meetings.

Wm. S. Turner, P. E.

Opelousae District, La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

New Iberia.....	July 10, 11
Franklin.....	17, 18
Calcasieu.....	24, 25
Bellevue.....	30, 31
Bayou Mallet.....	Aug. 7, 8
Vermilionville.....	14, 15
Abbeville.....	21, 22
Opelousas.....	28, 29
Pinqueminé Brulee.....	Sept. 4, 5
Bayou Bœuf.....	11, 12
Grand Cheniere.....	25, 26

J. D. Adams, P. E.

Woodville Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Woodville.....	June 19, 20
Jackson, at P. Grove.....	26, 27
Tunica, at Bayou Sara.....	July 4, 5
Wilkinson, at Sharon.....	17, 18
St. Helena, at Darlington...	24, 25
Amite, at Ebenezer.....	Aug. 8, 9
Meadville.....	15, 16
Buffalo.....	22, 23
Percy Creek.....	28, 29
Liberty.....	Sept. 4, 5

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Ouachita District, Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Ouachita.....	July 10, 11
Monroe.....	17, 18
Vernon, Vienna.....	24, 25
Farmerville.....	31, Aug. 1
Homer.....	Aug. 7, 8
Hayneville.....	14, 15
Minden.....	21, 22
Bossier.....	28, 29
Sparta.....	Sept. 4, 5
Mount Lebanon.....	11, 12

The Ouachita district meeting will be held at Hayneville, commencing on Wednesday, August 11. All official members of the district are earnestly desired to be present on Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, to hear the opening discourse and assist in organization.

Samuel Armstrong, P. E.

Meridian District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Meridian.....	July 17, 18
Pearce's Springs, at Bethel.	24, 25
Shubuta and Waynesboro, at Shubuta.....	31, Aug. 1
Clarke, at Salem.....	Aug. 7, 8
Gaston.....	14, 15
Butler.....	21, 22
Belmont, at Wesley Chapel.	28, 29
Livingston.....	Sept. 4, 5
Bladon Springs, at Kizer Hill	11, 12
Enterprise ct., at Jacob's Ch'l	18, 19

Joshua T. Heard, P. E.

Jackson Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Jackson station.....	July 3, 4
Terry, at Forest Hill.....	10, 11
Clinton, at Chapel Hill.....	17, 18
Canton station.....	24, 25
Camden, at Forest Grove...	31, Aug. 1
Sharon, at Thornton.....	Aug. 7, 8
Vernon and Livingston, at Vernon.....	14, 15
Charthage, at Conway.....	21, 22
Madisonville, at Pearl river..	Sept. 18, 19
District conference, Raymond.	Aug. 26

R. Abney, P. E.

MAGNOLIA GROVE,
OCEAN SPRINGS.

My place is beautiful, well shaded and breezy. Good spring water. Convenient bathing. Several comfortable Cottages.

TERMS.

Grown persons, per week, $12 50. Children and servants, half price. Reductions made to families.

Carriage always at the wharf on arrival of boats. Call and examine.

M. D. F. H. BROOKS.

References—Rev. J. B. Walker; J. M. Arthur, No. 16 Tchoupitoulas street. my29 3m

DR. C. McLANE'S
VERMIFUGE

Should be kept in every nursery. If you would have your children grow up to be healthy, strong and vigorous men and women, give them a few doses of

McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,

TO EXPEL THE WORMS

and give tone to the system. It is a vegetable compound, and perfectly harmless. You need not be afraid to give it to an infant.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

It can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. no7 1y

THE CHARTER OAK
COOKING STOVE.

From and after this date I shall keep a full stock of the celebrated

CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVES,

so universally approved by all housekeepers, and by special arrangement will be able to fill all orders as low as they can be had.

Orders for this celebrated Cooking Stove solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
92 Camp street, New Orleans,
manufacturer of Plain Tin and Japan Ware,
Dealer in Cooking and Heating Stoves of all kinds.
fe13 6m

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 64 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

W. G. COYLE & CO.,

COAL,.....COAL.....COAL.

OFFICE—138 GRAVIER STREET.

Yards—Corner of Magazine and Girod streets, and corner of Julia and Water streets.

Pittsburg, English Cannel and Anthracite Coal at low rates. oct17 6m

FEUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

je6 1y

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

ELEVENTH SESSION.—TERMS REDUCED.

The exercises of the school will be resumed October 1, 1868.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education, and at less expense than in any other school of high grade North or South.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito bar, etc., all marked distinctly with his name; also a satchel for dirty clothes.

SPECIAL CAUTIONS.

Parents and guardians are earnestly requested not to give their children or wards much spending money. It is unnecessary, and has a pernicious effect upon mind, morals and health.

A sufficient amount must be deposited for the purchase of books, etc. Their pocket-money should be limited by the discretion of the Principal.

It is urgently requested that students be prompt in their attendance. A few days' absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms—Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments—$150 in advance, balance on 1st March.

Tuition of day scholars, per month, $7. Payable monthly, in advance.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the school demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

jnly25 W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT OF 1869.

The next semi-annual Examination of this institution will commence on Friday, the 25th of June.

The sermon on Sunday, June 27th, before the Graduating Class, will be preached by the Rev. Samuel Armstrong, Presiding Elder of the Ouachita District.

The annual Address, on Wednesday, June 30th, Commencement Day, will be delivered by Hon. George Williamson, of Shreveport. Concerts on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, June 28th and 29th. The Visiting Committee of the Louisiana Conference will please be punctual in attendance.

CHARLES B. STUART,
my22 President.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

ABINGDON, VIRGINIA.

The Spring Term begins on the third Wednesday in February, 1869, and closes on the second Wednesday in July. Summer recess of two weeks. Winter vacation of two months. Capacity for one hundred boarders. Full faculty of instructors.

BILLS.

Board, ten months,	$150 00
Fuel,	16 00
Tuition, Collegiate Department,	60 00
Tuition, Preparatory Department,	40 00
Music,	50 00
French, German, Spanish, Italian, each,	20 00

Ornamentals at usual rates.

For particulars apply to

B. ARBOGAST,
President, or
DR. CUNNYNGHAM,
Prof. of Mental and Moral Phil.
ja9 2m

TEACHING.

WANTED.—ENGAGEMENTS TO Teach by the 1st of October next:

1. For a young lady qualified in the usual branches of a polite education, music, etc., and with five or six years' experience.

2. For another, fully qualified, but without experience in teaching. A comfortable home in some private family would be preferred.

Apply, if by letter, to

REV. JAMES MACLENNAN,
je12 1m Greenville, Mississippi.

"THE TIMES."

THE IMPROVED LARGE OVEN
COOKING STOVE,

with extended Fire Chamber and Feeder Top—one of the best Baking and most economical Stoves made.

The Flues are constructed so as to insure the most perfect draft. The heat of the Oven is so equal that when baking there is no need for removing anything until done.

"The Times"

is made of a superior quality of iron, very heavy, of neat design, and fine finish. The Top Plate is put together in sections, to permit of the greatest expansion without cracking.

We invite the attention of Housekeepers to the advantages of this Stove. Remember, we guarantee them to give entire satisfaction. Duplicate parts can be had at all times, at small cost, by which repairs can be made which will frequently save the price of a new Stove.

ZABLE & DALTON,
No. 115 Poydras street.

A large variety of MANTLE GRATES, House Furnishing Goods, Tin and Japanned Ware. Agents for the celebrated Osborn Bird and Animal Cages.

ZABLE & DALTON,
je19 1y No. 115 Poydras street.

PITKIN, PIERSON & CO.,

Successors to Robert Pitkin,

DEALERS IN

CLOTHING AND FURNISHING GOODS

FOR

MEN, YOUTHS AND BOYS,

Nos. 13 and 15 Camp street, New Orleans,

Opposite Ladies' Entrance, City Hotel.
de12 6m

J. M. ELKIN. F. STRINGER.

ELKIN & CO.,

168.....CANAL STREET.....168

Near Baroone, New Orleans,

IMPORTERS OF ALL VARIETIES OF

ENGLISH CARPETINGS, RUGS, ETC.

—ALSO—

Oil Cloths, Mattings,
Curtain Damasks,
Lace Curtains,
Window Shades, etc.,

And a complete assortment of

UPHOLSTERY GOODS.
oct31 1y

LAMPS! LAMPS! LAMPS!

The largest and best assortment of

COAL OIL LAMPS AND LANTERNS

IN THIS CITY, AT

THE LAMP STORE,

74.....Camp street.....74

New Orleans.

CHANDELIERS, HALL LAMPS, COOKING LAMPS,

Of various styles and sizes:

Wicks, Chimneys, Brushes, Trimmers, Cans, and everything appertaining to the Lamp business, at wholesale and retail.

Always on hand, Downer's Kerosene or Refined Coal Oil, guaranteed pure, non-explosive and non-inflamable.

HILL & VEAZIE,
no14 1y No 74 Camp street.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

D. J. WASSON,

BUILDER.....BUILDER.

Office—254 Carondelet street.

Carpenters' Works—188 and 190 Delord street.
oct17 1y

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, one hundred and twenty eight miles from New Orleans, on the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad.

This institution will reopen on the 23d of September, 1868.

The good discipline, the thoroughness of instruction, the healthiness of the location, the parental care over the pupils, the very low terms, all recommend the institution.

In the English Department $125 will pay all the expenses for five months, including tuition, board, fuel, lights, washing and books.

For catalogue address

H. F. JOHNSON,
sep5 2m President.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School. Course of study full. Faculty unsurpassed. The best instruction in Music, with ample arrangements for practice. Strict attention to Hygiene. Location very healthy.

Mississippi Conference ministers are not charged ordinary tuition. We would like to hear from them.

Transportation from Grand Gulf by railroad. Board, $16 per month. Circulars may be obtained from Mr. W. H. Dameron, 51 Union street, New Orleans, or address nov14 1m A. J. WRIGHT, President.

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido street, New Orleans.
oct3 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom-house Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sept

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XV.—NUMBER 26.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 740.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1869.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The condition of things political in Virginia, indeed throughout the South, sorely perplexes Radical politicians here. In the absence of their file leaders they know not what to say. With one breath they swear the late election is a Radical triumph; in the next they threaten an utter overthrow, by Congress, of all that has been done in Virginia. Upon the first point, witness the following from Forney's Chronicle of this morning:

"Accepting the fiat of the war as well as of the law, and finding it impossible to make head against the fifteenth amendment, they are republicanizing themselves so rapidly that before the meeting of Congress there will hardly be a State South in which the main ideas of the Republican creed will not be supported by the Democratic party."

And just upon the heel of this cry of a Radical victory comes an ominous hint that the President and Congress will kick their own triumph over. Says the same sheet:

"Great is President Grant, who may have to say something about receiving the new State into the Union. And great is the Radical Congress that must sit in final judgment!"

Notwithstanding the threats and blustering of Forney & Co., concerning the Virginia election, Republican members of Congress here say there can be no objection to the admission of the State, and no further legislation regarding it. The Republicans generally are disposed to follow the lead of the President, and "accept the situation." They console themselves with the fact—for it is a fact—that the election of Walker is not a Democratic victory. True, he could not have been elected but for Democratic votes. Neither could the Conservative Republicans have triumphed without the aid of the Democrats. Of the two evils the Democracy chose the least, and by coalition with the Walker party secured the election of a man who is certainly far less objectionable than Wells. The wholesale desertion of the negroes from the ultra Radical ranks was surprising to almost every one.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Cuban partisans have the following advices from Nuevitas and Puerto Principe to the 27th:

They say there have been no movements of decided character in either district. The Spaniards have been reinforced at Nuevitas, and thus enabled to retain possession of the railroad from that city to Puerto Principe, and give succor to the garrison of the latter city, which is threatened by Cubans under Gueads.

In the district of Puerto del Padre there have been several skirmishes. The health of the Cuban army is good, and the soldiers were well organized and in great anxiety to learn the views of the United States government and the position it will occupy in the contest.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—T. J. Kinsella has been reappointed treasury agent.

General Sheridan is here.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $829,000.

Sherman departs on Saturday for a two weeks' absence.

Rawlins departs to-morrow for a two weeks' absence.

Señor Lemus, Cuban envoy, has returned.

Dr. Mary Walker's application for office was finally rejected by Boutwell.

The trial of a negro woman for killing a white man is progressing before Judge Fisher and a jury half black.

The New York Tribune, discussing the Virginia elections, answering the question whether the Legislature should be seated without taking the iron clad, says: "Most certainly. This has been allowed in other States—why not in Virginia? Every one should take the oath of fidelity to the government and constitution, but not be required to swear that he never gave aid or comfort to the rebellion. It seems to us a strained construction of existing laws which requires this."

Customs receipts from 1st to 10th instant, $4,250,000.

The cabinet to-day ignored further consideration of the Mississippi election, and the first Tuesday in November may be considered fixed as the election day for Mississippi and Texas.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Cubans here have insurgent advices to 2d instant.

The cholera is reported to have broken out among the Cubans in the Eastern department and is very fatal.

The vomito is very malignant along the coast and low land country, telling fearfully on the Spanish soldiers.

Quesada holds his own before Puerto Principe, and expects to take the town and railroad to Nuevitas in a very short time.

The Cubans gained a very decided victory in the Santiago de Cuba district, causing great rejoicing among the Cubans.

General Jordan and his command have so far escaped pestilence. An important engagement is deemed inevitable, which will be of a decisive character.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Major Wofford visited Sherman to-day and received from him additional assurances of an impartial registration and election in Mississippi.

The military officers who conducted the registration in Virginia will be ordered to Mississippi for the same duty.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The steamship Henry Chauncey brings Aspinwall dates to July 2, and $27,000 in treasure. The Panama State says, after announcing that a loan of $2,000,000 has been negotiated in Paris for the completion of the Interoceanic Railroad in Honduras, that not a rail had been laid, nor a sod turned toward commencing, neither has the route been surveyed.

EUROPE.

LONDON, July 13.—The motion to postpone was withdrawn, and the disestablishment bill passed to its third reading. The clause permitting the bishops to retain seats in the House of Lords was erased, and provision made for furnished residences and glebes for Catholics and Presbyterians, when the bill passed, and the Lords adjourned, after an exciting session.

PARIS, July 13.—It is officially announced that the Senate will be convoked for August 2. The sessions of the Corps Legislatif will be immediately prorogued and the resignations of the ministers accepted, but they will hold till their successors are appointed.

BREST, July 13.—A dispatch from the Great Eastern announces the safe arrival off Miguelon, but owing to the dense fog they were unable to find the shore end of the cable. The deep sea cable was cut and buoyed to prevent accident, till the fog clears up.

VIENNA, July 13.—Bishop Lenz was convicted before a civil court of uttering doctrines subversive of good order and sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MEMPHIS, July 13.—The Chinese Labor Convention met this morning in the Opera House. A large number of planters and capitalists present. Ex-Governor Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee, was chosen permanent president. An oration was delivered by Hon. J. W. Clapp, of Memphis, who, in a lengthy and extensive speech, showed the great want of cheap labor and the peculiar fitness of the Chinese for our country.

On motion of Judge Sutton, of Louisiana, a committee was appointed on order of business, which reported recommending the appointment of committees to consider the most practical means of inducing labor from China or India, as best suited for our climate; also, on finance, transportation and immigration.

Captain W. R. Spears, of Mississippi, opposed the introduction of Chinese, believing that it would work to the prejudice of the negroes; but the report of the committee was adopted by a large majority, and the committee appointed.

It being announced that Koopmanschap would not arrive till to-morrow, the convention adjourned till ten A. M.

The following States are represented: Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, Louisiana, Missouri, Kentucky and California.

GALVESTON, July 13.—Specials from Columbus say the Colorado is higher than ever before known. The water rose forty-seven feet eight inches, but is now falling slowly. The whole valley is entirely under water, and the crops destroyed. The railroad between Alleyton and Columbus is washed away for several hundred yards and badly damaged between Alleyton and Eagle Lake. A number of persons have been drowned below Columbus; names not given. Alleyton was six feet under water. Dead bodies have been seen floating past there. The water cut off Dunovant's and other plantations at Eagle Lake, the occupants of which, it is supposed, have perished.

At Lagrange the water is falling slowly, but is still four feet deep on the public square. It is rumored there that Bastrop and Webberville are washed away and many lives lost. These towns are situated on lower lands than Lagrange.

The Brazos is very high and still rising.

GALVESTON, July 14.—Cars have been sent out from Harrisburg, Texas, with boats to rescue the sufferers by the flood in the Colorado valley, who took refuge in the tree tops in Eagle Lake bottom and have been there two days.

Positive information has been received that the water was two feet over the tops of telegraph poles on farms in Engle Lake bottom, that are cultivated every year.

There are various rumors from Bastrop, but as communication is entirely cut off none are to be credited.

It is impossible to arrive at the extent of loss to towns along the Colorado till the water falls. It has already fallen six feet.

The Brazos is still rising. It is reported that all of the rivers near San Antonio are out of their banks.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 14.—In the Democratic State Convention to-day Hancock's name was received with immense applause. A letter from the general, dated May 21, positively prohibiting the use of his name, was read, but several declared their determination to vote for him in spite of it.

First ballot, Asa Packer 58, General W. S. Hancock 22, George W. Cass 48, General William McCandless 5.

Second ballot, Packer 68, Cass 47, Hancock 19. Packer was declared the nominee.

MEMPHIS, July 14.—The Chinese Labor Convention met at ten o'clock this morning. Attendance large, composed of planters and land owners throughout the surrounding States.

The Transportation Committee reported that immigrants can be brought to Memphis, in lots of five hundred and over, from the Pacific States, by rail, for $50 each, and from Hong Kong to San Francisco at $80 to $100 each gold.

Koopmanschap arrived at noon and addressed the convention, stating that his house has imported thirty thousand Chinese into California. They will make five year contracts at $10 to $20 per month. He states that they are not at all times reliable unless security is exacted, and will take service with others when higher prices are offered.

LAY DELEGATION IN THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—The question of lay delegation in our church is virtually decided. The returns are not all in, but the last hope of our brethren who have taken the negative side—the rural districts—conclusively fails them. The ratio of the affirmative majority remains steady. The circuits and small stations are in accord on this question with the great centres of population, to which they are more or less contiguous. The elections held in the latter part of June were more generally favorable to lay delegation than those of the first two weeks of the month. Upward of seventy thousand votes have been recorded by us, and there will undoubtedly be fifty thousand more to report.

This acceptance of lay delegation by the people virtually makes it an accomplished fact in the church. As far as the General Conference can pledge the ministry, the ministry are pledged to make the concession upon the clear exhibition of the desire of the people for it. What remains to be done is the formal completion of the measures initiated in Chicago, May, 1868. We may, therefore, look forward to the admission of lay delegates into the Conference of 1872.—Methodist.

IT IS said that the Rev. William Morley Punshon being now settled in Canada, his friends have resolved to erect for him a commodious place of worship. A great block of buildings in the centre of Toronto has been purchased for the purpose of clearing a site large enough to afford space for a gigantic tabernacle, in which thousands may be accommodated.

THERE is a healthful hardiness about real dignity that never dreads contact and communion with others, however humble. It is only spurious pride that is morbid and sensitive, and shrinks from every touch. Irving.

SMITHSON AND STANTON.

The following statement is addressed to the editor of the New York World:

NEW YORK, June 28, 1869.

MY DEAR SIR: I observe in your excellent paper of yesterday's date a short paragraph, taken from the Sun newspaper of this city, advising the readers of said paper that I had brought suit against E. M. Stanton, late Secretary of War, for having arrested and imprisoned me during the war; and I also note your comments on said paragraph with pleasure, and beg to tender you my most sincere thanks.

One would naturally suppose, after reading the remarks or notice of the editor of the Sun, that he was evidently in favor of mob law.

I was arrested by Mr. Stanton, and, by his order, held in prison for six months, and then was tried (purely a mock trial) by a court (a mob) of his own selection; and said court (a mob) did not find me, after going through the forms of a trial, worthy of death; only adjudged me worthy of a few years' imprisonment, and Mr. Stanton selected the Albany penitentiary as the place of my confinement.

The infuriated mob before which I was tried did not have the courage or audacity to deal so harshly and unjustly with me as to decide that I should be confined in a penitentiary; but it was just up to the measure of Mr. Stanton's tyrannical, malicious and mendacious spirit to send me to such a place of confinement as he vainly supposed would degrade me most. There was no evidence whatever before the mock court to prove that I was a friend of the rebellion, or that I had been in unlawful correspondence with the leaders of the Confederate cause, as was charged. The judge advocate who conducted the prosecution admitted in his summing up that the weight of evidence before the mock court was in my favor; but it was competent for the court to set aside and disregard the evidence and judge for itself, from what had been developed on the trial, whether I was guilty of the charges brought against me or not. There was not a particle of evidence before the mock court that I was the author of the letters alleged to have been written by me, and on which I was arraigned for trial; but, on the contrary, there was ample and undisputed evidence to prove that I was not the author of the letters—that the letters were not in my handwriting. But the evidence to the effect that said letters were not in my handwriting amounted to nothing, of course, before such an unscrupulous court.

The very virtuous and law-abiding and law-loving editor of the Sun thinks that I ought to have been hung; or, in other words, that Mr. Stanton should have taken matters in his own hands, and, regardless of the findings or decision of his mock court, put me to death at once by hanging, thereby recommending and favoring a most atrocious murder. I am not at all surprised at such an expression or recommendation, coming as it does from a Radical. If the editor is at all disposed to allow me the least privilege or grant me the slightest favor, and will award to me the right of selecting my own hangman, I should endeavor to select a more considerate, virtuous and loyal officer than I conceive Stanton to be.

I was not arrested by Mr. Stanton for holding unlawful correspondence with the leaders of the rebellion, as alleged by the newspaper correspondents. I was arrested by his order for buying and selling Southern bank notes and Confederate money. I did not attempt to buy said money until I was assured by one of Stanton's officers that he had the consent and authority of Mr Stanton to sell said money, and that I would run no risk in making the purchase. I bought principally from the officers of the government. At the time of my arrest, or rather when I was arrested, I was confined in the Old Capital Prison, where I remained for six months, when I was summoned before a military commission on the charge of buying Confederate money and Southern bank notes, and for aiding and abetting blockade runners, etc. My lawyer at once called on Mr. Lincoln, and assured him that there was no law to justify them in trying me before a military commission, and urged him to put a stop to such a trial, and turn me over to the civil authorities for trial. Mr. Lincoln positively promised my lawyer that he would comply with his wishes, and that he would at once issue an order to have me turned over for trial before the civil court. Instead of doing so, he issued an order to dismiss the military commission and to organize a court martial to try me. On the next day following this order I was arraigned before a court martial for trial, to the great astonishment of my lawyer, and the charge on which I was to be tried was on the basis of certain letters said to have been caught in a certain private mail going down the Potomac river, and alleged to have been written by me. The letters alluded to were proven by three competent and in every way reliable witnesses not to be in my handwriting; but, after a trial of several weeks' investigation, I was found guilty by the mock court and sentenced to five years' imprisonment, leaving the place of my confinement to the immaculate Secretary Stanton. At the time of my arrest, I venture to say that there was not a more cautious, circumspect citizen residing in the city of Washington. I well knew the malice and ill will entertained and cherished by all the government officers about the War Office against all prominent men in the city holding views adverse to their own, and therefore desired to keep out of their clutches, and conducted myself accordingly. A more willful, wicked, unlawful and diabolical outrage was never committed upon a quiet and unoffending citizen than was committed upon me and my family, and yet the editor of the Sun thinks I was not sufficiently severely dealt with. I send you this hurriedly-written statement, Mr. Editor, not for publication, but for your own inspection and information.

With my best respects, I am, etc.,
W. T. SMITHSON.

How a Tribe of Indians Caught the Smallpox.

Early in the spring of 1837 the steamer Arsiniboine arrived at Fort Clark with several cases of smallpox on board. There an Indian stole a blanket belonging to a watchman on the boat, who was then at the point of death, and took it away to sow the seeds of death among his tribe, which caused his own death and the death of thousands of his nation. When it was known that he had taken it, a benevolent person on the boat went to one of the chiefs, told him the fatal consequences which would follow, and offered a new blanket and a reward besides, if he would have it returned; but suspicion, fear or shame prevented the man from giving it up, and the pestilence broke out and began to spread among the Mandans at first, to which nation the thief belonged. Most of the Indians were distant eighty miles at that time, killing buffaloes and preparing their winter food; and the whites sent an express begging them not to return to their village, and telling them what would be the fatal consequences. The Indians sent back word that their corn was suffering to be worked, and that they would return and face the danger, which they thought was fabulous. Word was again sent them that certain destruction would attend their return. But it was all in vain; come back they would, and come back they did, and the plague began in its most malignant form, their habits and improper food making them a ready prey, and a few hours sometimes terminating the loathsome disease by death. The Mandans were enraged because at first it was confined to them, and they supposed the whites had caused it, and saved themselves and the Ricarees from the pestilence; and they threatened the lives of all the former, supposing they had a medicine to prevent it, which they would not give them. But by and by the Ricarees and whites die also; the disease increasing in malignity hundreds died daily, and bodies thrown beneath the bluff created an intolerable stench which added to its fatality. Men shot each other when they found themselves attacked. One man killed his wife and children, and then loaded his gun, and placing the muzzle in his mouth, touched the trigger with his toe, and blew out his own brains. One young chief made his friends dig a grave for him, and putting on his war robes, he tottered out to it, singing his death song, and jumping in, cut his body nearly in two with his knife, and was buried there; and others committed suicide after they were attacked, rather than die of loathsome disease. The annals of pestilence do not furnish another such example of horrors, or where mortality was so great in proportion to the population. Of the once powerful tribe of Mandans only twenty-seven persons remained, and one hundred and fifty thousand persons perished, and the details are too horrible to relate. Added to this the few whites were alarmed lest the Indians should massacre them as the cause of the evil. One influential chief attempted to instigate the Indians to kill all the whites, but he was himself seized and died before his plans were matured; but in his last moments he confessed his wickedness, and expressed sorrow for it, and begged that his body might be laid before the gate of the fort until it was buried, with the superstitious belief that if this were done the white man would always think of him and forgive his meditated crime.—Journal of J. J. Audubon.

MAKE HASTE.

Have you never fled to Christ for refuge? Then, my friend, hear me; in God's name, hear me just a moment. I would not stand in your position for an hour for all the stars twice spelt in gold! What is your position? Your hour glass is emptying every day. I see on some of you death has put his cold hand, and frozen your hair to whiteness. Old and young, you are standing on a narrow neck of land, between two boundless seas, that neck of land narrowing every moment, and you are yet unpardoned. There is a city to be sacked, and you are in it—soldiers are at the gates; the command is given that every man in the city is to be slaughtered save he who can give the pass-word. 'Sleep on, sleep on; the attack is not to-day; sleep on, sleep on.' 'But it is to-morrow, sir.' 'Ay, sleep on, sleep on; it is not till to-morrow; sleep on, procrastinate, procrastinate.' 'Hark! I hear a rumbling at the gates; the battering-ram is at them; the gates are tottering.' 'Sleep on, sleep on; the soldiers are not at your doors; sleep on, ask for no mercy yet; sleep on, sleep on!' 'Ay, but I hear the shrill clarion sound; they are in the streets. Hark to the shrieks of men and women! They are slaughtering them; they fall, they fall, they fall!' 'Sleep on, they are not at your door.' 'But hark, they are at the gate; with heavy tramp I hear the soldiers marching up the stairs!' 'Nay, sleep on, sleep on; they are not yet in your room.' 'Why, they are there; they have burst open the door that parted you from them, and there they stand!' 'No, sleep on, sleep on; the sword is not yet at your throat; sleep on, sleep on!' It is at your throat; you start with horror. Sleep on, sleep on! 'Demon, why toldest thou me to slumber? It would have been wise in me to have escaped the city when first the gates were shaken. Why did I not ask for the pass-word before the troops came? Why, by all that is wise, why did I not rush into the streets, and cry the pass-word when the soldiers were there? Why stood I till the knife was at my throat? Ay, demon that thou art, be cursed; but I am cursed with thee forever!' You know the application: it is a parable you all can expound; you need not that I should say that death is after you, that justice may devour you, that Christ crucified is the only pass-word that can save you; and yet you have not learned it. With all of you death is nearing, nearing, nearing. I need not expound how Satan is the demon, how in hell you shall curse him and curse yourselves because you procrastinated—how, that seeing God was slow to anger you were slow to repentance—how, because He was great in power, and kept back His anger, therefore you kept back your steps from seeking Him; and here you are!

Spirit of God, bless these words to some souls that they may be saved! May some sinners be brought to the Saviour's feet, and cry for mercy! We ask it for Jesus' sake. Amen.—Christian at Work.

CARDINAL DE SALIS, who died in 1785, aged one hundred and ten years, said: "By being old when I was young, I find myself young now I am old. I led a sober and studious, but not a lazy or a sedentary life. My diet was sparing, though delicate; I rode or walked every day, except in rainy weather, when I exercised within doors for a couple of hours. So far I took care of the body; and, as to the mind, endeavored to preserve it in due temper by a scrupulous obedience to divine commands. By these means I have arrived at the age of a patriarch with less injury to my health and constitution than many experience at forty."

IN PLOWING or teaming on the road in hot weather always rest the horses on an eminence, where one minute will be worth two in a warm valley.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1869.

THE UNSEEN SHORE.

The mists of death hang low upon life's sea;
The unseen shore
Beyond the darkness rises silently
Forevermore;
The golden city flashes from the strand,
But mortal eye sees not the distant land.

Unnumbered prows are turned tow'rd that far shore;
But never yet
Returning voyager, with struggling oar
Or canvas set,
Hath brought us tidings from the land afar,
Whose gorgeous light is not of sun or star.

But there are voices in that unseen land,
Which we have heard,
Of loved ones standing with us hand in hand,
With smile and word
That kindled here our hearts with friendship's glow,
And breathed on us their music sweet and low.

And there are footsteps on the golden street,
That long ago
Made sacred rhythm, gliding soft and sweet
Or sad and slow,
Along the paths we trod by hearth and home,
But strangely ceased, and left us lone to roam.

And there are souls that thrill with love etern,
Who look on Him
For whom the stars in endless lustre burn;
Where seraphim
Delighted bask around the throne of light,
In ceaseless wonder at the Infinite.

* * * * * * *

Speed on my bark, life's stormy sea across;
The mists will rise,
And every pain, and tear, and earthly loss
In strange surprise
Shall vanish, when the unseen shore shall greet
Thine eye, and thou shalt touch the golden street.

LETTER FROM OPELOUSAS.

THE YOKE WE ARE UNDER.—CROP PROSPECTS OF ST. LANDRY.—OUR ELDER AND HIS DISTRICT.—THE CHURCH IN OPELOUSAS.—EXAMPLES OF ZEAL AND LIBERALITY.

MR. EDITOR: What with taxes, and black troops, and imported office-holders, there is no danger of us of St. Landry parish forgetting that we are under the yoke of Northern Radicalism—the fact is strongly kept before us. Yet we live and prosper, thank God. I have just been rusticating a week, and have had an opportunity of seeing and learning the condition of the growing crops throughout the parish. Corn is backward, and will scarcely average as good a yield as last year. Cotton is also backward, but very promising; doubtless if that fell destroyer, the caterpillar, is withheld by the Lord of the harvest from our fields this year, St. Landry parish will send an unusually large crop of cotton to market next winter. The sugar crop is doing well at present, but the yield this year will not average that of last year. Owing to the continuous wet weather we had during the first months of the year, much of the seed-cane rotted in the ground, and so there was a very imperfect "stand" in the spring. Nevertheless, the sugar planters will realize handsomely from the crop unless some unforeseen disaster should destroy present appearances. The price of lands favorably situated for sugar-making is on the rise here. Some large plantations of this character have recently found purchasers at higher rates than any paid since the war. Sugar is recognized as the crop for this region. Some sugar planters in this parish cleared $20,000 on the crop of last year, and one cleared as much as $30,000. These figures could scarcely be exceeded in ante-bellum days.

During my rustication I was the guest of Rev. J. D. Adams, presiding elder of this district, and only those who know the man can estimate the pleasure and profit I found in his society. A man of profounder biblical research and of more theological acumen is rarely to be met with. It would be worth a year of ordinary college life to any young preacher to spend a week with this unostentatious Christian philosopher at his quiet country home. Brother Adams is laboring this year as only one of his strong physical constitution can labor in this climate. Beside his regular district and station work, he manages to supply sundry country appointments on week days. He is indeed a tireless worker, as well as an assiduous thinker. He is planning for a model district meeting in the fall. His programme embraces specific work for every member, lay and clerical. It is to be held at Vermilionville, where Brother B. F. White is laboring with much energy and success this year. Brother Adams regards this district as rapidly recuperating from the direful effects of the war. There are now three substantial stations in the district, each improving financially and numerically. There are also two other stations that give promise of liberal things. In addition to these stations there are five circuits, in which, though the work is hard and but scanty support for the preachers, yet there is much to encourage the man of faith and hope.

In Opelousas we have had but few accessions so far this year—not one from the world. Yet we have reason to rejoice at the evidences which we have that the holy leaven of the Spirit is at work in many souls. In nearly all our households a family altar has been erected, and there is manifest an increasing relish for the knowledge of Christ. There are examples of zeal and liberality in our church here whose praise should be in all the churches.—One brother rides a distance of eight miles on Sunday mornings to fill his place as superintendent of the Sabbath school, hiring a coachman in his stead to drive his family to church; and of his gifts into the Lord's treasury there is no end. He regards himself as managing his plantation for the Lord, and gives accordingly.—Would that the church were full of such men. What an impetus they would give to the chariot wheels of the Gospel!

We have a sister who seems to take satisfaction in nothing else but laboring for the church. She teaches in our Sabbath school and is a leading spirit of our mission Sabbath school for colored children; she distributes hundreds of tracts in the year; she visits the sick and seeks out help for the needy, and never has any excuses when called on for any duty whatever in the church. Some time since, in our monthly meeting, we resolved to eschew the use of fairs, tableaus and the like for any church purpose, and organized our church membership into a Sabbath school society, each to pay one dime per month to provide an annual fund for the Sabbath school. Now you know, Mr. Editor, how many such projects fall to the ground for want of a suitable person willing to carry them out; but this good sister was no sooner asked than she at once cheerfully undertook the onerous duty of treasurer of the society, and right well does she succeed in gathering in the dimes.

Let me give you another case. A brother came to me a few days since, handing me a $10 bill, three of which were to be sent to the ADVOCATE, and the other seven to be retained as part of his church assessment. This is a brother who has to toil alone with plow and hoe from morning till night to make a living for his family. To give the above sum he had doubtless to deny himself many things which some of us regard as necessities. I told you before of the sister who denied herself coffee, butter and a new bonnet—much as she desired these things—that she and her husband might have the satisfaction of giving $20 to the preacher. Her liberality has suffered no abatement since.

I might thus go on through the whole list of members, and have something worthy of mention to say of almost every one of them; but space restrains my pen from the grateful labor. They are all had in remembrance by Him who rewardeth according to each man's deeds. Their works "come up for a memorial before God."

J. W.

OPELOUSAS, July 1, 1869.

TUSKEGEE FEMALE COLLEGE.

The annual examination of the Tuskegee Female College commenced on Monday, June 14, 1869. The committee appointed at the last session of the Montgomery Conference to visit this institution exceedingly regret that they did not arrive in time to witness the whole of the exercises. Arriving, however, during the second day, abundant opportunities were afforded us of witnessing the proficiency of the pupils, and of noting the excellent system of training pursued in the institution. After listening to exercises so numerous and so varied, it is difficult for us to single out each particular that met our hearty approval. The examination of the academic pupils in Town's Analysis of Words, and that of the sophomore class in Green's Analysis of English Sentences, were not merely samples of excellent and assiduous training on the part of the teachers, but gave evidence of the high utility of such studies in developing the minds of young ladies.

The examination of the senior class in advanced arithmetic was excellent. Instead of dealing with theoretical problems, the exercises were of a character eminently practical, involving those principles which find application in the daily business of the shop, the storehouse and the farm.

In the higher mathematics we heard highly creditable examinations in algebra and geometry. In the latter branch a notable feature of the exercises was the thoroughness and pertinency with which the underlying principles were developed, and the clearness with which the coherency and interdependence of geometrical truths were brought forward.

The department of natural science was represented in two important and interesting examinations, one in natural philosophy, the other in chemistry. In the former the philosophical principles were illustrated by a splendid apparatus, which the young ladies themselves handled, and whose construction and use they explained with an ease and promptness that evinced a thorough application of the truths of the science. The recitation in chemistry was rigidly and thoroughly conducted, the symbols of the various combinations were rapidly and precisely written upon the board, and the explanations were given in a style at once lucid and entertaining.

The exercises gave us ample opportunities of noticing the comprehensive, thorough and elegant literary culture which the college imparts. The academic class in Quackenbos' Composition and Rhetoric exhibited great thoroughness of training in the theoretical principles, while their carefully and very elegantly written exercises showed excellent drilling in the practical portions of the subject.

The junior class in logic wrote out the logical symbols for the various forms of categorical propositions, analyzed numerous false arguments, reducing them to their proper figures, and, by use of symbolical notations, explained the fallacies involved in them.

In the specialty of literary criticism the institution may certainly claim a degree of excellence, both peculiar and surprising. We heard classes examined upon the poetical works of Cowper, Thomson, Young, Milton and the historical dramas of Shakespeare. The examinations were accompanied by brief and pertinent essays, read by the young ladies, upon the genius, style and peculiar characteristics of each of these great masters. The oral exercises embraced questions relating to the lives and personal traits of the authors, a general survey of their writings, the qualities of style developed by each, with critical remarks upon select passages, inquiries into versification and cognate topics. In all that relates to the development of the purest and most elevated literary taste, and to the thorough critical appreciation of eminent writers, we think the institution excels any within our knowledge.

The languages were well represented in two examinations in Latin, and the same members in French.

We should not fail to notice with approbation the care bestowed upon the primary branches of education. We heard a novel and ingenious examination of very young pupils in what is known as the object lesson system of instruction. The vivacity and enthusiasm with which the children entered upon those animating exercises, the quickness and heartiness of their responses, attested the superiority of the method in quickening the perceptive powers, and in stimulating and rightly directing the inquiring thoughts of childhood.

The commencement sermon was preached in the college chapel, Sunday, June 20, by the Rev. James H. Nall, of Columbus, Georgia. Text, Phil. iv, 8. We were called away on the Sabbath and did not hear the sermon, but those who did testify that the speaker was fully at himself and sustained his usual reputation.

The commencement exercises were conducted in the chapel, June 22. Three young ladies were graduated, Miss Susie Dowdell, of Auburn, Alabama; Miss Annie Haven, of Greenville, Alabama; and Miss Lena McQueen, of Tuskegee, Alabama. Their essays were prepared with great care; the style chaste and elegant, and they were read with such distinctness and power as to enlist the attention of the vast crowd assembled on that interesting occasion. The young ladies certainly did themselves honor, and reflected great credit upon their faithful president.

Miss Sallie Dougherty and her music class will please accept our grateful acknowledgments for the frequent contributions of vocal and instrumental music which so enlivened the exercises.

President Price presented the diplomas to the graduating class, and delivered the baccalaureate address, which, in its learning, beauty and touching eloquence, was the crowning feature of the occasion, and the fitting close to the most interesting examination exercises we have ever attended.

We spent nearly a week in daily communication with the principal and teachers of the college, and can testify to their ability and adaptedness to the work. Right here, where the accomplished president is best known, he is most admired as a scholar and successful teacher. After a careful examination of the inner workings of the institution we do most heartily commend it to the patronage of the public. If you wish your daughters well trained give them to President Price of the Tuskegee Female College.

The next session begins September 15. The boarding department will then be reopened and conducted by Captain J. H. Pooser, late of Marianna, Florida. The president will reside in the college, and pledges himself to give great care to the health, morals and manners of young ladies placed under his care.

Dr. S. M. Bartlett, long and favorably known here and throughout the State as a successful music teacher, has been engaged to take charge of the music department. The board of instruction has been otherwise enlarged, and the president intends to make the college, in all respects, equal to any in the land. He is well qualified, and his heart is in the work.

The committee feel that they have made a fair and honest report, and in conclusion we bespeak for the institution the prayers and generous support of the Christian public, and especially do we commend it to our brethren of the Montgomery Conference. It is the only female college we have in our bounds. Let us rally to its support until its spacious halls are filled to overflowing with young ladies coming up from every part of our territory. We are sure to be amply compensated by the Christian example and influence of noble women trained under such favorable auspices as are here afforded.

May heaven smile upon this institution, and may the incoming year be the most prosperous it has ever enjoyed.

M. C. TURRENTINE,
W. H. WILD,
Visiting Committee.

The Pulpit as Viewed from a Pew.

NUMBER SIX.

AUTAUGAVILLE, ALA., May 4, 1869.

Has the pulpit manifested that interest in the cause of Sabbath school instruction which the church had a right to expect? From an observation, extending through a series of years, and furnished by association with this enterprise of the church as pupil and teacher, we are inclined to believe that many, too many, of our preachers address themselves to this important means of expansion with no higher consideration to subserve than the fulfillment of disciplinary requirement. Next to the calling of sinners to repentance comes the obligation to feed the flock of Christ, and it has been well said that the shepherd who cares not for the lambs will soon have no flock to feed. This part of the pastoral work has a special importance at this juncture in the history of the church. Camp meetings and protracted revival occasions appear to have lost much of their influence in furnishing contributions to the church, and no means have been instituted to supply the want. It is the conviction of many that these agencies for good have suffered decline by the introduction into the pulpit of a style of preaching too far removed from the sympathies of the people. It is certain that they succeeded best when the multitude was addressed in simple, earnest, extemporaneous language. We repeat, the pulpit has offered us nothing so well calculated to keep up a progressive work. Much may be still done by these means, and associated with them the Sabbath school presents itself to our attention as a powerful auxiliary in an aggressive movement. It is strange that we have not more fully comprehended this means of expansion, in full view of the success which has blessed some other denominations. Of late a widespread attention has been aroused, but we fear that we are attaching more importance to numbers than to the standard and character of instruction. In our rural districts particularly there is a decided want of efficiency. Many places have no schools, and those that have there is a sad deficiency in teachers and books. Our itinerant system forbids the constant care of the preacher, yet it is his prerogative to inaugurate the movement and stimulate the membership to diligence and activity. We recognize the apathy existing among the laity of the church. We regret it, and confess to the belief that children are generally in advance of both preacher and parent in espousing the cause when presented to them. The pulpit is the place we look for an illustration of the aggressive nature of Christianity, and to the ministry belong the responsibility of developing the whole influence of the church in favor of a movement so well calculated to enlarge her borders. One contribution to the church from a Sabbath school, properly taught, is worth more to its fold than many derived from the labors of some of our protracted meetings, who have but a faint idea of the duties and obligations of life. The one has a fixed, intelligent conception of Christian duty, and is qualified to go forward in its discharge, whether relating to its own welfare or to that of others, while the others, from a want of instruction, remain an unproductive element in the church, in no wise prepared to aid in its efforts to evangelize the world.

There is presented in the Sabbath school a wide field for the active employment of the entire laity of the church. They possess capabilities never developed, because not fully appreciated. The time is at hand when they should be called out from their indifference; their influence, their resources, their all should be brought into usefulness and activity in giving support and power to this form of religious instruction. It is said of an eminent French philosopher, when on a visit to America, that once he expressed the wish to visit a Sabbath school, and on entering one was surprised to find the Bible in the hands of nearly every scholar.—With astonishment he inquired: "Is this common?" and on being answered affirmatively, replied: "What a powerful influence must it exert upon the nation." This influence can only be realized except through the instrumentality of the church, and for its accomplishment the church should be ever ready to go to work. The ministry should lead off. It is their prerogative, it is their duty. Let them engage then in it from the highest sense of responsibility, let them enlist the laity and soon the nation will feel the effects of a cause the church has allowed to slumber too long.

A CHURCH STEWARD.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE, ALA.

CROSS PLAINS, ALA., July 5, 1869.

MR EDITOR: Your correspondent had the pleasure of attending the closing exercises of Centenary College, at Summerfield, Alabama, for the term ending June 30, 1869.

On Sabbath morning, the 27th, at eleven o'clock, the commencement sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Hamilton, D. D., of Mobile. His theme was The Depth of Christian Experience, and he handled it in a very masterly manner, greatly to the edification and entertainment of his large audience. The doctor looks feeble in health, but his mind is still strong and vigorous.

The examination, in both male and female departments, was very interesting and creditable, and gave fine proofs of thorough discipline and training. We have in the male department, as principal, Prof. J. Massey, a gentleman of fine scholastic attainments and, from his long experience, a most admirable instructor of young men and boys. Reports from his department show a large increase in numbers, and the closing exercises gave flattering proofs of the progress made by the students during the past session. We think we can safely recommend this school to parents who wish to prepare their sons for college, or for business life, as one in every way fully deserving their support.

In the female college we have Prof. W. J. Vaughn as principal. No finer recommendation would be needed for this school than to have witnessed its closing exercises. Under the principal's efficient management the school now occupies a high standpoint among the female colleges of the South. In his report the principal says he has nothing to complain of in regard to his assistants or pupils. It was gratifying to witness the thoroughness shown by the young ladies in all branches, and this, coupled with their fine manners and deportment, is proof of the harmonious system in operation there. This is a fine place for parents to send their daughters, where they can receive thorough instruction to prepare them for the duties of life and make them bright ornaments in society.

The Board of Trustees have made arrangements to have the large, commodious college put in good repair, with the view of accommodating a large number of students the next scholastic year. There is a foundation being laid for future action in the two schools that will tell well for the Board of Trustees and the principals of both departments.

I would not close without speaking particularly of the health of Summerfield, no sickness having occurred during the past session. For many years this place has maintained an enviable reputation for good health. This is quite an item with parents.

Mr. Editor, those schools merit the support of our connection, and particularly of the Montgomery Conference. It is to be hoped the friends of the schools will awake to their interest.

T. MOODY.

—ERRORS, to be dangerous, must have a great deal of truth mingled with them. It is only from this alliance that they can ever obtain an extensive circulation—from pure extravagance and genuine, unmingled falsehood, the world never has and never can sustain any mischief.—Sydney Smith.

The Christian Advocate.

SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1869.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: I have already written you eight letters, which have appeared in the ADVOCATE and been read with deep interest by very many, as I learn from my correspondents in every direction, and from several who have moved to California since my first letters appeared. In those several communications I have expressed myself plainly, carefully and conscientiously, after obtaining information from the very best sources.

In your issue of June 12 appears a letter from Brother J. F. Scurlock, a member of our Conference, stationed at Healdsburg, who, like myself, transferred last year, arriving some two months later than I. This communication represents California as so different from what I have described that I am compelled to reply to some of its points, being also strongly urged to do so by several gentlemen, old residents of the State. Brother Scurlock remained in San Francisco only a few days when he first landed. I have lived in it nine months. He has visited no part of the State except the counties on the north edge of the bay. I have been in those same counties, and besides have spent three months, with considerable travel and observation, in the heart of the San Joaquin valley; have seen Sacramento and the country between it and Stockton, and have made several trips into the country down the coast, and on the opposite shore of the bay, embracing the counties of San Francisco, San Matio, Santa Clara and Alamada. Moreover, here in San Francisco, the centre of everything on this coast, I can get most impartial and accurate information of any part of the State from persons who are not "speculators, travelers or men of superficial observation."

With none but the very kindest feelings for Brother Scurlock, but claiming that he, as well as myself, has had very "superficial observation" of this great country, I beg leave to rectify his last letter, and conclude my too much extended correspondence.

First, Brother Scurlock speaks truly, but with too much stress, about the troubles of land titles.—There has been a great deal of this trouble, and old cases are yet on hand; but at present there is no special difficulty about it. The United States patent is the final and perfect guarantee, and no man need buy land with imperfect title except with his eyes open. Nearly all the land is now held by perfect title, either as original government land or by Spanish grant, confirmed by United States patent.

Of the climate Brother Scurlock writes with accuracy, as it is in that little strip of the State where he lives. But how would it do to write a description of the climate of New York and apply it to Georgia? Or how would it do to describe the climate of Georgia and apply it to the valley of Virginia? The State of California fills a space in latitude equal to that from Boston to Charleston, or from Chicago to Vicksburg. The varieties of climate are much greater than in the Atlantic or Mississippi States, owing to the peculiar topography of the country.—This inland sea—the Bay of San Francisco—bordered by the several ranges of the coast mountains, with the two great river valleys, Sacramento and San Joaquin, and the tall Sierra Nevada beyond, make a variety of climate which is truly wonderful. When a correspondent states that the climate is very bad for colds, coughs, consumption, etc., he means about one-tenth of the State. Let those who have weak lungs settle themselves in some portion of that other nine-tenths, where these troubles do not exist. If a man is writing from some low localities in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys he will say that they have chills and fevers there. Then let those who wish to avoid these settle nearer the mountains. We must not speak of the climate, but the climates; for here is every possible variety. But my observation and information coincides with the universal testimony that, taken all in all, there are but two other places in this world to compare with California—even the "promised land" of Palestine and beautiful Italy.

Brother Scurlock was particularly unfortunate in everything he wrote about San Francisco. In his comparison between it and New Orleans he overestimates the population of New Orleans, and underestimates that of San Francisco by twenty thousand, according to a census taken last year. Then he counts off for the epidemics in New Orleans, and fails to consider the raging of smallpox in San Francisco during six months of last year. I know nothing about New Orleans or any other large city; but I am perfectly satisfied that San Francisco is a remarkably healthy place. It is built upon immense hills, swept by sea breezes, and the water is as pure and good as I ever drank from the best wells and springs in Alabama. A person need but notice the immense multitudes of healthy children that swarm in the streets, to be well convinced.

The case of earthquakes is also largely overstated. The earthquake of last October was the heaviest ever experienced here, and demolished about a dozen buildings and shook off the tops of many chimneys; but instead of "many" only four lives were lost—only four in a population of one hundred and fifty thousand. Verily more lives are lost in New York from sunstroke in a single week than are likely to be lost here by earthquake in a century. A few years ago St. Louis was visited by an earthquake; but what of that? It rolls on its increasing volume of hundreds of thousands of inhabitants. London has been visited by an earthquake; but who would not like a good title to some real estate in the centre of London? There is a great deal of needless fear about earthquakes.—They are needed sometimes for moral effect, and I am glad for the good Lord to send one to my station as oft as seemeth Him good. In this country we have almost no thunder storms, and never a tornado. God must speak to us. Let it be in the awful syllables of the earthquake.

No one will dispute that dust is a common disadvantage; but nature seems to have provided relief for every impediment in this country. I traveled extensively through the San Joaquin valley at the very dustiest season of the year, and never saw any "twenty"-inch dust. Twenty inches would be about up to the axletrees. But I suppose this is a typographical error. It should be one or two inches. But how does nature relieve the dust? Simply by the fact that the wind blows with a steady breeze always from one direction. If you are going sideways to or facing the wind, the dust is never at all bad; but going with the wind it is bad. The roads in California are all sixty feet wide, and as a general thing, except in midwinter, the best roads I ever saw. During the months of April, May, October, November and December traveling is delightful.

The grape culture is rapidly becoming a leading feature of California industry. Every part of the State, and every kind of soil—coast and interior, hill and valley—seem well adapted to it. Such a country is Palestine; such a country is Italy. This, like the "promised land," also flows with "milk and honey," as well as wine. Everywhere we have the finest honey I ever saw in great abundance. Upon a recent visit to Stockton I dined with a friend three miles out in the country on his milk ranch, where he has more than a hundred fine cows; and to-day a friend, engaged in the dairy business at Gilroy, made me a present of a whole cheese. We have received several munificent presents of honey. A farmer in the San Joaquin valley presented my Sunday school superintendent with a barrel of wine, and he divided with me. (I am a Good Templar.) So you see I testify that I have seen about the wine, milk and honey of California.

As to the moral effect of extensive wine growing, I look at it about this way: If all the whisky distillers, rum makers and beer brewers would stop their business, and wine were left as the only remaining drink by which men became drunkards, and I saw that it was so used or abused, then I would lift my voice against it. But so long as ale, beer, rum, gin and the many varieties of foul whisky and brandy are made in such immense quantities, I have no strength to waste nor godly fear to expend upon the wine question. This much I will affirm of California; there is, I think, much more liquor drank, but far less drunkenness here than in Alabama.

Small grain is now the chief, but far from being the only agricultural interest of this State. The extent and variety of productions is amazing. The day now is when California exports more grain than any State in the Union, and more wine than all the Union put together; and the day is not distant when sugar made from the beet will equal that of Louisiana; while silk, olive oil, dried fruits, figs and raisins, and a dozen other articles, will be made here in such quantities as to rival half the countries of the earth in their special and favorite productions. It is amusing to me, now that I know better, to receive letters from Alabama and Mississippi referring to this as a new country. Geologically, I suppose, the two localities are the same age; but in all candor I would assure my friends back at home that in every sense of improvement, development and resources, in commerce, agriculture, the arts and education, this State is at least fifty years older than Alabama. Now publish it or not, as you choose—believe it or not, if you choose—but I sign my name to the assertion. Nevertheless, California being as large as Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida put together, and now having a population much less than that of Alabama, you see at once that you can easily find new country here. One hundred miles from San Francisco will take you to the home of the bear and the wolf. Immense areas of public lands yet lie open to pre-emption and entry. Herds of horses and cattle graze upon ranches of thousands of acres, which should be producing wheat.

But enough. I am glad I am here. I am doing my best to get all my kinfolks to come. I have studied all the disadvantages well. Those who come to work will be amply rewarded with comfort and happiness. Those who come to idle and play will find nobody to play with them, and so will be dissatisfied.

JESSE WOOD.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

DEATH OF A VENERABLE LADY.

The following obituary will be read with interest. The subject of it died at the extraordinary age of one hundred and two years.

Departed this life, March 19, 1869, at the residence of her daughter, near Crystal Springs, Copiah county, Mississippi, Mrs. ELIZABETH HASSEL, daughter of Stephen and Rebecca Scriber, born in the city of New York, September 3, 1767.

Her parents moved to and settled on the Niagara in the time of the Revolutionary war, and her father being in the army, the Indians, who at that time were killing and destroying all families who were left at home, her mother and four children were taken prisoners by the Seneca tribe of Indians. After travelling some distance they were separated, and divided among different Indian families. Her mother seeing they were to be separated called her to her, and told her that she had taught her how to pray; that she must never lie down without saying her prayers; that God would take care of her; that they might perhaps meet again; but if not any more on earth, that she must be good, that thus they would surely meet in heaven. At the age of four years, to be parted from her mother and all the family, was a trying time; but what must have been the feelings of that mother to see her children taken from her by the hand of the cruel savages, to see them no more on earth. Their mother and two children were never heard of more.

Two years after that time her brother was exchanged. She remained three years with the Indians and one year in the British camps. Though young when parted from her mother, she strictly adhered to her counsel to never forget to pray. Often when praying the Indians would ask why she did so. She would reply that she wanted to meet her mother in heaven. After four years' separation from her father he heard of her, and went after her. Taking her to her grand parents in the city of New York, who there passed through many trying scenes. One night she was praying fervently to the Lord, beseeching Him to take care of her, and guide and lead her in every step she might take, that she might live an humble, faithful and Christian life, when the Lord appeared to her, as she thought, and told her He would take care of her. As the beautiful vision left she arose as if to follow Him. He turned and said, "Not yet," but that He would stand by her through all the trying scenes of life. Often afterward, and on her dying bed, has she said, "He has been faithful to His promise." She was one of the many young ladies who strewed flowers in the pathway of the great General Washington as he passed through the streets when he went to take his seat as the first President, often being in the company of him and his amiable wife.

After her marriage with Mr. Henry Siebe she moved to this State, settling in Jefferson county, where she became the mother of ten children. After the death of her first husband she moved to Hinds county, where she married the Rev. Jesse Hassel, and buried several of her children. Nine of her ten children have died in the full triumph of faith, and it was a solace to her, in her last days, to know that they had gone to heaven, and to know that she would meet them there. She had been deprived of her sight for the last twenty years of her life, and for five years confined to her room. The last three years she was obliged to keep her bed; but all that time her perfect trust in God never left her. She felt He had taken care of her through life, and she trusted Him to the end. The last few months were spent in great suffering, but she bore it with Christian fortitude, without a murmur or complaint, calmly waiting the coming of her Lord to take her to her heavenly home. A few evenings before her death she sang the hymn, "Come, ye sinners, poor and needy," every word in its place, and the tune perfect, though with a feeble, faltering voice. Afterward she repeated different hymns and portions of the sacred Scriptures. She seemed perfectly happy, waiting the call of her heavenly Father, frequently saying, "Thy will, not mine, be done, oh! Lord." She would often say she wanted to go to sleep and wake up in heaven.

The length of time she was a member of the Methodist Church is not known precisely, but was at least a member of it fifty or sixty years. Before leaving New York she was a member of the Episcopal Church. The bishop of that church told her, on leaving, if she could not find it convenient to be with that church, to unite with the Presbyterians or Methodists. She chose the latter, and remained a good and consistent member of that church up to the time of her death. As she wished to go to sleep and wake up in Jesus, so we feel assured she did. When her vision was again restored after death she beheld the face of her Lord and Redeemer, and gazed with delight on the city "whose streets are gold, and whose walls are jasper." There she beheld children, kindred and loved ones, her sorrows all ended, and she has entered into that perfect rest which alone remains for the people of God.

MARTHA E. OSTEIN,
Her only surviving child.

COPIAH COUNTY, Miss., July 4, 1869.

THE Emperor Napoleon has been compelled to cease smoking.

The Preaching for the Times.

The temptation to the minister 'to preach up the times,' in order to attract the attention of the crowd, is very great. In some parts of the country, at the present time, this custom prevails to an alarming extent; and all sorts of sensational sermons are indulged in to the manifest injury of the Gospel. Ethical disquisitions appended to a shred of Scripture; political dissertations adapted to a partisan view of affairs, made up from the daily papers; expositions of science wherein a mere theorist, or it may be tyro, makes the multitude stare at the vastness of his learning and research; metaphysical subtleties spun by some man with 'two Webster's dictionaries;' poetical quotations from popular authors, nicely strung together and harmoniously imbedded in smooth prose designed to make the people exclaim, 'How beautiful!' these are the substitutes for the grand and simple Gospel of Jesus, made on the idea that the people get tired of hearing the same thing too much—of having Jesus set forth before them so constantly. This is then the residuum of that tremendous agitation of the public mind, during the recent war, so largely stirred up by these preachers themselves, who, in the stead of a consuming zeal for the service and honor of their Master, exhibited themselves as simply the tools of debased and debasing radicalism, which fears not God neither regards man. They raised a storm which they could not control. They 'ran' the public, and now the public is 'running' them. In the desperate endeavor to retain their influence, they resort to these special topics and this sensational nonsense.

The Lord sent them to feed the soul, and in their folly they substitute chaff for the food that cometh from heaven. The King sent them to be His embassadors to make reconciliation, and they ally themselves with the King's enemies while they still wear the livery of heaven. Christ gave them a commission to preach the Gospel of life and peace, and they turn from it to the enticing words of man's wisdom. Ah, how sad and awful is an apostasy such as this, wherein men love the praise of man rather than the praise of God, and leave the ways of God's appointment for the dim and uncertain way lighted only by their own judgments! What a terrible mistake this in the calculation of means to ends, and how tremendous the responsibility assumed in this trifling with sacred things!

Now in view of this alarming phase of modern religion, largely induced by false pulpit ministrations, what is the duty of every true and devoted minister of Jesus Christ? The answer is plain, Preach the Gospel; determine to know nothing but Christ and Him crucified. Know as much as you can of public affairs, of science, of literature, of everything, but when you stand up to preach, know only the message of salvation to a lost world through "Him who was dead, but is alive again, and behold He liveth forevermore." Such is our advice to the preacher who inquires, "What is the preaching for the times?" We have sometimes wondered what might be the reflections of our modern pulpit sensationalist when arising from a perusal of Paul's Epistles to Timothy. What an abyss there is between Paul's method of dealing with the times and that of your modern preachers who "draw." These men seem to forget that the Gospel is designed for all time and all phases of the times. It is the glory, therefore, of the minister of Christ to stand firmly by the truth as it is in Jesus. The very highest compliment he can receive is to be known as a preacher of a simple Gospel, the power of God unto salvation. With the sword of the Spirit he can smite the hosts of the Lord's enemies, and in the conflict he will be brought off conqueror. What does it matter if men for a while run after vanity and leave truth? What does it matter if the cause of God seem for a while overwhelmed?

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again;
The eternal years of God are hers;
But error, wounded, writhes in pain
And dies amid her worshipers."

God has declared, "My word shall not return unto me void." He has ordained the means whereby His own glorious ends are to be attained; and His servants discharge their duty most effectually when they fall in with the ways of His appointment. To unfold to the hearts and minds of men the scheme of redemption as portrayed in the word; to make the word a "living word" to this generation; to speak for Jesus, to labor for Him, and to suffer with Him; this, by word and act, is the preaching which is exactly suited to the times. All else is labor in vain or worse than in vain.—Free Christian Commonwealth.

THE present Duke of Wellington is said to be one of the most dissipated men in England, prematurely old and broken down, without the ability of an ordinary workman.

CONFESS CHRIST.—Not to confess Christ is in itself a sin.

Some years ago I met somewhere the statement of the case of a daughter who was unwilling to confess that her mother was her mother, which is in point here. When the daughter was an infant the mother was obliged on a certain occasion to leave her children at home while she went to her neighbors for some necessary purpose. As, however, she returned, she saw, on approaching the house, that flames were bursting forth from the doors and windows. She hurried to the house and found from the by-standers that her infant child was yet within. She immediately started to enter, but the persons standing near prevented her, telling her that certain death would be the consequence. But she escaped from their hands and rushed into the door, and soon found her child on the bed where she had placed it. She wound it up in a covering and in a few moments the little one was safe, but the mother was most shockingly burned. For many months she vibrated between life and death, and at last her vital power overcame the effect of her injuries and she was restored, but an object terrible to look upon. Twenty years after this the infant, then a young woman, was asked one day by a stranger who that person was who was so terribly deformed? But the daughter was ashamed to confess that it was her mother. Was her unwillingness to confess nothing? Was it not a crime against her mother and her mother's love?

There is something similar to this in the manner in which men are disposed to treat Jesus Christ the Saviour of the world. Thousands who confess that He is the great benefactor of man, and that there is nothing that has so blessed the world as His religion, are unwilling to enroll themselves among His followers, and acknowledge Him as one whom they are bound to honor and adore. As the young woman to whom we have referred was unwilling to say "This is my mother," so they are unwilling to say of Him who hung upon the cross, and whose "visage was so marred more than any man," "This is my Redeemer and my King, and I will serve and adore Him forever"—Christian at Work.

THE ERROR.—Many persons err in waiting for ability or opportunity of doing great things—great good for themselves and others, wholly neglecting to improve the means and the opportunities they have. It was not so with the poor widow with the two mites, who for her deed of charity met with so high an approval from the All-seeing Judge. It was not so with the good Samaritan; there was one case of real distress—he would relieve that now, without waiting for others. It was not so with our Saviour at the well in Samaria—there was one hearer, and the opportunity should not be lost of preaching the Gospel. And that discourse—who can calculate the good that has resulted and will to all eternity result from it!

Many fall into a similar error in regard to getting good, receiving benefit from the ordinary means of grace, or improving the smaller measures of grace given them. They are waiting for great occasions, remarkable seasons, wonderful operations of the Spirit. Like Naaman, they are fixing in their own minds a plan for God to work by; and it must be in this way or that, or they will not deign to act—nay, they will be greatly displeased! There are few ways in which men grieve the Spirit more and do themselves so great a wrong. It is to those who improve what they have that more shall be given; but those who neglect to improve even the little that is afforded them, from them shall be taken away even that which they have. If men could cherish the gentle, constraining influences of the Spirit, more grace would be imparted. If they would improve the ordinary means of grace they would find them adequate to their full and eternal salvation. But this they will not do; they must wait for great things. In thus waiting the end comes and they perish forever.

A CLERGYMAN, being much pressed by a lady acquaintance to preach a sermon on the first Sunday after her marriage, compiled and chose the following passage in the Psalms as his text: "And there shall be an abundance of peace—while the moon endureth."

SIR RODERICK MURCHISON, president of the London Geographical Society, has adjudicated the Victoria medal to Mrs. Mary Somerville, who, though in her ninetieth year, is still occupied with scientific researches.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1869.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker, D.D.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying he Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER he letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise.

TRIP TO GREENSBORO AND BACK.

The Jackson cars were so crowded with passengers flying northward from a Southern summer that we spent the first night out from New Orleans in bolt upright position. The going North to get cool is one of the follies of fashion which poverty can alone cure. The hottest part of the Union on a fourth of July is the city of Washington.

The train from Vicksburg passes by Jackson at nine A. M., and moves quite leisurely all the way to Selma, distributing freight and affording passengers much opportunity for picking blackberries. Demopolis was reached on Friday, and the events of the year 1844 came vividly to mind. The old church, Dr. Boring, the altar, crowded with the best citizens of the town, the widening influence of that gracious outpouring—all seemed only the work of yesterday, and was of Him who is "the same yesterday, to-day and forever." Such a revival is exactly what the whole canebrake country now thirsts for. The church at Prairieville called up the forms of Jesse Pasham and J. D. Fisher, as at their first labors in that sacred spot. Now the corn rows are quite up to the door, and but one church member is left. The house is in good repair and waits for some turn in the tides of Zion. We were agreeably surprised at the very wide cultivation of the immense fields that stretch away on every side in this fertile country. Lands are quite reasonable in price, and of exhaustless strength. The use of the red clover and superphosphates will soon raise them to all their ancient vaine and repute. The great drawback is, the whole surface of the earth is pressed with thousands of freedmen; but they are behaving well and working admirably. Once delivered from the harpies that have been sent here to govern and gorge, this region will bring a tribute to Alabama of millions of gold.

Greensboro has greatly improved since we last saw it, which was while on a visit to the Alabama Conference, about 1850, when Bishop Paine was persuaded to transfer one of its youngest members, and most promising, to New Orleans. The choice of the site of the university was wise. Every year henceforth will witness an increase of small farmers in the rich surrounding lime lands; and a large population will at no distant day vindicate the selection. A railroad connecting it directly with the world of travel will enhance its other great advantages, and this is in a fair way to be built. Entertained by Prof. Casey in one of the most delightful homes in the State, we may be supposed to have seen everything through the color of the rose, for which the reader must make his own allowance.

On Sabbath there was an excellent congregation, made up of the gentry of the county, visitors from a distance, and members of the Mobile Conference. The church was the precise one of olden times, and revived to our mind the pastor we first saw there—the late Dr. Dorman. Twenty-five years had passed as a watch in the night; a few of the faces then seen from the pulpit were still familiar, but appeared to be those of the fathers of former friends. On Sabbath afternoon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated, the Rev. Dr Hamilton officiating; and at night a sermon was preached by the Rev. C. D. Oliver, of Tuscaloosa.

On Monday there was the sound of a general stir. Extensive preparations were evidently on foot, which culminated in the exhibition of the Belles Lettres Society in the college chapel at night. The orators were Messrs. G. W. Walker, on "Integrity;" D. S. Hearon, "Man lives for Another;" N. M. Jones, "Imagination;" J. M. Crews, "Our Troubles." The speech of Mr. Crews was the most natural, as well as the most earnest one of the evening. His theme was both full and inspiring.

On Tuesday morning the son of Rev. W. Spilman, of the Mobile Conference, addressed the alumni in a most admirable, able and entertaining speech.

On Tuesday night the Clariosophic Society held its celebration, and addresses were delivered by Messrs. J. B. Coleman, on the "Language of Silence;" J. A. Peterson, "Emigration;" and W. D. L. Record, "Be a Hero in the Strife." The style of speaking on both evenings was unusually free from excess in action or declamation. Evidently one accustomed to speak in public had had the speakers in training.

On Wednesday morning at half-past ten o'clock "precisely" the commencement exercises began with prayer. They were preceded by an address upon the "situation" by W. L. Nugent, Esq., of Mississippi. It was to have been delivered on Tuesday, before the literary societies. It was ornate, sensible and finely tempered, well suited to the times and the audience.

The young man who were about to receive the degree of Master of Arts then, in succession, addressed the audience: Christian Keener—"The End Better than the Beginning;" C. L. Nugent—"Atheism the Plea of Despair;" and E. F. Powell—"Marriage." A poem on "Dueling" was also read by Henry L. Oliver, who graduated in the schools of Latin, Greek and natural philosophy. Another diploma was given, but from the fact that there were no printed programmes distributed to the audience the name of the young gentleman has escaped us. Upon conferring the degrees Dr. Wadsworth, the chairman of the faculty, read a baccalaureate address, full of good sense and lofty sentiment, complimentary to the high moral character of the graduating class, and, to the minds of the audience, equally creditable to the paternal care and affectionate sympathy of the professor himself. It was, indeed, as a father to his sons, blending with the more impartial estimate of a teacher.

The curriculum of this university is the same as that of the University of Virginia. It is, therefore, by no ordinary diligence and power that a student secures its highest honors. The most considerable charm of the establishment to us is the absence of pretension which characterizes every professor and everything about it. It is delightful to get in an atmosphere where persons and things are honestly weighed and pass at their real worth. In an age of clap-trap and exaggeration we need such a resort, where the starch of conceit can be quietly taken out of youths and men, and they be gently but surely permitted to find the bearings of their own feebleness. No one ever gets a fair start until he attains to a just sense of his own ignorance. He may then aspire to run with kings.

After the distribution of diplomas the chairman announced that the faculty and trustees of the university had conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon the Rev. A. S. Andrews, of the Mobile Conference—an honor mutually creditable.

In the evening there was a grand reunion of fair ladies and gentlemen, preachers, professors and students in the college building; which held up, under the inspiration of the morning, far in the hours of the night. The feast was not all of wit; the ladies consummated the festival with a rich table of perishable good things. We shall long remember the pleasant hum, the moving graces and the enlivening flow of that congenial throng.

During the year the students have numbered about one hundred. The trustees are hopeful. The hopeful state of the agricultural interests of the South warrants the expectation of a large increase of students. To arouse the people to the importance of educating their sons, an agent is to be sent out who will bring the interests of the Southern University before the people of Alabama. The movement is a grand one and will be successful. Among the interesting features of this institution is the presence of several young men who are preparing to preach. This alone should secure it the hearty support of every Methodist. Where is the church of Alabama to find that proportion of educated and trained men which is as necessary to her pulpit as that class which God specially calls directly out of and for the people? This consideration alone is enough to move our church to a hearty support of their colleges and high schools. Alabama is in its resources—agricultural, mineral and commercial—second to no State in the Union. It should not be behind any in the excellence of its schools, or in the evangelical power of its churches.

Leaving Greensboro with a company of elastic, hopeful, homeward-bound students, we traveled on, dropping one after another at station and town, until, as one long on the road of life, we saw them all disappear, and returned to this ADVOCATE office a sadder man alone.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

LIST OF DISTINCTIONS FOR SESSION FROM OCTOBER, 1868, TO JULY, 1869.

J. B. Coleman, first term.—Declamation.

C. C. Ewing, second term.—Latin.

C. T. Gordon, second term.—Composition.

D. S. Hearon, first term.—Algebra, geometry, Latin, declamation. Second term.—Algebra, geometry, Latin, declamation.

F. C. Heard, first term.—Latin.

Richard Luge, first term.—Political economy.

N. M. Jones, first term.—Latin, Greek, political economy, declamation, composition. Second term.—Rhetoric, composition.

Christian Keener, first term.—Descriptive geometry, calculus, French, German, natural philosophy, composition. Second term.—Logic, calculus, philosophy of mathematics, French, German, natural philosophy, composition.

E. D. King, first term.—Latin. Second term.—Latin.

W. J. Knox, first term.—Declamation, composition. Second term.—Composition.

E. L. McGehee, second term.—Composition.

C. J. Nugent, first term.—Mental philosophy, declamation, composition, descriptive geometry, calculus, chemistry, German, natural philosophy. Second term.—Moral philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, composition, calculus, philosophy of mathematics, chemistry, German.

H. L. Oliver, first term.—Latin, Greek, German, natural philosophy, composition. Second term.—German, French, composition.

T. H. Osborn, first term.—Algebra. Second term.—Analytical geometry.

J. A. Peterson, first term.—Declamation.

E. F. Powell, first term.—Latin, Greek, mental philosophy, German, chemistry, natural philosophy. Second term.—Moral philosophy, Evidences of Christianity, declamation, chemistry, German.

T. Y. Ramsay, Jr., first term.—Declamation.

J. P. Robertson, second term.—French, Latin.

D. M. Rush, first term.—Algebra, geometry, political economy. Second term.—Algebra, geometry, composition.

G. W. Walker, second term.—Declamation.

P. H. Waller, first term.—Declamation. Second term.—Declamation.

W. M. Winn, first term.—Descriptive geometry, declamation. Second term.—Declamation.

ROMISH LOGIC.

The editor of the Catholic organ attempts a diversion in favor of the Priest Moynihan that will scarcely escape the observation of his readers, and certainly not of a New Orleans public. No amount of personal abuse heaped upon the editor of the ADVOCATE, or of any other paper, will in the slightest degree alleviate the impudent conduct of the priest in pushing his way into a Presbyterian Sabbath school in this city, in lecturing one little child, or in berating an unoffending lady. The public will judge him as they would a Presbyterian clergyman who should, upon any pretext, attempt to invade in a ruffianly way the school of another denomination. The well worn cry of "Know Nothing!" will answer no better purpose. It will be hard to set up a plea of "persecution" directly upon a performance which consists mainly in cuffing and pinching little children. The Romish Church in Italy, Spain and other Catholic countries tolerates neither the free worship of God by Protestants nor their burial within the limits of a parish; and in this land of Protestantism, not satisfied with the largest religious liberty which has been accorded all, it still attempts to restrict the right of every citizen to control the religious faith of his own child. It will take a good many columns of indiscriminate obloquy to relieve the condition in which the editor of the Star and the priest find themselves.

Even that other interesting query which he has seen fit to raise, as to how many Romish priests were "to the front" in our late conflict—all very curious for a more leisurely investigation—cannot be attended to just now; only we should prefer, when the question about "the front" is opened, to have the testimony of some one who had at least been out of the city during the war. We saw a good many dead Catholics on the battle fields of Mansfield, Pleasant Hill and Jenkins' Ferry, but, so far as we can remember, not one living priest. Still, no doubt, they were at work somewhere, and probably true enough to their own people; but there was no such excess of service as demands any special laudation. But if they are to be commended, we are ready to commend when the time comes. We are now after the fact that a Romish priest has, within the past month, coarsely intruded himself into the Sabbath school of another denomination with an avowed intent of disturbing its work, and that he has had the folly to attempt a vindication of the indecency by assailing Calvin, the Presbyterian and the ADVOCATE. This redoubtable course has been further supplemented in the Catholic organ by an attack upon "Know Nothings," "Spoon Butler," "the Irish Radical, Sheridan," "thuggery," "gimlet knives," "brass knuckles," "dark lanterns," "stated meetings," "moss-backs," "revivals," and the editor of the ADVOCATE by name.—A good deal of spleen that seems to discharge itself quite readily, but really to very little purpose in extenuation of the intruding priest.

Up to the present time we have watched with interest the effort of the editor of the Star to be courteous in this controversy. It has been hard work; but at length the facts become too strong, and the unnaturalness of his part too great to be longer sustained. It has fairly broken down and gone to raving. It strikes wildly. Now, speaking somewhat objectively, we would advise the editor to employ that "grand old race of the Moynihans" if he wishes to "fight it out on that line," for there is something refreshing, at least now, in the clear roll of the Father's Irish, judging from his recent performances. If abuse is the weapon, do let it be skillfully handled. Let us have some more about the "cold bowels of the virulent Calvin." Turn it over to Father Moynihan, and have something fit to send to Ireland by the next mail.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

MR. EDITOR: Waterproof circuit is looking up. The water has passed off, and the preacher can now get to his appointments in the country. Our congregations are increasing. They are very attentive and desirous to have protracted meetings.

Our presiding elder has been hindered from attending the quarterly meetings by high water, but hope in the future that he will be in attendance.

We have a fine Sabbath school in the town of Waterproof. We have the building of a church and Masonic hall in contemplation at Waterproof, and the repairing of those in the country. This we will do if the crops are good. The cotton crop perhaps was never better in this parish for the season and age of the cotton.

The circuit ought to have two preachers. It is very large, and difficult for one man to attend all the appointments. We hope to give you notice of a general revival soon. Brethren, pray for us.

W. D. STAYTON.

WHISTLER, ALA., July 12, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: Doubtless you, with your many Christian readers, will be glad to learn of the continued success of the cause of Zion in this place.

In the communication of last week I spoke of what the Lord had done for us, specially of the two weeks previous. Yesterday was truly a refreshing time; God's Holy Spirit seemed to rest on the congregation, and I never preached to more serious and attentive listeners. After the sermon I received sixteen persons into the church, making thirty-five since this visitation, and about the same number of conversions. Have had fifty-two accessions to the church since I took charge of this work, the last of December. Last night the altar and aisle were crowded with penitents, and the Lord was with us in great power. My bodily strength has been much taxed; never was more exhausted; trust God will permit me to labor until every sinner here will praise His holy name. Pray for us.

J. J. GRACE.

Collegiate Institute at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

BATON ROUGE, July 8, 1869.

MR. EDITOR: This institution closed its session with an exhibition on the evening of the 2d instant. The spacious school room was crowded to overflowing with spectators on the occasion, and from the manner in which the students acquitted themselves it was very evident that they had been making good use of their time, and that teachers had been performing their work faithfully. All passed off pleasantly, and the audience went away evidently delighted with the performances of the evening. This school, during the past session, numbered between forty and fifty scholars. It is to be hoped, in view of the present prospect of a good crop, that at its next session there will be double this number in attendance; and by way of contributing what little influence I may have toward such a result, allow me to say, through the ADVOCATE, to the public generally, and to Methodists in particular, if you would have your sons at an institution where the course of instruction is very thorough, the moral atmosphere healthful, and the management well nigh perfect, then send them to Prof. W. H. N. Magruder. His charges are moderate for the times, and such only as he can live at and keep up a good school.

I must not fail to mention that the music for the evening's entertainment was kindly supplied by Miss Carrie Young, assisted by the pupils from the Readville Seminary. It was excellent, and added materially to the pleasure of the occasion.

P. M. GOODWYN.

—TIME, patience and industry are the three grand masters of the world.

Endowment of Randolph Macon College.

It gives us special pleasure to chronicle the liberality of our people toward their college. Last Sunday the cause of Christian education in connection with this institution was presented in three of the churches in this city, and the result was a contribution of nearly $1,500 for its support and endowment. We cannot deny ourselves the gratification of recording that Clay street church, under the pastoral care of Rev. T. A. Ware, and with a heavy bill of current expenses to carry, contributed the sum of $505; and at night the cause was presented at Union station by Dr. Duncan, and the responses reached $700, with the prospect of increasing the amount to $1,000 or more. Dr. L. M. Lee, the able pastor, was present, and seconded the appeals of the president in behalf of the college.

At Trinity the cause was presented by Dr. Duncan at eleven A. M., in connection with the esteemed pastor, Rev. J. A. Proctor, who is fully alive to the interests of the college. The contributions at this church reached nearly $300, and but for the absence of a number of the members, would have been much larger. We are assured that the amount will be increased by several hundred dollars.

Next Sunday the cause will be presented in other churches of the city, and we hope to have the pleasure of recording largely increased contributions. The work has been commenced in earnest; let all our people take stock in the college. We wish to cheapen education, and give it to the largest number, by the liberal and speedy endowment of Randolph Macon. Come forward with anything you are able to give. Richmond Christian Advocate.

RIVERS.

Every fountain and river, from the inch-deep streamlet that crosses the village lane in trembling clearness, to the massy and silent march of the everlasting multitude of waters in the Amazon or Ganges, owe their play, and purity, and power to the ordained elevations of the earth. Gentle or steep, extended or abrupt, some determined slope of the earth's surface is of course necessary before any wave can so much as overtake one sedge in its pilgrimage; and how seldom do we enough consider, as we walk beside the margins of our pleasant brooks, how beautiful and wonderful is that ordinance, of which every blade of grass that waves in their clear waters is a perpetual sign: that the dew and rain fallen on the face of the earth shall find no resting place; shall find, on the contrary, fixed channels traced for them, from the ravines of the central crests, down which they roar in sudden ranks of foam, to the dark hollows beneath the banks of lowland pasture, round which they must circle slowly among the stems and beneath the leaves of the lilies; paths prepared for them by which, at some appointed rate of journey, they must evermore descend, sometimes slow and sometimes swift, but never pausing; the daily portion of the earth they have to glide over marked for them at each successive sunrise, the place which has known them, knowing them no more, and the gateways of guarding mountains opened for them in cleft and chasm, none letting them in their pilgrimage; and, from far off the great heart of the sea calling them to itself. Deep calleth unto deep. I know not which of the two is the more wonderful—that calm, graduated, invisible slope of the champagne land, which gives motion to the stream, or that passage cloven for it through the ranks of hills, which, necessary for the health of the land immediately around them, would yet, unless so supernaturally divided, have fatally intercepted the flow of the waters from far-off countries. When did the great spirit of the river first knock at those adamantine gates? When did the porter open to it, and cast away his keys forever, lapped in whirling sand? I am not satisfied—no one should be satisfied—with that vague answer, the river cut its way. Not so. The river found its way.—John Ruskin.

THE INFIDEL AND THE QUAKER.—A skeptical young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. Said the Quaker:

'Does thee believe in France?'

'Yes; for though I have not seen it, I have seen others who have; besides, there is plenty of proof that such a country does exist.'

'Then thee will not believe anything thee or others has not seen?'

'No; to be sure I won't.'

'Did thee ever see thy own brains?'

'No.'

'Ever see anybody that did?'

'No.'

'Does thee believe thee has any?'

WOULD we do our heavenly Father justice, we must look on Calvary as well as on Eden.

REMINISCENCES OF EDWARD EVERETT. The Boston Journal says: "Few persons who were in the habit of meeting Edward Everett in public ever saw him laugh. We have observed him on many occasions, and can remember but one instance in which the statuesque repose of that noble face of his was disturbed by the cachinatory process, and that was some years ago, at the laying of the corner stone of Minot's Ledge Lighthouse. The stone was laid, in a certain sense, by proxy; that is, the exercises were held upon and around it before it had left the shore, on account of the absence of standing room on the ledge, which was for a greater part of the time under water. After the Masonic formula was concluded, Mr Everett made a short but very eloquent address. Following him a distinguished Mason arose, and proceeded to read from manuscript a long and very dry oration. The day was blustering and cold, and the patience of the audience was exhausted long before he had finished. When it came to an end an excitable friend of the orator on the outer rim of the crowd threw up his hat and cried out in stentorian tones, 'Three cheers for Dr. ——, now—one—hurrah!' to which there was no response. 'Well, never mind,' he exclaimed, 'I'll go through alone,' and he did. There was a tremendous roar of laughter—in which Mr. Everett joined—that put everybody in good humor and made a not unfitting close of the ceremony.

"Speaking of Everett reminds us of his powerful verbal memory. He rarely indulged in extempore speaking, and scarcely ever presented himself before an audience without previous careful preparation. It is well known that all his great orations were written out and committed to memory. It was his custom to bring his manuscript with him, but never to refer to it.

"On the occasion of the delivery of his great oration, several years since, on the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, which occupied more than two hours, we stood near him and had an opportunity of observing the accuracy of his memory. He brought in his manuscript in a tight roll, tied with silk tape, and laid it upon the table beside him, and during the whole oration never once referred to it. Observing him very closely, for our curiosity had become excited, we noticed two or three instances of his stopping in mid-career to transpose a sentence which had been at first incorrectly rendered, and so perfectly well assured was he in his reliance upon this wonderful faculty, that he at no time during the delivery exhibited the least sign of embarrassment, and he carried the roll away with him in exactly the same condition in which he had brought it into the hall."

RABIES AND CANINE MADNESS.—The following symptoms show themselves three or four days before the decisive attack sets in: Sometimes dullness, at others watchfulness and restlessness. There is a change in the general actions of the animal, and the introduction of new ones, as picking up small pieces of sticks, paper, thread, etc, a disposition to lick any cold surface, or the dog may be seen to lick some portion of its body and to watch over that part with unusual attention. This last is a decisive sign; there is a disposition to hide in some dark corner from the eyes of man, also a little frothing at the mouth, a biting at unseen objects, the animal takes to roving, and will go forty or fifty miles at a time, biting at every object that comes in its way. These are some of the principal symptoms, and, when seen, the dog should be destroyed. Epileptic fits are often taken for rabies, and many valuable dogs are killed from error in the disease. The fits are sudden. The animal loses its senses, tumbles and rolls about, but they are only of short duration, and after they are over the animal regains unusual health. In rabies there are no fits, rolling or tumbling about, and no loss of senses. The oldest prophylactic known is suction and cold bathing. Mr. Yonatt recommends nitrate of silver, butter of antimony, smeared over the wound, muriatic acid diluted and applied with a camel hair pencil. Liquid bromine; apply to all parts of the wound; excision.

LOVING DARKNESS.—Dr. Connoly, in his work on Insanity, tells of a father whose reason was dethroned. He called his children around him, and bid them close the shutters, and light the gas, at noonday, while the sun was shining in its strength. He then vowed, since he was offended at the sun, that it should not shine in his home again. The man lived and died keeping his bath; and with the daylight shut out, the world rightly pronounced him insane.

Men, wise in their own esteem, hate the better, purer light of the truth! They love darkness rather than light, not because darkness itself is better than light, but they love the fruits of darkness. "They that hate me," says Christ, "love death"—(Prov. viii, 36)—not death for its own sake, but that which surely issues in death. He that loves the flowing cup loves the sting of an adder—(Prov. xxiii, 32)—not the sting for its own sake, but that which produces the adder's sting. Thus men unrenewed, love darkness, not for its sake, but "madness being in their hearts"—(Ecc. ix, 3)—they love the fruits of darkness rather than light. In eternity all the universe of God will pronounce these insane! — Van Doren

UNDER the teaching of Satan men invert God's order, for God has attached a sense of shame to sin, and given confidence the confession of sin; but the devil attaches to sin confidence, and unto confession shame.

MONTGOMERY DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

The second annual Sunday School Institute for Montgomery district, Montgomery Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, will be held at Loachapoka, Lee county, Alabama, beginning July 29 and ending August 1, 1869.

Friends of the Sunday school are all respectfully invited. Ample accommodations will be provided and a warm welcome extended. E. D. PITTS, Chairman of Committee.

PROGRAMME.

Thursday night, 8 o'clock.—Sermon by Rev. John Mathews.

Friday morning, 8.30 to 8.50.—Devotional exercises. 8.50 to 9.—Organization. 9 to 10.—"Our Difficulties, and how to Meet Them," Rev. William Shapard. 10 to 11.—"Proper Training of Teachers," Prof. O. D. Smith. 11 to 11.20.—Review by conductor. 11.20 to 11.30.—Question box. Benediction.

Afternoon, 3 to 3.20.—Devotional exercises. 3.20 to 4.20.—"Preparation of the Lesson," Rev. S. R. Cox, D. D. 4.20 to 4.40.—Review by conductor. 4.40 to 5.—Answer and question box. Benediction.

Evening, 8.—Entertainment by Loachapoka Sunday school.

Saturday morning, 8.30 to 8.50.—Devotional exercises. 8.50 to 9.50.—"Art of Interesting Children," Rev. E. D. Pitts. 9.50 to 10.50.—"Sunday School Prayer Meetings, Utility and Mode of Conducting them," Rev. B. B. Ross. 10.50 to 11.20.—Blackboard exercise. 11.20 to 11.30.—Answer and question box. Benediction.

Afternoon, 3 to 3.20.—Devotional exercises. 3.20 to 4.—"Relation of Sunday Schools to the Moral and Benevolent Enterprises of the Church," Rev. E. B. Norton. 4 to 4.40.—"Early Conversion of Children;" "Our motto: Every Child for Jesus," H. M. Crowder. 4.40 to 5.—Review by conductor. 5 to 5.20.—Answer box and miscellaneous exercises. Benediction.

Sunday, 10.30 A. M.—Sermon by Rev. L. Pierce, D. D. 3.30 P. M.—Sermon by Rev. T. J. Rutledge.

MARRIED.

On the 10th instant, at the residence of the bride's mother, in Jefferson City, Louisiana, by Rev. James D. Parker, Mr. CHARLES H. DISQUE to Miss EUPHENIA D. MOANIS. No cards.

On the 13th instant, in Gretna, Louisiana, by Rev. James D. Parker, Mr. MICHAEL MCGIVEN to Mrs. ISABELLA MCLIN.

Frankfort and Louisville papers please copy.

OBITUARIES.

THEO, youngest daughter of Henry T. and Catharine Goodloe, of this place, died on Monday night, after a few days' illness, aged four years.

She was a sweet, winsome child—the very life of the household. Young as she was, she was a regular attendant at Sabbath school and a contributor to our juvenile missionary treasury. She delighted to earn the money herself, and then give it to the Lord. May her little mites be abundantly blessed, and greatly add to her rejoicing in eternity. Can we not as truly say of her as of any whose abilities and opportunities were vastly greater, "She hath done what she could?" The dear child is now with the angels, forever removed from the sorrows and trials and temptations of this "vale of tears."

"When the archangel's trump shall blow,
And souls to bodies join,
Millions shall wish their lives below
Had been as short as thine."

J. W.

OPELOUSAS, July 7, 1869.

Died, at the residence of Mr. E. J. McGehee, West Feliciana, Louisiana, on the 2d of July, STEPHEN WINDHAM. He was born in South Carolina in the year 1792, and was in his seventy-eighth year when he died.

He was a steady and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for more than thirty five years.

He served as a volunteer in the war of 1814-15, and was with General Jackson at the defense of New Orleans.

In the late convulsive struggle between the States he was completely broken up. The property which he had accumulated by long years of industry and perseverance was suddenly swept away, and he was left destitute in his old age, and dependent upon friends for support.

He was a man of upright principles and unwavering integrity. He was naturally of a retiring disposition, and held a very moderate opinion of his own worth; but the estimable traits of his character were known and appreciated by his intimate friends. He had a warm heart, and a "hand open as day to melting charity."—The widow, the fatherless and the destitute found in him, while he had the means to help, an ever ready friend. Of late years life had lost all charm for him, and for weeks before his death his daily prayer was, "Lord Jesus, come quickly."

He placed all his hope of salvation upon the atonement of his Saviour, and now we trust he has entered the everlasting portals and received the welcome plaudit of "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

RUFUS K. GANN, son of Rev. J. M. Gann, of the Mobile Conference, was born in Marion county, Alabama, July 18, 1849, and died of typhoid fever at DeKalb, Mississippi, April 19, 1869.

"They that seek me early shall find me" was happily verified in the experience of Rufus. At a camp meeting, when about eight years of ago, he gave his young heart to God, and became a member of the church of his father. His early piety and consistent life afforded great comfort to his parents. But their joys were somewhat marred within the last year or two. Kind, clever, but irreligious association caused him to neglect his religious duties, and omission led to transgression. But when godly admonition was given he penitently confessed his faults to God and the church, and promised to reform, which promise we have good reason to believe he kept to the letter. For two months previous to his last sickness he avoided light and gay company. Doubtless God was giving him large measures of His Holy Spirit to aid him in making that preparation which He saw he would so soon need to carry him safely through the ordeal of death, and introduce him safely into his Father's house above.

On the Sabbath before he was taken sick he came to the altar to receive the prayers of the church. The next Sabbath he attended Sabbath school, was elected librarian, went to his home, took his bed, and lingered in patient suffering until death placed his seal upon him.

He was asked: "Did God bless you when last at the altar?" "No." "Has He since?" "Not to my satisfaction." "Are you still seeking?" "All the time." Those who were intimate and knew Rufus well will comprehend that his expressions meant all and more than his words indicate. Later in his sickness he was asked by a brother: "Do you love the Lord?" "Yes." "Do you believe in Jesus as your Saviour?" "Yes." "Are you willing to die?" "Yes, sir."

When the last struggle came kind Christian friends and the weeping family kneeled together around his bed, and his released and happy spirit ascended with their prayers to heaven. The poor itinerant, like Abraham, had not where to lay the precious dust of his dead. The thought of having to put him off to one side, to be forgotten and neglected, made his heart sad. But his sadness was changed to gratitude when the enclosure consecrated by sympathizing friends to their own loved dead was opened; and his body now rests near the sainted wife of Brother Terrell Rush, his two sons, and the sweet little babe of Captain Rush.

"There sweet he their rest
Till God bid them arise,
To hail Him in triumph
Ascending the skies."

S. H. C.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

READVILLE SEMINARY.

This is a private institution with its number of pupils limited, and is authorized by the Legislature of Louisiana to confer Degrees, Diplomas and Literary honors. It was in successful operation from 1857 until interrupted by the events of the war in 1862, and reopened January, 1867.

Teachers of a high grade of talent and merit are in charge of the different departments—English, Ancient and Modern Languages, Music, Painting, etc.

Pupils charged from the time of entrance to the close of the session. All pupils received with the understanding that they are to remain and attend the examination at the close of the session in which they enter, and no deduction made on the bills for absence, except in cases of protracted illness, when the loss may be divided between the institution and the patron.

In her outfit each pupil should be provided with toilet boxes towels, napkins, sheets, pillow cases and blankets or comforts. She should also bring knife, fork, spoon, cup and napkin ring.

All articles and clothing brought to the Seminary should be distinctly marked, lists of which should be permanently placed on some part of the trunk convenient for reference. The scholastic year commences OCTOBER 1 and ends in July.

EXPENSE.

Board and tuition per year..... $300 00
The Modern Languages—a small extra charge.
Music, per year..... 75 00

Payments due a half session in advance.

Monthly reports of the studies, health and general deportment of the pupils are sent to the parents or guardians at a distance.

The main Seminary building, recently destroyed by fire, will be replaced by one of ample accommodations, now in process of construction; which will be ready for the reception of pupils at the opening of the next session.

For other information desirable in reference to the school apply to

MRS. MARY W. READ,
jy17 3t Principal, Baton Rouge, La.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLlege, Brookhaven, Mississippi, will reopen

SEPTEMBER 22, 1869.

Provision will be made for all who apply for admission.

To send your daughter there will cost you $260 for the term of ten months, or forty weeks. This amount will pay for board, fuel, lights, washing, tuition in English, English text books, slates, pencils and all the stationery used in the school room.

All the branches are taught.

Our Music Teachers are believed to be unexcelled.

Music and the Languages are extra.

Send for circular.

H. F. JOHNSON,
jy17 3m President.

M. A. FOUTE,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

16.....Exchange Place..... 16

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

jy17 6m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, VIRGINIA.

The Fall Session of this institution begins on the 19TH OF AUGUST, 1869.

We have never been better prepared to furnish the facilities for a thorough Collegiate training. Our Board of Instruction is filled with men of large experience as College officers and of acknowledged ability as professors. Our buildings—now undergoing repairs—and boarding arrangements afford pleasant homes for students.

One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars, payable in advance, will meet the expenses for tuition, board, room-rent, fuel, contingent fee and washing for five months.

A catalogue, or special information on any points, may be obtained by addressing

E. E. WILEY, President.
jy10 3m Emory Post Office, Va.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

CIRCULAR TO ADVERTISERS,

SENT FREE TO ANY ADDRESS,

CONTAINING

A list of Seven Hundred and Fifty choice Advertising mediums, subdivided into more than fifty small lists, with Price Curds showing the cost of any advertisement from one line to one column.

A list of the leading Daily Papers in all the large towns and cities of the United States and Canada.

A list of Two Hundred leading Weekly and Monthly publications, with estimates showing the cost of an advertisement of from five to twenty-five lines, from one week to two months.

A list of prominent Advertisers who have patronized this Advertising Agency, and letters showing the opinions of such men concerning the advantages it offers.

Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
jy10 4ta 40 Park Row, New York.

$20 A DAY TO MALE AND Female Agents to introduce the new eye $20 Shuttle Sewing Machines. Stitch alike on both sides, and is the only Licensed Shuttle Machine in the market sold for less than $40. All others are infringements, and the seller and user are liable to prosecution and imprisonment. We furnish full outfit free. Address

W. A. HENDERSON & CO.,
jy10 4ta Cleveland, Ohio.

TEN DOLLARS PER DAY GUARanteed—Agents to sell the Home Shuttle Sewing Machine. It makes the Lock Stitch, alike on both sides, has the under-feed, and is equal in every respect to any Sewing Machine ever invented. Price, $25. Warranted for five years. Send for circular. Address JOHNSON, CLARK & CO., Boston, Mass., Pittsburg, Pa., or St. Louis, Mo. jy10 4ta

WANTED.—AGENTS TO SELL the American Knitting Machine. Price, $25. The simplest, cheapest and best Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit twenty thousand stitches per minute. Liberal inducements to Agents. Address

AMERICAN KNITTING MACHINE CO.,
jy10 4ta Boston, Mass., or St. Louis, Mo.

MUSKET SHOT GUNS, WARranted to shoot close and kill sixty yards. Price, $2 50.

Wanted.—Army Guns and Revolvers. Send stamp for price list of Rifles, Shot Guns, Revolvers, to

JOHNSTON'S GUN WORKS,
jy10 4tR Pittsburg, Pa.

VINEGAR.—HOW MADE FROM Cider, Wine, Molasses or Sorghum in ten hours, without using drugs. For terms, circulars, etc., address F. I. SAGE,
jy10 4tR Vinegar Maker, Cromwell, Ct.

$3,500 PER YEAR TO SELL "Wonder of the World."

J. C. TILTON,
jy10 4in Pittsburg, Pa.

YOU CAN MAKE LARGE PAY with our Stencil Dies. Samples free.

S. M. SPENCER & CO.,
jy10 tin Brattleboro, Vermont.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

A RECORD OF THE WATCHES produced at the Waltham Manufactory may be not improperly prefaced with a brief mention of the considerations which induce us to press them upon the attention of intelligent watch buyers.

Fifteen years' successful experience justifies us in claiming for the Waltham Watches peculiarities of excellence which place them above all foreign rivalry. The system which governs their construction is their most obvious source of merit. The substitution of machinery for hand labor has been followed not only by greater simplicity but by a precision in detail, and accuracy and uniformity in their time-keeping qualities, which by the old methods of manufacture are unattainable.

The application of machinery to watch-making has, in fact, wrought a revolution in the main features of the business. In connection with enlarged power of production, it has enabled us to secure the smoothness and certainty of movement which proceed from the perfect adaptation of every piece to its place. Instead of a feeble, sluggish, variable action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion. The several grades of watches have more than a general resemblance each to its pattern; they are perfect in their uniformity, and may be bought and sold with entire confidence as to the qualities we assign to them.

These general claims to superiority are no longer contested. An English watchmaker, in a recent lecture before the Horological Institute of London, describing the result of two months' close observation at the various manufactories in the United States, remarks in reference to Waltham: "On leaving the factory, I felt that the manufacture of watches on the old plan was gone." Other foreign makers, some of them eminent, have publicly borne the same testimony. They admit that the results aimed at in Europe by slow and costly processes are here realized with greater certainty, with an almost absolute uniformity, and at a cost which more than compensates for the difference between manual labor in the Old World and the New.

But we assert for the Waltham Watches more than a general superiority. Their advantages, in respect of quality and price, over English and Swiss watches, are not more marked than are their advantages over the products of other American manufactories. These are positive in their character, and are the natural consequences of the precedence we acquired in the trade, and the proportions to which our manufactory has attained. No industrial law is better established than that which cheapens the cost of an article in proportion to the magnitude of its production. The extent of our establishment—the combination of skilled labor on an extensive scale, with machinery perfect and ample—enables us to offer watches at lower rates than those of any other manufacturer. The aggregate of profit is the end kept in view—not the profit on any single watch. And, acting on this principle, with reduced cost of production and an ever-widening demand, our watches are offered at prices considerably below the watches of other American makers, comparing quality with quality. Our annual manufacture is double that of all other makers in this country combined, and much larger than the entire manufacture of England.

The conditions which make this cheapness possible are also favorable to the excellence of our work. Our artisans long ago ceased to be novices. Time and effort, under a superintendence which combines the subtleties of science with the strength of practical skill, have produced a body of artisans whose efficiency is for the time pre-eminent. We have the best workers in every department that are available—workers whose expertness and experience would be alone sufficient to secure for Waltham its high position. Among other tributary causes may be stated the readiness with which each succeeding invention and improvement has been tested, and, if approved, adopted. We are always ready to examine whatever experience, or art, or skill may suggest, but we adopt nothing until experiments have demonstrated its excellence. In pursuance of this rule, we have brought to our aid all the mechanical improvements and valuable inventions of the last fifteen years, whether home or foreign in their origin. We have thus acquired the exclusive possession of the best and most valuable improvements now known in connection with watch-making, and secured for the Waltham factory a force and completeness not shared by any similar establishments in the world.

These constant efforts to perfect in all ways, and by all means, both the machinery of the factory and the construction of our watches, have placed within our means the production of a greater variety in grade and finish than other American makers have attempted. In the manufacture of very fine watches we have no competitor in the United States and only very few in Europe.

The various styles of these watches have undergone the severest trials in the service of Railway Engineers, Conductors, and Expressmen, the most exacting class of watch wearers, and the presence of over 400,000 Waltham Watches in the pockets of the people is the best proof of the public approval, and must be accepted as conclusive of their superiority by discriminating watch buyers, especially so since the important matter of price is also very greatly in favor, being at least twenty-five per cent. cheaper, quality for quality, than those made elsewhere in the United States.

An illustrated description of the Watches made by the American Watch Company of Waltham will be sent to any address on application.

In addition to a description of the Watches, the pamphlet contains much other useful information to watch buyers.

AS THESE WATCHES ARE FOR SALE BY ALL RESPECTABLE JEWELLERS, THE COMPANY DECLINE ALL ORDERS FOR SINGLE WATCHES.

For facts and all other information, address

ROBBINS & APPLETON,
General Agents,
je12 6tr 182 Broadway, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

MISSISQUOI SPRING WATER, for sale by principal Druggists,

CURES CANCER,

Cures Cutaneous Affections, cures Scrofula, and all the impurities of the blood; and the sovereign remedy for

BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

And other diseases of the Kidneys. This is the original Spring Water from Vermont which has wrought so many wonderful cures, and is advertised only to distinguish it from the many imitations that are now attempted to be palmed upon the public as being equal to the virtues of the Missisquoi.

Pamphlets containing an account of many wonderful cures, attested by eminent physicians and others, can be had gratis by calling at or addressing a note to

NO. 8 COLLEGE PLACE,
my1 6m New York City.

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

Are just what most people need. A dose or two will set your Liver to work, and the result will be your Headache will be cured, your appetite will be restored, you will sleep sound, and wake up good natured with all the world. All persons are troubled at times

WITH A TORPID LIVER,

AND

McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

Are just what they need. They will thoroughly cleanse the Liver and put it in healthy motion. TRY THEM, and you will never be without a box in your house.

BE SURE YOU GET

DR. C. M'LANE'S LIVER PILLS,

PREPARED BY FLEMING BROTHERS.

They can be had at any Drug or Country store in the United States. my07 1y

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.'S

ADVERTISING AGENCY.

"They have reduced advertising to a more perfect system than has been known heretofore."—Hazleton (Pa.) Sentinel, October 31, 1867.

"Whatever is prompt, methodical and straightforward, they practice in their dealings, and only that."—Boston Commonwealth, November 30, 1867.

"They now probably do the heaviest advertising business in the country."—Manchester (N. H.) Daily Union, January 25, 1868.

"Their establishment is perhaps the most extensive in the United States."—Cape Ann Advertiser, Gloucester, Mass.

"This firm is now the most substantial business house for advertising in the country."—American Mining Index, (N. Y.) April 2, 1868.

"With their reputation they can and do get the lowest and most advantageous terms."—Mishawaka (Ind.) Enterprise.

We are prepared to receive advertisements for all American newspapers, at prices as low as can be obtained at the offices of publication.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Advertising Agents,
jy10 4tR 40 Park Row, New York.

WANTED, AGENTS.—$75 to $200 per month, everywhere, male and female, to introduce the Genuine Improved Common Sense Family Sewing Machine. This machine will stitch, hem, fell, tuck, quilt, cord, bind, braid and embroider in a most superior manner. Price only $18. Fully warranted for five years. We will pay $1,000 for any machine that will sew a stronger, more beautiful, or more elastic seam than ours. It makes the Elastic Lock Stitch. Every second stitch can be cut, and still the cloth cannot be pulled apart without tearing it. We pay agents from $75 to $200 per month and expenses, or a commission from which twice that amount can be made. Address SECOMB & CO.,
Pittsburg, Pa., Boston, Mass., or
St. Louis, Mo.

CAUTION.—Do not be imposed upon by other parties palming off worthless cast iron machines, under the same name or otherwise.—Ours is the only genuine and really practical cheap machine manufactured. jy10 4tR

PHŒNIX DISINFECTANT.

Best and cheapest Deodorizer in existance.
For Outhouses, Water Closets, Stables, etc.
Instantly stops bad smell and noxious gases.
Protects Horses and Cattle from Rinderpest.
Drives vermin from poultry and young plants.
Prevents contagion and infection.
Cheapest and most convenient Carbolic power in use.
Meets chief requirements Metropolitan Board of Health.
First premium awarded by American Institute.
Circular with testimonials mailed on application. HOLLINS, KIRKUP & CO.,
jy10 4ta 12 Dey street, New York.

BLACKMAR'S MUSIC STORE,

NO. 164 CANAL STREET,

Directly opposite Christ Church, New Orleans.

DEPOT FOR

KNABE'S BALTIMORE PIANOS, AND PRINCE'S AUTOMATIC ORGANS.

Pianos for rent. Pianos tuned and repaired.

A. E. BLACKMAR, 651 Broadway, New York. oct17 1y

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE

sep15 1y New Orleans.

F. HATHORN, ALF. H. PIERSON: Late of Shropshire & Hathorn.

HATHORN & PIERSON,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

And Wholesale Dealers in

Groceries, Oils and Drugs,

Nos. 95, 97 and 99 Gravier Street,
oct17 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's "Domestic Family Physician" describes all Diseases and their Remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
mh13 9mp 714 Broadway, New York.

DOLLAR SALE.—WE GIVE ONE hundred yards Muslin for a 100 Club; 20 Watches and 10 Poplin Dress Patterns in every 100 slips. Send fifty cents for slips describing fifteen articles. Circulars free. Agents wanted. ALNER, EARL & CO.,
jy10 4tR 24 Chauncey st., Boston, Mass.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

THE EMPTY CRADLE.

In the lonely, quiet chamber
There's an empty cradle bed,
With a print upon the pillow
Of a baby's shining head.
'Tis a fair and dainty cradle;
Downy soft the pillows white;
But within the blankets folded
Lies no little form to-night.

Once the mother sat beside it
When the day was growing dim,
And her pleasant voice was singing
Soft and low a cradle hymn.
Now there's no more need of singing
When the evening shadows creep,
For the cradle bed is empty
And the baby goes to sleep.

Little head, that used to nestle
In the pillows white and soft;
Little hands whose restless fingers
Folded there in dreams so soft;
Lips we pressed with kindest kisses—
Eyes we praised for purest ray—
Underneath the church-yard daisies
They have hid you all away.

Ah! the empty, useless cradle!
We will put it out of sight,
Lest our hearts should grieve too sorely
For the little one to-night.
We will think how safe forever,
In the better fold above,
That young lamb for which we sorrow
Resteth now in Jesus' love.

THE GOOD-NATURED BEAR.

There are many species of bears—the brown bear, the black bear, the grizzly bear and the white polar bear. They are found in every quarter of the world, and their habits differ much according to their species and to the climate where they live. Some of them are flesh-eating animals, wild and furious. Some feed partly on flesh, as the polar bear; many feed mostly on vegetables, are very fond of honey, and though they rob the wild bees, do not often attack men, and are, on the whole, good-natured animals.

In one of the valleys which divide Europe from Asia there lived an infirm old woman. Her cow, on whose milk she chiefly depended, had strayed from the pasture, and was nowhere to be found. Leaving her cottage at the dawn of the morning, the old woman set forth in search of the truant. After rambling up the valley for many hours, almost weary of the chase, she at length caught a glimpse of a dark brown skin lying on the grass among the bushes. Angry at the trouble the creature gave her, she aimed a shower of blows with her birchen staff at the animal she supposed to be her cow, of whom she had but a peep through the leaves. Up jumped the creature, turned sharply round and showed to the good dame's wondering eyes—a large brown bear.

The two stood gazing at each other for a moment, when Bruin, as if seized with sudden fear, turned and made off. Not far from the same place two children, one four and the other six years old, strayed away from their friends who were hay-making. In the course of their rambles they came upon a bear lying on the grass, and not having learned to fear him, went up to play with him. He eyed them good-humoredly, and made no objection when they crawled over him and mounted on his back. Probably he had feasted and was sleepy. In a short time they were excellent friends, the children especially being delighted with their play-fellow. The parents, missing the children, became alarmed and went to look for them. To their dismay they found one child sitting on the bear's back, and the other feeding him with fruit. At their mother's call the children ran to their parents, and the bear quietly returned to the forest.

Whistling Pigeons.—Walking in the vicinity of Pekin one is often surprised to hear a sharp and shrill whistling, which appears to come from a great height, and to proceed from pigeons, which may be seen flying in close bands over head—birds to which one knows nature has denied the power of song. The explanation is that at Pekin a large number of vultures and of other birds of prey wage a continual war upon the pigeons; and to prevent their destruction the Chinese have invented a kind of whistle of various forms, manufactured with little gourds, or with small pieces of the rind of bamboo fastened together, in which they make openings intended to produce long whistling sounds when the wind blows through them. These whistles, which are exceedingly light, are furnished with a small tongue of wood pierced with a hole, by means of which these instruments are attached to the tails of the pigeons. This operation, says a traveler, is performed especially upon those pigeons which, in their flight, are found at the head of the bands; the rapidity of their course causes the air to strike the whistle, which thus produces a prolonged sound, and drives off the birds of prey, which are frightened by the noise, the cause of which they do not understand. At one of the meetings of the Societe de Acclimation this whistle was exhibited by M. Champion, one of the members of that society. Lady Dorothy Neville has fitted some of these whistles on to pigeons at Dangstein. The sound is that of many Æolian harps playing simultaneously, and is very pretty.—Arthur's Home Magazine.

SCIENTIFIC.

FOSSIL GUMS OR COPALS.

Professor W. H. Gunning contributes to the Philadelphia Coachmaker's Journal an article on the above subject. He says:

Amber and copal are so entirely of the past that nature, it would seem, has forgotten how to make them. They come down to us from one of the bygone ages, although no place has been found for them on the page of the geologist. Commerce has made them known to the world, and science has at last interpreted their origin.

Every one has seen gum bleeding from a cherry tree. This gum is hydrocarbon, inodorous and soluble in water. Imagine the gum, hard as the wood that bleeds it, soluble only in alcohol, and that only when oxidized, and you have amber or copal. In some olden time, trees long extinct—the Pinus succinifer—were standing on the shores of the Baltic. Another species, with a more formidable name—the Eloeocarpus copalifer—was growing over the desert of Africa and in South America. If now we approach the Baltic, and dig down to the old tree-bearing soil, we find clumps of amber gum, bled from the succinifer. Specimens are found now and then on our continent, at Cape Sable and Gay Head. Gum from the copalifer is called copal. Copal does not differ essentially from amber. It is more abundant and more accessible. The beginning was far back in the golden age of Africa, before the wind and the sand had made a desolation of her great plain. How impenetrable the gloom and mystery which veil this land of the sun! Here is a desert, parched and blasted, the same to-day as when the caravans tracked it, with the stars for chart and compass, in the days of the Pharaohs. Men have thought of it as a primal blight, a brand of some great curse on the new created world. And yet that plain, so desolate now, was covered once with a majestic forest. The trees have perished, and their sap alone remains to tell that they were. Under a burning sun these trees were bleeding gum; insects came to sip it, lit, mired; the nectar flowed around them and entombed them; the trees perished, but time has wrought their blood into gems, and here are the insects to-day embalmed in their crystal tombs forever. A hundred thousand deaths could not disturb even the dust upon their wings.

Our fathers used to puzzle over these insects in amber. The amber itself was a mystery, and then the insect—how did it ever get there? We no longer wonder how the insect got there, but how long it has been there. Negroes find the copal down even eighty feet in the desert sand. We infer that in places the soil from which the copal tree grew was buried under eighty feet of sand and clay. We have no data by which we can fix the time demanded for such a change, but we know enough to assure us that it must be reckoned in thousands of years. The revolutions of nature, from forest to desert, are never achieved in a day.

In general the greatness of a change is a measure of the time. In general, we say. Where man comes in as a disturbing force, desolation or abundance follows quickly in his path. The plains of Babylonia, so fertile in the days of the great Babylon, the borders of Lake Galilee, so beautiful when the Saviour was wont to seek them, are now desolate.

The crimes of men "have dried up realms to deserts." Nature has done the same, but she is never a swift architect of ruin. To have wrought the extinction of a race of trees from Africa, and buried the soil which bore them under eighty feet of sand, must have required many ages. The fly or moth, which looks as if it had just lit in its crystal coffin, may have been there a hundred thousand years. We are very sure it was there, just as you see it to-day, long before there was any man upon the earth.

A race of trees perished from the earth, and left no wood or bark to tell that they lived, no seed or scion to perpetuate their kind, but their sap, their spirit—a more aroma which exhaled from their wounds—this remains, a thing of beauty, while everything that was earthly has crumbled to dust.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, the distinguished archæologist, maintains that Babylon is the site of the Garden of Eden, and that the Babylonian documents now extant give an exact geographical description of the scene of "man's first disobedience."

FARM AND GARDEN.

Keeping Fowls in Large Numbers.

The attempt to keep a large number of fowls together has usually met with poor success. Chickens especially are impatient of crowds, and are too apt to sicken and die in the absence of ample breathing room. A Mr. John S. Ives, of Salem, Massachusetts, thinks there is no serious obstacle to success on a large scale with proper management, and gives the following suggestions:

For the accommodation of one hundred fowls he proposes one acre of grass land on which are five small shelter coops, as remote from each other as possible—assigning twenty fowls to each tenement. During the day they can run together, and with a little attention at the outset they can be trained to seek their own domiciles with unvarying regularity. A wall or fence five feet high is deemed an ample enclosure if the Brahma variety is selected, as they are of a less roving character than most others, while they are regarded as superior to all others in the way of profit. In selecting the stock the medium sized fowls should be preferred, as they mature early, and, with high feeding, will be ready for market in from ten to twelve weeks from the hatching. Fowls should never be wintered more than once, and never be allowed to moult. The eggs intended for hatching should be fresh laid and not allowed to get chilled by frost. The thick shelled eggs should be preferred, and not be placed under the hen until she has set one or two days and become accustomed to and satisfied with the place selected for the process of incubation. The location should be warm, dry and fully sheltered from air currents. They should be fed corn for about ten days, and thereafter scalded meal mixed with boiled and mashed potatoes. When the chicks are first heard to chirp the hen should be confined to the nest for twenty-four hours, and the place darkened. At the expiration of this time the hen should be removed to a coop, and the chicks with the hen. At two days of age they should be fed with a mixture of bran and mashed potatoes for a couple of weeks, when they will be out of danger and may be allowed greater freedom of range. The conclusion of Mr. Ives is that fowls, in large numbers, will pay if properly managed, but if not cared for they become an expense to the owner and a nuisance about his premises. American Farmer

TEA CULTURE IN TENNESSEE.

